Code Changes On Selective Buys Looming

Campi Legal Committee Working on Plan

Campi's legal committee is working on an amendment to the code covering selective contracts. Because of the loose interpretation of the clause, codists cannot tell whether selective pictures must be released by the exhibitor 21 days after downtown runs complete playdates or three weeks after availability.

Much confusion has arisen on this question and it is stated that under the present system a competiting exhibitor waiting for rejections by the purchaser of a selective pact can be "forced out of business."

Code Authority at the last session mulled over the clause, but decided to wait for developments at Friday's

The Headline Parade of 1934

The significant industry news events of 1934, as culled from the day-to-day headlines of Motion Picture Daily throughout the year, are presented for review on pages 6, 13, 14 and 16 of this issue.

Outstanding in the headlines is the evidence they present of widespread financial improvement throughout the industry during the year, both in the improved earnings statements of all important companies and the definite progress toward rehabilitation of those organizations which experienced receivership or bankruptcy during the preceding year. Also vying in significance with these developments are the experiences of the industry in the first year of its attempt at self-regulation under the NRA code; the development of the church decency campaign to influence the moral tone of films and its resultant strengthening of the Production Code Administration.

The year was also marked by a minimum of internal conflict within the industry and fewer changes in top executive positions than have occurred in many years.

Third in line is Spain, which has 1,528, followed by Italy with 1,079. Sweden is next with 800 installations, and Czechoslovakia rating sixth place with 777. The Baltic countries have a total of 185 sound theatres, of which Lettland has 77; Estonia, 56, and Lithuania, 52. There are no available

Washington's Code Struggle Draws Nearer

Congressmen Promising An Investigation

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 1.—Interests opposed to the code are massing their forces here for conferences with members of Congress upon whom they will rely to push their fight and are said already to have been assured that an investigation of the agreement will be sought.

It is not believed, however, that the opening days of Congress will see the question raised, but that, rather, the matter will be held in abeyance until President Roosevelt sends the legislation for perpetuation of the NRA to his lieutenants in the House and in the Senate.

While it has not been divulged whether any effort will be made to attack the code in the House, it has

The picture was shown in Vienna at the second International M. P. Exhibition. The Pope attacked and condemned it and, through the efforts of Mandel, who apparently doesn't approve, it has been barred from practically all Europe. It is said that Mussolini was on the verge of according the film a medal as the best picture of the year, but was dissuaded, the award going to Gaumont British's "Man of Aran," which has been imported.

The film was secretly screened at a local theatre last Saturday before an audience including Ely Frank, counsel for the Customs Division; Herbert Oliphant, Treasury counsel; Hunting Carns, morals adviser to the Treasury, and others.

Chatkin for a Cut In Picture Totals

CLEVELAND, Jan. 1.—Discovered: a pessimist for 1935. He is David J. Chatkin, one-time bigwig with Publix and now an independent theatreman operating through Monarch Theatres, Inc. Here is what he thinks:

"Being optimistic at this time of the year is an old Spanish custom in our industry. Each year the same feeling of optimism prevails; always a hope for the future business improvement, things are on the upturn, we have passed all the corners and many other stock phrases.

"Unless certain steps are taken by producers I do not believe our business will be any better in 1935 than the past year. However, I feel very optimistic about business in general, but ours cannot improve unless definite changes in the present policies of picture production are made.

"By no stretch of the imagination is it conceivable that poor pictures will attract greater patronage in 1935 than they did in 1934. Outstanding pictures produced splendid grosses in 1934 but, by the reverse, poor pictures established new lows in a great many situations. Too many poor pictures are now being produced and before we can expect any consistent improvement in our business the number must be materially reduced.

"Not much can be done to bring this about for the greater part of 1935, but each major distributor should give serious consideration in making up his 1935-1936 schedule to a sizeable reduction in the total number of pictures to be produced. To make fewer but better pictures would be a powerful stimulant for our business.

"One could be very optimistic as to the future of our business if it were announced that our 1935-1936 schedules would contain fewer and, of necessity, better pictures."

B. Mayer at M-G-M, believes big grosses are increasingly in sight for worthwhile and novelty attractions in 1935.

Code Changes On Selective Buys Looming

appeal hearing of the Kutinsky-Schwartz overbuying complaint. The case revolved around selective contracts purchased from eight major distributors by Schwartz for his Queens, Queens Village, L. I.

At the appeal hearing Louis Nizer, in appearing for Kutinsky, who operates the Community, one block from the Queens declared that exchange managers do not want to sell this way but are forced to because of the buying power of circuits. He also said that in all cases exchanges lose money on such deals.

"There is nothing wrong with selective contracts," Nizer said, "but in the Kutinsky-Schwartz instance Century is using this method to choke off Kutinsky," he said. He pointed to a specific instance where Paramount wanted to sell half of the product away from Century, but "Schwartz insisted on all."

Wanted to See What He Got

Mitchell Klupt, attorney for Century, contended that pictures were bought selectively because the circuit wanted to see first what it was getting and was paying more than it usually would for this privilege. He stated that most of the contracts have no stars or titles and in some cases no production numbers.

At this point W. C. Michel, chairman of the hearing, stated that Klupt was no better off than the producers. "We're in the same boat," Michel said.

Max Levinson, independent exhibitor on the committee, held that if in the instance of Paramount where 44 of 64 were bought on a selective contract Century could date the first 44 pictures and Kutinsky would have to wait until the final booking before he knew where he stood. Levinson also stated that if Schwartz wanted to do the same on the seven other contracts he could, but Klupt answered this with the assertion that this is rare.

During the hearing Nizer stated that Joe Lee of Fox wanted to sell only a split to Century, but that he was overruled and 40 of 56 were sold on a selective basis.

Wage Scales Talks Now Up to Capital

No further meetings of the NRA fact-finding committee on the New York basic operator scale will be held at Campi. The next session for discussion of the local booth situation will be held in Washington on Jan. 11 when the public hearing is slated to bring out opposition to the plan tentatively agreed upon by circuit and independent heads and executives of the I. A. T. S. E.

One of the figures to be contested in Washington will be the $6-an-hour booth cost for theatres seating more than 4,000. At present, operators get $3.83 an hour and there are three men in the booth at all times, or a total booth cost of $11.49 an hour. The new rate will net de luxe houses a reduction of $5.49 under the proposed scale.

been learned that any discussion of the matter in the Senate will be led by Senator Gerald F. Nye, who a year ago utilized the reports of Clarence Darrow's National Review Board as the basis of a series of attacks upon the Recovery Administration. Senator Nye, however, has not yet decided upon his course of action, but is understood to be awaiting the disclosure by the President of the terms of the new Recovery Administration legislation.

It is believed that, if the bill contains provisions for revamping of codes which, in the senator's opinion, will give minority interests a fair show, he will withhold his attack. If the legislation is not to the senator's liking, he is expected to assail not only the film code, but also the Recovery Administration and Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt, as he did last year.

Reintroduction of the long-standing block booking bill also is contemplated by the senator, although he has not yet committed himself. Deeply interested in the munitions probe, in which he has the backing of the Administration, he is not expected to have much time for less important matters, particularly if they are of a nature which might lose him some of the support he now is receiving from Administration sources.

While it is expected that the usual grist of film control bills of one sort or another will be introduced in the early days of Congress, the present plans of Administration leaders at the Capitol do not contemplate serious consideration of any subjects not directly connected with the President's recovery program.

The only other film matter which is sure to come up is the admission tax. Scheduled to expire by statutory limitation in July, action will be necessary during the session for its continuance.

Film Stocks Outstrip Every Other Line

issues as the prospect of continued improvement in the country's general business and favorable developments in the industry itself increased buying operations.

Most film issues touched their year's highs late in 1934, when the heaviest Christmas trade in four years indicated a sharply increased public purchasing power that augured well for box-office receipts in the future.

Columbia Pictures voting trust certificates were in demand on the company's reputation, accepted downtown, as the best depression earner. The issue rose to a high above 41 late in December and finished around 39 for a net gain of about 15 points.

An extra dividend declaration by Loew's spurred already big interest in that stock and it was in heavy demand Buying of all film shares was described by brokers as "informed" in character and originating largely within the industry itself.

Eastman Kodak, usually a wide performer, showed the largest gain of the year in common stock, rising more than 31 points to above 112. Heavy activity occurred in Paramount Publix and Paramount Famous Lasky bonds afer publication of their reorganization plan and the issues scored sweeping gains.

The industry during 1934 made considerable progress in removing conditions that resulted in huge losses and caused large capital write-offs. A slow trend toward the pre-depression level of profits appeared likely at the year end.

Fox Film made a good showing on the exchange in extending the progress made since its drastic reorganization in 1933. Warners, viewed as still handicapped by an extensive circuit and heavy financial charges, had a steady undertone, this reflecting mainly a prospective gain in operating results.

On the floor of the Stock Exchange, film issues were more active, in point of total sales, than in any year since 1931 when the turnover reached 28,462,000 shares. In 1934, the turnover bulked 10,881,440 shares comparing with 8,573,864 in 1933 and 9,367,262 in 1932. Activity in the curb market, however, shrank to a total turnover of 230,100 shares last year as compared with 495,850 in 1933, 367,905 in 1932 and 1,958,625 in 1931. Bonds with a market value of $43,704,000 were traded in during the year just closed. This compares with $11,172,000 in 1933, $17,708,000 in 1932 and $1,165,000 in 1931.

Hollywood Is Better Equipped, Says Lloyd

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 1.—Producers will develop a "surer touch and more confidence" in the making of quality features this year, according to Frank Lloyd, prominent director and president of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences.

"The popularity of the candid biographies of a year and two years ago did not take away the glamour from history in the public mind but rather humanized the characters so that the motion picture could deal with them in closeup and make them living recreations instead of statues on pedestals," he states.

"The technical and artistic equipment of Hollywood has now reached for sound pictures the same flexibility which it had achieved at the end of silents."

Warners Plan For Their Own Sound Service

Settlement with Erpi Provides for Shift

Warners will set up a sound equipment service of their own, having withdrawn from the arrangement under which Erpi has been servicing 301 of the company's theatres, it was learned yesterday.

According to Motion Picture Herald, out today, Warners' action "established a precedent in the electric's rigid policy of compulsory servicing of the 5,500 W. E. reproducers which have been installed in theatres in this country to date" and was made possible legally "through the workings of some of the secretly-held phases of the agreement by which Warners and Erpi effected a settlement last

RCA Photophone Not To Try New Service

Music Leads Studio Trend For New Year

By VICTOR M. SHAPIRO

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 2. — Hollywood doesn't make the public's dreams—it just cans them.

Hollywood doesn't decide the trends—it just pictures them.

While peon or dictator silently spin their dreams—while from millions of hearts and from millions of human fountains, sub-conscious aspirations rise to reality or burst into bubbles, Hollywood, with mirror in hand, merely catches and reflects man's wishes and desires, transmuting them by the magic of light, color and sound, into film entertainment.

What, for 1935, will the public get

Drastic Film Control Bill Up in Albany

Scripts, Ads, Contracts Would Be Regulated

ALBANY, Jan. 2.—Under the terms of a censorship bill introduced today by Senator John T. McCall of New York City censorship would be extended to scripts prior to production and to all advertising material, and the censors would be empowered to enlist the cooperation of civic and religious organizations; to prescribe forms of contracts between distributors and exhibitors, and to classify pictures as suitable for adults, families or juveniles.

The law would require that all advertising material should also carry the classifications of adult, family and juvenile.

The director of the censor bureau would be empowered to adopt all rules and regulations necessary to carry out the objectives of the law.

If these Hollywood indications are true reflections of subconscious strivings it would seem that music, barometer of mass emotion, interpreter of the people's feelings, the art that affords escape from daily reality—music is what the public wants for 1935, according to production headquarters.

Evident also is the trend toward opera, since Grace Moore met vociferous response in "One Night of Love." Lawrence Tibbett has been signed by Darryl Zanuck. M-G-M has Nelson Eddy before the cameras. Miss Moore is readying her second under Victor Schertzinger's direction. Gladys Swarthout, former grand opera favorite, is considered a find by Paramount, combining physical beauty with charm of voice. Nino Martini has signed with Lasky.

Studios are flirting with Richard Tauber and Mario Chamlee and Radio has signed Lily Pons, all of which tends to strengthen the belief that for the latter part of the year, noted singers may come into their own.

Color also seems destined to play a part after the midyear. "La Cucaracha" apparently merely whetted the appetite of the public. "Becky Sharp," RKO, and Walter Wanger's color feature have been announced and sequences are planned in many films, including "Midsummer Night's Dream" and decision of Walt Disney to produce "Mickey Mouse" in Technicolor.

Music, popular and classical, and color innovations are the reflections Hollywood sees in the mirror for 1935.

on the street—but he will have to go into a theatre to see them.

Double features on the same bill will become as sore as the public and will stop talking to each other.

Exhibitors will be prouder than ever to show their shorts in public—now that they are in color.

MPPDA Expands Offices

Large additional office space was opened by the M.P.P.D.A. yesterday on the 15th floor of the building which houses the Hays organization. It will be utilized by the eastern office of the Production Code Administration and the Advertising Advisory Council under J. J. McCarthy. The new space will also be used to relieve congestion in the main offices on the 21st floor, with Arthur Dickinson, Upton Wilkinson, Rev. Irvin E. Deer and others transferring their offices to the new section.

and exhibitors. The distributor fee would be $50 per year and that for an exhibitor $10. Distributors would be required to file a $5,000 bond and exhibitors would be called upon for $1,000 bonds to insure compliance. The director of censors would be empowered to suspend licenses for violations of regulations.

"The bill I have introduced," said Senator McCall, "will go a long way towards insuring clean films for the people, and will make possible the securing of more certain contractural relations between the distributor and exhibitor. It will enable exhibitors to know what they are buying and give them a chance to learn whether a picture is objectionable before exhibited.

"The bill also provides that its provisions shall supersede any provision of the NRA code in conflict therewith."

McVickers Row Ends With a Para. Lease

McVickers, Chicago Loop house, was concluded here yesterday and provides for abandonment by J., L. & S. of the anti-trust action threatened several weeks ago against B. & K., Paramount and large distributors.

B. & K. relinquished its lease on the McVickers last summer and the house was recently reopened by J., L. & S., the lessors. Aaron Jones of J., L. & S. subsequently charged that he was unable to obtain product for the house and threatened the anti-trust suit. Under the agreement just reached Paramount leases the house from J., L. & S. until July 31, at which time, it is assumed, Jones will be in a position to bid for 1935-36 product in the event he operates it thereafter.

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount theatre head, said yesterday that no operating plans had been made for the McVickers under the new lease and that the house might be kept closed.

Winds Delay Air Trip

High winds prevented the showing of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's "Baboona" 12,000 feet over Manhattan yesterday. Roger Ferri, handling the film for Fox, had planned to screen it for newspaper and syndicate men on two trips. The stunt will be put over today, weather permitting.

Mastbaum Off To Profit in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Anticipated smash business for Christmas Day was not realized in Philadelphia. There were no actual standouts, the business being split rather evenly among the unprecedented number of openings, including the kick-off for the Roxy-Mastbaum.

After the first two days, with the Mastbaum running behind expectations, gloom was thick around the theatre, but business spurted later in the week and the house hit an estimated total of $38,000, generally conceded by the amateur accountants to represent profit on the investment. Roxy's shows are geared much lighter than the last time the house was reopened with a nut of $42,000 on the first show. For this present system, it is believed that the house can get by on slightly better than $30,000. "Sweet Adeline" is the opening film.

June of the seven-year battle over sound royalties claimed by Warners as their share of the profits for participating with W. E. in the commercialization of sound through Vitaphone."

"One of the important parts of the settlement which was not revealed by either party in announcing the settlement," says the Herald, "was a clause which gave Warners the right to void the compulsory servicing clause of its theatre reproducer licenses any time between the date of the settlement in June and Jan. 1, 1935. It was agreed that if Warners did arrive at such a decision both parties would first participate in friendly discussions with the point in view of negotiating a new blanket servicing contract. These discussions were held, in utmost secrecy, over a period of weeks.

"Erpi finally submitted a new proposal, economically more favorable than the existing one, but Warners rejected it on the grounds that while it did give certain price concessions and was not out of proportion to the service to be performed, the Warner management could save considerable by doing its own servicing."

Warners will continue as an Erpi licensee despite their withdrawal from the servicing agreement. The company's service bill has been running to approximately $400,000 yearly, it has been estimated.

The Herald adds:

"There is no intention at the moment on the part of Warners to develop their United Research sound equipment manufacturing subsidiary to the capacity of turning out reproducers on the wholesale to replace the W. E. reproducers now installed. This, they hold, would be economically unsound."

At the Erpi offices here it was said yesterday there was still a chance of averting Warners' withdrawal from the servicing pact, the same opinion, however, not being held by Warners.

Philadelphia Union Gives Booth Service

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—Under terms of an agreement reached between the M. P. T. O. unit here and Local 307 booths are to be serviced free of charge by union men. It is estimated this will save exhibitors several thousand dollars annually.

The union will employ booth inspectors and will have two specially equipped automobiles to make monthly inspections and also to answer emergency calls from 10 A. M. to midnight.

Hope to Solve Bombings

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—With a detail of Department of Justice investigators analyzing evidence found in connection with the recent bombings of theatres here and in Lynn and in Pawtucket, R. I., many in the district believe there is a good chance that the continued and concentrated efforts that have been successful in tracking down other terrorists will succeed in this instance.

last summer, they found considerable difficulty in getting the product. Warners took over the Rialto a short time later, opening it in September. Arthur then filed a complaint with the Department of Justice and nothing had been heard until yesterday.

It is believed the Grand Jury may check into a possible conspiracy to restrain trade.

Arthur and Jack Partington of F. & M. also were served yesterday and will leave either tomorrow or Saturday for St. Louis. The hearing opens at 10:30 A.M. Louis Phillips of Paramount left for St. Louis yesterday afternoon and Sidney Bromberg of M-G-M departed late last night. Robert Youngman, attorney, Jules Levy and Cresson Smith of RKO Radio plan to leave either today or tomorrow. Edward Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, counsel for U. A., left for Pittsburgh yesterday and plans to leave the Smoky City today for St. Louis.

Efforts to reach attorneys for Columbia, Fox, Universal and Warners were unavailing, although it was admitted these companies had been served. Spyros Skouras was not served yesterday and efforts to reach his attorney were unsuccessful. Skouras had the three houses before F. & M. entered the picture.

Santa Fe May Lower Coast Run 16 Hours

Running time between New York and Los Angeles may be cut 16 hours to a total of 56¾ hours. In the spring the Santa Fe will put in service west of Chicago a new high-powered Diesel-electric streamline engine.

The New York Central stated yesterday it proposed maintaining its New York-Chicago run at 17¾ hours. The saving enters the picture through the planned reduction in the schedule of the Chief from 58 to 39 hours from Chicago to the coast; if the new locomotive comes up to expectations.

The Union Pacific report no contemplated changes in any of its Chicago west schedules. Southern Pacific on Tuesday trimmed running time of its Sunset Limited between Los Angeles and New Orleans one hour for a total span of 59 hours and 35 minutes.

Ray Johnston and several leading franchise holders on next season's lineup.

Production, which was halted Christmas Day, resumes Jan. 20 when "Hoosier Schoolmaster" goes into work with Lew Collins directing.

Powers Pins Hopes Upon Open Booking of freedom allowed each exhibitor and qualified theatre manager in the selection of pictures."

To this end, Powers urges a "prompt revision" of the code and "the adoption of a booking system similar to that in vogue in England."

"This needed change will become obvious during the coming year and, if it is effected at an early date, 1935 will usher in a new era of prosperity.

"The English system of actually screening all pictures before they are formally booked removes all uncertainty as to quality and desirability. It uncovers objectional pictures in advance of any theatre's obligation to show them. It gives every exhibitor the opportunity to select pictures bets suited for his theatre and it assures a free and open market for every producer with meritorious product.

"Such conditions are sane and sensible and of decided financial advantage to every one concerned in production, distribution and exhibition.

"The possibility of this change in the industry is the outstanding prospect for 1935."

S. M. P. E. Meets Jan. 9

Huffman Code Defiance Goes To U. S. Court

Denver, Rialto, Tabor, Bluebird, Bide-a-Wee and Orpheum.

On complaint by the Denham and Ogden, the local board on Sept. 25 handed down a unanimous decision declaring the practice a violation of Article V-E, Part 3, Section 1, dealing with giveaways. Huffman appealed. After a review of the case, Campi affirmed the Denver board decision.

Huffman continued the practice after Campi's edict with the result that last week exchanges were notified to stop serving the theatres involved after Jan. 7. On Friday the summonses were served.

District Attorney Thomas J. Morrissey has been delegated by the NRA to represent the code board.

British Get An Industry Control Bill

Provides for Majority Rule in the Trade

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 3.—A bill introduced in the British House of Lords by Lord Melchett is regarded as holding out a possibility of national control of the industry resembling, but going beyond, the provisions of NRA in the United States.

This measure, the Industrial Reorganization (Enabling) Bill, would give the power to a majority in any industry to work out a scheme of reconstruction for submission to the Government. If adopted by the latter, it would have the force of law, and dissenting minorities would have to conform.

Though read a first time in the House of Lords, it is thought unlikely

Film Bills Hit Congress, But Deluge Hides Their Identity

Washington, Jan. 3.—The opening of the 74th Congress today saw the introduction of a number of bills dealing with films. Because of the number of measures submitted, several thousand being introduced in the House alone, identification of any individual piece of legislation was impossible, but the measures submitted were reported to be those which have been introduced annually for several years past.

Representative Patman of Texas, who at the last session sponsored the block booking bill, was said at his office not to have reintroduced the measure today although it is expected he may do so later.

Representative Sirovich of New York, who in past years has secured much publicity through his copyright activities, is understood to have several measures ready for submission, while other bills would remove the ban on interstate transportation of fight film and amend the copyright law.

The film was Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's "Baboona," photographed largely from the air over Africa. A panorama of African landscape spreads out forward in the cabin and Johnson's voice explains that the thousands of animals running hither and thither are zebras.

"I am apprehensive as to our problems in a legislative way," he said. "We are going to be beset with various unfair and discriminatory bills in Washington. Many of these are inspired by those within this industry with selfish interests, others will be sponsored by reform organizations of various kinds. Insiders' Outlook

BY courier and from Samuel Cummins, a wordy communication pointing up the errors, his style, of the reportorial system which prevails in these parts. It has to do with "Ectacy," Czechoslovakian-made and known on the other side as "Ectase." States Cummins: "'Ectacy' has not been barred from practically all of Europe. The truth is the picture is being shown all over Europe and has been made in all languages and is considered the finest feature produced in many years." Magnanimous as we occasionally are, we now prove it by allowing this latter statement to slip through when Cummins really ought to have the grace to pay to get that one on the linotypes. . . .

More from the same communication:

"For your information, the part of the girl losing her clothes is minor. The picture has attracted attention for its unusual direction, beauty and simplicity. Although 'Ectacy' (Cummins goes in for all caps here) is 9,000 feet, less than 300 words are spoken throughout the entire film. 'Ectacy' is a beautiful, clean picture and a credit to the industry. . . .

"For your information, we wish to inform you that, if the picture was indecent, we would not have imported the picture. We not only imported the picture, but also purchased same and have put up quite a bit of money to bring the film into America."

Cummins having extended the invitation to exploration, let's get going and see what we can see. He makes a point of the point that the part wherein the girl loses her clothes is "minor." And another of the fact that less than "300 words are spoken throughout the entire film." He makes no mention and, therefore, we do of the manner in which the affair between the girl, Hedi Keisler, and the man is handled; of the long, deliberate sequence where merely the head of the girl, reflecting emotions about which you can draw upon your imagination for definition, appears on the screen, interrupted only occasionally by the caressing fingers of her lover. He describes what has been said about "Ectacy" as "malicious propaganda spread by Hedi Keisler's husband." That's "not to be taken seriously. It's just a personal matter with him," adds Cummins. In all modesty, we should hope so. . . .

It may be that the treatment by which the primal emotion is handled is artistic and even nostalgic. Personally, this forum stands willing to see the film whenever Cummins will put it on. The question here is whether or not the subject matter is suitable for general circulation through the channels of an entertainment medium that hits all classes in all native climes. Aside and apart from all this, whatever argument may have studded Cummins' comment goes completely out of the window by his own damaging statement. ". . . if the picture was indecent we would not have imported the picture." Isn't this the same Cummins who, years ago, made a specialty of public health and venereal disease films such as "The Road to Ruin," proving thereby that his business philosophy was attuned only to the finest, the cleanest and the best in celluloid ware? . . .

High jinks at Paramount: Yesterday morning a deal was virtually set for "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" to bow in at the Astor on a two-a-day basis, top prices. Yesterday afternoon, Paramount decided to put the picture back into the Paramount. There it opens on January 11. Bill Pine, studio publicity hound, flew in from the coast yesterday all for the sake of the Astor exploitation campaign. Now he's minus. Yet the excitement at and near the crossroads of the world is understandable. For, in "Bengal Lancer," as Vic Shapiro said and said well in his telegraphed Hollywood preview the other day, Paramount has its outstandingly important picture in some time. . . .

Resembling the book content only where the title enters the deliberations, here is an exhilarating and exciting story of high, soldierly adventure before, in and beyond Khyber Pass, Britain's final, strategic stronghold in the north of India. He-man stuff handled in the accepted two-fisted fashion, it tells a story of military comradeship and daring photographed in broad and colorful strokes with much pomp, circumstance and pageantry. A grand show on all counts, a credit to its producing company, its producer, Louis Lighton, and its director, Henry Hathaway. . . .

A high U. A. executive, light on his toes and fantastic with his rhumba, met Frank Busby the other day at El Morocco. And was awed. So were a lot of the town's elite, shy of the knowledge that it was one of the grandest hoaxes perpetrated locally in several years. Busby was supposed to be (1) one of the first three wealthiest men in the world, (2) an international financier, (3) a munitions manufacturer, (4) hunter de luxe with shooting lodges in South Africa, South America and South Hoboken. Actually, Busby was Nicolai Youssepaskuniak, broken down Russian actor hired by a group of young and well-known conservatives all in the cause of sweet fun. . . .

If for any reason you may have been curious over the story-telling ingenuity turned on to bring Frankenstein back to life, the answer runs something like this: The new monster film will pick up where No. 1 left off. That was the climactic scene where, presumably, Frankenstein was nicely charred by greedy flames. It seems, however, that back in '33 F. dropped through the burning floor into a convenient pool of waiting water and merely sizzled instead of burned. Now he'll be back soon to give untold children bigger and better nightmares. . . .

A SWELL PUBLICITY BREAK!

'REEL' HEART PROBLEM AT CAPITOL

Hollywood producers have a "heart problem"!

When Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer cast both Clark Gable and Robert Montgomery opposite Joan Crawford in "Forsaking All Others," it was considered a brilliant casting idea. But when the time came to decide which of the two should win Joan in the final fade-out, the worry started

The two men represent distinctly different types of screen leading men. Gable is the rugged, outdoor hero, and Montgomery the brilliant, witty but none-the-less sincere society man.

There are film fans who rave about Clark Gable, and others just as ardent in their admiration for Bob Montgomery And that's something you have to keep in mind when you're making a film, or you'll hear about it quick.

Some Gable fans didn't like the fact that their idol lost out in the final clinch of "Manhattan Melodrama," and Montgomery fans have been clamoring that it's about time their favorite gets a "break."

It looks like a real problem for Beatrice Fairfax. Joan's decision is being kept secret until the film is unreeled at the Capitol, where it is now being presented—and Hollywood is anxiously awaiting the fireworks that are sure to follow in the fan mail from the camp of tha loser

Which type does the American girl think would make the best husband? Which one would she accompany to the altar and forever after be content in "Forsaking All Others"?

The producers wish they knew the answer

CLARK? – GIRLS, HELP JOAN CHOOSE A REEL MATE! – OR BOB?

CLARK GABLE
He's the rugged, outdoor hero playing opposite Joan Crawford in "Forsaking All Others."

SUAVE SOPHISTICATION
Robert Montgomery, who is wooing Joan Crawford in his ardent scene, represents the class of man with polish and ballroom manners. BUT—

VERSUS RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM
This is a typical Gable-Crawford love-making scene, which raises the question as to which type Joan should marry in reel and real life.

ROBERT MONTGOMERY
Will he win Joan? Or does she prefer Gable's type. It's a tough decision.

all equally involved, exhibitor, producer and distributor.

"We, as an organization, are going to put forth every possible constructive effort the coming year. We are determined to fight to the limit unfair legislation and disturbing factors within the industry."

On other points, Kuykendall expressed considerably more optimism.

"Theatre owners everywhere are looking forward to 1935 with renewed courage and optimism. It is as it should be because 1934 is past history. We cannot recall the past, but we can mould the future so far as our industry is concerned.

"The so-called boycott has really helped us. It served to unite us and bring us into a proper realization of our mistakes and an appreciation of our ability to do things once we are convinced as to what the proper thing to do is. It made people theatre-minded that had forgotten us, and they are coming back to their old time favorite diversion, the motion picture. Never have so many really wonderful pictures been offered in such a short time, pictures that are packed with entertainment, yet are clean and wholesome.

"I am most optimistic as to 1935. Theatre owners have accepted showmanship as their slogan. They are no longer depressed. They have the product. Business will be good in 1935."

Talk Over Cuts in Para.'s Payments

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe last week centered principally on the two provisions discussed. Wednesday's meeting was with the creditor bank group and yesterday's with representatives of the Paramount Broadway bondholders' committee. No final agreements resulted from either meeting, it was said, although others are slated to be held during the next few days at which the reorganization committees are also expected to renew discussions on the selection of additional members for the new Paramount board of directors.

'Baboona' Shown in Plane; And There's a Lot to See

are going. On the right Manhattan's skyscrapers spread out like shrubbery in a garden. Thousands of moving objects are rushing about in this far-flung panorama, too, but they're not zebras.

There are so many things to look at. First, there's Mrs. Johnson in a leopard coat. Then Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker comes along and inspects the shining duralumin sides of a big Douglas plane. Then Roger Ferri of Fox asks all present to look at a camera.

After all, it's an historic occasion—for the film technicians, of course—and a picture must be made. Then there is the Newark meadows spread out in a widening circle.

Earth Like Oriental Rug

It's like an Oriental rug done in shades of tan, with miles of waving reeds for the pile, and splashes of blue and sulphur yellow on chemical plant dumps to give it gorgeous highlights. The plane sweeps westward into a haze tinted with rose and violet by the setting sun. Elizabeth passes beneath, Perth Amboy, the Narrows, with Sandy Hook on the left. Brooklyn spreads out like a checkerboard, and toy boats leave white wakes behind.

The Empire State building flashes beneath and you wonder how far down it is.

And all this time Africa is spreading out in front of you. Vast herds of this and that—masses of birds. Johnson's plane is landing and going up again. Black natives argue.

And all the time you don't know whether to see Africa or New York.

Technically, it was an achievement. The pictures were exciting, the sound perfect, but after all when the world's greatest metropolis is spread out below, when lights are beginning to blink in a magic carpet of violet haze, it's hard to concentrate.

Three trips were made, the first with the trade paper boys with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, Capt. Rickenbacker; then New York newspaper writers, among whom are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howard of Scripps-Howard, and their daughter; Tom White of the Hearst publications; Col. Frederick Herron of the Hays office, and representatives of the big news syndicates.

Arrests Made in Boston Bombings found in a room occupied by the actor at the Hotel Paramount.

Phillip R. Van Arsdale, business agent of the M. P. Operators' Union, and John Mongillo, New Haven operator, were taken into custody and held in $15,000 bail each after Logan had been questioned by police and Department of Justice operatives.

Logan is alleged to have revealed that two men, one known to him only as "Tony" and another named George Howard, met him in a New Haven saloon and told him to go to the Hotel Paramount in Boston, where a man known as George Anderson would meet him and tell him which Boston house he was to burn. When the man failed to show up, Logan is said to have declared he inquired for him at Boston theatres but no one knew him.

Logan's arrest was caused by George Baker of Somerville, to whom the actor is said to have spilled the story in a drunken moment in a local restaurant.

Terroristic activities flared up again last night when a sulphur bomb drove the audience from the Warner, Lynn. Several hours later a second bomb was found in a fire behind a radiator. Police were unable to say whether it was a deliberate attempt to fire the house or just meant to terrify the patrons.

BOSTON, Jan. 3.—The Majestic, damaged by a bomb on Dec. 13, has been reopened by F. E. Lieberman. The repairs were rushed.

that the bill will become law at this time, but its introduction is regarded as significant of the drift of industrial opinion in the direction of corporate control.

The Cinematograph Times, official organ of the theatre owners' association, says the proposed measure is a warning against "a policy of drift" on the part of the trade and hints that it will be better to get an agreed exhibitor-renter policy in regard to excessive rentals and overbuilding than to have one enforced by legislation.

An action for alleged infringement of patent rights has been brought in London by RCA Photophone, Ltd., against Gaumont British Picture Corp., Ltd., and British Acoustic Films, Ltd., a subsidiary of G. B.

RCA alleges that the B. A. system of sound recording infringes its patent No. 361,907. The defense is a denial of infringement and an allegation that the patent, due to lack of inventive step and insufficient detail of specification, is invalid.

Measures by which variable width is obtained in the sound track, in the plaintiffs' system, are alleged to be infringed by the defendants' use of a variable triangular beam and it is asserted that the optical system in the British Acoustic system is practically identical with that covered by the plaintiffs' patent.

Attacks Clearance In Baltimore Spots

Declaring that none of the major distributors would sell him his second run unless he agreed to charge a 15-cent minimum, Herman Zimmerman, operator of the Echo, 390-seat house in Baltimore, yesterday complained that protection for the McHenry and Pacy's Garden should be reduced from 14 to 10 days.

During a code appeal hearing, it was revealed the Washington clearance and zoning board is giving first runs 14 days protection over second runs. Frank Durkee represented the McHenry and Pacy's Garden while Zimmerman appeared on his own behalf.

Other Washington board cases heard by Cresson Smith, chairman, and F. Tom Murray, were:

Joseph Brodie, Brodie, against the McHenry and Pacy's Garden, Baltimore, on overbuying; Thomas E. Ayres, Palace, Georgetown, against the Arcade, Salisbury, Md., on clearance and zoning; Bayne-Roland Corp., Bayne, Virginia Beach, Va., against all first runs in Norfolk on clearance.

new National Theatres, at the same time granting the two sole objectors, Marshall Square Theatres and Harry L. Hartman, permission to appeal their case in the Circuit Court of Appeals. The appeal comes up in San Francisco on Monday.

Should the appeals court grant the appeal, the objectors would have 30 days to file briefs and it would possibly be three months before action could be taken, thus holding up the transfer that long.

Warners, Muni Dicker

Hollywood, Jan. 3.—Warners are dickering with Paul Muni for a third picture, although Muni has completed his quota of two on the current year's program.

The studio now wants him to take the top spot in "Oil for the Lamps of China," which Mervyn LeRoy will direct, and have mailed a script to New York for the actor's decision.

U. K. Prospects Held Good for U. S. Films

financial setbacks, the outlook for motion pictures in Great Britain has now assumed a more hopeful aspect. When there is money to spend, the public will certainly spend a generous portion of it on entertainment and, today, entertainment largely means motion pictures.

"The American star values in the British territory will take a long time to wane—if ever they do. The Britisher, while having a leaning towards home talent, always preserves a liking for the world's greatest stars—the outstanding men and women of each sphere of entertainment; the film, the stage, radio, opera, vaudeville and the gramophone.

"I would like to point out, however, that the British public is averse to one type of American star—the fast talker who indulges in a string of rapid-fire slang of the Sez You, Oh Yeah! variety."

Says E. D. Leishman, recently named head of a committee of four, to manage operations here of Radio Pictures, Ltd.:

"General prospects for American-made pictures in the British market are still what they ever were—good in proportion to the entertainment value and the box-office appeal of the pictures themselves. British audiences, however, are probably more loyal and less liable to sudden fluctuations of taste than any other, and so long as the standard of entertainment is maintained and improved, the general prospects are at least as good as ever.

"Undoubtedly the box-office outlook is looking better for 1935 than it has been in 1934.

Virginians Hopeful On Sunday Opening

Richmond, Jan. 3.—Prospects for action on Sunday blue laws at the coming session of the Legislature are considered brighter than at any time in the past because of the recent spread of Sunday benefit shows.

After Police Justice Elben C. Folkes had discharged employes of the Byrd who had worked for a Sunday show the charity shows became numerous. People have become used to the idea, it is contended, and what effect this will have upon legislators is causing speculation.

Chief of Police Robert B. Jordan recently held a conference with theatre managers here and demanded financial statements of the receipts and charity disposition of all funds from Sunday shows. No agreement was reached.

Lancaster is a city of approximately 60,000 inhabitants. It has six picture houses, namely: Hamilton, Grand, Capitol, Colonial, Fulton, Strand. The first three mentioned are Warner Brothers theatres; the other three are independently owned and operated.
Personally, I would like to see the MARCH OF TIME exhibited in one of the independent houses, preferably the Colonial. This theatre is located on the busiest corner of our city and it seems to be the most popular. My second choice would be the Fulton.
Here is hoping the MARCH OF TIME will be as great a success in theatres as it always was on the radio and that I may have a chance of seeing and hearing it in Lancaster shortly after the first of the year.

Sirs: —

I am elated at your announcement of the new news cinema feature "The March of Time." I append a list of greater Boston movie houses to whom I have sent the following letter:

"THE MARCH OF TIME, the new news movie is available in January.

I shall want to see it and shall recommend it to my household (5), to my office staff (25), to my friends (hundreds), and to my clients (more hundreds).

I shall recommend it in the Journal 'Private School News' which I send to all private schools (1000) suggesting that they recommend it to their pupils (100,000).

The radio 'MARCH OF TIME' has been the best and most meaningful entertainment on the air. I have confidence the editors will make their twenty minute reel equally interesting and valuable."

Baltimore Business Better, Says Durkee

Theatre business in Baltimore has shown a slight improvement over last year, Frank H. Durkee, head of the circuit bearing his name, stated yesterday. Admissions have been maintained in the territory with slight cutting, he said. Baltimore is one of the few cities in the country which have kept up admissions, he added.

Operating 17 houses, the Durkee Enterprises plans to build a new 1,500-seat theatre at Liberty Heights Ave. and Gwynn Oak Junction. The circuit is having trouble getting a building permit from the city council, but this is expected to be ironed out shortly. Most of the theatres in Baltimore are in operation, Durkee said.

There is only one 10-cent house. That is the Grand. This year the five-year Fox franchise with the Durkee circuit expires.

Further Slashes in Prices Loom in K. C.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 3.—Further cuts in admissions for downtown theatres loom on the local horizon with Loew's understood planning to reduce the Midland prices within the next few weeks. The house a few weeks ago sliced the matinee admission to 15 cents and now is contemplating another slash.

Joe Vogel, in charge of theatre operations, is due here shortly to look over the situation. It is understood the Midland cannot meet competition of the RKO Mainstreet and Tower which recently made drastic reductions in scales.

Fast Newsreel Time On Steamer Sinking

All Broadway theatres were supplied at opening time yesterday with newsreel shots of the sinking of the Lexington in the East River the night before.

News of the accident "broke" just as the reels were compiling their regular midweek issues, enabling them to get night shots of the scene and interviews with the ship captain, members of the crew and passengers and furnishing them to Broadway houses in the morning with the regular reel release.

New Coast Contracts

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Joe Morrison and Sir Guy Standing have had their options renewed at Paramount.

Henry Wadsworth now has a new long-term contract at M-G-M.

John Wood, English actor, has signed a long-term contract with RKO and arrives Jan. 20.

Luise Rainer, who has been signed to a long-term contract at M-G-M, leaves Paris Jan. 9.

Samuel Kazer, talent coach for M-G-M, has been retained on a new contract.

Lucile Watson and Nelson Eddy have been given new contracts by M-G-M, which has re-signed George Seitz to a long-term directorial agreement.

Van Beuren Spots Five

RKO Van Beuren shorts have landed in five Broadway houses simultaneously for the current week. The bookings are the Astor and Mayfair with "Dumbbell Letters"; Music Hall with a color cartoon and the Bijou and Trans Lux with Charles Chaplin reissues.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Only 8 Hours"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—Dramatizing the conflict of a young interne (Chester Morris) against hospital red tape and visualizing his rocky romance with Virginia Bruce and with interne Robert Taylor his rival, George Seitz has directed a whipcracking picture, which, in exposing institutional shams, hands out a good, pungent show.

Built smartly from human materials with a distinctive, central idea, the film contains comedy, pathos, suspense, melodrama, tragedy and action, building to a tense scene with Morris, under a local anasthesia, directing his own operation being performed by friendly enemy Taylor while Miss Bruce attends.

Morris adds to his laurels by an exciting, nonchalant performance. Taylor's scenes drew applause. Miss Bruce is decorative. Billie Burke, as a neurotic patient, is highly amusing. Johnny Hines, Raymond Walburn, Henry Kolker, Robert McWade, Donald Meek, Louise Henry and Bobby Watson complete a good cast.

The screen play is well conceived by Michael Fassier and Sam Marx from Theodore Robert's play, "The Harbor." Lester White photographed well. Lucien Hubbard's impress as a producer is evident throughout.

While produced ostensibly as a program film, it rates better, due to its entertainment qualities. Previewed without Production Code Seal. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Red Hot Tires"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—A good action drama with story inconsistencies surmounted by fast tempo and direction and good cast performances.

Centering around the automobile racing game, the film's chief entertainment and thrills are provided by stock shots of the Indianapolis speed classic, featuring spectacular crackups.

Lyle Talbot is framed into a 10-year stretch on a manslaughter charge as the outcome of a race in which Gavin Gordon is killed while trying to wreck Talbot's car. Mary Astor, daughter of an automobile manufacturer, discloses the plot and effects a pardon from the governor on the eve of Talbot's escape from prison through the aid of a pal (Roscoe Karns).

Talbot and Karns skip to South America, where the former becomes a racing king. The duo finally are tempted to return to the United States to drive Miss Astor's father's personally designed car in the Daytona classic. A plot to place Talbot under arrest fails when Gordon's mechanic is held on a dirty driving charge.

Miss Astor and Talbot spin the romantic thread.

D. Ross Lederman's direction gives the film the necessary speed. Cast performances are all good. Tristram Tupper penned the original. There is good photography by Arthur Todd.

Code Seal No. 458. Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

"Sweepstake Annie"

(Liberty)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.—"Sweepstake Annie" is a thoroughly amusing comedy-drama based on the Irish Sweepstakes. The story, continuity and dialogue are deftly rounded out by S. Scott Darling from a suggestion by Evelyn Law.

The story's central figure is Marion Nixon, a working girl from a middle-class family who longs for the "better things" in life. She is about to marry a nice electrician, Tom Brown, when she finds her ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes is the winner. With $100,000 she acquires a pent house, furs, jewels, and an assortment of crooked friends who are all conniving to romp away with her bankroll. The last of her money is finally saved from the hands of a phoney broker, Ivan Lebedoff, and his accomplice, Vera Engels, as a result of clever sleuthing on the part of young Tom.

William Nigh directed expertly, showing particular finesse in handling the comedy sequences. The cast contribute fine trouping. Inex Courtney as Marion's girl friend, and Carol Tevis as her sister, are responsible for many laughs. Harry Neumann's photography is good. Picture is good fare for neighborhoods.

No code seal. Running time, 67 minutes. "G".

Short Subjects

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas, No. 4"

(Universal)

A worthwhile short. The camera journeys to Malta, pries into a pile of Aztec ruins and finishes by taking a hike to the top of Mt. Crillon. The shots of the Alaskan mountain peak were taken on a mountain-climbing expedition. Scenes of Indians fishing for salmon in the Columbia River in Oregon complete the subject matter. Code seal No. 444. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction, No. 4"

(Universal)

A collection of oddities and strange customs that is highly interesting. An armless marbles wizard, a 12-foot flint-lock, a road surfaced with a cotton composition, a Mexican ice cave—these are some of the subjects in this short. Code seal No. 445. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Rustlers of Red Dog"

(Universal)

If the succeeding chapters contain as much action as the first three, then here is a serial that will probably go over with a bang, both with adults and children.

It has everything in the line of western thrills, including Indian fights, quick drawing and shooting by the hero (Johnny Mack Brown), scenes in Indian villages, the U. S. Cavalry and even a buffalo charge.

The story is slow in getting started, and, in fact, is negligible in the first three chapters. It appears that Brown is a former United States Marshal who is bent on reaching California to settle down. With him are his two pals, Raymond Hatton and Walter Miller. But he meets Joyce Compton before he reaches California and it is a safe prediction she accompanies him in the end, if he really continues his journey.

Brown's trip, however, is first interrupted by a band known as the Rustlers of Red Gap. He comes out ahead in this encounter and then saves a family from an Indian attack. Next he is fighting with a wagon train that seems to be surrounded by hundreds of redskins. The third reel winds up with his rescuing Miss Compton after he leads the U. S. cavalry across the plains to save the train, only to find himself helpless before a horde of charging buffaloes.

Production Code Seals on the first three reels are Nos. 461, 462 and 504. Average running time of reel, 19 mins. "G."

"Toyland Premier"

(Universal)

This is one of the Oswald series, but done in Technicolor, and should afford mild entertainment to adults, while the kids will probably eat it up. Oswald sends a telegram to Santa Claus inviting him to a party. Santa's preparations, his arrival and the party itself, with various screen stars drawn in as guests, are then shown. The characters of Laurel and Hardy provide most of the comedy. Production Code Seal, No. 418. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Hints Denver Ruling

Denver, Jan. 6.—That Harry Huffman faces possible defeat in his suit to test the power of the grievance board in ordering his film service cut off because of his refusal to abide by a ruling to end auto giveaways was hinted Saturday when Federal Judge Symes said in District Court here the practice bordered on gambling. The indication was Huffman might get no relief from the court.

Pending decision in the case, in which further argument will be heard Thursday, the exhibitor was granted a temporary restraining order preventing exchanges from denying him service.

Code Changes To Help Bank Nights Sought

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 6.—An aggressive fight to eliminate or sharply modify sections of the code restricting prizes and rebates will be made at revision hearings before the National Industrial Recovery Board in Washington beginning Jan. 9.

Rezoning for New York City In the Offing

Board Will Act in 30 Days, It Is Stated

Within the next 30 days, the main New York clearance and zoning board is expected to call in all exhibitors for a rezoning of the territory, a member of the board has informed MOTION PICTURE DAILY. The reason for the meeting is a number of verbal complaints against Loew's, it is stated. The complainants are being told to file written protests, expected to be on file within the next month.

In citing the complaints against Loew's, the board official states exhibitors are put out over the cumulative protection for the circuit which holds up runs following Loew's.

Insiders' Outlook

THOSE who sit in on the more or less regular conferences on RKO reorganization stick to the viewpoint the company may find itself preparing for legal dry cleaning by the close of the first quarter of the year if—, that devastating stopper, in this case, referring to continuance of the company's current earnings rate. On such a basis, if and when, the idea entertains a plan of reorganization prepared and completed by June which isn't so far away. The same crystal-gazers, hopefully or otherwise, will tell you almost without asking that a neat profit will be rolled up for first telltale quarter of this year and a loss of less than $500,000 for 1934. . . .

If it does nothing else, the attitude reflects confidence radiating in some directions that an RKO, rehabilitated, looks like a tangibility at least, come April. Actual work on a plan of reorganization is being set back by Special Master Thomas D. Thacher's long awaited report to the Federal court on the $35,000,000 in claims smacked at RKO by its creditors. That report was due some time ago and may emerge rather quickly now. Once rendered and that first quarter profit noted, reorganization would not be remote by mid-year, allowing, as must be, for the contesting of claims which always marks this sort of thing. Such is the story cherished by some of the reorganizers. If anyone is stuck with it, they are. . . .

About "Nate," meaning N. L. Nathanson, and those stories picking him up from Famous Players Canadian and setting him down in the Royal Bank of Canada. This much there is to say: He may be elected a director of that stalwart of the banking world across the line one of these days. That would come about through the close association, at least a decade young, between "Nate" and the Holts—Sir Herbert, outstanding Canadian financier, president or director of approximately 200 Dominion corporations, president of the Royal Bank as he is of the Montreal Trust, which has been financially benign to Nathanson for many years; and Major Andrew, nephew to Sir Herbert and the latter's successor on the Famous Players Canadian directorate. . . .

It was Sir Herbert who figured largely in the checkerboard moves which brought "Nate" out of retirement not so long ago and returned him to circulation with a whirl as president of F.P.C., the company Nathanson did more to build into the most formidable theatre chain in Canada than any other individual. Up near the head of the phalanx with Holt were two other men. One, I. W. Killam, Montreal financier. Two, J. P. Bickell of Toronto. This was the triumvirate which not only succeeded in the coup for Nathanson, but forced the retirement from F.P.C. of D. W. Ross of Toronto, G. P. McLaughlin, president of Canadian General Motors, and Arthur Cohen, quondam managing director. . . .

The business alliances and sympathies making these various men friendly and understanding of each other, therefore, pave the way for a Nathanson identification with one of the Holt-blessed enterprises. To say, however, or to assume, for that matter, that a plan such as this presaged his withdrawal from active operations of F.P.C or Regal Films or Empire Films—all Nathanson enterprises—is to say or to assume far too much. To point again, on the other hand, that Nathanson is no longer interested in any of the top spots in the about-to-be-reorganized Paramount here in New York is assuming nothing. It happens to be the truth. . . .

Now that the Loew circuit, all points on its compass included, has signed for "The March of Time" series, watch the sales barrage follow. For this deal, the first, had a bearing on many others or maybe it is the other way around. The First Division bunch is smiling and why not? Ditto on Fred McConnell, eastern end on sales for the new reel. While on things concerning F.D. attention rates fastening on the opener of a new series of shorts known as "Thrilling Journeys" and made by Audio Productions, papa of the charming "Musical Moods" shorts. Called "Old Faithful Speaks," this is a quick trip through Yellowstone National Park with nature broadcasting and climaxing her fol-de-rols with the famous geyser talking and saying it with a roar and an impact and a thunder that make the finale of this short one of the most thrilling this frontier post has ever witnessed. . . .

With approximately $800,000 invested in "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and roughly $1,000,000 in "Clive of India," Paramount and United Artists are about to enter the jousting field in a race for top money with pictures drawn from Mother India's ample bosom. There are those who insist on typing both attractions as members of the same category, but why and how don't seem quite clear. Military background and Englishmen and India in both, it is true. Yet the span of time between the conquest of India for England by Robert Clive and the guerilla warfare picturized in "Bengal Lancer" is almost two hundred years. Clive did the acquiring then; the Bengal lancers today do what they can to see the acquisition doesn't wander. If this suggests the theme of "Clive of India," so far unseen, is more arresting, more sweeping historically and dramatically, which it would appear to be, let U. A. make the most of it. . . .

be held early next week. Present difficulties are said to center on the unwillingness of exhibitors to increase admission prices when the vaudeville acts are booked, together with the A. F. A.'s belief that a percentage of the gross increase, as offered by exhibitors, would not be a definite enough guarantee. A. F. A.'s plan involves organizing about 30 vaudeville companies to tour the country in buses, playing only those cities where vaudeville has been discontinued for some time.

Zirn Loses Moves For Para. Action

was dismissed Saturday by Justice Salvatore Cotillo in State Supreme Court.

Zirn alleged that violations of the state stock corporation law and the failure of Chase to bring suit under the indenture provisions against Paramount, the old board, C.B.S. and Paley resulted in "irreparable damage and injury" to the plaintiffs, who are holders of $5,000 of a $13,000,000 Paramount bond issue involved. In dismissing Zirn's action, the court pointed out that the bond indenture provides that any right to institute an acion on behalf of the bonds shall rest exclusively with the trustee, Chase, and denies such a right to bondholders themselves "unless the trustee shall have refused or neglected to institute proper proceedings within a reasonable time after a request by 25 per cent of the bondholders, together with an offer of reasonable indemnity against costs and liabilities to be incurred therein."

Justice Cotillo held that no request to bring an action had been made to Chase by the required 25 per cent of the bondholders. Despite the dismissal of his principal action Zirn retains rights in the state court to prosecute actions for examinations of Paramount Publix, Film Production Corp., members of the former board of directors, the National City Bank, Chemical Bank & Trust Co., Bankers Trust Co., Manufacturers Trust Co., County Trust Co. of N. Y., Central Hanover Bank and the Commercial National Bank. The defendant banks were participants in Paramount's $13,000,000 Film Production credit transaction of 1932.

Zirn, Palmer Para. Briefs Are Finished

Briefs setting forth the objections of Samuel Zirn, Paramount bondholder counsel, and Archibald Palmer to the Paramount plan of reorganization have been completed and will be filed today or tomorrow.

The two attorneys have furnished the only opposition to date to the plan. Zirn's brief asks a reduction of $1,500,000 in the $5,175,000 cash payment to be made to the Paramount bank group under the plan and makes objections to the make-up of the board of directors of the new company. Palmer's objections are similar and also ask for the separation of the Paramount Broadway reorganization from that of Paramount Publix.

The taking of formal proof of the plan is expected to require several days after its resumption on Jan. 10 before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe. If the court accepts the plan thereafter, five or six weeks may then be required for its study and approval by the necessary two-thirds in amount of creditors, thus indicating that even without unexpected delays the plan cannot be placed in effect much before mid-March or April.

Academy Roster Gaining

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6.—In addition to a score or more members reinstating their membership with the Academy during the past two weeks, two new writers have joined the Writers' Branch. They are Reginald Berkeley on the Fox writing staff and Patterson McNutt from Paramount.

trouble in many key centers. The usual procedure of exhibitors ordered to discontinue the practice by local boards has been to take appeals to Campi, pending determination of which they have been able to complete contracts.

Edward L. O'Connor, attorney general of Iowa, has suspended an opinion given by Walter Maley, first assistant attorney general, on Dec. 8, declaring bank nights a lottery. Local authorities have been advised to take no action under the original opinion until supplemental instructions are issued.

Municipal Judge L. R. Sheets has ruled in favor of Don Thornburg, Marshalltown, Ia., exhibitor, charged with operating a lottery in connection with bank night.

Thornburg's case has long been before the local grievance board at Des Moines. When the board found against him on Sept. 25, he appealed, and Campi set his case for hearing on Nov. 1. In the meantime, Thornburg sent letters to President Roosevelt, Deputy Administrator William Farnsworth, Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt and others to the effect if he was compelled to discontinue the stunt, he would close his two theatres and bring damage suits against the officials named and the NRA. Thornburg's case was not heard by Campi, and he is still operating bank nights.

In the Kansas City territory, nine cases pending with the local grievance board or with Campi on appeal have been withdrawn by the complainants. Glen W. Dickinson Theatres, which recently started bank nights, have dismissed eight which the circuit had filed against competitors.

Stopped in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 6.—Bank nights have been ordered discontinued in eight theatres by the grievance board. Houses ordered to discontinue include the Riviera, Milwaukee, operated by the A. & V. Operating Co.; the Paradise in West Allis; Orpheum and Strand, Green Bay; Embassy, Neenah; Brin, Menasha; Allis, West Allis, and Rex, Oshkosh, all houses operated by Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, Inc., or its subsidiary, Milwaukee Theatres, Inc.

The board also issued a cease and desist order against the Embassy in Neenah, charged with issuing perfect attendance cards to children providing for attendance at 15 episodes to a serial with a free show to those attending all 15 episodes after it had been shown.

The Bay, Green Bay, was also ordered to discontinue selling thrift coupons worth $1.50 in admission for $1.00. The complaint was entered by Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises, operators of the Orpheum and Strand in Green Bay.

Click in 3 Nebraska Spots

LINCOLN, Jan. 6.—Three Nebraska keys are operating bank nights to excellent reception. The spots, Norfolk (Granada, managed by Rowan Miller), York (Sun, managed by Carl Rose) and Kearney (World, by Ralph Blank). There has been a lot of squawk about the practice at other previous attempts, but these three cases have gone on without trouble.

previous decision that the vote on premiums was legal.

McCarthy informed the code office here that he was unsuccessful in attempts to have independent exhibitors reinstate their signatures to the original ballot on the question, which required a 75 per cent declaration of exhibitors.

There is little chance that another attempt will be made to conduct a vote on the abolition of giveaways, since no one wants to take the responsibility. Jay Means, I.T.O. president and grievance board member, who took the original vote, said he would not revive the issue.

The grievance board, deciding three cases brought by Fox Midwest, recently held that requests of six independents to recall their names from the petition should have been honored.

Records Back To '31 Asked In St. Louis

York, who advised her to release the records.

One of the important phases of the investigation is understood to be Paramount's 20-year franchise with the Ambassador, which, the receivers for the theatre state, was a vital asset. When the Ambassador, along with the Missouri and St. Louis, was leased to Fanchon & Marco for 10 years the new operators could not get the product, Paramount having sold it to Warners for the Rialto. The Ambassador has been able to get only Universal, Fox and Columbia product this season.

Abel Cary Thomas of Warners, Louis Phillips of Paramount, Edward Raftery of the law firm of O'Brien, Driscoll and Raftery, representing U. A., Adolph Schimel of Universal, Sidney Bromberg of M-G-M, a Columbia New York attorney; Robert Youngman, Jules Levy and Cresson Smith of RKO, and Harry C. Arthur and Jack Partington of F. & M., are here from New York for the proceedings. Spyros and George Skouras are due today from New York by plane.

has advised exhibitors in these areas to file individual clearance complaints where aggrieved.

Whether the New York board will actually set up a new zoning plan is problematical. Several individual protests have been heard and disposed of, all having been filed by independents.

The latest clearance dispute was filed last Friday by Century against RKO. A. H. Schwartz, in his complaint, contends that the Fantasy in Rockville Center, L. I., is not competitive with RKO's Far Rockaway and Jamaica houses. In the past RKO's Far Rockaway houses have not had protection over the Fantasy, Schwartz holds, and this year the major circuit is asking for a week's clearance.

Raw stock purchased by producers would be exempt from the tax under a provision releasing sales by one manufacturer to another or articles for further manufacture.

Showmen Eye Censor Bill's Surety Bonds

Last Eagle Glances Over License Requirements

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Exhibitor speculations as to who might be backing the new censor bill introduced by Senator McCall has focussed attention on the clauses which require distributors and exhibitors to file surety bonds or insurance policies in order to secure licenses to do business.

State and municipal licenses usually require a fee, it is pointed out, but governing bodies depend upon their police powers to collect fines for violations or to enforce suspension or revocation of a license.

There are 1,539 theatres in New York State. A $10 license fee would cost exhibitors $15,390 additionally WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Where film legislation will get, if any place, at this session of Congress is anybody's guess. The impression prevails that few measures not connected with the New Deal, or with some other problem the Administration considers important, will get out of committee.

Two film bills that kicked around the last session have reappeared. Both are by Congressman Emanuel Celler of New York. One prohibits block

The Paramount on the second week of "Here Is My Heart" held up as well as the first stanza with $55,000. "Bright Eyes" at the Palace took in $10,500.

Schaefer, Walker Names Up for New Para. Board

Important Paramount creditor support is being given to George Schaefer and Frank C. Walker as well as Charles E. Richardson for membership on the company's new board of directors in current meetings on the selection of additional members, it was learned yesterday.

Frank C. Walker

Schaefer, Paramount general manager, was prominently mentioned for a post on the board earlier in the reorganization proceedings, but the initial board membership, when completed, failed to include his name. His name, it is understood, was not proposed again until meetings held by the reorganization groups during the past few days, during which significant support has been thrown his way, according to reports. Richardson's name, likewise, had been before the reorganization groups earlier, and at the meetings held since his

British Film Supply Above Quota Needs

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 4.—British Board of Trade statistics, made public today, demonstrate that there were five English-made pictures available for every three demanded under the Quota Act during 1934.

Footage on British films registered last year ran to 1,283,841 feet, comparing with 1,202,197 feet in 1933, thus making the percentage of domestic product 22.27 for 1934 as against 22.20 percent the year before.

Total footage of product registered was 5,288,708 feet and the number of features 670, of which the British representation was 190.

Minneapolis Hopeful; '34 Just a Year

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 4.—The year 1934 was pronounced "one of those years" by Minneapolis theatre men as they chalked it off on their calendars and turned to 1935 which they regard with a similarly fishy eye.

In spite of the jaundiced attitude, however, there were those here and there on theatre row who went so far as to say that 1934 had been roughly 25 per cent better than 1933.

"If there was an edge," said one manager, "it was due to the distribution of federal funds for employment and relief. The people have to have entertainment and the movies are the most economical entertainment they can buy."

Developments during the year bore out the statement. Grind houses in

New Recovery Plan Held Aid To Box-Office

Work Income to Replace Direct Relief Funds

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Box-office prospects for the new year were today brightened by President Roosevelt's announcement in his message to Congress that he was prepared to abandon direct relief for the unemployed in favor of a work program which would give those now jobless a larger income than they receive through relief agencies.

The President's plan contemplates the furnishing of work for 3,500,000 persons, who would receive "security payments" larger than the amount now received as a relief dole, "but at the same time not so large as to encourage the rejection of opportunities for private employment."

Other phases of the President's program will be the renewal and clarification of the general purposes of NIRA, the gradual tapering off of the emergency credit activities of the Government, improvement in forms and methods of taxation and unemployment and old age insurance.

Reiterating his assurance that the profit motive is not to be destroyed,

Walker, who is vice-president of Comerford Theatres and former executive secretary of President Roosevelt's National Emergency Council, is a new name suggested for the board. Austin Keough, secretary and general counsel of Paramount; Walter B. Cokell, treasurer, and Max D. Howell, vice-president of Chemical Bank & Trust Co., all of whom were named to the board as temporary members, are still regarded as such in reorganization circles.

Additional meetings on the new directorate are scheduled for this week-end with definite results expected by early next week. Discussions on a separation of the Paramount Broadway reorganization from the Paramount Publix plan and of changes in the provisions for settlement of Paramount's bank debt are reported to have been abandoned for the time being.

Tri-Ergon's original claim against Paramount, also for an undetermined amount, is based on alleged infringements of the double print patent.

the downtown district did a steady business for the most part throughout the 12 months. Neighborhood houses, offering second and subsequent runs of hit shows showed increases almost all along the line.

Ten and 15-cent houses got the play except for smash hits and it was tough to get even these to a 50-cent top.

An oddity in the situation was the forcing of the Palace to raise its scale from 10 to 15 cents. The theatre was being operated chiefly to pay rent and upkeep but found itself shut out of product. William Mick slapped in vaudeville to bolster such product as he could get at 15 cents and has been turning them away from the box-office at times. He is now playing first runs from lesser companies and using 55 minutes of standard vaudeville.

De luxe houses have followed suit to some extent. Resurrection of small time vaudeville in 1935 would therefore appear to be a possibility.

Minneapolis' Time theatre has been feeling its way with more or less leftover product and is dropping its top to 25 cents shortly, a price which is very generally used by neighborhood houses, though Time is in the heart of the Loop. It is a small house and was built with some idea of featuring news reels.

Al Steffes with his little World has had a remarkable year although he has lately been running into some difficulty getting hold of product for his class clientels. His top is 75 cents.

from putting into effect various orders they have made in the litigation.

The clerk of the Supreme Court has sent out the customary telegraphic instructions to the judges not to proceed further until the high court can act on the new petition. Judge Hamilton's term will expire on Jan. 7. Judge O'Malley has been assigned to the division formerly presided over by Judge Hamilton and therefore would have charge of the suit.

The suit is one of many growing out of the factional fights in the Skouras Brothers Enterprises and affiliated concerns. The action was originally brought by William A. Blake and several minority stockholders and charged that the directors of the company had been "negligent, etc.," and that "the assets of the corporation have been dissipated and its stockholders have suffered great loss." The appointment of a temporary receiver was asked.

Recently an effort was made to have Referee in Bankruptcy John A. Hope direct Nelson A. Cunliff, trustee for the St. Louis Amusement Co., to intervene in the Blake suit. Hope declined.

Some months ago Judge Hamilton found against Blake and his associate plaintiffs, but counsel have asked for a rehearing.

the President issued a warning to big business that the Administration has "a clear mandate from the people that Americans must foreswear that conception of the acquisition of wealth which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well."

would be equally divided between "sellers" and "buyers."

In the "sellers" division, under the Allied plan, would be grouped all producing and distributing companies, together with theatres they own or control, or with which they have affiliation. The "buyers" would be "all independent theatres not affiliated in any way with the group known as 'sellers,' either in a direct business connection or indirectly through associations or organizations financed or controlled by the group known as 'sellers.'"

This basic division would also be applied to clearance and zoning and grievance boards.

Allied offers no suggestions as to how the "sellers" would be chosen, but does urge that three government members with voting powers be named.

The latest bulletin reveals that the board of directors will meet in Washington Jan. 24 and 25, if these dates prove satisfactory, so that the legislative program can be pushed.

The annual convention will be held in Atlanta some time in May. The date will be fixed by the directors at their Washington meeting.

Flinn will return Monday and will make a report of his trip to Campi on Thursday.

The money award is based on a wage of $65 a week. Geddes brought suit for recovery and reinstatement against Benjamin N. Pinzel as president of the Buffalo local. Each of the 109 members of the local faces an assessment if the union lacks funds to satisfy the judgment.

Films, Sounding Board From Which General Moves May Spring

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Fortified by President Roosevelt's support, the Department of Justice is out to show industry and the nation at large that the anti-trust laws have survived the New Deal and is using the film business as a sounding board.

Before a Federal grand jury in St. Louis, the Department today began the presentation of charges which Justice officials confidently believe will lead to indictments against leading distributors. Using the complaint made by St. Louis independents as the basis for its presentation, the Department, in fact, is about to bring before the courts the charges made by witnesses appearing last year before the Darrow National Recovery Board of Review.

Officials are saying little or nothing about the case, but it is understood Attorney General Cummings authorized initiation of proceedings only after he had conferred with the President and received White House approval of his course.

Indications are that, if the prosecution is successful, the government may embark upon a "trust busting" campaign on a scale unequaled since the days of the first President Roosevelt.

Erpi Exhibit Shows Newest Sound Gadgets

By J. M. JERAULD

There's more to sound than meets the car and there's more to gadgets that look like automobile dashboards than meets the eye. Plenty more. The problem in telling about it is to translate decibels, kilocycles, octane ratings, amperes, frequencies and other mysterious terms into simplified English.

Continuation Of Admission Tax Is Urged

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"David Copperfield"

By VICTOR M. SHAPIRO

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 7.—Dickens painted pictures with words—too many words say the less reverent of his critics—but the pictures were complete nevertheless. Tender when need be, emotionally varied, satirical at times, even caricatured when need be for emphasis, he created things that gained in importance as classics.

Putting them into picture form requires an understanding of Dickens

"Ectacy" Banned

Washington, Jan. 7. — The Treasury Dep't today refused to permit importation of "Ectacy." Federal officials who saw the picture agreed it was "highly interesting," but hardly suitable for general showing.

In work now are "The Return of Frankenstein," starring Karloff; "It Happened in New York" with Lyle Talbot, Heather Angel and others; "Princess O'Hara" with Chester Morris and Jean Parker. "Transient Lady" with Gene Raymond, Henry Hull and Frances Drake is virtually completed.

Stahl will start on "Magnificent Obsession" while others advancing in blue print are "Diamond Jim" with Edward Arnold; "Moon Mullins"; Edmund Lowe in "The Great Impersonation," "Sing Me a Love Song," Irene Dunne in "Showboat," "Within This Present," "Sutter's Gold" and "The Raven."

Lange Sails Soon

Fred W. Lange, Continental general manager for Paramount, has set back his sailing for home until Jan. 16 when he leaves on the Washington.

Purely Personal

EUGENE O'NEILL, KENNETH MACGOWAN, SIDNEY HOWARD, FRANK TUTTLE, MAURINE WATKINS, ROBERT BENCHLEY, EDWARD KNOBLOCK, ROBERT EDMOND JONES and virtually all of the gang that worked under BILL LE BARON when he was running the Paramount studio in Astoria were drama students of GEORGE PIERCE BAKER, noted Harvard professor, who died Sunday afternoon.

LEOPOLD FRIEDMAN, Loew attorney, pulled a brodie the other day while riding a horse and is now at Mt. Sinai recuperating from an operation on the left eye. It's probable the horse forgot FRIEDMAN had M-G-M protection.

WALT DISNEY appears to have really ridden to fame on his mouse. DURWARD HOWES, editor of "America's Young Men," has picked him as one of the 12 outstanding men in the country.

GENEROSO PONCE, president of Irmaos Ponce, Brazilian distributor for Radio, got into town yesterday for conferences with PHIL REISMAN and other home office officials on new product.

AL LICHTMAN, in Hollywood, was so het up after seeing "Clive of India" yesterday that he immediately called JOSEPH M. SCHENCK on the 'phone and told him what a great picture it was.

ROSITA MORENO, who recently announced her engagement to MELVILLE A. SHAUER, Paramount production executive, will be met at Grand Central tomorrow, en route to Astoria.

BEN VERSCHLEISER, one of Monogram's supervisors, had a happier day here yesterday when he learned his father is doing nicely after an operation at Mt. Sinai Hospital.

DAVE PALFREYMAN, at present looking over the Washington Monument and other items of interest in the nation's capital, is expected back here tomorrow or Thursday.

SYLVIA SIDNEY takes a choo-choo to Hollywood late this week to resume training for her next picture, Paramount's "The End of the World."

LYNN FARNOL's friends gave a swell New Year's Eve party at his apartment, hitherto undiscovered reporting revealed yesterday.

ED KUYKENDALL is due in town Thursday for his regular attempt at converting Campi to a clearance and zoning viewpoint.

M. J. O'TOOLE, former national secretary of M.P.T.O.A., was pacing Broadway yesterday during a visit from Scranton.

M. G. SHACKELFORD is now booker for Monogram in Kaycee, succeeding JOHN SCOTT. This is ED FINNEY reporting.

SAM BERGER, M-G-M foreign representative, was due in New York yesterday from a flying trip to the coast.

Compliance Director SOL A. ROSENBLATT returned yesterday from a 10-day West Indies cruise.

MAURICE MACKENZIE, executive assistant to WILL HAYS, back from glamorous Hollywood.

LEO and SIDNEY JUSTIN have returned from a southern cruise.

JOE LEE of Fox emphatically denies he intends to get married shortly.

AL SELIG is mourning the death of his mother.

A. W. SMITH is in St. Louis.

IRENE THIRER, quondam critic on the Daily News, will write two or three reviews per week for the Post as sort of second-string typewriter pounder to THORNTON DELEHANTY. This will have nothing at all to do with her duties on behalf of ARTHUR MAYER at the Rialto.

CAROLE LOMBARD, who has been getting along without the things she meant to buy before being called back to Hollywood on the day of her arrival here last October for a shopping visit, is due in from the coast by plane today.

MARGO, who danced up from Mexico only to be discovered at the Waldorf by BEN HECHT and CHARLIE MACARTHUR, returns to the city today on completion of her first in Hollywood for Paramount.

ARTHUR STEBBINS longs for a sight of sunny California and begins to make his wish come true when the Century pulls out this afternoon. At least, this was yesterday's plan.

SAM KRELLBERG arrives from the coast next week with a print of his new serial, "The Lost City," tucked away in his trunk.

POLA NEGRI is in the dead center of a transportation problem. She sails for Europe on the Bremen Friday and has to get packed.

BEN CAMMACK of the RKO Radio foreign department leaves for Brazil sometime next week.

GEORGE KANN'S suppressed desire is no more. He's finally had that mess of spaghetti.

CHARLIE MINTZ, the cartoon man, has returned to the coast.

JOHN C. FLINN returned from Boston at 10:30 last night.

Palmer Wins Point In Fox Met Tangle

The right to examine members of the bondholders' protective committee of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses as to their affiliations, activities and other information pertinent to the committee's functions was granted Archibald Palmer, counsel for independent bondholders, in an opinion handed down yesterday by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here.

Members of the committee are Ernest W. Niver, chairman; Joseph W. Dixon, William M. Greve, Max Horwitz and Alvin J. Schlosser. Palmer's petition to examine the committee members was originally denied by Federal Judge Julian W. Mack. In his recent appeal to the higher court he charged that Halsey, Stuart & Co. dominated the committee and declared that he wanted the examination in order to determine whether the committee had profited through buying or selling Fox Met bonds as a result of its knowledge of developments within the company.

The circuit court ruled that 21-A examinations have not been abolished by reorganization proceedings under Section 77-B of the new bankruptcy laws and that interested parties have the right to examine committee members on asking the court for it at the time of reorganization and on the submission of a reorganization plan. Palmer was instructed to make application for the examination in accordance with the opinion. He indicated earlier that he might ask the same examination of Paramount-Publix reorganization committee members.

48 to 52 Monogram's Plan for Next Year

Monogram's new season production schedule will be increased to 48 or 52, comprising 36 features and either 12 or 16 action pictures, it was learned yesterday following the arrival here of Trem Carr, production head.

A definite decision on the 1935-36 schedule will be made at the company's annual sales convention, to be held at Culver City early in April. The new season's plans compare with a current schedule of 20 features and eight action pictures. This schedule, Carr reported yesterday, is 70 per cent completed; 19 pictures having been finished.

Carr, who will be here three or four weeks, will confer with W. Ray Johnston, Monogram president, on the new production plans but described his trip as primarily a vacation one. During his absence Robert E. Welsh, executive producer, will be in charge of Monogram production.

"Barnum" at $35,400 In 2nd Rivoli Week

Second week of "The Mighty Barnum" at the Rivoli grossed $35,400. The Rialto with "Best Man Wins" tallied $15,000, while the Mayfair, showing "I Am A Thief" took in $14,500. "Wicked Woman" garnered $10,500.

The Strand reopens Jan. 23 with "Border Town." "Secret Bride," another Warner film, has been dated into the Roxy starting Jan. 25.

U. A. plans to day and date "The Mighty Barnum" in all key cities starting Jan. 25. On Sunday, the U. A. in Detroit grossed $3,600 and for the first three days at the Fox, Washington, the picture tallied $15,300, according to the company.

Ellis Named Head of N. Y. Salesmen's Club

Jack Ellis, RKO Radio salesman, has been elected president of the M.P. Salesmen, Inc. Joseph Weinberg is the new first vice-president, and Mathew Cahn, second vice-president. Moe Fraum is recording secretary; Charles Penser, financial secretary; Jerrauld Wilson, sergeant-at-arms. Phil Hodes is a new trustee.

The board of directors comprises Barnard G. Kranz, Joseph Felder, Max Fellerman and Jack Farkus. Induction will be Jan. 19 at a special luncheon at the Astor.

Skouras in Denver For Theatre Talk

DENVER, Jan. 7.—Spyros Skouras is due here tomorrow to confer with Rick Ricketson on reorganization plans for Associated Theatres, the new company for Fox Rocky Mountain.

Skouras will probably be here for a week to ten days. The local unit will be taken out of bankruptcy shortly after Fox West Coast Theatre Corp. starts functioning under its new setup.

MGM'S 'BIOGRAPHY' REAL JOY;

Harding-Griffith Team Scores Again

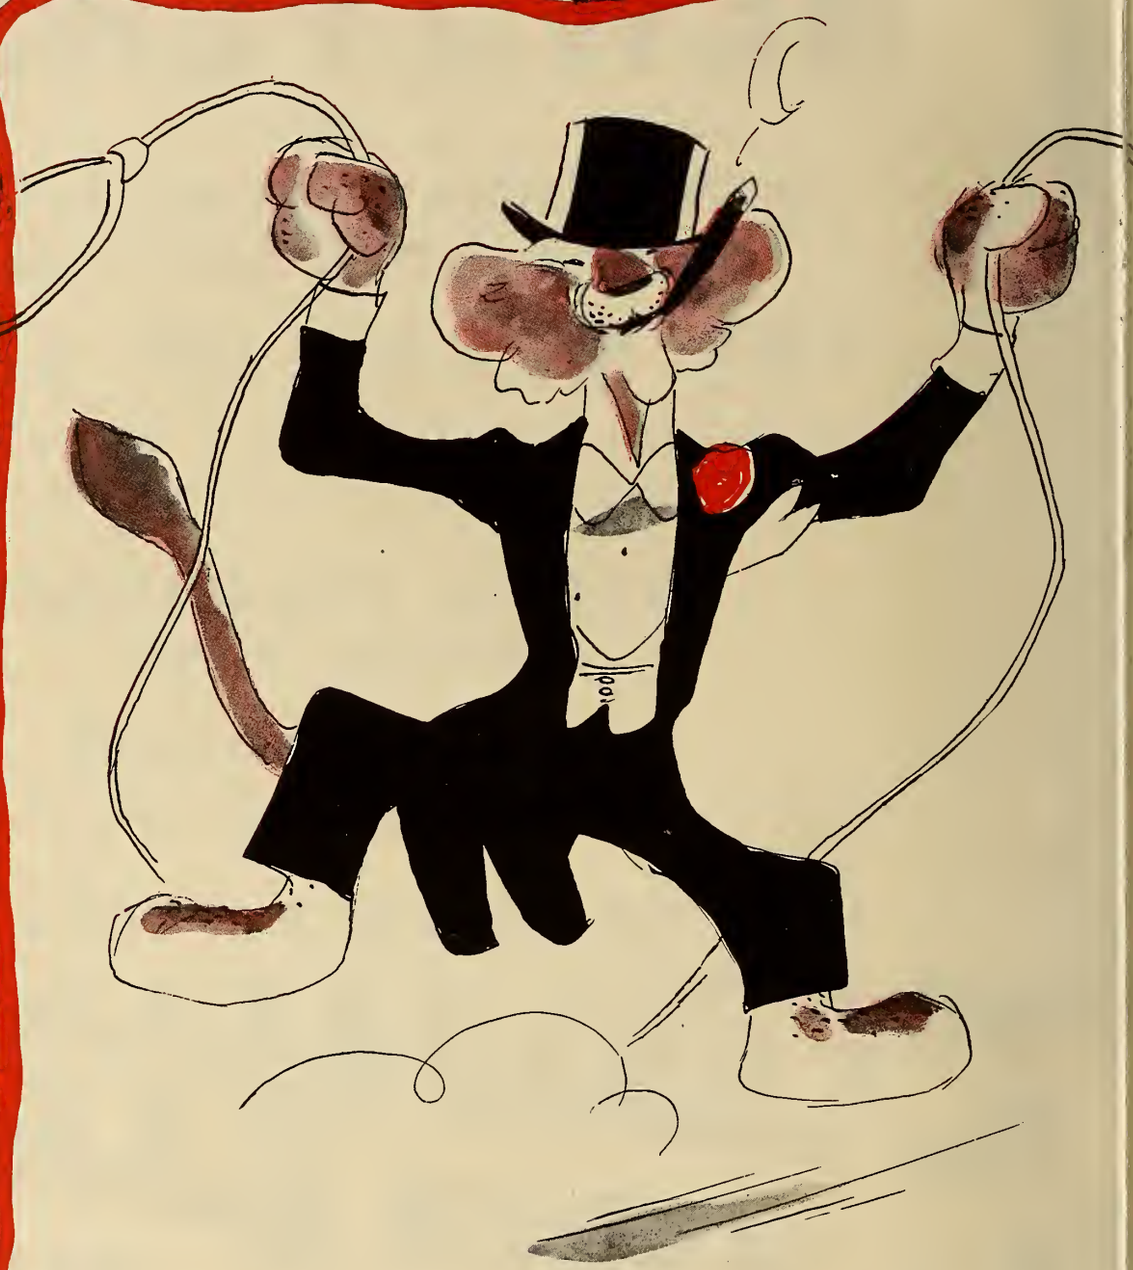
"BIOGRAPHY OF A BACHELOR GIRL"
(MGM)

Direction .....E. H. Griffith
Original Play.....S. N. Behrman
Screen Play.....Anita Loos
Additional Dialogue....Horace Jackson
Photography.....James Wong Howe
Producer .....Irving Thalberg

Cast: Ann Harding, Robert Montgomery, Edward Everett Horton, Edward Arnold, Una Merkel, Charles Richman, Greta Meyer, Willard Robertson, Donald Meek.

Miss Harding is herself again and she's a joy, the picture is a pleasure, and the production is an entertainment you can't afford to miss. It's an elegant adaptation of a stage play by Anita Loos and Horace Jackson, so smoothly, so expertly, so painlessly directed by E. H. Griffith that you want the serio-comic mood to last forever instead of being over in a mere hour or so. Book it, and book it big by all means, it's a treat for the customers.

A girl-artist returns to America quite broke. The editor of a magazine makes her an offer no girl could refuse for the publication rights to her biography because the tabloids have played up her past love-life as a circulation-builder. Back into her life comes a childhood beau who is running for U. S. Senator. When said candidate for Congress learns she is to publish her life, he tries frantically, by himself and with the aid of his prospective father-in-law, to make her retract. In the end, the girl makes the editor tear up the contract for the biography and makes a good husband out of him to boot.



Miss Harding is once again the gal you learned to love in "Holiday." With a performance like this one, it is to be hoped that she will continue her screen career forever, preferably under the expert guidance of E. H. Griffith who seems to have found the secret of how to make Miss Harding give only the best. And that direction of his carries right through every performance in the picture and also accounts for the fact that no possible laugh is unaccounted for and the timing is just about perfect.

Robert Montgomery is excellent as the slightly smug, embittered young editor who is taught tolerance through love. Edward Everett Horton, in the fattest part he's been accorded in a long time, is simply grand as a composite portrait of a Congressman sired by a Babbitt. Charles Richman, as a Southern publisher of health magazines and an ardent physical culturist, steals away most of the scenes he's in. Edward Arnold, Una Merkel, Greta Meyer, Willard Robertson and Donald Meek, each is outstanding in contributing to a swell picture.

There are so many delightful moments so well worked out in the writing, so deftly accomplished without ever dragging humor in by the heels just for a laugh and keeping the love scenes keyed to the proper romantic pitch, that Anita Loos and Horace Jackson earn themselves an enormous pat on the back. It's one of the best movies ever made from play material. And James Wong Howe succeeds in making things look their best with his photography.

U. K. Perking Up; Forecast For '35 Good

Europe affecting this country have to be kept in mind, but offer no reason at the present moment for adopting other than a generally optimistic outlook. Exhibitor and producer will have a bigger and a more prosperous public than in 1934, and the real problems of the year may well prove to be political rather than commercial, it is anticipated.

This becomes plain by a mere statement of the major questions facing the industry. They are three in number:

Entertainment tax.
Theatre overbuilding.
New legislation.

The first two affect every section of the industry; the last is a matter which more immediately concerns American and other importers and may have very important effects on their activities.

The tax problem dates back to war years, but it will have a special significance in 1935 because, for the first time since it began its campaign for relief, the industry waits the budget with the knowledge that the chancellor of the exchequer is half pledged to a reduction of the tax, if revenue permits. Everyone anticipates a handsome surplus and there are reasonable hopes that the cheaper seats will be freed.

The present tax represents a levy on receipts of approximately 16 per cent. Complete repeal would restore the trade to prosperity; even a reduction, coupled with the increase of the public due to generally better conditions, may well result in the increase of the box-office possibilities of the country by from five to seven per cent.

Overbuilding Trade Problem

Overbuilding is a matter with which the trade itself must cope and the past year has seen the adoption of a definite policy of opposition to the erection of new theatres in adequately seated areas. Some notable successes have been obtained,—and, of course, some defeats suffered,—since the C. E.A. took this matter up.

And now to the real problem of 1935. The activities of the House of Commons in the first few months of the year are likely to have a bigger influence on the fortunes of distributors of American films than any single activity within the trade itself. So far as one can judge, the major companies as a whole are either blind to this possibility, or indifferent to it, although they may soon find themselves faced with a situation which may force a complete re-budgeting of their British business and which will certainly compel them to a new attitude to British production.

It is a distinct possibility that the Quota Act will be amended to secure that every registered British film is of a standard suitable for exhibition. This means that, as Hollywood was warned six months ago, the $25,000 "quickie" is doomed. Whether by means of a minimum cost clause, or by a quality test, producers will probably be compelled to spend more on their British films. An expert opinion is that a good second feature can be made for 30 shillings (roughly $7.50) a foot, but in practice it seems probable that the quota film minimum will be somewhere about $50,000.

To put this type of film on the shelf, even if the amended act allows of such action, would be bad business at the present time and it must be remembered that from April next distributors must carry an increased quota of 20 per cent.

From April, therefore, the American distributor will carry one British film for every four American, will increase the cost of each of the latter by at least $12,500 by maintaining his present policy of writing off his British films as a bad debt—if he is allowed to do so. It seems, therefore, that British conditions in 1935 will provide America with a very serious production and distribution problem and that some concerns may decide at last to include British-made films in their general schedule, on lines already followed by United Artists.

Probe Cloaked in Secrecy; Testimony Given Privately

sentative gathering from New York, that the probe may last three or four days. However, due to the rigid rules covering such investigations, witnesses are not permitted to reveal the nature of the testimony they may give to jurors.

Federal Judge C. B. Faris, who has charge of the grand jury, is extremely strict in enforcing the rules of his court. Therefore, until the grand jury makes its report in open court, no one can officially state what phase the investigation is taking.

Russell Hardy and Harold Schilz, special assistants to Attorney General Cummings, are directing the jury. Federal officials decline to discuss the matter from any angle.

The probe is an outgrowth of a complaint made last spring to the Department of Justice in Washington by Harry Arthur and Harry Koplar of Fanchon & Marco and the receivers for the Missouri, Ambassador and Grand Central. F. & M. leased the three houses for 10 years last summer and declared it was unable to get first run product with the exception of Columbia, Fox and Universal.

Couldn't Block It

Washington, Jan. 7.—While Department of Justice officials are maintaining their usual policy of silence on impending activities in their branch of the Federal government, it is understood efforts were made to head off the St. Louis probe which started in that city today to the extent of industry representatives visiting the White House.

Who they were cannot be learned.

Last Wednesday, major distributors here and New York were summoned to appear before the Federal Grand Jury today for the investigation Home office legal representatives and several executive sales personnel arrived here over the week-end.

Records as far back as 1931 were subpoenaed by exchanges and all files of the local code board were ordered. Lila B. Schofield, code secretary, also was summoned.

few days. The session opened this morning.

An income tax appears certain. Senator Culbert Olson, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, who seems to have wrested control of the Epic forces from Upton Sinclair, is in favor of it.

He also wants a tax on "surplus net earnings" of corporations, but isn't very clear as to what he means by the phrase. When asked to define it he said he meant "exorbitant earnings."

Governor Merriam is friendly toward the industry, but he, too, wants an income tax to help reduce the state's $100,000,000 deficit. A five-day week for industry and production-for-use bills are in the air.

here this morning en route from Hollywood to New York. He is accompanying Harry M. Warner.

Preliminary discussions have been held on the coast in the last two weeks. Jack L. Warner will come east in about two weeks with the line-up in rough form. Already determined is roadshow handling next season of "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Anthony Adverse," although the lead for the latter has not yet been selected. It appears Gradwell Sears' trip to Hawaii is not entirely for vacation purposes and that he has a circuit deal pending there.

"Clive" Plug Growing

Thirteen additional magazines have been added to those which will participate in the national campaign planned by United Artists on "Clive of India." This makes a total of 33 magazines.

See St. Louis Probe as Test Of Trust Laws

In presenting its case in St. Louis, the Department, it is said, will revive the testimony before the Darrow board to show that there has been no correction of the evils then complained of. The case brings again into the limelight Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General, who attacked the film code last year during the board hearings.

The suit is regarded here as important from a national viewpoint because of charges which have been made since the inception of the National Recovery Administration that the President's program for control of industry has suspended the anti-trust laws. It has been the consistent contention of the Department of Justice that those laws were suspended only so far as necessary to permit industries to act in concert in carrying out the aims of the Recovery Act. The attack against major distributors is intended to show, it is believed, the nation's business that the suspension did not go so far as to permit practices to restrict competition which had theretofore been barred.

Officials of the Department have been careful to explain that the suit is not part of a general campaign, but it is generally accepted that, if it is successful, leading companies in a number of other industries may find themselves up against proceedings as a result of activities they are charged with having engaged in under a blanket interpretation of the privileges granted by the Recovery Act.

Vanni Quits Loew's; Report Warner Shift

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 7.—A. J. Vanni, who has been identified with the Poli houses for a number of years, has resigned from the Loew organization to take over operation of a Warner theatre division in Wilmington. He is due in Philadelphia next Monday to assume his new duties.

It is understood that the Philadelphia Warner theatres will be broken down into three divisions, one to be operated by Vanni, a second by Leonard Schlessinger, and a third by David E. (Skip) Weshner.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7. — Leonard Schlessinger, in charge of the local Warner houses, today referred all inquiries on the reported split-up of theatre operation into three divisions to Joseph Bernhard, who is now in St. Louis attending the Federal grand jury investigation into the Fanchon & Marco product complaint.

He said there is nothing official to the reports and that Bernhard is expected back from St. Louis on Wednesday.

Reports that Lou Davidow, film buyer, was to be replaced by David Miller, formerly with Universal in Buffalo, were denied in face of Miller's resignation from Universal to buy for Warner Theatres here.

The split-up has been under consideration a long time, but Schlessinger will continue as chief, it is reported.

Charges Bias, Wants Decisions Reversed

Charging that the Los Angeles grievance board was "biased, prejudiced and partial," William Powers, attorney for Fox West Coast, yesterday asked an appeal committee comprising Roy L. Haines of Warners and Laurence Bolognino of Trio-Consolidated to throw out two bank night decisions against the circuit in Santa Paula and Los Angeles.

In the case of the Mission, Ventura, against the Glen City, Santa Paula, Powers said the houses are 15 miles apart and not competitive. He said that the clearance schedule for Los Angeles has never been adopted and hence it has never been definitely established competition exists between the two theatres.

In the second case, that of the York against the Highland, Powers stated that the complainant asked to withdraw the case, but the board refused and handed down a decision with neither of the litigants testifying.

There were 12 other bank night cases in one form or another acted upon by the committee. They are:

Granada, Alhambra, Cal., against Mission, San Gabriel; Palomar, Oceanside, against Pala, Escondido, Cal.; Princess, Storm Lake, Ia., against Empire, same city; Mission, Ventura, Cal., against Oxnard, Oxnard, Cal.; Capitol, Sioux City, against Rialto, same city; Publix, La Salle, Ill., against Peru and State, Peru, Ill.; Watseka, Watseka, Ill., against Little, same city; Majestic, Milford, Ill., against Lorrain, Hoopeston and Little, Watseka, Ill.; Lisbon Opera House, against Rex, Lisbon, O.; Loew's U. A. and Mary Anderson, Louisville, Ky., against Rialto, same city.

Jan. 22 Set to Air Campi Assessments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Financial requirements of Campi and assessments to be imposed upon members of the industry for the current year will be discussed at a general meeting called for Jan. 22 by Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth. The hearing is expected to bring out the results of the producer-distributor schedule for 1934 approved last November, in which it was promised that if the independents contributed more than $18,000, the excess would be credited pro rata on their obligation for the current year.

As yet, it was said, accountants have not anticipated a full report will be available by the time of the hearing, which will also develop whether, as claimed, the independents' contributions were so heavy as to more than cover the 1935 requirements, in which event it was promised the excess would be refunded.

Duals, Gift Nights Up for Action Soon

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 7.—With organization plans for the new Independent Theatres Protective Assn. of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan completed, the newly elected board of directors is expected to convene within a week to consider dual features, gift nights and other practices which are still facing the industry in Milwaukee and the state. It will also select quarters and name a business manager.

The two-day gathering here last week was concerned chiefly with shaping and adopting by-laws drawn from the former M.P.T.O. of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan and the Allied Independent Theatre Owners of Wisconsin associations.

as well as of film technique. A group of M-G-M men have shown they know both in "David Copperfield." They have created something for women to weep over and for men to enjoy.

Howard Estabrook did the scenario, George Cukor directed and David O. Selznick was the producer. After some judicious trimming their work should stand as a faithful transcription of Dickens and real entertainment.

Visualizing the life path of sensitive David, after the death of his father, it traces his heartaches with his heartless stepfather, reveals his buffetings in a workaday world, his haven with the jolly Micawber, his home with the eccentric Aunt Betsy Trotwood, his contacts with the strange Uriah Heep, his affection for Mr. Wickfield and Agnes, and his disillusionment resulting from his friend's marriage to the impractical Dora. Life's forces resolve between him and Agnes.

The cast has been chosen with meticulous care. Characters, limned like Cruikshank sketches, are endowed with warmth. They are delineated with fine detail where necessary and caricatured when needed.

No finer performance has been done on the screen than that of Freddie Bartholomew as the young David—tender, sensitive and curious. He engraves an image that wrings the heart.

W. C. Fields' Micawber is a picture broadly painted, but withal lovable and laughable. Edna May Oliver's cantankerous Aunt Betsy tops all her previous achievements. Roland Young's Uriah Heep is superbly shaded and perfectly projected. Lennox Pawle's Mr. Dick combines lunacy and wisdom with truly Dickensian versatility.

Lionel Barrymore's Dan Peggotty, Madge Evans' Agnes, Lewis Stone's Mr. Wickfield, Frank Lawton's grownup David, Elizabeth Allan's Mrs. Copperfield, Maureen O'Sullivan's Dora, Basil Rathbone's Murdstone, Jean Cadell's Mrs. Micawber, Jessie Ralph's Nurse Peggotty, Violet Kemble Cooper's Jane Murdstone, Una O'Connor's Mrs. Gummidge, Hugh Williams' Steerforth, Herbert Mundin's Barkis and Hugh Walpole's Vicar are presented deftly, earnestly and sympathetically.

Cukor's direction and Estabrook's screen play rate palms. Good, too, is Oliver Marsh's photography and Herbert Stothart's musical score.

Production values are evident. It is obvious that money was spent lavishly. M-G-M has produced prestige-building entertainment—something for Britain's lion and Leo to exult over.

Operator Scale Up At a Session Today

Although no local meeting of the NRA fact-finding committee was scheduled until the public hearing in Washington on Friday, Leslie E. Thompson, chairman, yesterday called a special session for today.

The session will probably be held at Campi or Thompson's office. A further discussion of the basic operator wage agreement will be held today and it is expected that independents will meet tomorrow on the plan.

One of the provisions of the tentative agreement is that all working men in Allied and Empire unions will be taken into Local 306.

and that these were designed and in fact tended to eliminate competition.

The representatives of the consumers suggested that the vast majority of codes should be stripped of all but labor provisions and a few "simple" fair trade practices. "Some groups" it was charged, "have employed the codes frequently in violation of the purposes of the Act and even in defiance of their plain terms, as a means of eliminating active price competition."

Culkin for Control Of Industry by U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Taking up the banner of the fight against films laid down by Representative Patman of Texas in order that he might devote his energies to securing cash payment of the soldiers' bonus, Representative Francis D. Culkin of New York today reintroduced his bill to protect the industry by creation of a Federal Motion Picture Commission.

Hearing on the bill at the earliest possible date will be asked of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which it was referred, Culkin told the local bureau of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Admitting freely that his bill was the same as that sponsored last session by both himself and Congressman Patman, Culkin volunteered the information that it was even older and had originally been introduced by former Representative Hudson of Michigan about five years ago.

The bill declares the industry to be a public utility, subject to full control by the government.

Farnsworth Time Shy On Actors' Plaints

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—Sharp criticisms of producers, voiced in a report made by the actor contingent of the actor-producer committee which for several months has been deadlocked over the recommendations to be made for inclusion in the code, reached Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth from Hollywood today. Confronted by other important matters, that official has had no opportunity to give them consideration.

Refusing to comment on published reports until he has had an opportunity to read the original document, which is voluminous, Farnsworth explained he was not completely acquainted with the situation since former Division Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt, who conducted the negotiations in Hollywood, has been so pressed by his duties as compliance director that there has been little time to discuss the matter.

The actors' five-five report bitterly attacks industry leaders for drawing large remuneration while actors receive, on the basis of the report's computation, "only one and 3/5 cents of each dollar which came into the box-office."

With the complaint that "actors have exhausted every effort to agree with the producers on working conditions," the report says that "we have been tricked, hamstrung and lied to."

The charge that the Academy of M. P. Arts & Sciences "is and always has been a company union, dominated by the producers," is included in the report which was drawn up by the actor members of the five-five, who are Robert Montgomery, Claude King, Ralph Morgan, Kenneth Thomson and Richard Tucker.

Mourn the Death of Theodore C. Deitrich

Film veterans voiced regret yesterday at the passing of Theodore C. Deitrich, director of publicity for Hearst Metrotone News and Cosmopolitan Prod., who died Sunday from a complication of diseases. He was 58. Funeral services will be held at 8 P. M. tonight from the Columbus Circle Chapel, 43 W. 60th St.

Deitrich was long in the Hearst service and for years was on the reportorial staff of the New York American, later to become associated with International News Service.

He began his career as a reporter on the staff of the Pittsburgh Times in 1896. He worked up through the ranks into executive posts and capped his caheer in Pittsburgh by becoming managing editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch and of the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Transferring his activities to Chicago, Deitrich became a special writer for the Chicago Chronicle, a post he held for three years. He served on the editorial staffs of the Chicago Examiner, the San Francisco Examiner and the New York American until 1915, when he entered the employ of the Hearst picture enterprises.

men the story of sound's latest electrical developments will become dramatic. What has happened since 1927 will seem like mere pioneering. What is to come will be a subject to stir the curiosity of producers and distributors.

Even sound men—Erpi, Western Electric and Bell men, who work practically for the same company—haven't been able to keep in touch with each other's progress, it seems, so they have been holding a show up in the old Edison studios somewhere north of Fordham Road near where Jafsie lives.

It's a bit bewildering for a layman at first. He's apt to think decibel is the engineer's girl friend, but gradually it begins to dawn on him that future theatre sound installations are going to have only a fraction of the apparatus they used to have; they're going to take much less space; they're going to be cheaper, and where it used to take from 24 hours to three days to install them, it's going to take only about three or four hours.

Where a one and one-half ton truck used to be necessary to transport a newsreel recording apparatus around, two men can handle the new layout without unbuttoning their vests on a hot day. In fact, the whole equipment, including camera, weighs only 180 pounds. The weight of the sound equipment alone is half that.

Same True of Studio Apparatus

The same is true of studio apparatus. When a director gets ready to start the sound man and his helper can roll the whole equipment in on a truck not much larger than one of those home model tea wagons. Gone are the days of the sound-proof rooms with mixing panels, the elaborate switchboards that looked like power houses. The mixer sits near the cameras after plugging into the nearest socket. If the company goes on location, the whole apparatus goes along, the only difference being that he plugs into a set of batteries for power.

They're not in general use yet, but an engineer who explained the gadgets said the price would be a fraction of the cost of the old equipment.

In this show they divided visitors into groups and took them around to different displays where each engineer explained his pet development. One new projector and reproducer combination designed for houses seating 600 persons or less has been put into about a dozen houses. Ten thousand of the 14,000 theatres in operation come in this class, he said.

This equipment has been so simplified, it was explained, that it will cost 25 per cent less than present equipment and 35 per cent less than Wide Range, and installation charges that used to cost from $400 to $800 will be down to about $75 to $100 in places where electricians are not highly unionized.

They've even gone in for psychology on projection machines. The reproducing part of projectors used to be entirely black. Now they have some of them with gray exteriors and the inside of the metal boxes is white. The thought behind all this is that operators will keep them cleaner if they're white. Even operators are susceptible to suggestion, it seems.

A new kind of dynamic speaker for the lower frequencies—we're beginning to talk that way—has been designed for baffle boards in theatres, and on some of the installations they have only one of those big horns with something that looks like a swan's neck coming out of the back. Something they have done to the inside of these makes a whole flock of swan's necks unnecessary.

Any theatre man who thinks there's something wrong with his sound can call in the sound measurers. They measure it on paper and hand it to you all written out in decibels. Echoes, resonances, die-outs, the pitch of the voice—anything at all, so long as it's sound.

Having gotten sound where it eats out of their hands, they're now going in for pictures. A collection of light-measuring devices was exhibited. These tell how much light the screen is getting, or ought to get, and another machine photographs it, so there is no guesswork.

Upstairs the new "hill and dale" recording is done first in wax and then gold-plated by men who wear silk pajamas and gauze coverings over their faces.

Even the tick of a man's watch is measured. This apparatus tells how many seconds it gains or loses when standing on its edge, and also how it reacts to lying down on the bureau at night.

Some of the new high speed cameras shown take pictures at the rate of 2,500 a second. Another runs up to 10,000 pictures a second. That's where the octanes come in. They photograph the flame in a gasoline explosion and make a record of the sound at the same time. They can even tell how long it takes an egg to break and how long it takes a man to move his hand when he is burned by a cigarette.

Some day theatre audiences will be seeing these things and hearing them. If they don't get dizzy, they'll think it's great.

Mayer Stays On

Negotiations between the new lessee of the Rialto and Arthur Mayer for the latter to give up the house in the Spring are off and Mayer will continue to operate until Nov. 1, when his lease expires.

Mayer asked for $100,000 to step out before the termination of his lease. Since then nothing has been heard from the lessee, who plans to build a new 1,000-seat house on the site.

Mexican Industry Under Gov't Thumb

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 7.—President Cardenas has approved the bill passed by Congress which places all branches of the industry under Federal control. This makes the law immediately effective.

Supporters of the measure say it will benefit the industry by eliminating conflicting state and municipal regulation. Railroads and petroleum are already regulated nationally.

tion of the government during the fiscal year which begins July 1, next, the President made it clear that the deficit could be kept down to the anticipated figure of $4,528,508,970 only by continuation of all taxes now in effect and of the three-cent postage rate.

Reviving business is expected to increase tax and customs collections, so that total revenues for the coming fiscal year will be $3,991,904,639 against expected receipts of $3,711,650,688 for the current year. This increase, together with the lopping of $677,000,000 from the fund for recovery and relief, is expected to make the deficit some $340,000,000 less than the anticipated $4,869,418,338 for the present year.

"While I do not consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes for the fiscal year 1936," the President said in his message, "I do recommend that the Congress take steps by suitable legislation to extend the miscellaneous internal revenue taxes which under existing law will expire next June or July, and also to maintain the current rates of these taxes which will be reduced next June."

Receipts from the admission tax, which during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, amounted to $14,613,414, the budget shows, are expected to amount to $15,000,000 for the current fiscal year and, if the present rate, which is due to expire June 30, next, is continued, to reach $16,500,000 for the fiscal year 1936.

The budget discloses that a slight increase is to be made in the fund for motion picture work of the extension service of the Department of Agriculture, for which $67,045 is provided against $64,426 this year.

A small increase is also given the specialties and motion pictures division of the Department of Commerce, which will get $23,756 against $22,841.

In both instances, the increase is of little importance, being provided chiefly to permit the restoration of full pre-depression salary scales on July 1, next.

The office of education in the Interior Department, which has been interested in motion pictures, is given a total of $2,816,720 compared with $2,783,000 for this year.

An increase of $10,800 in the fund for the purchase and rental of films is given the bureau of navigation of the Navy Department, which is to receive $95,800 as compared with $85,000 this year.

Monopoly Via Codes Headed Toward Probe

Proposed in Move to Study Entire NIRA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—First steps toward an investigation of alleged or real monopolistic practices under recovery codes have been taken by Senator King (Utah), who has pending before the judiciary committee a resolution calling for a full study of the effect of the Industrial Recovery Act.

Purposes of the probe would be to determine:

(1)—Whether the Recovery Act has encouraged or promoted monopolistic practices.

(2) Whether codes have tended to nullify the anti-trust laws.

(3) Whether legislation is needed to restore those laws to their former position, and

(4) Whether the anti-trust laws are adequate for the control of monopolistic practices.

Administration officials today were studying the effect of the ruling on Intimations that the board was to be asked to approve bank nights led to consideration in Washington of the question whether they constitute a lottery, as has been held by Campi in New York. Court Again Urges Merger Of Fox Units

Manton for Joining Met, Theatres Litigation

The combining of Fox Theatres' reorganization with that of Fox Metropolitan Playhouses was urged again yesterday by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton at a hearing at which he continued the Fox Theatres receivership for another six months with Milton C. Weisman as receiver.

Judge Manton has repeatedly advocated a merger of the two reorganizations but the move has been opposed by Fox Met bondholders who contend that Fox Theatres can have no participation except in the inconsiderable assets of Fox Met which are not pledged as security for the latter's bonds. Weisman, however, is preparing a plan of reorganization for Fox Met, all of the common stock of which is owned by Fox Theatres, which will provide for Fox Theatres' participation on a larger scale.

The report of the Fox Theatres' receiver for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1934, showed cash on hand of $823,469, after disbursements of $130,139 for the period. Insiders' Outlook

IF the mystery, surprise, and—at times—comedy, go to make up the elements of entertainment—and most people agree that they do—Erpi, Western Electric and Bell engineers have material on hand for a first class series of shorts. Most people can listen to a talk on decibels, wave lengths, cycles, and whatnot for an hour, and then yawn, but give them a look at the fascinating journey of a sound wave from somebody's throat or violin string into a mixing panel, onto a wax plate, through a few tanks of acid to a gold platter, before a quivering light beam back onto a piece of film and finally around back of a screen into a theatre, and they've seen something. It's a cross-country chase, but loaded with excitement. . . .

All of this suggests itself, gratuitously advanced with no retainer sought for the idea offered, as a result of the one-night stand sound exhibit displayed by Erpi in the Bronx Monday afternoon. Some of the devices on display kept a curious crowd of reporters walking its legs off and straining the eardrums not to miss anything. After all, a photographic record of all of the complications, which are more than you might imagine, of an egg breaking or of a flame doing its combustion stunt in an automobile cylinder, dramatized by authentic sound, can be just as interesting as an ant crawling into a hole or getting careless with a grasshopper. A smart short subject producer, turned loose in the Bell labs one of these days, might be successful in injecting emotion into the souls of those staid Massachusetts Tech men and walk out with a series of adventure pictures de luxe for himself. . . .

Kentucky colonels who shed modesty for bragging may revert to the safer of the two virtues when they learn Governor Laffoon of the Bluegrass State commissioned 2,368 honorary aides in 1934, a chosen few rating admirals, commodores and one a skipper ship. Statistical research shows miscellaneous aides appointed in the last two decades in that state total 5,500. A select company and reminiscent of the press dispatch from Hollywood, now several years old, which told of the party Vic McLaglen gave at his Hollywood estate with 200 of his "intimate friends" attending. . . .

The open season for crack-pot legislation has arrived. Yesterday an obscure Washingtonian named Wesley Lloyd offered the House of Representatives a bill restricting salaries and bonuses to $25,000 a year with nothing beyond that without the sanction of a majority of stockholders. If Congressman Lloyd keeps that up, the circuits will take away his theatre passes. . . .

The most expensive lion's roar on record: Leo's column which runs in the New York dailies once a week. Cost to Metro about $1,100 per flash. . . . What causes high blood pressure in Brooklyn: Final check-up of 1934 business over the Randforce (Frisch and Rinzler) circuit of 40 odd theatres showed paper worth $80,000 had been issued during the year. . . .

"London Ponders Great Garbo Mystery" headlines the gullible Evening Post here which then reports excitement over the new poser of the year: Did Garbo really appear in "The Painted Veil" or was it a double? Don't blame it on Si Seadler. He's in Havana, renewing acquaintance with Sloppy Joe's. . . . There are those who subscribe to the idea that the way for films to meet the radio question is to romance with it. Perhaps this explains why Metro and Columbia Broadcasting are doe-eyed about each other these days. . . .

Sees British Gains Aid to Trade Here

James A. FitzPatrick sees in British production improvement a stimulus for the entire industry, here and abroad.

"Hollywood needs competition and I believe the improved product of British studios, released in the United States, will help relieve the factory strain in Hollywood so that more time may be given to the general improvement of American product," he says.

"Production has been developing physically at a pace too rapid for mental digestion."

"Sequoia" to Start M. P. Club Showings

First of a series of special previews will be given at the M. P. Club Sunday night. "Sequoia" will be shown to members and guests. Among those invited is Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars.

"Sequoia" is the film that has stirred widespread comment because much of its drama is supplied by animal actors. It was produced for M-G-M by Chester Franklin.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Scarlet Pimpernel"

(London Films-United Artists)

LONDON, Dec. 20.—Baroness Orczy's story is one of the best known in the English language and a very successful stage play has been founded on it. A film version, therefore, inevitably faces comparisons. This London Films version should not disappoint those who remember either the book or the play, but it certainly presents the familiar story in yet another aspect.

Essentially melodrama, "The Scarlet Pimpernel" has, as its central character, a figure who can be presented either as a super-adventurer or as a subtle schemer. London Films, choosing the second interpretation, has emphasized comedy values throughout so that Leslie Howard's Sir Percy Blakeney is seen chiefly in his pose of a fop, and his achievements as the leader of a counter-revolutionary movement have very largely to be taken on trust. True, there are vividly posed scenes of the guillotine, an escape or two, and a very effective last scene in which the Pimpernel turns the tables on the French ambassador after the latter has cornered him in an inn at Boulogne, but for the most part the action is placed in salons in London. It is a battle of wits rather than of pistols.

Plot values are good. Blakeney, actually "The Scarlet Pimpernel," who helps French aristocrats to escape from the grip of the Terror in Paris, pretends in London to be a nit-wit with no interest beyond clothes. Even his wife, a Frenchwoman, is deceived, for the Pimpernel thinks she was guilty of betraying aristocrats to the guillotine and does not trust her with the secret. The French ambassador, with Lady Blakeney's brother in his power, tricks her into a scheme which reveals the Pimpernel's identity. Realizing she has betrayed her husband, Lady Blakeney goes to France and is herself captured, but the Pimpernel frees her and, condemned to execution, himself escapes because the firing squad is composed of his own men.

Howard gives a brilliant performance and has been provided with effective situations and sparkling lines. Merle Oberon acts well and looks beautiful. Nigel Bruce as the Prince of Wales is outstanding among the others.

Production values are exceptional. The film has a polish superior even to that of earlier films from the London studio; settings and costumes in scenes portraying the court and society of 18th Century London are brilliant and convincing. The dialogue is witty and convincing.

Harold Young, the director, shares with Howard the honors of the production, which, for all its slow tempo, should appeal strongly to any audience which can appreciate the finer shades in production. Running time, 90 minutes. "G." ALLAN

"Best Man Wins"

(Columbia)

Because of some striking underwater scenes and their arresting photography, here is an action thriller that should have particular appeal in neighborhoods and small towns. It is a typical Jack Holt vehicle, with Holt his usual virile self and in love with a girl who doesn't feel the same way about him.

The character portrayals are good, with Edmund Lowe and Florence Rice maintaining the pace set by Holt. Bela Lugosi and J. Farrell MacDonald stand out from the rest of the cast in their handling of minor roles.

The yarn deals with Holt and Lowe, deep sea divers, with the former planning to join the harbor police. On their last trip their ship's anchor becomes fouled and Holt dives to free it. While below his lines become entangled and Lowe rescues him, but loses his right arm while doing so. Holt joins the police and Lowe, unable to find work in his crippled condition, postpones his marriage to Miss Rice and finally winds up salvaging stolen jewels for Lugosi. Holt tracks him down and rather than face his punishment Lowe cuts his air lines while below and drowns. Holt winds up consoling Miss Rice.

Earl Kenton's direction gets the most out of the screen play by Ethel Hill and Bruce Manning from Ben G. Kohn's original. Production Seal No. 506. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"The Unconquered Bandit"

(Hollywood)

If this Tom Tyler western did not ask too much to be taken for granted, it might prove acceptable entertainment of its kind. From the standpoint of action it leaves little to be desired, but some of the incidents are so implausible, even for a western, that an audience can hardly be expected to view it with a serious eye. As a result the film must be

"Forsaking" Pulls Top in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 8.—Extending the runs of pictures downtown proved great business. Loew's State, which kept "Forsaking All Others" for 10 days, netted $16,000 with more to come.

The RKO Albee did $11,600 with "Little Minister" and a revue, and the same sort of vaudefilm policy at Fay's caught $8,800.

Moved to the Carlton for a second week from the Majestic, "Bright Eyes" and "Bachelor of Arts" caught

First to Hold Over

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 8. — "Forsaking All Others" is the first picture in the Penn eight-year-old history to play a second week. Takings were so much above the house's recent grosses that a holdover was decided upon.

John M. Guthrie Dead

regarded as purely juvenile fare. The acting for the most part does little to help matters.

Tyler is out to avenge the death of his father in a gun fight with a gang working for a fellow trying to seize a tract of gold-bearing land to which his father intends to buy a half interest. He proposes to do it by breaking the villain financially, breaking his heart for good measure by making love to his niece, whom he loves more than anything else in life, and then throwing her over. He does the financial breaking by posing as a notorious bandit.

As per expectations, he falls really in love with the girl and confesses to her. Tyler is captured but wins his release when the girl tells her uncle the young man's story. The uncle goes soft in the end and repents his villainy. The final shot shows the lovers leaving the altar.

The girl is played by Lillian Gilmore. Others in the cast include Charles Whitaker, William Gould and Dick Alexander. Produced by Reliable. Harry S. Webb directed. Running time, 58 minutes. No code seal. "G."

"St. Louis Woman"

(Showmen's Pictures)

Cut out of old cloth, this production is mediocre stuff that may stand a chance in small houses. The acting is no better than the material.

The hero of the story is John Mack Brown, studying to be a doctor. Expelled from college, where he is the star of the football team, as a result of a rumpus in a night spot, he finds it impossible to find work. Through the intercession of Jeanette Loff, an entertainer at the club with whom he is in love, and who is the sweetie of Earl Foxe, who runs the joint, Brown gets a place on a professional team in which Foxe has an interest.

Foxe, jealous, tries to break Brown, but is foiled when Miss Loff tells the hero's team-mates they are a pack of double-crossers and spurs them on to cooperate with Brown in bringing victory to the team. In the end, realizing Brown's life will be ruined if he is not reinstated at college, she turns sacrificial and calls it quits, going back to Foxe.

The film is for the most part hokum. The football sequences may help sell the picture. It was produced by Screencraft Prod.

Albert Ray directed. No code seal. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

"The White Cockatoo"

(Warners)

Three murders, two attempted murders and one man left unconscious from a blow on the head sustain the mystery and suspense, but leave little time for romance. A mystery serial at this rate would leave only the director for the final clinch with the heroine.

It is designed to keep audiences balanced out on the edges of seats, and, no doubt, it will.

The scene of "The White Cockatoo" is laid entirely in a French hotel near the Pyrenees where Jean Muir is stopping awaiting the time when she can prove she is the heiress to half an American fortune. Her brother has the other half.

Ricardo Cortez gets into the plot by finding a man murdered on the balcony of his room the night of his arrival. A young man of all work is trying to tell him something about the hotel's mysteries when he, too, is shot. Then a mysterious figure called Dr. Roberts disappears and is found dead in a piano. Cortez is attacked twice. It develops that Miss Muir has a double, Noel Frances. Minna Gombell and Walter Kingsford are found to be in a plot aimed at taking the inheritance away from Miss Muir. A white cockatoo finally helps solve the crimes by squawking at the perpetrator. Mystery story fans will like it; children won't sleep after they see it. Alan Crosland directed.

Production Code Seal No. 497. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Mills of the Gods"

(Columbia)

In this one the names of Fay Wray, Victor Jory and, particularly, May Robson, should attract customers into theatres, but once inside they are apt to be disappointed with what's handed them. The redeeming feature is the sterling performances rendered by Miss Robson, as a big business woman, and Raymond Walburn, as her foppish son. Victor Jory handles his role capably, but Miss Wray plays her part with her tongue in her cheek, literally and figuratively. She spends a greater part of the picture making facial contortions at the camera, attempting to register sophistication and boredom.

The yarn has Miss Robson at the head of large mills, carrying on in the place of her dead husband, and with no one to take charge after her.

Conservatives Win California House

William Mosely Jones, Democrat. Jones was a major figure in Upton Sinclair's campaign for the governorship. The vote is taken as an indication of the waning of Sinclair's influence.

The so-called liberal Democrats captured the pro-tem speakership by electing John O'Donnel of Woodland with 44 votes against 34 for Clifford Kallam of Watsonville, a conservative Democrat.

Among the film people present were W. H. Lollier of Fox West Coast, Los Angeles; Hulda McGinn, and J. C. Bryson of the Hays office.

the Roxy stock to Fox Theatres Corp. for approximately $4,000,000. Of this amount $3,000,000 had been paid by the theatre company up to the time of the default in 1932. Basil O'Connor, former law partner of President Roosevelt, will represent Fox Theatres in the trial. Fox Film, also involved, will be represented by Max D. Steuer. The trial is expected to last a month or six weeks.

Clemmons Adds New Theatre in Texas

With the opening recently of the Texan, a 600-seat theatre in Port Arthur, Tex., the Jefferson Amusement Co. and East Texas Theatres now operate a total of 50 in Texas, J. C. Clemmons, president of the first named circuit, stated yesterday upon his arrival from Beaumont. He is here with Sol E. Gordon, head of the East Texas circuit, and both plan to spend about 10 days in New York on business.

Conditions in Texas are very satisfactory, Clemmons said.

Won't Face Witnesses

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—Herbert Logan, Connecticut actor, held here in $10,000 bail on his alleged admission he was hired to burn a Boston theatre, refuses to see witnesses for his possible identification as the person responsible for a $12,000 fire in New Haven last August in which a warrant of arrest was issued. E. M. Loew, several of whose houses were bombed recently, said: "I have ordered my night watchmen to shoot to kill any prowlers they find in any of my theatres."

Bernerd Back Shortly

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Jeffrey Bernerd arrives in New York Jan. 15 on the Olympic for a stay the length of which is uncertain. He says it depends on conditions as he finds them in the States.

Mark Ostrer remains here.

To Succeed McGuinnis

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—Joseph Brennan, manager of Loew's State here, has been named executive secretary of Allied Theatres of Massachusetts, succeeding James J. McGuinnis, who died recently. Anna Hughes will continue as secretary, according to indications.

Her children and grandchildren are interested in having a good time and not in work. Comes 1929 and a crisis. The workers of the mill must be protected and so Miss Robson goes on their side, winning out in the end and saving the company. A romance develops between Miss Wray and Jory in the meantime, but the finish of this affair falls flat when the lovers are not united.

Roy William Neil directed and got the most out of the story. Al Seigler's photography is exceptionally good. Production Code Seal No. 465. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

"Within the Rock"

(Hollywood)

There's no telling, they say, what love will drive men to.

Take Creighton Chaney in this Showmen's Pictures production. A mountaineer with an ambition to sit in the state legislature as the champion of the unprivileged mountain folk, he wants Lila Lee badly. To get her he threatens her father, a wealthy judge a bit crooked, he'll tell the authorities he saw the old fellow throw a lad over a cliff during a fight over the honor of a younger daughter.

Miss Lee marries the youth to save dad. Her loathing for Chaney does not subside until the last few feet, when, offered her release by her husband, she goes back to him. Meanwhile, she has made it possible for Chaney to improve his knowledge and run for state representative.

The film has its unbelievable moments, but on the whole is fairly entertaining. The acting is adequate and the atmospheric treatment commendable. Lafe McKee, Francis McDonald, Edmund Breese, Fern Emmett, Audrey Ferris, Vic Potel and Tommy Bond are other players. Albert Ray directed.

No code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Man Lock"

(Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—This picture is punctuated with thrills as its entertainment strength. It is an original story by Borden Chase and Edward J. Doherty and is a vivid, realistic cross-section view of sand hogs building a tunnel under New York's East River.

The yarn deals primarily with two tunnel construction gangs, one headed by Victor McLaglen and the other by Charles Bickford, racing their halves of the job to the middle under the river. Following exciting sequences picturing fire and flood in McLaglen's portion of the tunnel, he wins the race. Edmund Lowe, as McLaglen's wisecracking pal, gives a splendid performance. McLaglen contributes a fine portrayal of a hard-boiled gang leader. Florence Rice is adequate as the romantic interest. Marjorie Rambeau is effective as a waterfront beer parlor owner. Raoul Walsh aimed his direction for suspense. Jack Otterson's art direction is good. The photography by Hal Mohr and L. W. O'Connell is a feature.

This is a good average show attractive to McLaglen and Lowe fans. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Dog Film, Roadshow

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—"Life Returns" will be handled as a roadshow by its producer, Dr. Eugene Frenke, and not by Universal which was considering it. This is the picture which deals with Dr. Robert Cornish's bringing a dead dog back to life.

Promises a Fight

J. A. Koerpel of Eureka Prod., which planned to market "Ectacy" in this country, declared yesterday his company would serve notice of an appeal from the ban placed on the film by the Treasury Dep't. This, he added, will be followed by a suit in Federal court.

Hold Herbert Marshall

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 8.—Herbert Marshall has signed a new Paramount contract which calls for three pictures in 1935 and one in 1936. The first will be "Morning, Noon and Night," an unproduced play by Marcella Burke. Sylvia Sidney will have the feminine lead.

exhibitors, in addition to being members of the New Jersey organization, can benefit by the activities of the Philadelphia association.

Dave Snaper was chairman of the session and Louis Gold will wield the gavel next Tuesday.

A committee has been appointed to check into a shortage of prints locally. Members of the unit claim they cannot get prints from all major exchanges when availabilities fall due.

Reports were made by committees on the following subjects: release dates, a cooperative program which the national organization plans to publish weekly, finance, executive, film survey, substitutions, code, supply buying and entertainment. A supper and card party will be given on Jan. 10 for members at Harry Hecht's Ritz restaurant in Passaic.

The agreement between the two associations will be put in writing after minor modifications have been made.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 8.—The I. E. P. A. at its meeting today ratified an agreement on dual membership with Allied of New Jersey, which will bring 48 new theatres into the fold. The new exhibitors will be welcomed at a luncheon next Tuesday.

According to the agreement, Allied will service the local unit with code and film information in addition to keeping the I. E. P. A. in touch with legislative problems.

Efforts have been resumed to merge the I. E. P. A. and the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, but the stumbling block, according to an I. E. P. A. spokesman, is the affiliated members in the M. P. T. O. unit. The I. E. P. A. wants the merged unit strictly independent.

The M. P. T. O. is expected to make a statement Friday on the merger plan. At that time Lewen Pizor, who was elected president last week, will be installed.

Sharon Sunday Law Joker Causes Upset

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 8.—Despite the discovery by opposition forces of a "joker" in the new city ordinance designed to repeal an earlier enactment banning Sunday shows, managers of Sharon's three threatres said they will continue to offer Sunday shows.

The joker found by opponents of Sunday shows is in the wording of the new ordinance, which provides fines of from $25 to $100 for presenting shows which are "unlawful or immoral." As there is a state law against Sunday theatre performances, any show presented on Sunday would be "unlawful," according to attorneys who have been consulted on the issue.

The repeal ordinance, finally approved by city council on December 13, became effective December 23. For the past several Sundays the theatres have remained closed awaiting the city's action.

For remaining open on Sunday, December 2, the theatre managers were fined $25 and costs each under the old ordinance.

Hays Wants Coast's Wonders Played Up

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—Will Hays called upon the members of the Los Angeles Realty Board at their annual dinner tonight at the Roosevelt Hotel to revive a little of that old-time bragging about the wonders of sunny California.

"In the years I've been coming to California the motion picture has found its voice and you appear to have lost yours," he chided. "The film industry found its voice through tremendous struggle and labor. You seem to have become silent without a struggle."

Membership is being confined to studio staffs. All in attendance favored the idea unanimously.

A Disney Winner

Walt Disney has another winner in his latest Silly Symphony, "The Tortoise and the Hare." Three sequences are outstanding. They are the ones where the hare pulls a William Tell, plays a one-man tennis game and a baseball game all by himself.

The subject is all about a race between the turtle and rabbit, the latter a streak of lightning, but the loser in the end because of his antics during rest periods. The pastel shadings are a treat to the eye. Running time, 8 minutes. Code seal No. 494. "G."

U. A. is releasing it.

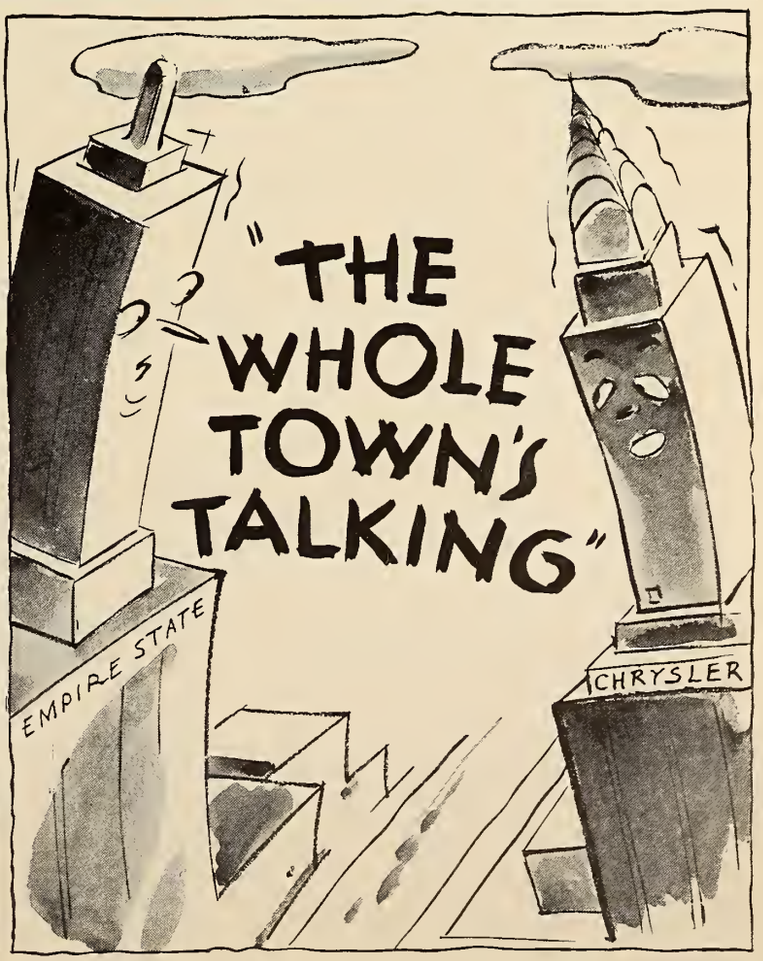
Two Managers Tied For December Award

It was a tie. The Quigley Award judges couldn t agree on a December winner, so they picked two of them—William Hendricks, Warner manager in Memphis, and Morris Rosenthal, Majestic, Bridgeport.



The judges were Jack Cohn, Oscar A. Doob and Leon J. Bamberger. Hendrick's "Six-Day Bike Rider" campaign and Rosenthal's "The Mighty Barnum" entry caused the deadlock, while A. Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers' Round Table Club of Motion Picture Herald, sat on the sidelines with his fingers crossed.

First mentions were taken by John Armstrong, publicity director, Paramount London Theatres, and Jack Lykes, Stillman manager, Cleveland.

Honorable mentions went to Wally Akin, Paramount, Abilene, Tex.; Paul Binstock, Republic, Brooklyn; Harry Botwick, State, Portland, Me.; Peter De Camac, Globe, Calcutta, India; Roscoe Drissell, Parkway, Wilmington, Del.; Ken Grimes, Warner, Morgantown, West Va.; Ed. Monopoly Via Codes Headed Toward Probe

Monday of the Supreme Court denying the President's authority to control illegally produced oil, the most serious blow the recovery program has yet experienced.

The court's decision will have no effect upon codes and is significant chiefly in the implication that the nation's highest tribunal will examine the Recovery Act microscopically as its various provisions are presented.

The next Recovery Act case to come before the court is expected to be one involving the lumber code and will give that body its first opportunity to rule on code activities.

Leahy, attorney for Allan Snyder, lessee of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central, generally credited with being the person responsible for bringing about the investigation to ascertain whether the anti-trust laws have been violated in the sale of films in this territory.

In addition to Abel Cary Thomas, Warner legal head, Harold S. Bareford, A. W. Smith, Joseph Hazen and Joseph Bernhard are here from New York to attend the investigation. Today's session was shrouded in secrecy the same as yesterday.

Neil Agnew has joined Louis Phillips, Paramount home office attorney, and Paul Burger of the United Artists sales force in New York is now sitting in with Edward Raftery of O'Brien, Driscoll and Raftery, law firm handling United Artists matters.

Cresson Smith arrived tonight and joined Jules Levy and Robert Youngman, the latter handling legal matters at Radio's home office.

Others who have been called here by the investigation include Moe Silver, western division manager for Warner theatres; Sam Dembow, Jr., former vice-president of Paramount-Publix; Louis Astor, assistant sales manager of Columbia, and W. J. Kupper, western division manager for Fox.

He has two houses in Victoria, one in El Campo and another in Yorktown. He claims that Jefferson has come into each of these towns with new theatres and has deprived him of product. He recently sold the Orphic, Columbus, Tex., to A. E. Moore. Patrick Russel, Dallas attorney, is representing him in this action. He also has a house in Belleville.

The overbuying complaint, scheduled to be heard yesterday by a Campi committee, was put over until 10 A. M. today due to inability to get a board together. When the case was tried before the Dallas grievance board, Frels was awarded a 50-50 split of all 1933-34 product, he says, and has been able to get only 32 pictures.

Asked for an opinion on conditions, Frels stated "they are improving, but would be much better if I could get some pictures."

of lottery matter through the mails and that the attitude of the whole government is against lotteries, the inference being that little sympathy would be accorded any plea for legalization of any lottery projects.

Failure to discuss bank nights at the Washington hearings beginning today will prove a sharp disappointment to Kansas City interests concerned with prizes and rebates. R. W. McEwan, bank night distributors, had predicted in the midwestern city on Saturday that a move to eliminate or sharply revise code sections restricting the practice would come to a head at the meetings to be held before the National Industrial Recovery Board beginning today.

Radio Men Jolted In the Ascap Suit motion to require Ascap to supply it with a complete list of the music titles to which Ascap holds the copyright.

Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, in granting the motion, ruled that, while Ascap could be required to compile the list, Penn Broadcasting would have to pay for the work of compilation. Ascap estimates that it has between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 titles and that the preparation of a complete list would require the labor of six persons for six months, 10 hours daily, and would cost about $250,000.

Ascap was given 10 days in which to furnish its formal cost estimate and Penn three days thereafter in which to challenge it. The only other information sought by Penn which Judge Mack ruled that Ascap could be required to furnish is the number of Ascap's radio licensees. Ascap estimates that there are approximately 600 of these.

Judge Mack's ruling, it is believed, will influence the procedure of the Department of Justice which, it is understood, was preparing to seek similar information from Ascap for the prosecution of the Federal anti-trust suit against the organization.

Boston Code Cases Reach Total of 48

BOSTON, Jan. 8.—A total of 48 cases had been filed with code boards here up to the beginning of this week. Of these, 32 have been with the clearance and zoning board, while 16 have been grievances. Of the former, 11 remain not set for hearings, two are as yet undecided, one has been settled by the establishment of a schedule, and one has been withdrawn. Of the latter, two have been withdrawn and the disposition of one is still doubtful.

One interesting detail here is that although no actual complaint of competition from non-theatrical sources has been actually filed, theatremen have twice called for forms. These blanks have never been filled in and returned, however.

T. & T. for alleged violations of the Sherman Act in collecting allegedly excessive payments for servicing of Fox theatres.

Claims against Fox Theatres, now in process of hearing before Special Master Courtland Palmer, are being rapidly disposed of, Weisman reported. About $5,000,000 of the claims have been reduced to $100,000, it was stated, and of the $6,000,000 of claims against the company remaining to be heard, satisfactory adjustments are expected in most instances.

Fox Met Plan to Court

The Fox Metropolitan Playhouses plan of reorganization developed by the bondholders' committee will be presented to Federal Judge Julian W. Mack at a hearing in U. S. District Court here today. The plan continues operation of the circuit's houses by Skouras and Randforce, but their operating contracts are cancellable by the bondholders after May 1, 1936. Complete details of the plan were published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Dec. 20, 1934.

G. T. E. Nears Revamping

Reorganization of General Theatres Equipment is approaching, declared Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the board of Chase National Bank, in his report to stockholders at the annual meeting held yesterday. That portion of his report which dealt with Chase's interests in the film industry follows:

"During the past year further progress has been made in the reorganization and liquidation of the bank's investment position in the motion picture industry. This investment in Fox Film Corp. has been reduced by the sale of 200,000 shares of Class A stock at $15 a share and additional shares have been placed under option at higher figures for limited periods. The corporation itself has continued to operate practically.

"Additional progress has been made in reorganizing the affairs of the Fox Film affiliated theatre chain and, while the several bankruptcies involved have not been terminated as of this date, it is hoped that a complete reorganization of these properties will be accomplished within the next few months.

"General Theatres Equipment, Inc., is still in receivership. Its underlying companies have, however, made headway during the past year and progress has been made in developing a plan of reorganization which it is hoped will be promulgated in the near future.

"The Loew's, Inc., stock acquired by the bank as a result of the foreclosure of the two-year secured gold notes of the Film Securities Corp. in the principal amount of approximately $5,000,000 held by the bank has been liquidated without loss."

Board Makeup Now a Hurdle To Para. Plan

Two of Creditor Groups For Industry Men

At least two important factions in the Paramount Publix reorganization are insisting upon industry men as members of the new board of directors and may withhold their formal approval of the plan until such men have been elected, it was learned yesterday.

Whether these groups will carry their insistence on board representation as far as objecting to the plan itself at the resumed hearings before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today, could not be ascertained last night. It is recalled, however, that Nathan Burkan, counsel for the merchandise creditors' committee, advised the court immediately prior to the last adjournment, Dec. 28, that he might have "plenty to say" about the plan "later on," and at that time asked an ad-

Loew's, Inc., net for the 12 weeks ending Nov. 22 was $2,001,308 after depreciation and taxes. This is an increase of $406,700 for the same period in 1933, and is equal to $14.64 per share of preferred and $1.23 per share on the common. In 1933 for the same quarter the preferred earnings were $11.53 per share and the common earned 95 cents per share.

Charges Fox Units' Assets Were 'Gutted'

The charge that Fox Metropolitan Playhouses and Fox Theatres Corp. became insolvent only because they had been "stripped of their assets and thoroughly 'gutted,'" was made before Federal Judge Julian W. Mack yesterday by Milton C. Weisman, receiver of Fox Theatres.

"These properties," Weisman declared, "were all good, sound and valuable and could have met all of their obligations. There is no question but that they were 'gutted.' Commissions amounting to $4,000,000 were

INDICTMENT TALK STIRS ST. LOUIS

Federal Film Moves Delayed For St. Louis

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—No effort looking toward a Congressional investigation of the code is expected until the results of the Department of Justice inquiry into the St. Louis product situation are made known, it was indicated today at the capitol.

If the department secures indictments, it is considered likely there will be little discussion of the code situation until the President's new recovery legislation is taken up for consideration.

Although it has been reported a resolution calling for an inquiry was to be introduced in the Senate this week by Senator Borah of Idaho, it was said at his office today no measure has yet been prepared or even discussed, although it was pointed out

Reports Are Heard as Federal Grand Jury Probe Is Ended

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 9.—Indictments against some major companies and certain individuals are reported to have been asked today by the Department of Justice as the closing phase of the Federal grand jury probe into the local booking situation. Anti-trust violations are charged, it is said.

A report by the jury is expected some time tomorrow.

The investigation started as a probe of the first run booking situation, it is said, but broadened to take in many phases of production, distribution and exhibition, as a result of numerous complaints from independents. It is said that the inquiry became national in scope, and even took in radio broadcasting problems back as far as 1928.

Russell Hardy, one of the special assistants of Attorney General Cummings, was one of the witnesses before the Clarence Darrow review board

Taxation Problems Up at Sacramento

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 9.—Taxation came to the fore at the opening of the Legislature today, but specific proposals were lacking. Governor Merriam stressed the need of new taxes in his inaugural address, but reserved details for his budget message. Lieutenant Governor George J. Hatfield, in his message, reiterated the Republican platform promise of a 30-hour week and a more equitable distribution of the tax load.

It was learned definitely that two bills will be introduced soon by Democrats, one providing for an increased tax on negatives, the other for censorship.

Walter McGovernor, new senator from San Francisco, said that because his district is a theatre center he has a friendly interest in the business.

J. G. Bryson, representing the Hays organization, said he would remain throughout the session, "principally as an observer." Nothing inimical to the industry is in sight as yet, he said. W. H. Lollier and Hulda McGinn left for their homes today, feeling that the situation for the time being is favorable.

Senator Culbert Olson of Los Angeles said today he was preparing bills to tax all advertising and was also considering the introduction of a 10 per cent admission tax. Others say an admission tax will be included in a general sales tax.

Assemblyman Rodney Turner of Kern County says he will put in a bill. His tax ideas are not clarified as to detail thus far.

U. A. Course Unknown

Six telephonic efforts to communicate yesterday with Arthur W. Kelly, vice-president in charge of foreign distribution for United Artists, for comment on the company's course following the banning of "The Gold Rush" in Germany were fruitless.

The picture was banned by an order from Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, who explained "the film does not coincide with world philosophy of the present day in Germany."

journment of a month while counsel for other reorganization committees were urging haste in concluding the hearings and advocated an adjournment of not more than a week. Burkan's committee is known to advocate industry men for the board.

The stockholders' committee, represented by Alfred Cook, who is also counsel for Paramount Publix in the proceedings, is known to favor the naming of additional Paramount or industry men to the board. Although that committee recently advised its members by mail that it would not formally approve the reorganization plan until a new board had been completed to which it could give its approval, Cook has urged the necessity of a speedy reorganization and, at this point, at least, will not oppose the plan.

Among Those Proposed

These two factions have proposed George Schaefer, Paramount general manager; Frank C. Walker, vice-president of M. E. Comerford Circuit, and Charles E. Richardson, former Paramount trustee, for the new board. Also proposed were Barney Balaban and E. V. Richards, Paramount theatre operating partners. Conclusive developments on the election of some or all of these may occur within the next few days.

Schaefer will resume the stand today when the hearings on the plan reopen before Judge Coxe. Counsel for the debtor expects to complete the presentation of formal proof at today's session. Whether an additional hearing will be required depends on the amount of time which the court is prepared to give to the opposition, which has been confined to date to Samuel Zirn, counsel for a small bondholders' group, and Archibald Palmer, who is appearing as friend of the court. New opposition of any significance might also result in further delay. However, if the testimony is concluded today the court will take the plan under advisement and accept, reject or alter it. If accepted, it will then go to individual creditors, two-thirds of whom must approve it before it becomes effective.

1,600 corporations in process of reorganization, Paramount and probably Radio among them. The information developed will be studied and a report made to Congress carrying recommendations for such legislation as the commission may consider desirable.

Discussing the Paramount situation, officials of the commission pointed out that the matter is in the courts and that, therefore, the commission does not yet have any direct interest. That interest will not be created, it was said, unless and until the concern files a registration application for new securities.

Texas Buying Case Drags Out All Day

giving Frels a split of 1934-35 product bought by the respondents was appealed by both complainant and defendant.

Frels, acting on his own behalf, said that the decision of the lower board did not give him enough pictures to meet his requirements. He said he hasn't been able to get any as yet and it will probably be six months from the date he originally filed the complaint before he gets a feature.

Louis Nizer, representing Long, contended that Long was an innocent party, having purchased the Queen and Rita, Victoria, Tex., from Jefferson on Sept. 27, last, because he felt that the "feud" between Frels and Jefferson was directly hurting business in his theatres in nearby towns. Long later testified that when he bought the houses he tried to increase the prices from 15 cents to 25 cents, but that Frels refused to go along.

Extended arguments over pictures bought took up a great deal of the time, particularly the Columbia contract. Nizer had to call Abe Montague in as a witness in order to settle a controversy over this company's product.

The Dallas board's decision was three to one in favor of Frels, John Maroney, attorney for Karl Hoblitzelle, being the dissenting voice. Leroy Bickel of M-G-M, Lehman Marshall, an independent exhibitor, and W. G. Underwood, associated with Claude Ezell in the operation of Monogram's exchange, voted in favor of Frels.

Yesterday a letter was received from Bickel in which he said that he agreed with the opinion of Maroney, but the board took it under advisement. In addition to operating the Victoria and Uptown in Victoria, Frels also has theatres in El Campo and Yorktown in opposition to Long which were involved in the product situation. He recently sold the Orphic, Columbus, to A. Moore, whom he represented as a co-complainant.

Campi to Set 1935 Budget Total Today

and its agencies totaled around $240,000. At the request of the NRA, the new fiscal year will run from Jan. 1.

While assessments from producers and distributors have generally been met, the records will show that a number of independent exchanges have been delinquent in paying. However, there is no means by which Campi can force the smaller exchanges to pay levies, but it is hinted that some kind of an amendment to the code regarding delinquents will be recommended.

The $240,000 operation cost for the 10-month period, was considerably under the budget figure.

RKO-Century Appeal Delayed; Nizer Busy

Because Louis Nizer, who has been retained by RKO to represent the company in the matter, had been tied up in another Campi appeal case yesterday, the Century clearance complaint against the major circuit was put off until next Wednesday.

Century contends that its Fantasy, Rockville Center, L. I., is not competitive to RKO's Strand and Columbia, Far Rockaway, and Alden, Jamaica.

Many interesting developments are expected at the hearing, according to the litigants. Mitchell Klupt, attorney for Century, will represent the complainants.

Block booking and the code were discussed by the jurors, it is understood, and testimony covering these angles is reported to have included affidavits from exhibitors in many cities obtained the past four months.

Some here have gone so far as to express the opinion that the investigation here was intended to forestall a Congressional probe of the industry and that the President was fully advised as to the Department of Justice plans.

It is understood Neil F. Agnew, sales manager of Paramount, was on the stand most of today.

that if the senator decided to act it would not take long to write such a resolution.

It was also pointed out in explanation of a delay in taking the matter up in Congress that court proceedings, if successful, would prove a quicker and more efficacious way of eliminating practices which have been complained of than an investigation and amendment of the code.

Charges Fox Units' Assets Were 'Gutted'

paid out of Fox Theatres' assets for acquiring Loew's stock at prices which were twice as high as it could have been purchased for in the street. Real estate was bought by one dummy corporation for $1,000,000; sold to another dummy corporation for $1,800,000, and then sold to Fox Theatres for $3,000,000."

Weisman's charges were made in the course of a hearing at which the Fox Met bondholders' committee was prepared to submit its plan of reorganization for the circuit to the court. Weisman, who, as Fox Theatres' receiver, holds all of the stock of Fox Met, objects that he had not had enough time to study points of law involved in the method of submitting the plan attempted by the bondholders' committee, so Judge Mack adjourned the hearing until Jan. 17 and extended the time for the actual filing of the plan to Feb. 11.

The hearing next week will be on applications of the Fox Met bondholders' committee for leave to intervene in the reorganization proceedings, for permission to send copies of the plan and acceptance forms to Fox Met noteholders and for a waiver which would relieve all Fox Met bondholders of the necessity of filing a statement detailing their trading in the company's bonds with their acceptances.

Weisman, objecting to the latter application, described it as "in effect, an attempt to exempt the noteholders from the criminal and civil provisions of the Securities Act." He asserted that he did not believe the court had the power to grant this application.

William L. Bainton, of counsel for the bondholders' committee, denied the charge that the procedure was an attempt to evade the Securities Act provisions, pointing out that the court retained full jurisdiction over the proceedings and could require the trading information when the acceptances and plan came before the court.

Films No Hazard on Ships, Report Says

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Motion pictures today were given a clean bill of health by the National Bureau of Standards for use on shipboard, as far as fire hazards go.

A report on safety in marine transportation prepared by the bureau shows that since the adoption of safety recommendations more than a decade ago no instance has been found of "fire or jeopardy to life" resulting from the showing of films.

The bureau pointed out the exhibition of nitrocellulose films was formerly prohibited on ships of United States registry, but that the same range in subjects obtainable with slow burning film and the difficulty of inspectors in distinguishing between the two types led to the adoption of safety measures 12 years ago.

These recommendations provided for properly designed and ventilated projection booths and examination of projectors for needed safety features.

"While it is more difficult to obtain a desired degree of safety on shipboard than in theatres on account of the use of portable booths and screens, the records show no instance of fire or jeopardy to life during the 12 years that these regulations have been in effect," the report stated.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Notorious Gentleman"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—This is a gripping murder mystery melodrama, at times draggy and complicated. Expert editing will probably eliminate this when it should please customers appreciating art figuring out who killed who.

The yarn, taken from Florence Ryerson and Colin Clement's original, "I Murdered A Man," features Charles Bickford, Helen Vinson, Onslow Stevens, Dudley Digges, Sidney Blackmer and John Darrow enmeshed in a web of incriminating circumstances brought about by Bickford, a criminal lawyer, murdering his worst enemy and suitor for his girl (Miss Vinson). The fight from then on takes place in the courtroom, where Bickford, believing he has committed the perfect crime, outwits the district attorney to the point where the jury disagrees. But the district attorney investigates further and through clever detective work traps Bickford and wins the girl. Cunning and tricky situations sustain suspense from the beginning, yet, in the interval several complications appear that may overtax the patience of the audiences.

Edward Laemmle delivered a good piece of direction with the entire cast grooving adequately in portraying the story.

Production Code Seal No. 511. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Winning Ticket"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—Centering its entertainment around the human interests of chancing an Irish Sweepstakes ticket, an amusing film is concocted here.

Ted Healy importunes his barber brother-in-law (Leo Carrillo) to buy a ticket against the vehement protest of Louise Fazenda, Carrillo's wife, opposed to gambling. When the ticket wins the family indulges in a spending orgy on borrowed money but catches up with itself when it is discovered the prize ticket is lost. The searching for and finding of the ticket winds up the action.

While the production is robbed of suspense by the audience's knowing the location of the lost ticket, the show has a down-to-earth element of family love, greed and human interest with top comedy supplied by Healy, who is a howl without his stooges. Carrillo, Miss Fazenda, Healy and Luis Alberni highlight the cast in effective roles.

All in one mood, tempo and treatment of idea without variegated gags keep this film from attaining its utmost possibilities. Charles Reisner directed from the screen play by Ralph Spence and Richard Schayer. Charles Clarke photographed. An average one from Leo. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 74 minutes. "G."

"Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which opens at the Paramount tomorrow, was covered by wire from Hollywood on Dec. 26.

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

Washington, Jan. 10.—Despite rigorous efforts of the Administration to prevent a "leak," it was learned authoritatively today that the Department of Justice is making plans to cover the country in an extension of the Federal grand jury probe in St. Louis and will present complaints against selling practices of distributors in probably every exchange center in the United States.

Los Angeles today was officially revealed as the second city in which the government will seek the prosecution of leading distributors.

Affidavits have been secured from independent exhibitors in many cities and Department officials will seek to secure indictments wherever they can. It is said that one of the avowed purposes of the Justice Department is to break up block booking.

The industry, reliable reports declare, has been warned repeatedly to abandon certain of its practices but certain of its high executives appear to have placed more confidence in their political affiliations than in the government's warning. At least, this is one of RKO Radio's "Romance in Manhattan" has been booked for the Music Hall for the week beginning Jan. 17.

Insiders' Outlook

"NOT at this time" will Consolidated consider sponsoring an exchange organization for the varied assortment of independents in the financing of which the big laboratory company plays a part. Herb Yates says so and that means he knows, for, when you talk about Consolidated, it's virtually the same as saying Yates. The understanding is these selfsame independents have approached him at various times over a period of some months to do something about it to the end that they get the break which they are not getting now but which they say should be theirs in the constant struggle for a proper place in the sun. "Not at this time," it might be said, is as permanent as was yesterday, a hectic day what with all this excitement over Federal grand jury probes thundering up in the north, south, east and west. . . .

Will Hays delivered an address before the Los Angeles Realty Board the other night and wondered aloud over the reasons why the real estate boys were crooning less these days on the wonders of Southern California. "In the years I've been coming to California the motion picture has found its voice and you appear to have lost yours," our favorite trade paper said of Hays' gentle chidings, adding that the loosened celluloid tongue had gotten that way "through tremendous struggle and labor." It must be tough, very tough for those overworked minions filmatic to get along at the current rate of their earnings. Just how tough, in one direction which might be multiplied by many, is demonstrated by reading elsewhere today the cost of maintaining the Paramount studio payroll weekly. . . .

Over the bridge in Brooklyn where the Strand, Fox and Paramount are blood brothers in an operating pool, complications appear to be setting in to the ultimate discomfort, beyond doubt, of Si Fabian. There, the Fox operates on a combination stage show and picture policy at 65 cents top. There, the Paramount yesterday went to double features, first run, with no stage show but with the identical top. You figure what's about to happen. Then add to it, the rising tide of indignation on the part of independent exhibitors in that borough over the duals development and you get a perfect picture of this winter's discontent on the other side of town. . . .

TIME was when Al Steffes, good old political fire-eater all in the cause of Allied, used to stamp up and down the country lambasting producers and their theatres and raising hell in large-sized quantities. For some time now, however, Al has been operating the World theatre in Minneapolis, right in his own bailiwick and what's happened financially has been very comforting and comfortable on Steffes' behalf. He is about to annex the Shubert there with a nice hunk of cash changing hands to cement the deal. The lessen in all of this should be apparent, so apparent as to make unnecessary and futile any observation from this quarter which always has regarded Steffes as more noise than bite anyway. . . .

Following the suggestion, paid for in generous newspaper space by Lynn Farnol and Abe Waxman, this reporter took himself to the Music Hall yesterday to meet Jessie Matthews. It developed to be an unfortunate event in that the introduction turned out to be a long distance affair with Miss Matthews only a shadow of herself on the screen and this column sprawled gracefully, it hopes, in the upper reaches of the theatre's loges. For, this English actress is personable; she has charm, a nice, albeit small, voice, and a definite capability for making herself ingratiating before a camera. "Evergreen," her first picture, which is discussed on another page this morning, promises much for her after something is done about the job of making her known to the customers in this country. She should prove a bet if handled properly and exploited well. . . .

Ed Kuykendall and his ebullience flowed over the dikes yesterday in a statement which had him saying the plans for the M.P.T.O.A. convention in New Orleans had reached the point where, denials notwithstanding, he could say it would be "so novel, so typical of New Orleans and the sunny South that it can be only adequately described as thrilling, colossal, terrific, magnificant, supreme and stupendous." Please, Mr. Kuykendall. . . .

Who is to get the dues from those Philadelphia theatremen, members of the I.E.P.A., who the other day decided to graft their theatres onto the Allied of Jersey structure while, at the same time, keeping the faith with their original organization?

Solomon Gets Award At Newark Luncheon

Sig Solomon of the Regent, Newark, was presented the December Quigley award yesterday at a luncheon in the Hotel Douglas, Newark. Don Jacocks, Newark Warner division manager; the entire personnel of the division, and a number of home office representative attended.

Jacocks expressed the company's appreciation of Solomon's services. A-Mike Vogel, head of the Managers' Round Table Club of Motion Picture Herald, one of the speakers, said that five award winners had received promotions.

Gottlieb Quits U. A. To Do Columbia Ads

Alexander Gottlieb, who has been assisting Hal Horne in the U. A. advertising department for more than a year, has resigned to join Columbia under Herschel Stuart. He assumes his new duties Monday.

Kenneth O'Brien has been assigned to press books at U. A., while Al Adams, formerly Monroe Greenthal's assistant, is now in charge of trailers and national advertising copy. Max Hirsh, who has been working under Herb Jaediker, succeeds Adams in the latter's former post.

Du-Art Granted Stay

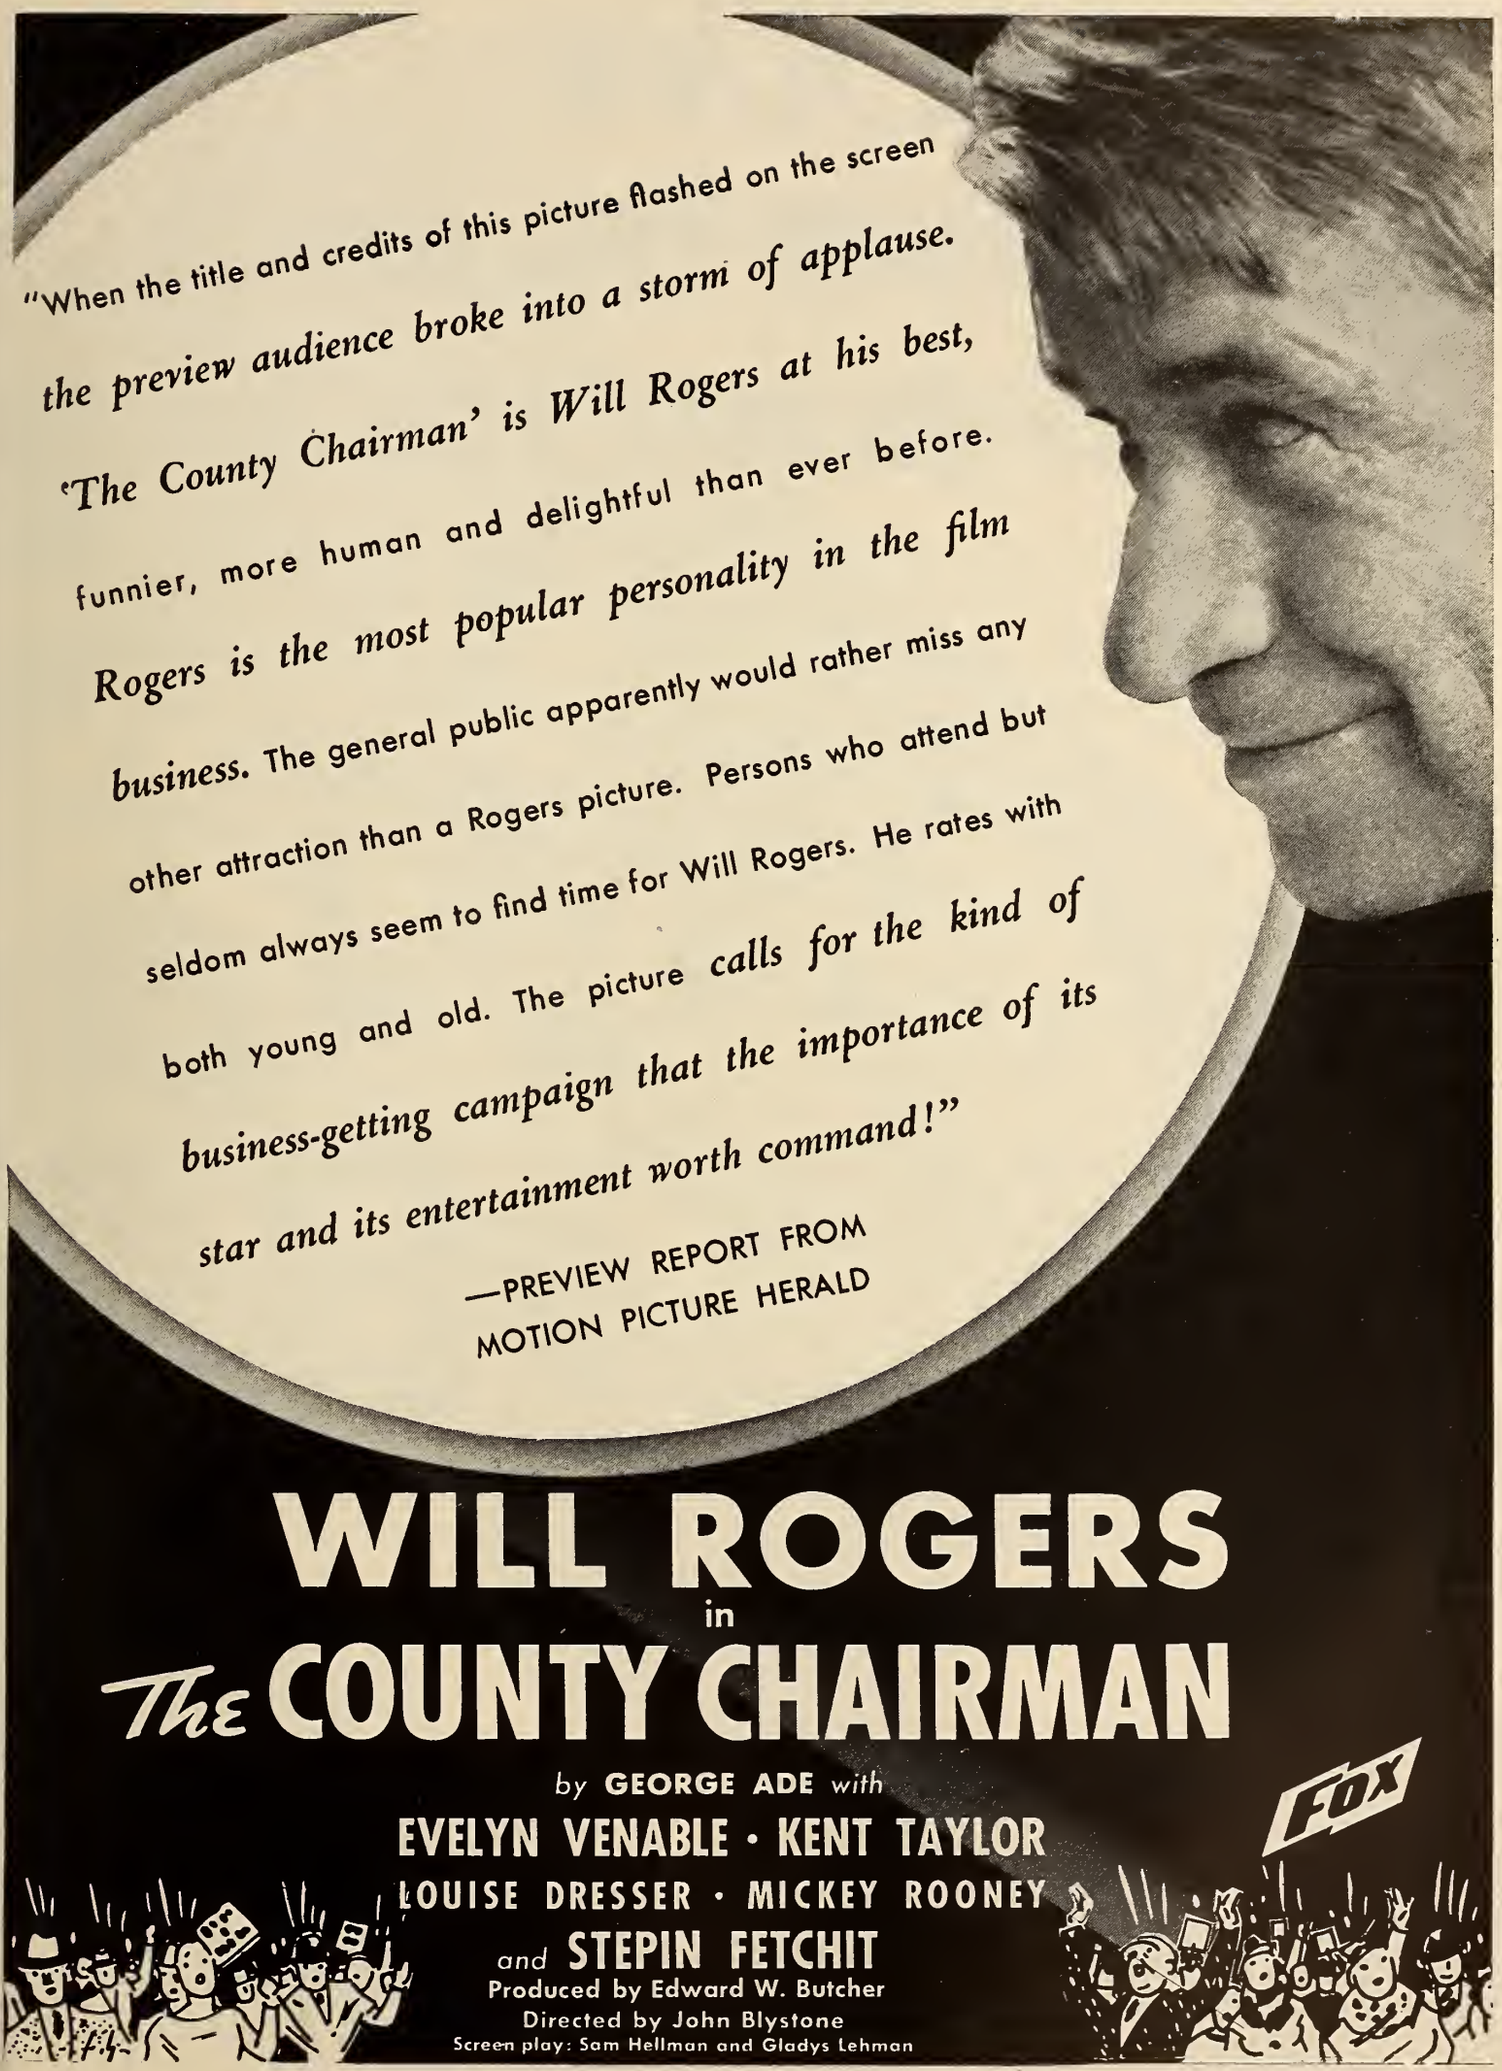
Du-Art Film Laboratories, Inc., yesterday was granted a stay in the Supreme Court under which Universal's laboratory work will be handled by the plaintiff company until Monday when the action will again be heard.

Du-Art filed suit against "U" on Wednesday alleging the latter is endeavoring to throw out a contract for printing which the plaintiff claims to hold in favor of Consolidated.

Roxy Grosses $29,500

"It's a Gift" garnered a nice take of $29,500 at the Roxy last week, giving the theatre a handsome profit. "Sweet Adeline" at the Paramount was off with a gross of $22,500. The Palace, with "Kentucky Kernels," hit $8,500 on the first Broadway showing. "Enter Madame" opens tonight as another first run attraction.

Plan New Rialto Bldg.



When Arthur Mayer vacates the Rialto it will be torn down for the erection of a four-story building containing a theatre, stores, offices and a restaurant, according to Anthony Campagna, president of Rialto Times Square, Inc., which has leased the property from the Gerry estate. The cost is estimated at $150,000.

Skouras-RKO Deal Set

George Skouras today takes over the Strand, Rockville Center, L. I., and the Embassy, Port Chester, N. Y., from RKO. The contracts were signed last week. Final details have been worked out during the last few days.

That's always an important and usually a non-productive situation in any man's exhibitor association. Ask Myers. Ask Kuykendall. Ask Sydney Cohen. Or Jimmy Walker. . . .

KANN

"When the title and credits of this picture flashed on the screen the preview audience broke into a storm of applause. 'The County Chairman' is Will Rogers at his best, funnier, more human and delightful than ever before. Rogers is the most popular personality in the film business. The general public apparently would rather miss any other attraction than a Rogers picture. Persons who attend but seldom always seem to find time for Will Rogers. He rates with both young and old. The picture calls for the kind of business-getting campaign that the importance of its star and its entertainment worth command!"

"Minister" and "Eyes" Detroit High, $20,200

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—For some unexplained reason the Fox split a week between two of the biggest hits of the season—"Bright Eyes" and "Little Minister." The former was on three days and the latter four, with six acts of vaudeville to round out the program. Business kept the ticket-sellers on the jump, the take going to $20,200.

"Kid Millions" held up to $11,600 in its second week at the United Artists. The Adams had the weirdest bookings of all over a period of 10 days—"Chu Chin Chow," three days; "Hell in the Heavens," three, and "Bright Eyes" four, and the take was only $4,600, under normal by $400.

Six-Hour Day Among Kansas Union Aims

TOPEKA, Jan. 10.—A six-hour day and a 30-hour week and a bill to deprive state courts of the power of injunction in labor disputes are included in a legislative program submitted by Kansas labor organizations to Gov. Alf Landon.

Other proposals by labor are: Old age pensions; unemployment insurance to be supported jointly by the state and employers; improvement of the workmen's compensation law, and an increase in the prevailing wage scale by constitutional amendment.

Labor will take joint action with the farm organizations in opposing a sales tax, some sentiment for which exists among state officials. Some of the farm organizations favor a gross income tax, instead of the present levy on net incomes to lessen the burden on real estate.

E. O. Briles, exhibitor of Stafford, Kan., is a member of the legislature, the first Kansas theatre man to be elected in many years. He is expected to be of assistance in safeguarding the industry's interests during the coming session.

The same situation prevailed at Keith's Memorial where "The Little Minister" ran for the week with "Romance in Manhattan" New Year's eve. Standing room was sold. The $15,500 take was $3,500 over par.

"Forsaking All Others" was the best straight film draw of the week, topping the usual take by $6,000 for a gross of $16,000 at Loew's State.

"'David Cooperfield'? Wonder what that could be about?"

"Forsaking" Pittsburgh's Top, $17,500

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—While business all over town was up last week, it was still below the general expectations for New Year's Week. Only the Penn managed to keep pace with last year's takings. It did this with "Forsaking All Others," which took $17,500 and held over for another four days.

The Warner, too, made a creditable showing with "The Captain Hates the Sea" and "The Secret Bride," doing around $6,200 for its best showing in some time.

The biggest surprise of the week was the poor showing of "Sweet Adeline" at the Stanley. The picture was originally booked in for nine days, but was yanked in less than half that time after doing only $8,000.

Total grosses in six first run houses were $50,400. Average is $46,500.

More Than Half N.E. Theatres Sign Code

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—More than 50 per cent of the active theatres in the New England territory, Connecticut not included, have assented to the code during the past year. Of this number, only a few have not followed signatures with checks for assessments. Approximately 1,000 houses are in this section, with about 800 of these lighted. Summer stands, along with several unaffiliated circuits, comprise the majority of non-assenters.

To Refuse Banned Films

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10. — In a neighborhood with a large Catholic population, J. F. Rigney has announced that pictures considered objectionable by Catholic review lists will not be shown at his Westport Theatre. These are films included in the C or blacklist.

"Minister" Up In Cleveland With $10,500

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10. — Scrambled openings and midnight shows New Year's eve helped business considerably. The outstanding attraction of the week was "The Little Minister" which took $10,500 on a straight seven-day basis with no midnight show. The $10,500 take was $4,500 over normal.

"Bright Eyes" demonstrated its continued drawing power by grossing $3,600 in two days with a midnight show at the Allen. This is $600 better than a full week's average. "Hell in the Heavens" at the Allen for the other five days of the week garnered a strong $3,600.

Total gross for the holiday week was $49,200. Some pictures opened New Year's Eve. Average for seven days is $33,000.

Soviet Film Raises Ontario Censor Row

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—A battle is waging in various Ontario centres over the propriety of the Soviet film, "Ten Days that Shook the World," municipal and police authorities engaging in a warm discussion with representatives of the so-called Workers' Sport Ass'n. which is sponsoring the exhibitions.

Strangely enough, the Ontario censors are not taking a hand in the wrangle and the film has been publicly shown in a number of halls without the official stamp of the censor board. The latter has taken the stand that the release does not come within its jurisdiction because the film is not of standard width. This is the first time that the width of a print has been the deciding point with regard to censorship by the province and municipalities have set up a censoring system of their own. This, too, is interesting because, heretofore, cities and towns have left the examination of films entirely to the province. Exhibitors are somewhat concerned because the move may be the spearhead for double censorship of theatrical films.

The Soviet picture has been banned in a number of cities but the authorities in other places have adopted a don't care attitude.

"My Heart" Is Hit on Coast; Gets $26,000

Los Angeles, Jan. 10.—Grosses held up well in spite of the post-holiday slump and rain early in the week. "Here Is My Heart" was in the smash hit class with $26,000, over the line by $8,000, at the paramount.

"What Every Woman Knows" took a strong $4,500 at the 900-seat 4-Star, and "The Captain Hates the Sea" was a money-maker at the Pantages on a $4,100 gross. "Power," at the Filmarte, was good for $2,800.

"Flirtation" Gets $3,200 in Lincoln

Lincoln, Jan. 10. — "Flirtation Walk" at the Lincoln and "Forsaking All Others" at the Stuart swapped blows with the opposition's first box-office magnet, "Broadway Bill" at the Varsity. Both the first two pictures were in eight days, trying to set back to the Thursday opening, which was dodged to start on the Christmas-New Year's holidays.

"Flirtation Walk" took $3,200 in eight days and "Forsaking All Others" headed into $3,500, both films above average. "Broadway Bill," set in four 10 days, tilled $3,000, also over the divide for a good margin. The Orpheum had a full week of stage shows, Georgia Minstrels and "Father Brown, Detective" leading off with four days and "Penthouse Follies" and "Elinor Norton" closing with three and running the take up near $4,500.

Washington, Jan. 10.—"Sweet Adeline" took the Earle to town last week to the tune of $21,200, over par by $3,600. A big stage show helped. Runner-up was "The Little Minister," at RKO-Keith's, where it took $11,500 on the second week.

Loew's Fox slipped with "The President Vanishes" to a take of $19,600. The picture received rave reviews.

"U" Suit Up in Scranton

Scranton, Jan. 10.—An equity action brought by Universal Picture Corp. and Worldwide Picture Corp. against Edward Nanawicz, exhibitor at Eynon, Pa., will be heard on Jan. 17 before U. S. Judge A. L. Watson. The case has been before the court for nearly two years.

The plaintiffs allege the defendant exhibited five films early in 1932 without proper license. They seek to recover damages under the copyright laws.

Battles Lincoln Papers

Lincoln, Jan. 10.—Milton Overman, who bosses the Varsity and Kiva here, is having a fight with newspapers and has taken the lion's share of his ads out of the sheets, transferring to radio and shopping guides. His radio idea is novel in that he has a line into his office and goes on twice a day with a little ether "visit" with the listeners chatting about pictures to come and pictures playing. He also has a mike spotted back stage so he can switch into the picture and give a short snatch of the current attraction.

HE KNOWS WHAT

No. 802 Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

During my association with J. R. Grainger (whose trademark seems to be "Jimmie") I have found him the hardest-to-please man I ever met in this business.

He has the job of selling pictures and he wants them to be better than good. Now and then he has bitterly criticized some of the efforts of the Universal studio.

But now he writes me the following office memorandum:

"In my opinion, Mr. Laemmle, 'The Good Fairy,' starring Margaret Sullavan and Herbert Marshall is easily the best picture Universal has produced in years. I am not only willing but eager to give my best friends among the exhibitors my personal guarantee that Miss Sullavan and Mr. Marshall give a marvelous performance in a picture full of laughs, and that they can figure on new records at their box-offices. This is putting it mildly.

"I have also just seen The Mystery of Edwin Drood' and I am delighted to find it an outstanding picture, fast moving and full of mystery, suspense and good comedy, excellently well acted.

IT'S ALL ABOUT!

"Moreover I have seen most of 'Transient Lady,' another splendid picture with every indication of good box-office entertainment.

"I have seen the first rushes on 'Frankenstein Lives Again' and 'Princess O'Hara' and 'It Happened In New York' and they show up even better than the scripts, which I considered great.

"With these, to be followed by 'The Great Ziegfeld' and Diamond Jim' and 'Show Boat,' all beautifully prepared, we are going to show an unheard-of improvement in our product, including bigger pictures than we promised at the beginning of the season.

"You have done a swell job. I am going to do an equally swell one and so are the real showmen of the United States and Canada."

If Mr. Grainger is willing to say that much to me, I have a sneaking suspicion that Universal's pictures from now on are going to tickle you to death!

Dubinsky and IATSE End St. Joseph Row

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10.—Dubinsky Bros. Theatres have made peace with the I.A.T.S.E. operators' local in St. Joseph, Mo., and have reinstated employes who were replaced last fall during a bitter controversy.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed. The crux of the argument was the union's demand for continuance of two-men-in-a-booth at the three Dubinsky houses, the circuit contending locals in other cities had granted one-man operation.

It is reported that the operators, ousted members of the Independent M. P. Operators' Union, whom Dubinsky employed after breaking with the I.A.T.S.E., have taken their case to the Regional Labor Board. Meanwhile a Federal court injunction Dubinsky obtained against the I.A.T.S.E. in St. Joseph remains in force.

In Kansas City, operators at Dubinsky houses are employed under terms of an arbitration decision, which has been appealed by Local 170 to Compliance Director Rosenblatt.

May Open in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 10.—Rumors are rife concerning the Majestic, downtown house dark for several years. One report has it that a former local theatre manager is dickering with the owners for reopening the house, while another says that the theatre will be torn out and replaced with store and office space. The lobby of the house has been occupied by a neckware establishment for many months.

Another local downtown house, the Strand, slated for reopening Christmas day, has had its projection equipment repossessed and will continue dark. Warners were the last operators of the house.

Dunnuck Gets 3 Houses

NORFOLK, Neb., Jan. 10.—Robert Dunnuck, lately with A. H. Blank's Tri-States Theatres, has become city manager of the three Harry Weinberg Central States Theatres here. Weinberg acquired the 800-seat Granada from Ellis & Larue, who had announced the opening of the house recently, rented film and put out advertising. Before the doors opened, however, Weinberg had acquired the house and Dunnuck came in to manage it along with the Grand and Rialto. Rowan Miller formerly was city manager.

Turkish Houses Hold Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Despite unsatisfactory business conditions in Turkey, theatre business was about equal to that of last year during the first two months (September and October) of the present season, according to a report issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The Ipekdji Studio has just completed, the report stated, a Turkish film, "Batikli Damin Kizi" ("Girl of the Dilapidated House"), a drama of some 11,000 feet. It will be released shortly.

Acquires Elyria Capital

ELYRIA, O., Jan. 10.—John Perkas has formally taken over the Capitol, recently turned back by Warners. This gives him complete dominance of this town through his additional operation of the Rialto, Dreamland and Rivoli.

Para.'s Annual Cash Need Put At 36 Million

Theatre Corp., and Paul Raeburn, chief statistician for Paramount, completed the formal proof of the Paramount Publix plan with testimony designed to show the cash needs of the company on and after reorganization. The hearing was adjourned to Jan. 18 to complete the proof of the reorganization plan for Paramount Broadway, holding company for the Paramount Building and theatre.

Yesterday's testimony included an itemizing of the obligations to be met with the $3,800,000 cash in the hands of the Paramount trustees and the $6,500,000 to be raised by common stock assessments. It attempted to show that the stock assessment was justified and that an additional $14,000,000 cash on hand in the possession of subsidiaries was necessary for their current operating expenses. Of the other $10,300,000 cash, $5,325,000 would be applied to payment of Paramount's bank debt and approximately $4,500,000 would be needed for costs of administration of the estate, expenses of reorganization, immediate requirements of production and other expenses. Of the latter amount, according to Raeburn's testimony, $1,650,000 would be needed to meet the terest on the new debentures; $1,650,000 for dividends on the first preferred stock, $350,000 for dividends on the second preferred and $550,000 to apply to the sinking fund for new debentures.

Normal cash requirements for 1935 would be derived from anticipated earnings for the year, which are being estimated on the basis of 1934 earnings, Raeburn testified in response to a question put to him by Judge Coxe. Raeburn estimated that, in addition to the $14,000,000 cash on hand held by subsidiaries, Paramount would require another $5,000,000 in order to maintain next season a production policy of 60 pictures at approximately the present negative cost.

Freeman testified that the Paramount theatre subsidiaries had approximately $4,500,000 cash on hand at the end of 1934, of which $1,100,000 was held by Balaban & Katz. The bulk of it, he said, was required for current operations and, of the total, Paramount could not collect more than $350,000 or $450,000 at this time. He declared that the theatre group as a whole could take care of its own cash requirements and was in good condition, although a few subsidiaries did not have enough cash to cover an emergency.

Interrogation of the witnesses was conducted by Alfred Cook and Louis Loeb, of counsel for Paramount. Cross-examination was confined mostly to Archibald Palmer, appearing as public defender, who, with Samuel Zirn, representative of a small bondholders' group, still constitute the only opposition to the plan at this time. Palmer's examination of witnesses was directed in an attempt to show that the stock assessment might not be needed; that cash on hand was ample for the company's requirements and that the six per cent interest rate being paid on the bank debt was excessive.

In commenting on probable opposition to the plan which may develop, Cook told the court that he had been advised by an unnamed person that if certain appointments were not made to the board of the new company, new attacks on the plan would be made.

Completion of the proof on the Broadway plan, Jan. 18, is expected to take the entire day, or longer. Austin Keough, Paramount secretary, will be the first witness.

Says Para. Subsidiaries Need $700,000 Each Week

The Paramount film subsidiaries require $700,000 cash each week, George Schaefer, general manager, testified yesterday at the Federal court hearing on the company's reorganization plan.

Of this amount, Schaefer estimated Hollywood requirements were "$375,000 or $400,000" a week. Paramount's Hollywood payroll, he said, was "$230,000 to $250,000" a week for 2,700 employes, or an average of about $90 per person.

Paramount has set aside a reserve fund of $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, the testimony disclosed, as a contingency to cover its estimated liability in the event American Tri-Ergon wins an action for damages against the company for alleged patent infringement.

Emphasizing the desirability of ready cash for production purposes, Schaefer stated that the company was frequently handicapped in properly advertising and exploiting productions because of the dependence of producing activities on distribution returns, which tends to delay the start of new pictures until revenue begins to come in from a completed picture. This, he said, frequently brings the completion of a film so close to its release date that it does not receive proper marketing attention. He pointed out that Paramount was having that problem to contend with at the moment in the case of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," and intimated that ideal production financing should permit the company to keep "seven or eight" pictures ahead of release dates.

quarter of 1934 would be $1,030,000, as compared with a profit of $2,300,000 for the same quarter of 1933.

Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president of Famous Theatres Corp., Paramount's theatre holding company, testified that the estimated $882,000 theatre group profit for 1934 compared with a loss, undisclosed, on 1933 theatre operations. He stated that a profit of $1,200,000, exclusive of theatre properties in reorganization, was possible for 1935. He estimated that, in addition to this amount, Paramount's 50 per cent interest in Saenger Theatres, now in reorganization, should return it a profit of $200,000 to $250,000 on the basis of an estimated $600,000 net for the circuit for 1935.

Three in Cleveland Resume Dual Billing

now exhibiting double features are the Alhambra, Metropolitan and Temple.

Victor Wolcott, who operates the Temple, has taken over the Family on a lease and plans to reopen it shortly with twin bills. The Family formerly was operated by Singer & Segal, who some time ago attempted to drop the single feature plan for duals, but were stopped by a court restraining order. Immediately after the court action Singer & Segal gave up the theatre.

Only independent pictures are being shown at the three dual feature houses. According to unaffiliated exhibitors, the twin bill policy is expected to spread. Major distributors continue to sell with the dual restriction clause in contracts.

Independent exchange men believe that twin bills will be shown again at most unaffiliated theatres within the next few months. The plan to take court action against major distributors for restricting duals is believed to have been dropped by independent forces.

Church Bodies Start Detroit Theatre Lists

"white lists" 26 metropolitan houses that have shown no Class "C" films, warns 72 theatres that have shown either one or two disapproved pictures, and brands as "unworthy of patronage by those who took the Legion of Decency pledge" 31 houses which have shown three or more Class "C" films during the month.

The 26 houses on the "white list" embraced all of the first runs except the Fisher. This list included the following houses: Adams, Fox, Michigan, RKO Uptown, State, United Artists, Aloma, Annex, Baldwin, Birmingham, Center, Colonial, DeLuxe, Eastown, Globe, Grande, Iris, Martha Washington, Mayfair, Medbury, Oriole, Piccadilly, Roosevelt, Rosedale, Stratford, Tower.

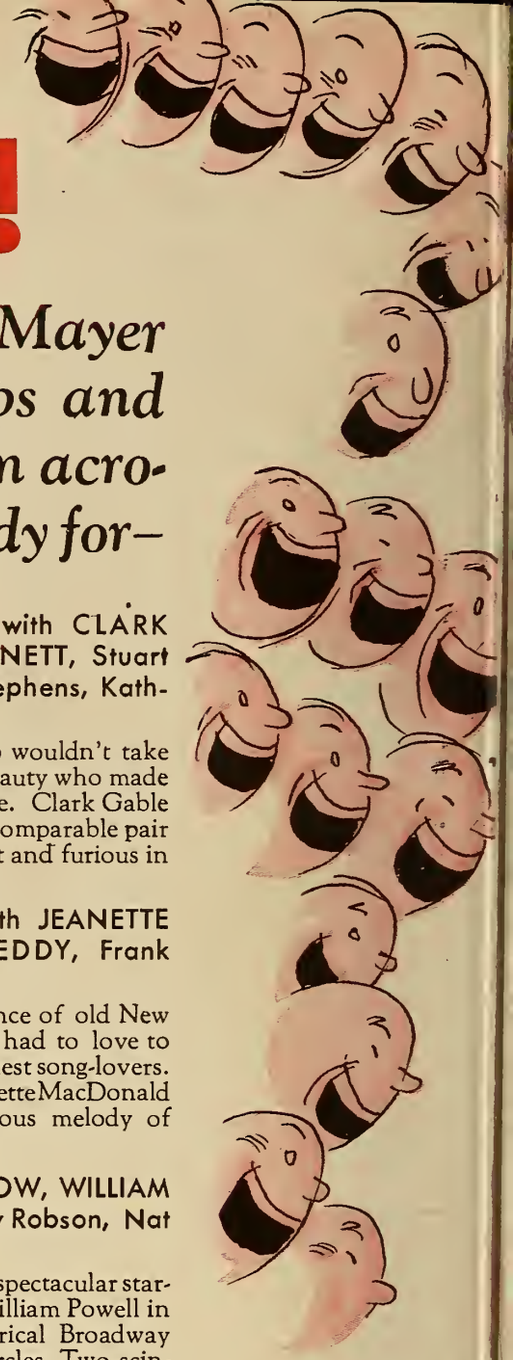
The "offending" theatres were listed as follows: Showing six banned features—Loyal and Irving; five banned films—Belmont, Casino, Astor, Beacon and Boulevard; four Class "C" films—Echo, Hippodrome, Jefferson, Sheridan, and Lincoln; three Class "C" films—Capitol, Amsterdam, Century, Colony, Dox, Hoover, Rex, Uptown, Your, Fenkell, Coliseum, Dawn, East Side, Home, Myrtle, Rivola, Strand, West End and Sun.

List of Warned Houses

The houses that showed one or two Class "C" films and which were warned that "a word to the wise" is sufficient were the Fisher, Hollywood, Madison, Riviera, Ambassador, Alhambra, Arcadia, Avalon, Buchanan, Calvin, Cameo, Carlton, Cinderella, Conant, Cooley, Crystal, Delthe, Dexter, Dix, East End, Family, Farnum, Fine Arts, Flamingo, Ford Grand, Forest, Fordson, Garden, Gladwin, Granada, Grand Victory, Great Lakes, Greenwood, Highland Park, Hoover, Ideal, Kramer, Lasky, Lincoln Park, Linwood LaSalle, Loop, Maxine, Midway, Norwood, Oakman, Oliver, Palace, Park, Plaza, Priscilla, Punch and Judy, Ramona, Redford, Regent, Rialto, Roxy, Royal Oak, Senate, Stanley, Theatorium, Tuxedo, Virginia, Warfield, Whittier and Woodward Grand.

While some 25 exhibitors questioned felt that publication of the list would not affect their business any more than the Legion of Decency drive already has, most of them branded as "unfair" publication of the list, saying that they had had no warning that the organization would issue it.

Referring to the banned pictures, the bulletin said:



"No exhibitor is forced to remain on this list of offending theatres. The exhibitors' code clearly states that any exhibitor may cancel a picture when there is sufficient local protest. Hence, no exhibitor can use the subterfuge, 'I must block book and blind book my pictures.'"

Exhibitors' comment on this was: "Try and cancel 'em."

The Next Months of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will make box-office receipts do nip-ups and handsprings and other hitherto unknown acrobatic feats. Get your play-date book ready for–

"WEST POINT OF THE AIR" with WALLACE BEERY, Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lewis Stone, James Gleason.

Mightiest air thriller of them all. Daring drama of Uncle Sam's flying eagles who live madly, love wildly. New thrills in air, on earth, with a great cast picturing the epic story of aviation from its early beginning in this "Big Parade of the Air."

"VANESSA—HER LOVE STORY" Starring HELEN HAYES, ROBERT MONTGOMERY, Otto Kruger, May Robson, Lewis Stone.

An exquisitely beautiful story of undying love—tender and touching. Helen Hayes, America's finest actress, is superb as the lovely heroine of Hugh Walpole's world-famous novel. Robert Montgomery is in his best romantic style as a dashing and devil-may-care charmer.

"SOCIETY DOCTOR" with Chester Morris, Virginia Bruce, Billie Burke.

A mad whirlpool of human emotions centered in a metropolitan emergency hospital. Teeming with life, packed with thrills and laughs, it keeps moving every second of every minute. This dynamic story of life's beginning and end, might best be described as "the thrilling successor to 'Men In White'."

"SEQUOIA" (pronounced See-quo-yah) with JEAN PARKER

We quote Jim Tully, the well-known author. "No picture in years has given me the same emotional quality which I derived from 'SEQUOIA.' I often grow discouraged about films. 'SEQUOIA' renewed my faith. I congratulate its makers."

"DAVID COPPERFIELD" with an all-star cast of 65 players including:—W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Madge Evans, Maureen O'Sullivan, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Frank Lawton, Freddie Bartholomew, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Young.

The year's most anxiously awaited production. Charles Dickens' beloved work of art comes to the screen after two years of production as a love-story for the ages. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer proudly presents its mightiest masterpiece. Your heart will never let you forget it.

"AFTER OFFICE HOURS" with CLARK GABLE, CONSTANCE BENNETT, Stuart Erwin, Billie Burke, Harvey Stephens, Katharine Alexander.

The story of a woman-tamer who wouldn't take a fall for any girl, and a society beauty who made a habit of taking men for a joy-ride. Clark Gable and Constance Bennett are an incomparable pair of lovers, and the laughs come fast and furious in this comedy-mystery-melodrama.

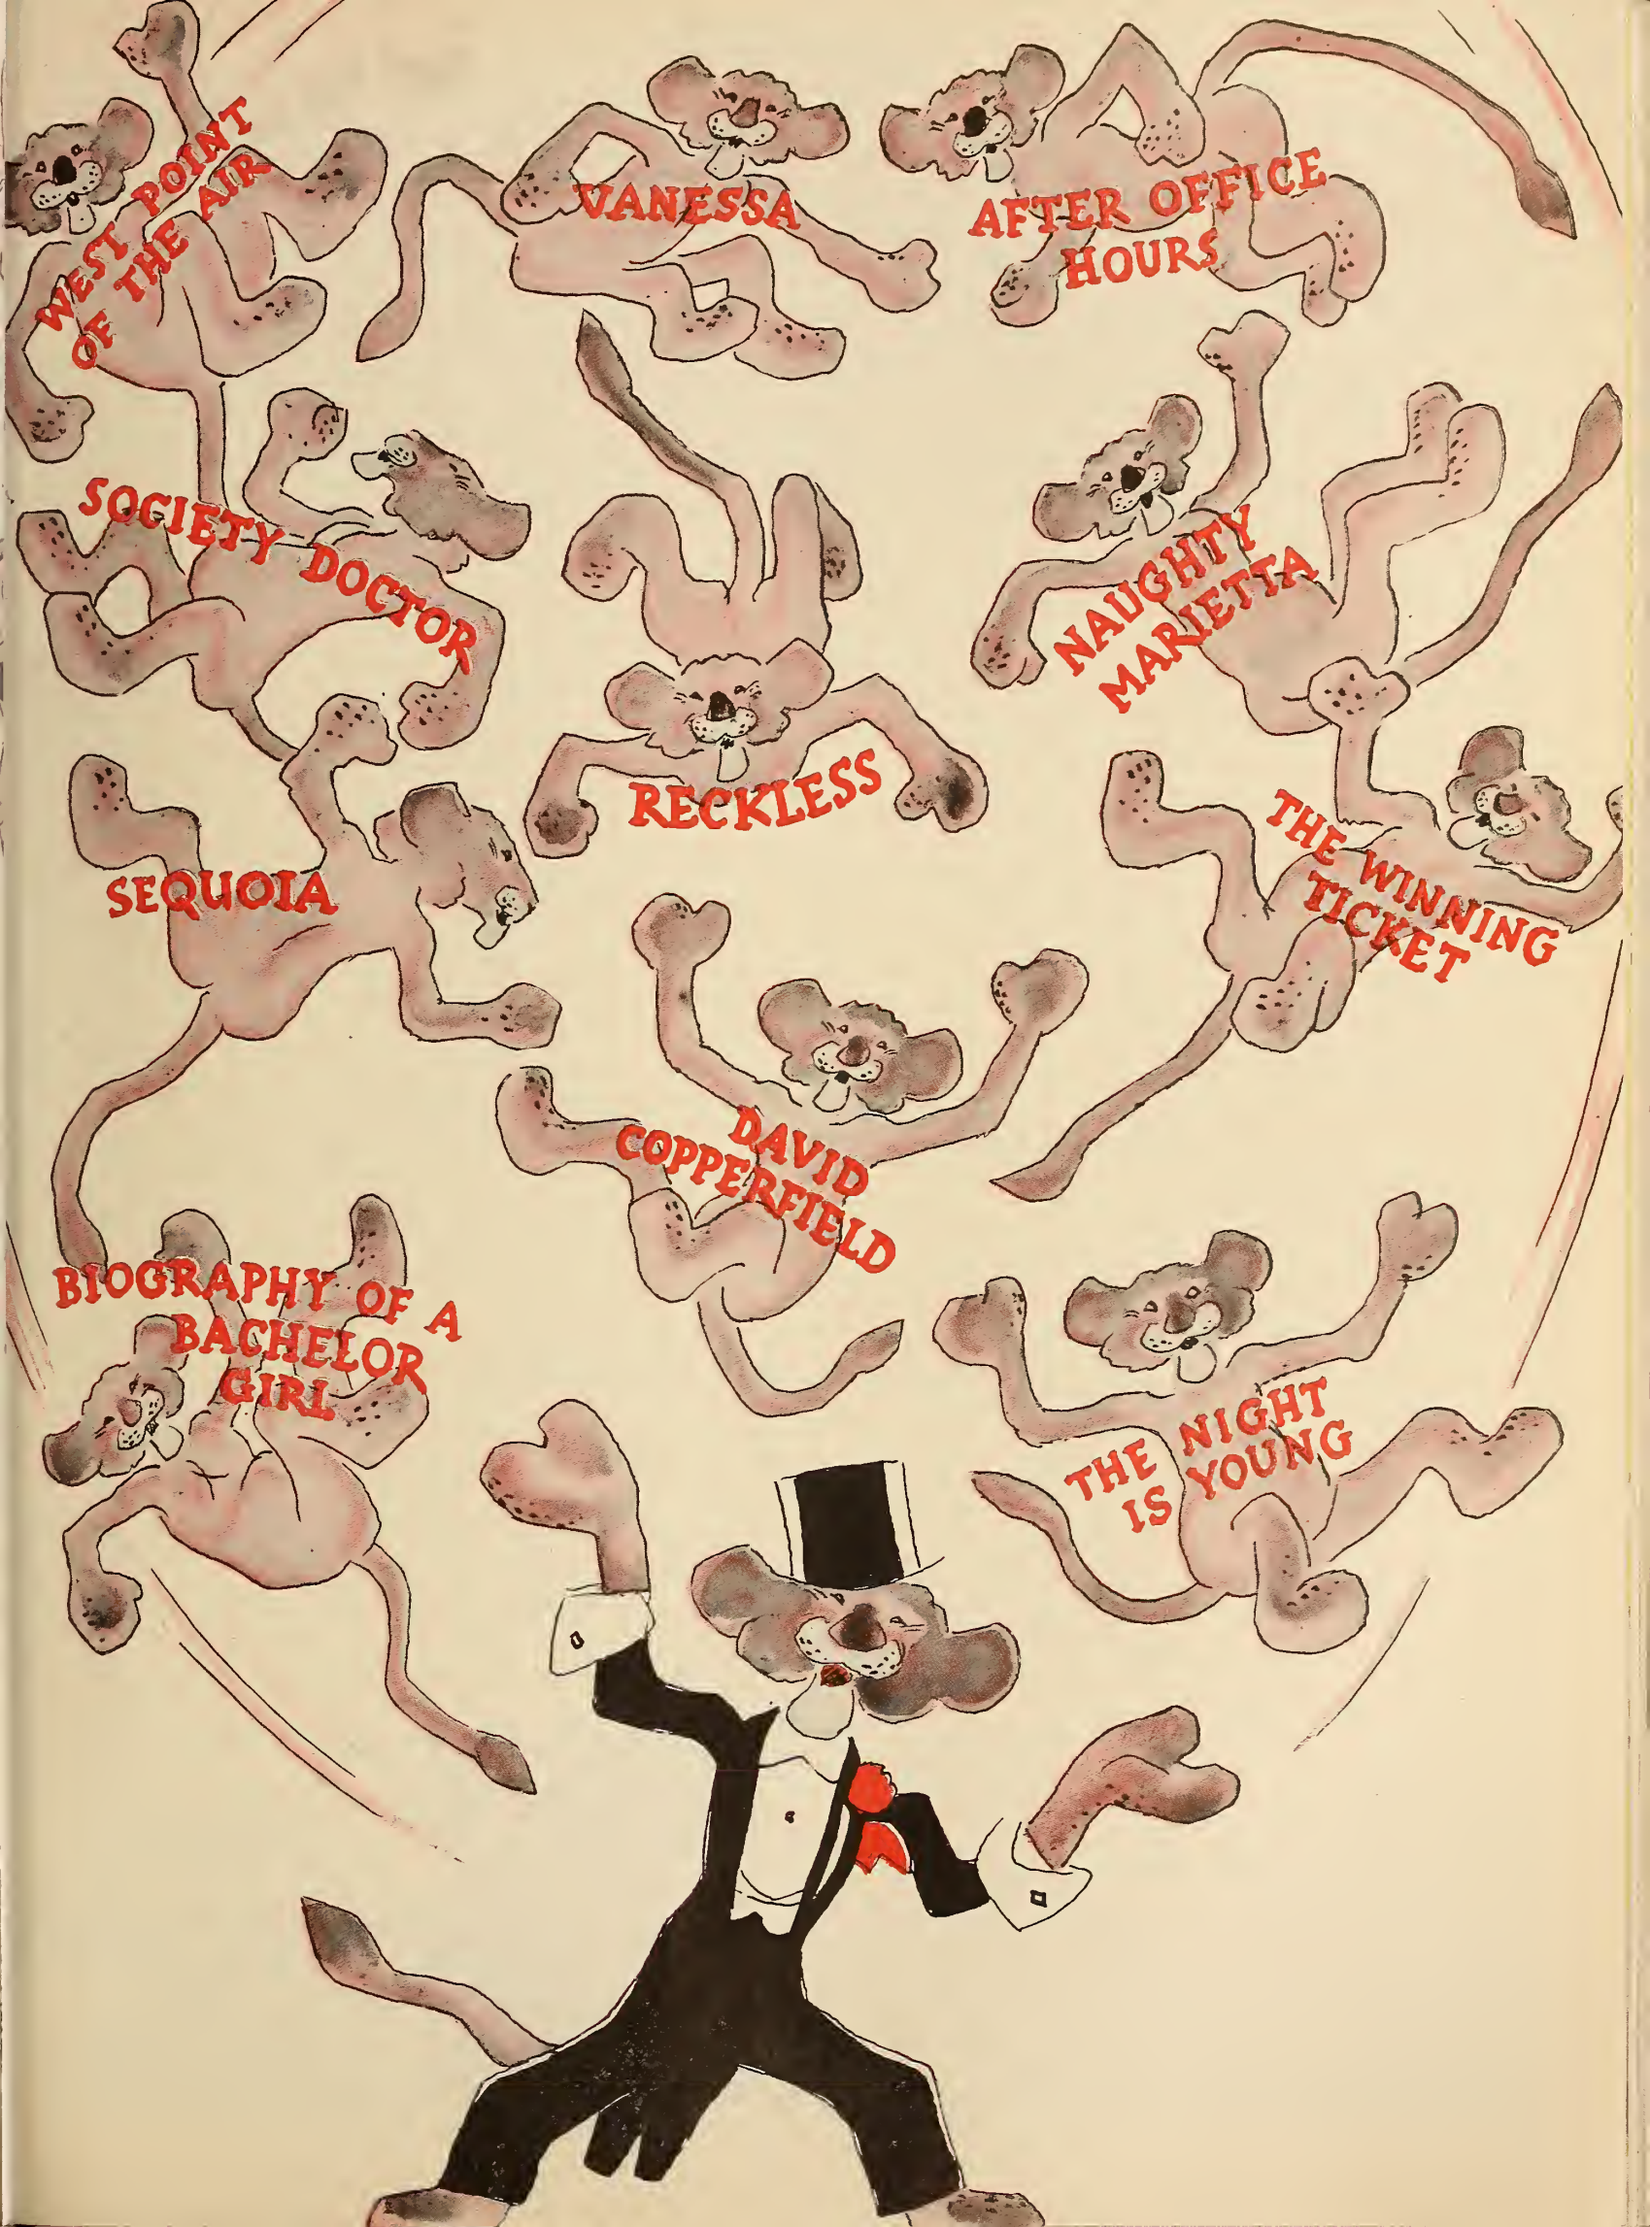
"NAUGHTY MARIETTA" with JEANETTE MACDONALD, NELSON EDDY, Frank Morgan.

The heart-stirring musical romance of old New Orleans in the days when a girl had to love to live, with the screen's two handsomest song-lovers. Golden music fills the air when Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy sing the glorious melody of Victor Herbert's delightful score.

"RECKLESS" with JEAN HARLOW, WILLIAM POWELL, Franchot Tone, May Robson, Nat Pendleton, Ted Healy.

A modern musical romance with a spectacular star-spangled cast. Jean Harlow and William Powell in a tumultous story of life on theatrical Broadway and in New York's upper social circles. Two scintillating stars in a pulse-pounding, heart-satisfying thrill-romance that will pack theatres from coast to coast.

"THE WINNING TICKET" with Leo Carrillo, Louise Fazenda, Ted Healy.



A howling sweepstakes comedy, replete with fast-moving fun, an all-star cast and happy romance. A seventy-minute laugh-diet! And a brand new idea in comedy that makes the laughs come easy. Funniest entertainment since "Caught Short."

"BIOGRAPHY OF A BACHELOR GIRL" with ANN HARDING, ROBERT MONTGOMERY, Edward Everett Horton, Una Merkel.

The gay and merry picturization of the Broadway stage success that kept blase New York audiences howling for eight capacity months. A delightfully joyous romance of a bachelor girl and the men in her life. With the two sweethearts of "When Ladies Meet."

"THE NIGHT IS YOUNG" with RAMON NOVARRO, EVELYN LAYE, Charles Butterworth, Edward Everett Horton, Una Merkel.

The musical romance of the Prince and the chorus girl. By Sigmund Romberg and Oscar Hammerstein II, world-renowned authors of "The Desert Song," "The New Moon," and other hit shows. Tunefully set to the magic melody of Romberg's haunting music. Two romantic favorites in the year's first big screen thrill.

Grand Jury Probes May Cover Nation

the stories circulating in quarters here usually viewed as conservative.

It was indicated again today that the entire situation has been thoroughly discussed with President Roosevelt by Attorney General Cummings, that the latter was told to go ahead with his efforts to prosecute and that his course would be supported by the White House.

Reports reaching Washington today match up with the impressions afloat in St. Louis that the grand jury findings which are expected to be handed up there on indictments.

It was Allan Snyder, St. Louis industrial engineer tied in with the F. and M. theatre holdings in St. Louis, who filed the request for the investigation there with the Department of Justice.

Reports from the east that extension of the Justice Department's activities from the Middle West to this city came about through a request filed by Fanchon and Marco are denied by Marco, who states there is no reason for such a course, since Marshall Square Theatres of San Francisco, in which F. and M. are interested already has on file a civil suit against Fox West Coast. This is the action which so far has blocked reorganization of FWC.

Federal representatives here deny any official action looking toward a selection of a grand jury panel for probing purposes "thus far" has been taken.

New York industry to date. It was added, however, that an investigation such as has been carried on in St. Louis need not be contingent upon the submission of complaints from those in the trade.

About two years ago, shortly after Howard S. Cullman had been appointed receiver for the Roxy, two Department of Justice investigators from Washington interviewed a number of circuit and distributor officials in regard to a complaint made by Cullman. At the time the receiver for the Roxy charged that he could not get major first run product for the house and had to resort to independents in order to keep the house open.

Several weeks after the Federal investigators left the local scene, Cullman was able to buy a number of Fox, Universal, Columbia and other pictures.

Block Booking Inquiry Looms, St. Louis Hears

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—Designation of Los Angeles as the second key city for a Federal grand jury probe ties in with what is anticipated here will be a more sweeping inquiry into block booking and other selling practices in the industry. Production may figure in as well.

The grand jury sitting here heard about 15 witnesses in three days and thereafter excused approximately 25 others who had been waiting to testify.

If the findings, now slated to be made public on Friday, vote indictments and should be based on conspiracy phases of the Sherman Act, the maximum punishment under the law would be two years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. Under other sections of the same Federal statute, a misdemeanor could be held to have been committed. This would carry a lighter penalty.

K. C. Had Quiet Probe There Back in 1932

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10.—Dispatches from St. Louis declaring the probe completed there on Wednesday was an outgrowth of complaints by independents throughout the country today recalled the quiet inquiry by the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice here about three years ago.

At the time, the secretary of the M.P.T.A. of Kansas and various independent exhibitors were questioned on the division of product among circuits, the situation on protection as between circuits and independents and the latters' alleged inability to secure product.

The inquiry at that time was held at the request of the attorney general in what was described then as "progressive investigation" by the Justice Department into the industry's trade practices.

Information gathered here was forwarded to Washington to be considered along with similar data developed in other key cities as a possible basis for criminal proceedings under the anti-trust laws.

FWC Is Monopoly, Cal. ITO Tells Gov't

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Charges that the operation of the exhibitors' code in Southern California is "conducive to a monopoly of exhibiting right in Fox West Coast" are contained in a wire sent today to the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice in Washington by the I. T. O. of Southern California.

"As the matter now stands," the wire said, "West Coast has purchased the output of major producers 100 per cent and dictates to local exchanges what runs various independent theatres shall have as well as zoning and clearance. Many independent theatre owners have been obliged to sell to West Coast by reason of the monopoly and others are forced out of business.

"Consent decrees heretofore entered into in anti-trust proceedings against West Coast and others have been and now are flagrantly violated under the guise of code regulations, when in fact the code is not functioning except in those parts promoting a West Coast monopoly.

"The situation is desperate for independents and conditions are many times worse than when your investigators reported in 1932 and 1933, to which your attention is again called.

"It is apparent that the code will never be enforced here against West Coast and, even if it were, West Coast would dominate the situation.

"As members of a group constituting a majority of the industry we are asking justice and an equal chance to live."

The group concluded the message by asking "if action will be taken to enforce consent decrees or cause the code to function as impartial law."

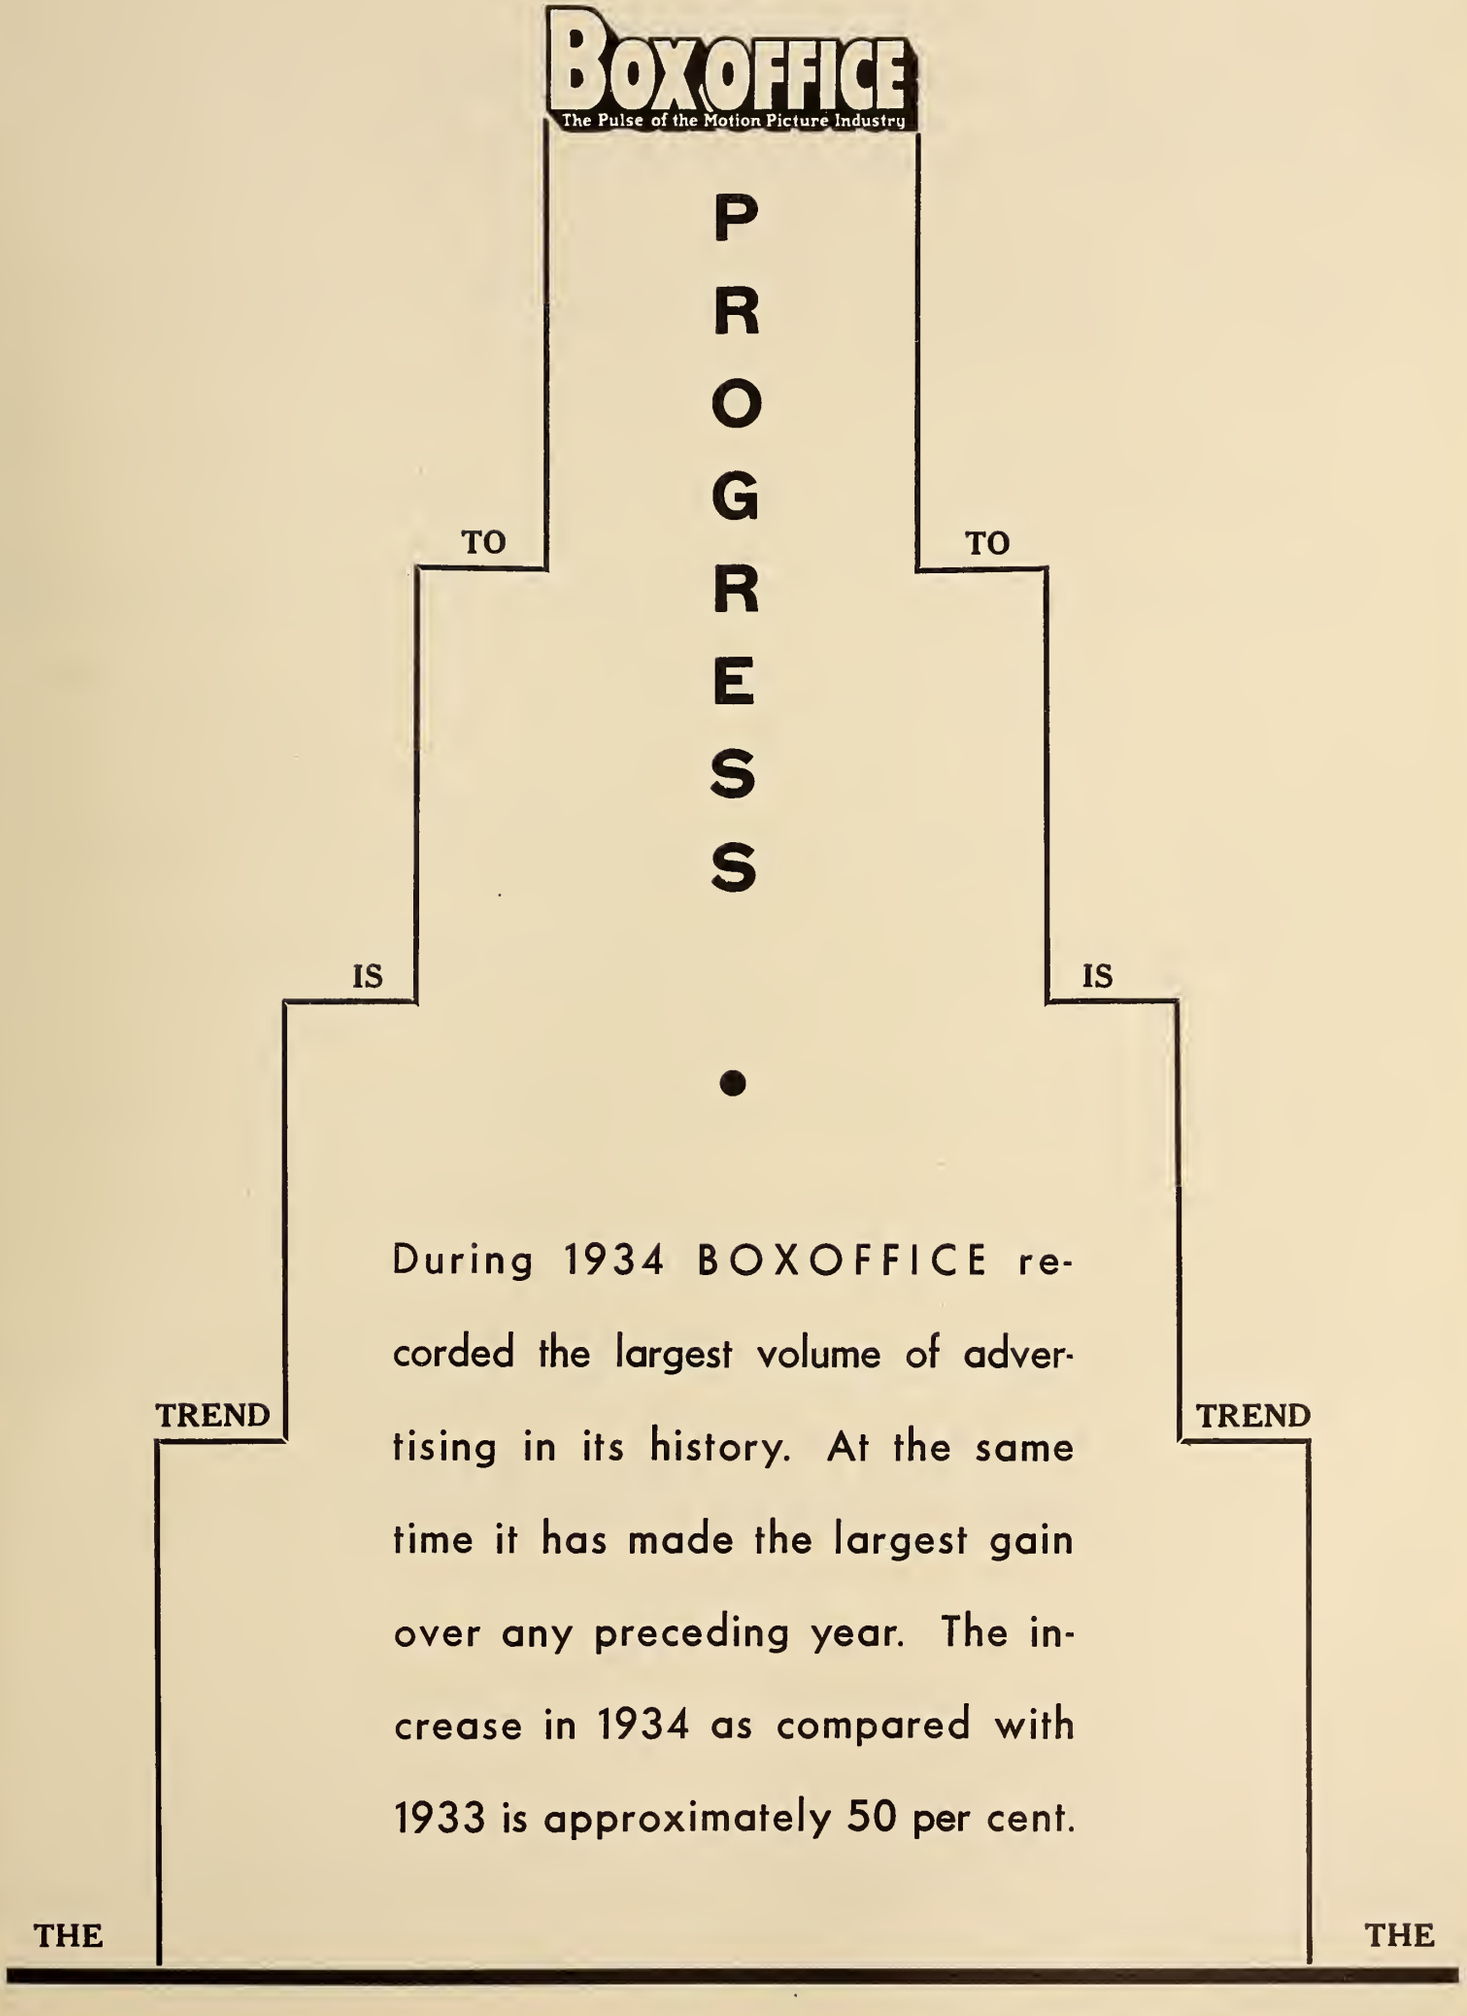
of the session, when it became apparent that members of Congress would be approached by business men with requests for a detailed study of the codes and their effects. Price-fixing has long been considered on the way out as impracticable, and the board's hearings on the question are considered to be largely for the purpose of making a record on which it can revamp NRA policy.

So far, the film industry has only academic interest in the hearings. Later, it is expected representatives of the independents will appear in connection with the study of the positions of minorities under the codes.



It is not expected that the prestige of the NRA will be enhanced by the Department of Justice proceedings against the distributors for engaging in practices which were supposed to be outlawed by the code, and which, it is expected, will be seized upon by men in other industries as proving that codes have not eliminated monopoly.

Cal. 30-Hour Bill Set

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 10.—A bill calling for a five-day week of 30 hours is being prepared by Assemblyman Ellis Patterson of Monterey County for introduction in the Legislature. The legislator said he felt sure Gov. Merriam would issue the proclamation giving the short week constitutionality should the measure pass, since a 30-hour week was one of the promises made by the Republicans in the gubernatorial campaign. Gov. Merriam indicates he favors such a proposal and says no protests have been received by him from the industry.

Variety Club Chatter

Buffalo

BUFFALO, Jan. 10.—Marking the transformation of DAVE MILLER from a film seller to a film buyer, 100 members of Variety Club and friends of the chief barker tendered him a dinner. They also welcomed MILLER'S successor as Universal manager, NATE SAUBER of Albany, whose birthday it happened to be.

City Court Judge ROBERT J. SUMMERS, associate member, was toastmaster. SIDNEY SAMSON, Fox exchange manager, was chairman of the dinner committee. SIGMUND WHITMAN of New York, Universal district manager, bade MILLER farewell on behalf of that organization, while Major LOUIS LAZAR of Albany, zone manager for Warners, welcomed him as film buyer for the Warner theatres in Philadelphia.

PETER T. DANA, Buffalo Universal salesman who succeeds SAUBER at Albany, spoke, as did MICHAEL KALLET, Oneida exhibitor; HARRY T. DIXON, RKO manager in Buffalo, whose farewell was the evening's sensation; HERBERT T. SILVERBERG, secretary, and EDWARD K. (TED) O'SHEA, M-G-M manager.

O'SHEA succeeds MILLER as chief barker. He presented a silver service tray, gift of the club, to MILLER, and to DANA a fountain pen, expressing the hope that he would not need to use red ink.

Every exchange manager was there—HARRY A. SEED of Warners, KENNETH G. ROBINSON of Paramount, JACK KAPLAN of United Artists, ELMER F. LUX of First Division, HOWARD F. BRINK of Gaumont British, JACK L. BERKOWITZ of Standard and GEORGE H. MOESER of Hollywood Films.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 10.—The long-talked-of all-club talent minstrels, which was to have been given late this month, has been called off, much to the disappointment of many would-be thespians.

ABE LIPP, dough guy, appears to be pursued by bad luck. After having suffered injuries in a recent auto accident, his mother underwent an operation at a local hospital, and now his little daughter has been painfully burned by upsetting a can of hot water.

JOHN SCHWALM, non-resident of Hamilton, O., did the club honors by spending an afternoon here one day last week, where he met a party of old friends.

The inaugural dinner for the new officers will be held Jan. 19.

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10.—Holiday festivities out of the way, Tent No. 8 resumes weekly luncheons at the usual place Monday, Jan. 14.

The club's party ushering in the new year was an exciting success, thanks to the efforts of Col. HARRY TAYLOR, ED SHANBERG and CHARLIE SHAFER. Approximately 200 attended. Among those who seemed to be enjoying the affair were FRANK HENSLER and BILL WARNER.

Chief Barker HENSLER is still taking bows on his successful staging of the charity bowling tournament in conjunction with the K. C. Star. In the words of the paper's editorial writer: "Mr. Hensler, whose idea it was and who devised the system by which it was carried out, may take great pride."

NORRIS B. CRESSWELL, snapshot man and one-time exhibitor, has been accorded the privilege of being called "brother barker."

From all indications, GUS KUBITZKI'S Fox Film team will capture the pennant in this year's film bowling league.

HENRY FRIEDEL, M-G-M branch manager at Denver, and JACK LANGAN, Universal manager in the same city, were club visitors.

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10. — Earl Sweigert was inducted as chief barker of Tent. No. 13 recently at a dinner and dance for members and wives held in the Hotel Warwick.

St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 10.—Variety Club is settled in its new quarters in the Chase Hotel.

Installation of new officers was one of the first functions. They are: President, CHICK EVANS; treasurer, GEORGE WIEGAND; secretary, ALVIN WOOLF; chairman of the entertainment committee, ANTHONY METRECI; publicity man, AL ZIMBALIST.

FRED WEHRENBERG will be in charge of the annual banquet and ball in February. The other members of the committee are EVANS, EDWARD ROSECAN, LES MACE, ZIMBALIST, WOOLF, CHARLES GREGORY and BEN RIENGOLD.

A hearts tournament is in the offing as a result of a heated contest won by METO HILL, WIEGAND and HENRY BUDDE.

Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The local Variety Club has resumed luncheons following a three-week layoff.

GENE FORD and W. E. S. WILCOX, the kings for a day, tossed a "low-brow" fete with an English luncheon replete with ale and flaming plum pudding. The temporary kings conducted their preliminary campaign as though they were at swords' points, and they did not appear until the end of the luncheon, to prove that all was, after all, just a gag.

At the plates of the lunchers were corncob pipes and tobacco, as well as the current sheaf of "dumb-bell letters" allegedly received by the U. S. Department of the Interior.

The crowd was regaled with entertainment provided by PAUL ASH, JACKIE GREEN, AUDREY SIEBER, BERT GRANOFF, JAY FLIPPEN, EDDIE PERKINS, THEO FANE and the Washboard Serenaders.

Also featured was community singing, led by ARTHUR GODFREY with PETE MACIAS at the piano.

Next week's affair will be an evening smoker, with HARRY E. LOHMEYER and LEONARD SCHLOSS as the kings for a day.

for blind flying and leading her to a safety dash—and making that situation convincing, human, even inspiring, is a dramatic feat achieved here.

Starting slowly, the film builds when Grant loses his eyesight as a result of a gas stove explosion minutes prior to his takeoff for a non-stop flight to Paris. The picture then mounts in emotional content and dramatic strength. Sympathies are aroused, interest sustained and heart strings pulled.

Grant, by an intelligent, persuasive performance, rises above anything he has ever done. Miss Loy is lovely and adds to the laurels she garnered in "The Thin Man." Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh, Dean Jagger and Bert Hanlon are splendid in support. James Flood directed with an unusual understanding of timing and feeling. Arthur Hornblow produced, adding another feather to his cap.

Being fine entertainment for men and women with name values, distinctive exploitation should send it soaring for real grosses. Production Code Seal No. 477. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

Chicago Publicists Hold First Luncheon

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The initial invitation luncheon of CAPA (Chicago Amusement Publicists Ass'n) attended by some 50 exhibitors and exchange men was held at the Congress Hotel.

The publicity purveyors for films, newspapers, trade papers, hotel and allied amusement interests were plainly in a frenzy. Most of the membership was accustomed to being entertained—not entertaining.

In the course of the quips and talks, however, they were considerably relieved by congratulations from Clyde Eckhardt when he said: "You fellows have certainly gone further with your organization here than we were able to do with the Variety Club."

Chain Booth Cuts Figured At $530,400

Small Houses Get Jumps In Booth Costs

Estimated annual savings of the two major local circuits under the proposed basic wage scale set up by the NRA fact-finding committee are put at $530,400. The figure is unofficial because of the various changes through which the plan is now passing.

Loew's, it is figured, will reduce its yearly booth operation costs by about $312,000, while RKO's saving is roughly seen as $218,400. Skouras, the only important independent viewed as benefiting by the revised operator scale, will probably slash projectionists' salaries about $52,000, or $1,000 a week. The Loew saving works out at $6,000 weekly, while RKO is put down for $4,200.

Chicago Talks Upon Booth Pay Delayed

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Discussions of a new working agreement between exhibitors and operators are being held up since the principals are appearing daily in Federal court where the grand jury is listening to testimony in the Government's investigation of the income tax of Tom Maloy and other union officials.

The lid is on tight as far as any news concerning names of witnesses or the nature of the testimony is concerned.

The local operators agreement expired Friday. In previous years a new schedule has usually been arrived at on the eve of expiration, but so far conferences have not even begun.

Consent Decree Seen as Possible If Both Sides Agree

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Having secured indictments, the future course of the Government with respect to the St. Louis anti-trust suit against Warners, Paramount and RKO and some of their officers may depend largely upon the attitude of the defendants, it was indicated here over the week-end. In the numerous instances in the past, concerns which have been indicted on charges of violating the anti-trust laws have conceded that they have committed the acts complained of and have negotiated an agreement with the Department of Justice to discontinue the allegedly offensive practices. That agreement has been submitted to the court for approval, and, when accepted, becomes what is known as a consent decree.

If the distributors in St. Louis adopt a similar course, the department may accept their offer, thus saving all concerned considerable time and money. On the other hand, if the department

Movie Ball Attracts 1,200 at the Astor

More than 1,200 persons jammed the Astor on Saturday night for the Movie Ball, which broke up in the early hours yesterday. There was more entertainment on hand than the program called for. The entire "Revenge With Music" show performed in addition to casts from "Calling All Stars," the Manhattan Music Hall, Casino de Paree, Hollywood restaurant and other Broadway hot spots.

Mayor LaGuardia and Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine represented the city. No speeches were permitted. Three bands provided the dance music. A "Monte Carlo Nite" was held for the benefit of the I. T. O. A. treasury.

Batcheller Asserts Duals Are Gaining

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 13.—George Batcheller, Sr., on his way through here over the week-end to the coast after six weeks in New York said that double bills were spreading and that he looked for a prosperous year for independent producers because of this.

The Chesterfield and Invincible productions, he continued, are up to schedule, with six completed and two set to go into work next month, 18 in all being scheduled for this year, Batcheller said.

Insiders' Outlook

WALTER LIPPMANN, erudite commentator on economics and the sad estate which is this world's today, dropped out of his well-established groove on Saturday and, in his usual thrice weekly space in the New York Herald-Tribune, went weighty, as well as lengthy, on the morals of films. He had much to say about censorship, its fallacies and its shortcomings and on that score many observers of the celluloid whirligig will find themselves in agreement. Having warmed up, on and to his subject, Lippmann sounds off the censor difficulty in the first half of his say and, with approximately fifteen inches of precious Herald-Tribune space in which to draw additional conclusions, goes in for reformation in the generous manner. It is with a point or two he makes on that score that this column will touch briefly, steeling itself with sufficient audacity to hurl its observations against the intellectual armor in which Lippmann, by right, so safely is protected. . . .

From Lippmann's text:

"Effective reform depends, it seems to me, on a clear understanding of what, given the American traditions of freedom and the variety of American tastes and American moral standards, reform ought to aim at. I would rest reform of the movies on this basic principle: that audiences shall have greater freedom to choose their pictures and that artists and producers shall have greater freedom to make pictures."

And at another point:

"If the customers had freedom of choice, each community would be able to enforce the moral standards it believes in. . . . A local theatre owner must rent his pictures in large blocks sight unseen. As a result, he has no real choice as to what he will exhibit. The result is that his customers can exercise no real choice."

Producers do maintain their own theatre outlets in many situations. They do sell in blocks. The code does permit some latitude in cancellations, perhaps not in as large a percentage bracket as may be desirable. But Lippmann's academic observation about public audiences and there being extended to them "greater freedom to choose their pictures" is amusing as all and sundry within the industry know. It seems a wearisome point to make again after all these years that the public pays to see that which it wants to see. It may be emotionally precipitated into the early purchase of tickets by adroit advertising and exploitation stimuli, but inescapable and fundamental is the conclusion that freedom is buying is the public's now, exactly as it always has been. . . .

The catechism directed in Lippmann's direction today also has to tell him that, regardless of what might be said against block booking, it has its plus sides. Many pictures get theatre time which do not rate it, but whether exhibitors upon screen examination would not select them anyway is a very debatable point. The block booking system, on the other hand, has seen to it that many worthwhile attractions which theatre operators undoubtedly would not play, do reach a public not always keen for them. The result undeniably is that the institution of motion pictures is frequently forcing upon the audiences about which Lippmann is so concerned a type of artistic and worthwhile film which very conceivably might not see daylight under any other selling system. Specifically and actually, the titles of some of these pictures are common property in the industry. They are Lippmann's as well if he cares about pursuing his generalizations any further. . . .

Not that additional proof were at all required to demonstrate the point, but elsewhere the evidence continues to pile up to cinch again the conclusion that what transpires in the film industry is anybody's target. There is, for example, the newspaper excitement centering in Washington over the St. Louis indictments, a straight news story, you might imagine, but embellished otherwise by some members of the Washington typewriter corps. Chiefly, Lippmann's own paper as a matter of fact. From St. Louis and films to Will Hays and the perennial yarn about his official decapitation was not much of a jump. Therefore, some of the broad jumpers took the leap. . . .

They would have you believe that St. Louis and what it developed are part of a plan to turn Hays' fat salary and tough job over to a Democrat of high and good standing. Generally loose in the disposition of film news, anyway, the rumor naturally made the press association wires and so filtered through to a nation which probably won't get much excited anyway. Let this be said in repetition: Hays has a contract which runs out next year. However, he has much more than that. He has the confidence of his member companies, which means their support clear to the hilt. If this column were prone to make a forecast, it would say that Hays may sit behind his present desk for as long a period as he elects. . . .

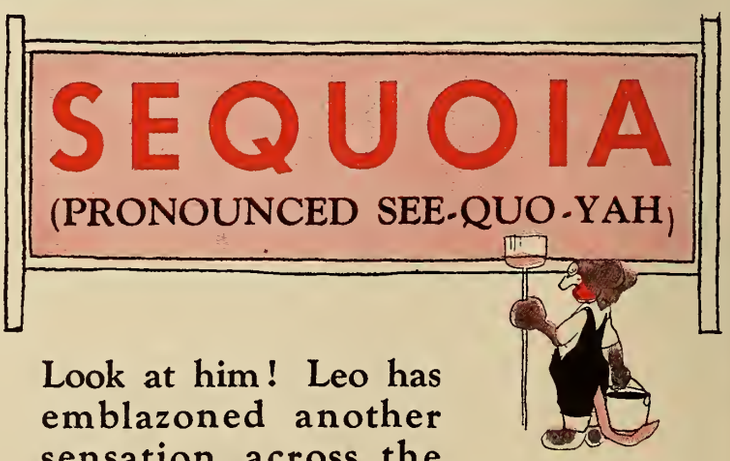
HE'S FUNNY THAT WAY!



Just when the industry's all ga-ga about Leo's record-breaking hit, CRAWFORD, GABLE, MONTGOMERY in "Forsaking All Others"—

—Leo drags out another BIG ATTRACTION that has the industry on its ear —and before you know it—

He goes on and on—

"Bless you my children." Leo remembers "When Ladies Meet" so he unites ANN HARDING and BOB MONTGOMERY again in the swell comedy "Biography of A Bachelor Girl."

Look at him! Leo has emblazoned another sensation across the nation, "Sequoia" a picture more remarkable even than "Trader Horn"—and then just when you think he can't keep it up, along comes

BANG! Leo knows just how to time the Big Shots. WALLACE BEERY in "West Point of the Air" is his biggest hit since "Hell Divers" and it's just as SPECTACULAR! But Leo's funny that way, he goes merrily on with—

"Dear JOAN CRAWFORD, I've never had a better vehicle for you than 'No More Ladies' the great stage romance"— —and what's Leo up to now? He's measuring CLARK GABLE. Sure, Clark is the BIGGEST MALE STAR in pictures. His next, with CONNIE BENNETT is "After Office Hours."

—And Leo is betting that the MARX BROTHERS in "A Night at the Opera" will be their most successful comedy!

No, Leo's not tired yet...He's watching a scene between JEAN HARLOW BILL POWELL in "Reckless" Franchot Tone and May Robson are in it too!

Excuse Leo for walking out, but HELEN HAYES and BOB MONTGOMERY want privacy for that scene in "Vanessa—Her Love Story." Leo can't even wait to tell you about RAMON NOVARRO, EVELYN LAYE in "The Night is Young", and a flock of others. Leo's prize packages never come singly. He's funny that way!

is desirous of impressing business generally with the fact that the anti-trust laws must still be respected, except insofar as suspended by the National Industrial Recovery Act, it may insist upon going through with a trial, endeavoring to secure a verdict which would carry with it penalties sufficient to make business men generally think carefully before undertaking anything which might be unlawful.

Filing of a suit for triple damages may follow a verdict in favor of the Government, is was indicated here today. Under the law those adversely affected by illegal activities of individuals or concerns found guilty of anti-trust law violation may bring suit for three times actual damages.

Says Warners Will Fight Charge

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Arthur E. Simpson of Jeffries, Simpson and Plummer, local counsel for Warners, said yesterday the case here will be vigorously fought.

"There appears to be no basis for the charges," he said. "The indictment charges the withholding of pictures for these theatres (Ambassador and Missouri), whereas the contract by which pictures were exhibited at the Skouras theatres was cancelled by one of the Skouras companies."

The legality of the cancellation without the consent of mortgage holders recently was questioned by attorneys for the bondholders' protective committee at a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Hope. The bondholders asserted film contracts were held out as part of the assets featuring the first mortgage bonds.

The defendants in the anti-trust indictments are expected to make bond in New York and the return date of the bond may indicate when the case will come to trial.

It is not known here who will prosecute the case for the government, but presumably Russell Hardy and Harold L. Schilz, special assistants to the U. S. Attorney-General, will play a prominent part.

Ignorant of Coast Plans

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—Local representatives of the Department of Justice stated yesterday they were unaware of plans for initiating an investigation of alleged anti-trust law violations here.

The statement was made in answer to reports that Russell Hardy and Harold L. Schilz, assistants to the U. S. Attorney-General, who conducted the St. Louis probe, were expected here early next week for a sweeping investigation to be based on complaints filed eight months ago by Harry Chotiner.

recover for alleged breach of agreement by Fox Northeastern Playhouses, Inc., to buy and lease certain theatres of the plaintiffs and for alleged false representation.

The plaintiffs charge that Northeastern in 1928 agreed to buy and lease from them certain theatres for $234,184 and an annual rental of $125,000 for 25 years, but that on Feb. 8, 1929, the corporation refused to carry out the agreement.

The plaintiffs also allege agents of Fox Film falsely represented that Northeastern was financially responsible when actually it was a corporation in name only that had not been organized at that time. They charge the agreement called for the purchase by Northeastern of the Strand Amusement Co. of Massachusetts, the Brattle Square Amusement Co. and the Clinton Theatre Co. and lease of the Newburyport Theatre Co., Inc., at Waverly and the Fallisbury and Whipman Amusement Cos.

The city asks permission to impose a tax on showcards, billboards, signs, lobby displays, newspaper and other advertising and commercial radio programs, the levy to be five per cent. on an arbitrary valuation.

License fees are to be increased while there is to be a new business tax with a minimum annual rate of 10 per cent. A tax of one per cent is also desired on all salaries and wages for local residents and five per cent on the income of those who live outside of the city.

out by Roland Boynton, attorney general of Kansas, in his biennial report to Gov. Alf M. Landon.

Despite the attorney general's recommendations, no enactments amending the state's 70-year-old Sunday law or clarifying the Sunday show muddle are expected from the present legislature. Theatre interests are anxious not to disturb the status quo, which permits Sunday operation where local sentiment is favorable.

The attorney general sees the need for a better law as the result of his four year's experience in his present office, from which he retires Jan. 14.

Bank Nights Spread Around Kansas City

Pittsburg, Kan., and the Cozy, independent, have agreed to file compliances by Jan. 19 whereby both sides will drop unfair practices. J. A. Lenski of the Cozy admitted Fox Midland's charge that he ran a cash night. His defense, however, was that the Midland was operating bank night, and the Fox Colonial in the same town admitted high school students for 10 cents with a student card, had "one-cent sales" whereby two adults were admitted for 21 cents and two children for 11 cents, and on Tuesday night admitted an entire family for 20 cents.

The first case to be reopened since the local board started functioning involves a bank night. The board has granted Frank H. Cassil, Rialto, St. Joseph, Mo., permission to introduce new evidence on Jan. 23 on competition with the Olive, St. Joseph, which had complained that Cassil was not complying with Campi's order to quit bank nights. Cassil contends three and one-half miles separate the theatres.

Huffman Wins Writ Against Exchanges

Harry Huffman was granted a restraining order by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here yesterday preventing exchanges from denying him film service under a code board order issued upon his failure to abide by a ruling to end giveaways.

The case must be ready for hearing within two weeks and will be placed on the calendar for hearing at the first opportunity.

Huffman's bond was increased from $2,500 to $5,000 pending the appeal.

unaffiliated circuits, are due for considerable increases, it is claimed, under the plan now tentatively agreed upon. While no estimates could be given, it is the belief in the independent theatre circles that the unions will lose nothing by any reductions accorded the majors since the smaller independent houses will make it up. It is figured that there are 240 theatres seating under 600 which will be hiked an average of $15 a week for booth operation, because of the proposed $60-a-week minimum.

While much haggling prevails over the scale among members of the fact-finding committee, each of the various interests is prepared to offer substitute plans at the public hearing in Washington on Jan. 18. The I. A. T. S. E. has a new schedule. The same goes for the circuits and independents.

Independent exhibitors are marshaling forces to deluge Washington with protests against the present plan, which is based on admissions and seating capacity. The smaller theatre wants the type of run also to enter into the plan. In other words, two theatres, each seating 1,000, would not have to pay the same price for film if one is a first run and the other a second or subsequent run. By the same token, exhibitors hold, the labor men should take the run into consideration.

In the interim picketing in the local area has been stopped.

house. Scores of others were nursing minor injuries. None is believed to have been seriously hurt. The 1,600 persons in the audience were thrown into a panic when the bomb went off.

The bomb, believed to have been a mixture of potassium nitrate and sulphur, went off by combustion, according to investigators. Witnesses say they saw a woman who came in with a man place a paper bag under a seat in front of the couple, who left after remaining in the theatre only a half hour.

The explosion, accompanied by fire and then smoke, occurred only a few moments after the two left, it is said.

Authorities see a possible link to a series of other bomb outrages against New England theatres of recent occurrence. Labor trouble is suspected as the cause of the bombing.

granted permission for a new theatre at Warminster, although the application was opposed by the existing Palace, for which it was urged that a population of 5,000 was sufficiently cared for by one theatre.

The Palace is leased by the Warminster Urban Council, but the latter supported the new application in face of a suggestion that it might make it impossible for the Palace to be continued as a theatre.

In Manchester, the Piccadilly passed its preference dividend for the third time, and the chairman, R. A. Cowtan, commented on the fact that there was to be still more competition. "Manchester already has more seats than the population is likely to fill," he said. "Where three cinemas can make a reasonable profit, four make a smaller profit, and six may sustain a loss." The Manchester Hippodrome, old variety hall, is being turned into a 3,000-seat de luxe by Sidney Bernstein.

Philadelphia Premiums Ban May Be Ended

Campi Seeking Further Facts on 75% Vote

Philadelphia's ban on premiums, voted last summer by 75 per cent of the exhibitors in that territory, may be dropped by Campi. The giveaway question in the Quaker City was discussed by Code Authority Thursday, but no decision was rendered. It will come up again at the next session Jan. 17. Meanwhile further facts are being sought.

A few weeks ago a number of Philadelphia exhibitors and premium men appealed the 75 per cent ban. At a hearing before a Campi appeal committee, it was brought out that during the time of the vote, one independent theatre was closed and another burned. It was further stated at the time that these theatres had voted for the ban.

At the Campi discussion members were puzzled over the voting status

Mexico's '34 Film Output 30 Features

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11.—Feature pictures produced by Mexicans in Mexico totaled 30 last year. This output was about 33 per cent higher than that of 1933, and 75 per cent over that of the previous year. Since "Santa," the first sound film to be made in this country by Mexicans, was produced in 1931, under the direction of Antonio Moreno, who was imported from Hollywood for the purpose, national producers had made 60 features up to Dec. 31.

The outstanding Mexican production last year was "Juarez y Maximiliano," most costly so far, which depicted the tragic reign in this country of the Emperor Maximilian. The picture was released by Columbia and did well here and in Central America. "Cucho, el Roto" ("Joe, the Bum"), tale of Mexico's Robin Hood, was another of the domestic leaders last year.

In addition to the 30 pictures made and released last year, four others that

Looking 'Em Over

"The Wandering Jew"

(Olympic Pictures)

A serious subject, fraught with strong possibilities of creating much discussion and even controversy.

Adapted from the well known play by E. Temple Thurston, "The Wandering Jew" tells of the legend of the man who spat on Christ as He traveled His journey to Calvary and thereafter was doomed to wander the globe, deprived of the haven and the peace in death until Christ returns to the earth.

The film version, which was produced by Twickenham Studios of London and directed by Maurice Elvey, is divided into four phases. The first takes place in Jerusalem where the premise is established. The second is centered in Antioch in the time of the First Crusade. The third in Palermo in the 13th century, and the fourth, which is the most telling dramatically, in Spain during the height of the power of the Holy Inquisition. Conrad Veidt fills the dominant spot in all four.

The premise maintains that the Jew, committed to eternal wandering, must so do to expiate his misdemeanor. In the first three episodes, the character delineation mapped for Veidt paints him in cynical and almost brutal colors and, because of that, may arouse Jewish opposition. In the fourth, Veidt appears as a kindly, soul-saving physician who meets the displeasure of the inquisitors through the beneficence bestowed upon a woman of the streets and because, a Jew, he is also a heretic.

The implication in the latter portions is that Veidt, weary of his wanderings and in final, full realization of his cardinal sin, has learned the full import of his error and, welcoming death, is accorded divine relief, not at the stake to which he is pinioned, but by intercession from a higher power.

This is the picture which M-G-M purchased some months back and then dropped after rabbinical circles in New York had made urgent protest. Since that time, the understanding is the original version, admittedly anti-Semitic in certain of its content, has been edited from eleven to nine reels. The current version at the Criterion bears visible evidences of the process of emasculation to which the production has been submitted.

Controversial in the extreme if for no other reason than several versions of the legend of "The Wandering Jew" are extant, this British picture strikes this reviewer as argumentative in the extreme. Whether or not it will prove itself good box-office is a question which he is not prepared to determine and so urges exhibitors who contemplate booking it to see for themselves what the film has to offer.

In point of performance, Veidt stands out above all others. In the Spanish sequence, in particular, does he deliver the most powerful of acting jobs. The production itself has been made on a lavish and colorful scale. It is replete with pageantry and the glamour of periods and times long since relegated to history. In the main, it is accurate to diagnose the dramatic values as interesting and occasionally high.

No production code seal. Running time, 83 minutes. "A."

Abel Cary Thomas, Warner secretary and general counsel; Ned Depinet, president of RKO Distributing Corp., and George Schaefer, who is listed as president of the three Paramount subsidiaries named.

The action is the result of a feud growing out of transfer of control of the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theatres from Warner control to that of a company organized by Allen L. Snyder. Fanchon & Marco operate the houses for this new company. Snyder was the complainant in this case. He charged a conspiracy to shut off first run product from his houses for the benefit of the Shubert and Orpheum now operated by Warners.

Block booking did not enter into the local investigation, it has been learned, although it was said the probe went beyond the angles of the original complaint and that its inception has caused the Department of Justice to extend its investigation to Hollywood.

Soviet Celebrates 15th Picture Year

By BELLA KASHIN

Moscow, Jan. 11.—On the crest of a wave of high enthusiasm concerning the future of Soviet films and marking the beginning of the eight-day jubilee celebrating the 15th anniversary of the industry here, the press today carried greetings from Stalin to Shumiatsky, head of the Soviet industry, in which the Bolshevik leader calls on Soviet producers to reach higher spheres of achievement and characterizing the cinema as "the most important and widely spread of the arts in the Soviet Union."

Plans are now maturing to follow the jubilee with the 15-day International Moscow Cinema Festival, about the middle of next month, to which foreign directors have been invited and at which the latest foreign and Soviet films will be shown.

Century-RKO Case Goes to Main Board

Because of the importance of the Century-RKO clearance protest in Long Island, the main New York clearance board has ordered that a hearing before the Long Island advisory board be omitted and that the main board hear the case from the start.

Last Wednesday the L. I. committee postponed the hearing to next Wednesday, but the protest is now slated for Jan. 17 or Jan. 24.

Louis Nizer will represent RKO and Mitchell Klupt, Century. The case involves Century's Fantasy, Rockville Center, against RKO's Columbia and Park, Far Rockaway, and the Alden, Jamaica, which are asking one week's clearance over the independent house.

Explains Roxy Stay

Carlos Israels of White and Case, attorneys for Roxy Theatre bondholders' committee, yesterday explained the injunction handed down by Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey in connection with an action instituted by Max Glasser, owner of a $500 bond, for an accounting in the New York State courts. Glasser's suit was against the Continental Bank and Trust Co. as trustee of the bond issue.

"When the Roxy Theatres Corp. was placed under the new section of 77B of the Bankruptcy Act," Israels states, "the court, in accordance with the provision of the statute, entered an order staying the pending foreclosure suit until a final decree in the reorganization proceedings."

This was the injunction which Judge Caffey granted yesterday, Israels said.

"According to Mrs. James F. Looran, head of the motion picture department of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae," he declared, "no representative of that organization had seen the production prior to the issuance of their classification.

"We feel that such an opinion is not only groundless but unworthy of the aims of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae."

No RKO Plan In Prospect, Court Is Told

Would Cost "Millions," Asserts Carl Newton

That "millions of dollars would be required for the reorganization of RKO" and that no "financially responsible group" has yet proposed a plan of reorganization for the company was a statement made by Carl Newton, of counsel for the RKO trustee, to Federal Judge William Bondy at a hearing yesterday on the final RKO report by Irving Trust Co., as receiver, and on an application for allowances aggregating $235,000.

Newton added that "two or three groups who are financially responsible" are interested in current discussions of an RKO reorganization, but have proposed no plan as yet. These latter groups, it is believed, represent large RKO stock and noteholders, including RCA, the claims of which aggregate large amounts.

In response to inquiries by Judge

Ease Security Rules

Washington, Jan. 14.—Simplified forms for registration of securities by established corporations have been issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The idea is to make new flotations easier. The new form is called A2.

Balance sheets and records of earnings over a period of at least three years are required.

Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman, said the new forms carry out the commission's pledge to make registrations "less onerous, less expensive and more practical."

State Probe Into St. Louis Film Situation Now Impends

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Investigation of the local film situation by the state under the provisions of its drastic anti-trust laws is now a possibility, according to report.

From an informed source it has been learned that Attorney General Roy McKittrick at Jefferson City is studying the Federal indictments against Warners, Paramount and RKO.

One of the penalties for conviction provided by state law is that a firm so convicted can be ousted from the state.

Nye Scans Way to Hit Block Booking

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Prosecution of the socalled film trust all over the country was today seen by Senator Nye as a good way to eliminate some of the evils of the block booking situation.

Explaining that te knew nothing about reported plans of the Department of Justice to barnstorm the country with prosecution activities, Nye expressed the opinion that it should be done and indicated that his attack on the industry has been merely delayed and not abandoned.

"I am watching the situation very closely and wondering whether this is the first step toward breaking the socalled movie trust and giving the small exhibitor a better chance," he said. "I do not think there will be

Hamm, Jr., to Run Publix Northwest

Petition for approval of an agreement under which William Hamm, Jr., of Minneapolis, becomes operating head of Publix Northwest on a short term contract expiring June 27 was filed yesterday by counsel for the Paramount Publix trustees with Referee John E. Joyce.

Under the agreement Paramount retains all of the stock of the company, which is a holding company for various subsidiaries operating approximately 70 theatres in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota. As a consideration under the agreement, Hamm will approve a five-year extension of a $500,000 mortgage which he holds against Publix Northwest. The extension will make possible the immediate lifting of the

Clarification for Labor Terms of NIRA Is Planned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Clarification of the National Industrial Recovery Act will be one of the major points of the new legislation which will be sent to Congress by President Roosevelt within the next two months.

Numerous plans for giving organized labor what it demands in the way of legislation are being made by various groups within the Administration for submission to the President when he begins consideration of the legislation.

Labor groups are pressing for a law which would turn collective bargaining over to that group in each establishment which represents a majority of the workers. Such a provision, of course, would tend greatly to strengthen the membership of certain unions which seek not only to control industrial workers, but clerical and professional forces as well.

Another plan has been proposed, however, under which minority groups

New Plan for Code Payment Being Sought

Producers Want to Pay Via Distributors

Rearrangement of the code assessment plan for producers and distributors is on tap, a recommendation having been made to Campi by distributors to drop levies against producers, but to include them in distributor payments. The suggestion will be discussed at the public hearing on the 1935 budget, which is the same as 1934, in Washington on Feb. 5.

Distributors declare that in the instance of M-G-M and Warners, which have outside producers, there is a duplication of payments. The two distributors have to pay according to annual gross business and the outside producers releasing through the companies also have to pay according to their classification.

Inasmuch as the $360,000 annual levy is based on gross income, distributors feel that their respective pro-

The Du-Art laboratory action against Universal was heard before Supreme Court Justice Steuer yesterday and deferred until tomorrow.

Purely Personal

HERB YATES yesterday financed W RAY JOHNSTON, TREM CARR of Monogram and WILLIAM SAAL of Select to lunch at the Tavern. BEN GOETZ sat in on the deal in an advisory capacity.

Among those present but not at the same table were:

RICHARD A. ROWLAND and BEN BLUMENTHAL, plotting future bridge hands.

BILL (Exchange Man) RAYNOR, talking scripts with MYLES GIBBONS of the Paramount story department.

J. S. MCLEOD, spotted with a friend in the corner. EDWARD ZELTNER, of Loew's, confabbing with another group across the room.

PHIL REISMAN is now swamped with demands from other members of the M. P. Club for ping-pong lessons, particularly after the exhibition he put on yesterday.

BILLY WILKERSON is in from Hollywood.

CHARLES E. RICHARDSON, Paramount trustee, went to Philadelphia yesterday. Which made many at the Paramount hearing wonder why. The answer is simple: His family is there.

BEN LYON and BEBE DANIELS have set up housekeeping at the Lombardy, now that they have brought their daughter, BARBARA, back from the coast with them. "SKEETS" GALLAGHER is with them, alone at present, but he expects the missus any day now.

IRENE THIRER has invented a movie indicator for classification of films. It's called Moviemeter, and the Post, for which the Rialto publicity head covers reviews a few days a week, adopted the contraption. The indicator points to one of four ratings: Good, poor, bad or excellent.

BILL PINE will airline it from Hollywood to New Orleans to attend the M. P. T. O. A. convention there in late February. BOB GILLHAM is figuring on attending from New York. Ditto SAM DEMBOW and plenty of others.

CHESTER ERSKIN not only is busy preparing rehearsals on "De Luxe" in which 20th Century has a financial finger or two, but he has also pounded out "Three Blind Mice," a play adapted from "All the Skeletons," the KEITH FOWLER novel.

AL WILKIE and ALEX MOSS, who banded together on one of those warm-weather cruises, returned to New York and its ice-covered streets yesterday.

IDA LUPINO docks today. That is, if the Olympic successfully batters those high seas and arrives on schedule. JEFFREY BERNARD is aboard the same vessel.

TOM DREW, who runs General Register for PERCY PHILLIPSON, one of the most American of British film men, is in Los Angeles. A business trip.

CAROLE LOMBARD is determined to visit all of the hot spots in town before entraining for Hollywood and probably will, all in one night this week.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON has gone back to the coast to start work in "Money Man." MRS. ROBINSON and the boy were with him.

STUDDING the restaurant at the M. P. Club yesterday were these, among others:

ARTHUR and DAVE LOEW, LAURENCE BOLOGNINO, HERB EBENSTEIN, MORT SPRING, PHIL REISMAN, JOE VOGEL, FELIX FEIST, HOWARD DIETZ, LEO LUBIN, ARNOLD VAN LEER, BOB WOLF, HARRY BRANDT, ARTHUR HIRSCH and the following LOUIES: NIZER, PHILLIPS, COHEN and SIDNEY.

MOE SILVER, Y. FRANK FREEMAN and MARTIN BECK among the knife and fork wielders at Sardi's yesterday.

CLAUDE EZELL in town from western conquests and visiting acquaintances at the RKO home office yesterday.

PHIL REISMAN did his conferencing yesterday in the RKO legal department.

BRUCE BROMLEY of Cravath, de Gersdoff, Swaine & Wood, had a busy day of consultations in various home offices yesterday. That St. Louis Demon may be the answer.

WALTER CONNOLLY is being discussed for the male lead in "Bank Nemo," a play dealing with the Stavisky affair in France. NAZIMOVA may also be in the cast.

W. RAY JOHNSTON is initiating TREM CARR into the hectic social whirl of Larchmont and the Monogram Club during the latter's local visit.

EDDIE CANTOR and his family; FEODOR CHALIAPIN and MISCHA ELMAN arrive today from abroad on the Ile de France.

MRS. S. MAURICE LIVINGSTON, wife of U. A.'s Paris representative, is in town. She made the crossing on the Champlain.

HARDIE ALBRIGHT and MARTHA SLEEPER (MRS. ALBRIGHT) are in town making plans for a New York stage appearance.

HELEN GWYNN, columnist on The Hollywood Reporter, is vacationing here. It's a two weeks' release from the west.

ROSITA MORENO is in these parts to play the feminine lead in a Spanish talker which will be made at the Eastern Service studio.

ROBERT LORD and DELMAR DAVES, Warner scenarists, arrive on the coast today after a brief trip here to see "Page Miss Glory."

SAM E. MORRIS and his son, BUDDY, arrive from England on Thursday on the Conte di Savoia.

JACK PARTINGTON returned from St. Louis over the week-end. HARRY C. ARTHUR gets in tonight.

J. MONTMORENCY MCMANUS did some neat toe-and-heel numbers in the Astor ballroom Satiddy nite.

WALTER EBERHARDT and MRS. E. took in "Anything Goes" last night and voted it swell.

PAUL GULICK is getting fan mail from exhibitors on his Universal Weekly mailing list.

HERSCHEL STUART counts that day lost that doesn't produce a laugh, and hasn't lost one in months.

BOB COCHRANE is paying more attention to the Motion Picture Club these days.

WILLIAM GEDRIS of Ideal Seating, Grand Rapids, is in town for a few days.

SYLVIA SIDNEY's long holiday here is ended. She has started the trek west.

DAVE LOEW hasn't made up his mind when he will leave for that coast jaunt.

HERB CRUIKSHANK was made practically perfect—sartorially—the other afternoon.

LILLIAN BOND essays the lead in "Little Shot," Thursday's stage opener at the Playhouse.

E. A. ROWLANDS of Ilex Optical Co., Rochester, is in town.

SIDNEY SAMUELSON leaves for an out-of-town jaunt today.

BOB RITCHIE due in shortly. From Europe again.

RUTH GORDON is steamer-bound for the coast to make a picture for Metro.

HAROLD B. FRANKLIN is back from the coast.

MARGARET SULLAVAN is keeping her current visit here a secret?

HORTENSE SCHORR among the diners at Thompson's No. 27 the other day.

FELIX FEIST seems in danger of developing wanderlust.

"Reclaimed" Pulls $15,000 at Rialto

"Man Who Reclaimed His Head" was good for $15,000 for the first week at the Rialto. Arthur Mayer is holding it over, but hasn't decided definitely whether to put in "Baboona" on Friday or next Monday.

"Mystery Woman" at the Mayfair tallied $11,000, while "Helldorado" at the Astor got only $9,400. Cold weather which hit town Sunday and kept many theatregoers at home has hit Broadway box-offices the last two days.

Over the week-end, "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" grossed around $30,000.

Fields and Sobelman To Sail on Saturday

Arthur Fields, supervisor of M-G-M synchronization of foreign versions with headquarters in Paris, and Martin Sobelman, editor-in-chief under Fields, said for Europe Saturday on the Ile de France after a three-week vacation here. Both arrived here with Arthur Loew and Sam Burger on Christmas Day.

Burger is now aboard the Bremen and is scheduled to arrive in England tomorrow. He is bound for South Africa to install M. I. Davis, former Hongkong M-G-M branch manager, as general manager of the South Africa office, succeeding the later Carl J. Sonin.

Fred Pelton of the coast studio staff is in town.

No RKO Plan In Prospect, Court Is Told

Bondy, Newton reported that, while RKO had shown a small profit for the first six months of last year, there would be a loss for the entire year. Judge Bondy took under consideration both the receiver's report and the application for allowances. The latter was attacked by John Butler, counsel for bondholders of the Orpheum, St. Louis, who pointed out that the last petition for allowances, aggregating $225,000, of which $105,000 was allowed by the court, had been filed on May 31, and that the present application covered services rendered only during the following six weeks. Butler also asserted that the preparation of the present receiver's report might represent a waste of RKO assets as it, too, covered only a six weeks' period from the time of the filing of the last report to the filing of RKO's petition for reorganization as a debtor corporation under Section 77-B on June 30. He asked that inasmuch as the report was a final one for the period of the receivership, the fees be considered final for the receivership, as well, instead of payments on account, as they are now designated. Judge Bondy reserved decision on these recommendations.

Under the present application, Irving Trust asks $100,000 and its counsel, Donovan, Newton, Liesure & Lombard, $125,000. Additional fees for special services and expenses aggregate about $10,000. Newton stated that the previous application for fees was merely an interim allowance and did not represent what the full value of the services were considered to be, in replying to Butler's criticism. He stated that $295,000 of the cash now in the hands of the RKO receiver was immediately available for administration expenses.

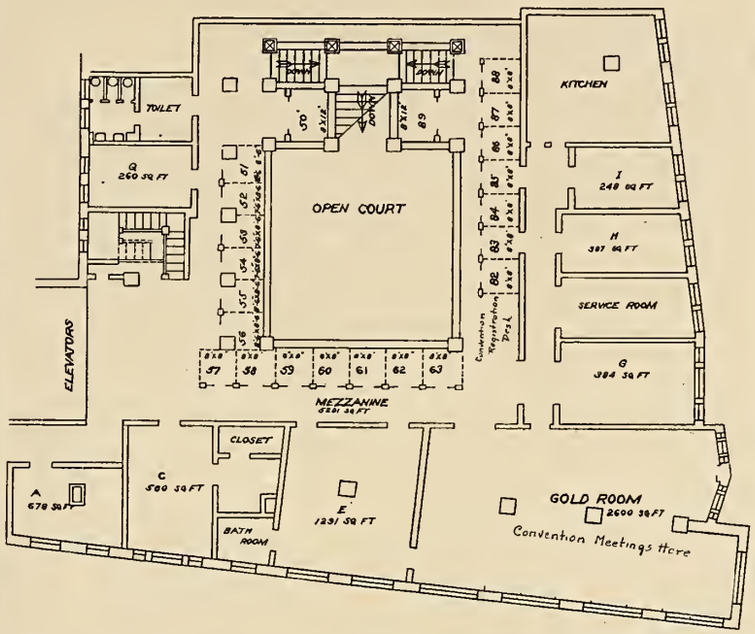
been taken to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here by Walter Reade's Broadway & 47th St. Corp. and other RKO creditors, it was learned yesterday.



Edward L. Garvin, counsel for the creditors, who is appealing from denials of his applications by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, contends that the RKO reorganization proceedings are invalid because, he alleges, the application was filed in advance of the time at which the new reorganization statute became effective last June. Decision on the appeals is expected in the near future.

MPTOA Sets Equipment Display for Nat'l Confabs

Theatre management, modern theatre design, construction, remodeling and equipment are stressed as highlights of the forthcoming M.P.T.O.A. convention to be held in New Orleans Feb. 25-28.

Accordingly, the convention arrangements committee is providing and assigning suitable display booths on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel Roosevelt, where all sessions will be held. A floor plan of the space is reproduced above.

Experts in their fields are being lined up for addresses, the committee reported yesterday. The comment will be "non-technical, understandable talks." It is anticipated a number of well known theatre operators also will be on the program.

Expect $2,500 Bond For St. Louis Case

Bonds in the amount of $2,500 each are expected to be set by a Federal commissioner here either today or tomorrow under the St. Louis indictments voted against Harry M. Warner, Herman Starr, Abel Cary Thomas, Gradwell Sears, George Schaefer and Ned Depinet, it was learned yesterday.

The six will be arraigned before a commissioner as soon as the indictments are received from St. Louis.

No disposition on the part of any of the indicted companies to discuss a consent decree with representatives of the Attorney General's office was evident yesterday. The attitude, in fact, was the opposite, with all expressing hope of an early trial in St. Louis Federal court. Separate counsel for each defendant company will be retained when the case goes to trial, probably with company counsel serving in an advisory capacity.

Penn Censors Stay; Lawyer Heads Board

today announced the appointment of L. Howell Davis, prominent attorney and business executive of Philadelphia, to succeed Samuel D. Schwartz of Philadelphia as chairman of the Board of Censors.

This seems to establish beyond doubt that the new governor has no intention of abandoning censorship. The post pays a salary of $4,800 a year. "I am pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Davis as chairman of the state board," Earle said. "He is particularly qualified by training and experience for this most important post."

Davis was born at Riverton, N. J., in 1877. He is a son of Lemuel H. and Mary H. Davis and attended the University of Pennsylvania where he was graduated in 1901. In 1904 he received his degree from Law School at the university and was admitted to practice. During the War he was a first lieutenant in the Corps of Interpreters, attached to the 38th Division.

The Pennsylvania censorship board includes besides the chairman, a vice-chairman and a secretary. The vice-chairman under the outgoing administration is Miss Blanche L. Davenport of Wilkes-Barre, and the secretary is Mrs. Mary J. Kerr of Connellsville.

Gold Ruling Looms As Industry Worry

a difficult position should the U. S. Supreme Court next month declare invalid the President's proclamation devaluing the dollar and suspending gold payments.

Possibilities that the court might render an opinion unfavorable to the government are seen in the many questions asked during argument on the case last week. Until the court acts, it is futile to attempt to guess what action may be necessary to meet the decision, but it is said that in all probability, if the opinion is such that it can be met by an act of Congress, legislation will immediately be jammed through to meet the situation.

Should an opinion be rendered requiring the payment of gold obligations in amounts which would permit the purchase of the same amount of gold as could be bought by the money invested at the time of the investment such obligations might entail the payment of nearly $1.69 for each $1 owed.

A tremendous amount is involved in the situation, since prior to 1933 nearly all obligations of major importance called for payment in gold.

Hamm, Jr., to Run Publix Northwest

Publix Northwest receivership, if approved.

Hamm's operating contract gives him the sole right to name a general manager for the circuit and indications point to his retention of J. J. Friedl, the present general manager. Extension of the operating contract after June 27 is considered probable inasmuch as all such agreements concluded by the Paramount trustees were drawn up to expire at approximately the same time in order that they might be subject to approval and renewal by the new Paramount management after reorganization of the company.

Hamm is the son of William Hamm, wealthy Minneapolis brewer, who was financially interested in the former Finkelstein & Rubin circuit. Hamm, Jr., was actively identified with the circuit.

G. Knox Haddow, formerly assistant to J. J. Unger, Paramount division manager, has been promoted to head of the exchange service department. LeRoy Palmquist, ad sales manager in Minneapolis, is now a salesman at the Omaha exchange, replacing Selby Carr, who becomes ad sales manager in Omaha.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14. — Mickey Rooney was in the Hollywood Hospital today with a broken leg received while tobogganing at Big Pines yesterday. The accident will not hold up production on Warners' "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Songwriter Soiree Staged by Gaumont

It was songwriter day at Gaumont British yesterday.

Maurice Siegler, Albert Hoffman and Albert Goodheart, local denizens of Tin Pan Alley who had journeyed to London to write tunes for two G. B. pictures, returned home a day or so ago. In order to reintroduce them, members of the office staff, the local daily and trade press and various executives along Music Row were invited to Arthur Lee's office for cocktails.

Siegler, Hoffman and Goodheart furnished entertainment in the form of their latest numbers. These included "Squibs," "Did You Ever Have a Feeling You're Flying?," "One Way Street" and "Song of the Law," all from the picture "Squibs," which stars Betty Balfour and Stanley Halloway. The other picture of the three was "The Code," and the songs played from this one were "The Code," "If Your Father Only Knew" and "San Felipe." The star of this one is Lester Allen, who is called the Bing Crosby of London—by Gaumont British.

The trio will return to England in about two months to work on four more pictures.

Among those present were George Tucker of the Associated Press, Eileen Creelman of The Sun, Alex H. Faulkner of the London Daily Telegraph, Frank Leyndecker of Box-Office, Arnold Van Lear, A. P. Waxman, Lou Guimond, Jack Harrower of Film Daily and Eric Neville H. ("Alphabet") Warwick-Owensmith.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Bordertown"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 14.—Humanness of characterization balanced with a vivid plot moving at a measured tempo gives this one genuine audience appeal. The story packs plenty of sentimental wallop and should click in all spots. Cast portrayals, production and direction are excellent.

The story features Paul Muni, a Mexican upstart, who graduates from a night school in Los Angeles as a young lawyer. In his first important court appearance, Muni, in a fit of temper, is held in contempt of court and quits, later muscling into a gambling racket in a border town.

Getting into real money, Muni becomes romantically involved with Bette Davis, who murders Eugene Pallette, her husband, proprietor of a gambling house, to win Muni, who has strayed to Margaret Lindsay, sensation-loving socialite.

Muni's turbulent life hits a climax when Miss Davis goes insane and accuses Muni of murdering her husband. Miss Lindsay is killed by an automobile while resisting Muni's savage yet sincere attentions. The windup has Muni returning to his proper niche, having failed to climb the social ladder.

The direction is by Archie Mayo, whose fine handling of situations makes for the utmost in showmanship. All cast performances are top notch. Laird Doyle and Wallace Smith penned a high calibered screen play from Carroll Graham's novel. Soledad Jimenez is excellent as Muni's mother. This should set well as mass-class entertainment and hit with Muni followers.

Production Code Seal No. 393. Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Chapayev"

(Amkino)

By all odds this is the most entertaining production to come out of the Soviet studios in some time. It is an absorbing and stirring tale of the exploits of Chapayev, commander of the Red armies of the east, against the White forces during the civil war in 1919. This film, produced by Lenfilm, possesses power and sweep and acting that helps much to make it a fascinating Soviet document.

Crammed with action from first to last, "Chapayev" should have an easier time of it in attracting American audiences than most of its predecessors from the Russian film plants. To help its cause in this country there are many moments of rich humor.

The picture is filled with battle scenes that are gripping and impressive in their handling. Sometimes, too, there are moments when the story of this Communist hero, a peasant with practically no schooling, quickens the emotions with its flashes of the more human side of the man. His death under a rain of bullets as he swims across a river in his moment of defeat makes a moving scene and brings the film to a dramatic close.

Chapayev is splendidly played by Boris Bobochkin. Others hardly less capable are Boris Blinov, Leonid Kmit, Barbara Miasnikov and I. N. Pevtzov. The film was directed by Sergei and Georgi Vasilyev. There are plenty of English subtitles.

No code seal. Running time, 96 minutes. "G."

"Dirty Work"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Dec. 20.—A very good example of the Ben Travers farce with typical interpreters in Ralph Lynn, J. Robertson Hare and Gordon Harker. Tom Walls directed and audience suitability in England is fairly well indicated in these names. America is another story.

The setting is a jewelry store, troubled by mysterious thefts. Milligan, a shop walker (Lynn), Nettle, a doorkeeper (Harker) and Peck, an assistant (Hare) live together. The raids are being staged by friends of the shop manager, aided by a fake house detective, who persuades the three friends to carry goods from the shop with the understanding that the real crooks will be caught red-handed when they receive them.

Much humor arises from the criminal activities of the innocent trio, but more or less by accident, the real police are brought on the scene. Plenty of laughs for those who can appreciate this British team.

Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Goring Deposes

When a theatre operator makes an affidavit, it's news. John P. Goring has sworn before Maurice Rubinstein, notary public, to wit—or is it sic:

"I, JOHN P. GORING, Lessee of the Criterion Theatre, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

"That I have carefully checked the records of the Criterion Theatre of all pictures that have played at this house on a continuous run policy and I hereby state that 'The Wandering Jew,' now playing at this theatre, has broken all records for attendance the first three days of its engagement in the history of the Criterion Theatre. On Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 12th and 13th, we extended our closing time from 2 A. M. until 3:30 A. M. in order to accommodate the crowds who wanted to see this picture.

"'The Wandering Jew' will remain at the Criterion Theatre indefinitely."

"Bordertown" Pittsburgh's Bet, $9,000

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 14.—Business is feeling a post-holiday slump. Almost everything was way off last week except the Stanley, where Paul Muni's "Bordertown" in five days gathered $9,000, which is the house's regular average for six days.

Otherwise, things were pretty dull. At the Alvin, "Music in the Air" and a stage show managed to achieve an even break at $10,000, but no other house even came close to par. "365 Nights in Hollywood" was yanked at the Fulton after three days to a weak $2,000, while the Pitt, with "Woman in the Dark" and Irving Aaronson's unit, barely touched $4,600. The Penn, on the other hand, didn't do so badly, everything considered, with its hold-over of "Forsaking All Others." In four days of the picture's second week it collected a presentable $7,000, giving it around $25,000 for the 10-day run.

Total first run business was $36,800. Average is $46,500.

yesterday at Campi in an effort to get together on some of the disputed points in the tentatively approved schedule. It is understood Charles L. O'Reilly, head of T.O.C.C., objected to the plan because of inequality of the assessments for booths of different classification.

At the last Campi session O'Reilly also brought up the operator question and at the time asked that the type of run of a theatre should be included, along with seating capacity and admissions, in drawing up the scale. Code Authority did not act on his suggestion and it is understood he insisted on his stand for including run when the session was held yesterday. Meanwhile, all interests are heartened over the removal of pickets, but not so much over yesterday's session.

Attending yesterday's Campi confab in addition to Rosenblatt and O'Reilly were George Browne, president, and Louis Krouse, vice-president of the I.A.T.S.E.; Joseph Tepperson of Empire operators' union, Leslie E. Thompson, Charles C. Moskowitz, Harry Brandt and Milton C. Weisman.

One of the provisions of the agreement is that all working card men of Empire and Allied shall be admitted to Local 306 membership. Another is that the compact between unions and exhibitors shall be for 10 years with arbitration on the scale every two years.

would be recognized, on the ground that the individual's freedom should not be curtailed by forcing adherence to a group which might be numerically stronger than that with which he was affiliated.

The latter plan is more satisfactory to employers, who see under the first scheme the unionization of all employes and an ironclad control of wages, hours and working conditions by union organizations.

Just how far the Administration is prepared to go in its effort to placate organized labor has not been disclosed, nor will it be known until the President prepares his legislation program.

Beacon Appeal Is Heard

A. J. Mertz and Thomas Murray as an appeal committee yesterday heard an appeal by the Roosevelt, Beacon, N. Y. The theatre filed an overbuying complaint against Springer & Cocalis, operating the Beacon, same city, which the New York board dismissed.

The committee also discussed the clearance appeal by Inland Amusement Co., Majestic and Adelaid, Nampa, Idaho, against the Egyptian, Grandad and Pinney, Boise, Idaho.

Judge Gives Weight To Grievance Board

DENVER, Jan. 14.—In refusing a temporary injunction to Harry Huffman, Judge J. Foster Symes of the U. S. District Court said the decision of the grievance board was entitled to great weight with the court.

The board had ordered exchanges to cease serving Huffman with films unless he complies with its order to stop weekly auto giveaways. Huffman refused and went into court asking a temporary injunction. When this was denied he asked for a restraining order until the appeal could be heard. This was refused by Judge Symes on the ground that Huffman could stop the auto giveaways and still get films. Huffman then went before Judge Orrie L. Phillips of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, who issued the restraining order against the exchanges. Presiding Judge Robert E. Lewis also signed the order.

The case is set for hearing at Oklahoma City, Jan. 24 at 10 a.m.

According to Denver attorneys, if Judge Symes had issued the restraining order it would have been effective until the appeal on the temporary injunction could be heard, possibly a matter up to a year, but with the issuing by the Circuit Court of Appeals it is effective only until the first chance the court can give to hear the case on its merits.

ducers should pay code levies to the companies through which they are releasing, and distributors should in turn include these payments in their assessments. This will eliminate intricate bookkeeping by distributors, it is held.

The plan was discussed at the last Campi session and will be put up to the NRA at the Capitol hearing next month.

Hearing Off to Feb. 5

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—Hearing on the budget for the code today was postponed from Jan. 22 to Feb. 5. Original plans to put off the meet until Feb. 1 were set aside in order that the hearing might not come at the end of the week.

Discussion at the hearing will include the 1934 budget as well as the one for 1935.

Block Selling Seen Target of Federal Probe

Move Believed Intended To Force Compromise

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The St. Louis product probe is seen in some quarters here as an effort to force the industry to liberalize its sales methods.

As the Government cannot go into court and indict for conspiracy on block booking because of Federal decisions upholding that method of selling it must seek some other excuse for bringing the matter into court, and in the presentation of evidence on other charges it can refer to block booking but can bring no direct charges on that basis alone.

The idea, it is said, is to frighten the industry with the hope that some sort of trade might be offered which would meet the independents' complaints against block booking.

Little importance is attached to the statements of Department of Justice officials less important than the Attorney General himself, since the department has a policy of "covering up" on pending actions. It is conceded that there probably is no definite plan for bringing a number of

By RED KANN

HOW goes published comment on films these days? The answer is that it goes many ways, up and down, plus and minus, sometimes pinioning this business just to see how it can sweat and squirm, we think, and sometimes endeavoring honestly to help. Having typewriter and paper, as well as linotype and press to convey our own ideas, erratic and otherwise, we understand fully how much fun it can be. Besides, the other fellow probably thinks we are just as screwy as we think him. . . .

For instance, The National Republic, gotten out in Washington, is excited about Hollywood and whatever Communism may be lurking in those hills. Read on:

"The Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, headed by Lincoln Steffens; his wife, Ella Winters; Alfred Hirsch, Theodore Dreiser, Langston Hughes, Upton Sinclair and other Reds, is viciously denouncing the recent threat of the State of California to further investigate the activities of Communists in Hollywood. . . . The following theatrical professionals have joined them in their protest: Elmer Rice, Waldo Frank, Paul Peters, Edward Bromberg, Alexander Kirkland, Herman Shumlin and Howard Dietz. This is an indication that Hollywood is overflowing with Reds and certainly should be investigated."

While investigations are under way, we suggest a probe of The National Republic, who is behind it and why. . . .

From here and there:

Omaha World-Herald — "The Legion of Decency . . . in its general objective . . . has performed a public service. . . . When such a general movement, however, begins to get into the field of specific censorship, it runs into trouble." . . .

Catholic Review, Baltimore—"If there are some motion picture producers who are boasting about their intention not to conform to the rules of decency, they are just plain fools. They will be the ones to suffer."

High Point, N. C., Enterprise —"The movies have certainly changed. The type . . . most evident only a year or two ago appears to be as dead as Dickens' proverbial doornail. . . . The movies are again tending to become stereotyped. . . . Life is not all sweetness and light." . . .

Boston Traveler—"It is fitting that, in response to such good faith on the part of the movie people, critics now should as emphatically praise and the public should support the era of their own bringing."

San Bernardino Sun—"The responsibility for better films for boys and girls now passes directly to the parents."

Buffalo Echo—"We insisted from the beginning that we want to know who reviewed the pictures in the Chicago lists before accepting those lists. Now that the matter is public property, we state that for 20,000,000 Catholics to be forced to follow the judgment of one young lady working in her spare time is neither Catholic, representative, American or just."

Pittsburgh Catholic — "The point is . . . that, if the campaign for decency in the movies is to be permanently successful there must be uniformity and the matter of which list is followed is of secondary importance." . . .

The Lutheran, Philadelphia—"We strongly criticize the Hierarchy here in America, if they resort to boycotting . . . in order to isolate their own members from Protestant institutions. No one's business will be safe from ecclesiastical restraint if the objectives of a religious group . . . can thus interfere with it."

The New World, Chicago—"The Legion of Decency campaign must go on—on as it is—not as the fanatic its enemies would now try and make it out to be, but as the sane, calm, wise, broad, determined force it is in the estimation of all fair, unprejudiced observers."

What has gone before was picked more or less at random. It represents what may be fairly described as an average cross-section of far-flung opinion, varied in point of view but united on its subject matter which is this industry and its deportment as reflected on the screen. It emphasizes anew the extreme care with which film conduct is scrutinized and it throws into relief the many groups which are on their toes, ready to step on the industry's toes when matters proceed not to their liking. This is not to say at all that some of the criticism is not justifiable, for it is. The difficulty is the terrifying task of even attempting to please all hands and the realization that it can never be done. . . .

How it sometimes happens: Gary Cooper's contract with Paramount allows him to designate his director. Friendly with Henry Hathaway and believing in him, moreover, Cooper spread something akin to consternation, if not consternation itself, around the front offices at the Paramount studio some months ago when he informed Manny Cohen he wanted Hathaway, his experience previously confined to assistant directorships and latterly full-fledged direction on westerns, to handle "Now and Forever." When "Bengal Lancers" emerged from some of its story fog and production became imminent, again Cooper insisted on Hathaway. Down for close to a million dollar budget on the film, Cohen did mental somersaults, mostly unpleasant. Cooper won, but so did Hathaway, for "Lancers" is one of the grandest pictures of this season and many others. . . .

Brandt, Reade Talk Merger of Circuits

Merger negotiations between Walter Reade and Harry Brandt to combine the two circuits are under way with expectations that a deal will be struck within the next few days.

Brandt operates 32 theatres in New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey, while Reade has 21 in New York and New Jersey. Efforts to reach Brandt and Leo Justin of the Reade office were unsuccessful yesterday afternoon.

Included in the negotiations is a deal to add six other New Jersey independent houses. The proposed name of the circuit is being kept secret, but it is understood that unless the three parties agree all negotiations will be called off. If, and when, the combination is set, the total number of houses in the circuit will be 60.

and now the motion picture that wins SCREEN FAME!

Two years ago it was the dream of its producers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer! The theme was so daring, so exciting that nothing since "Trader Horn" could equal its brilliant novelty. Now it is a stirring reality on the screen. Out of the High Sierras, out of the wilderness that is America's last frontier... roars this amazing drama of the animal revolt against man. A Girl Goddess of Nature! A ferocious mountain lion and a deer with human instincts! Leaders of the wild forest hordes! A production of startling dramatic thrills that defies description on the printed page... that becomes on the screen YOUR GREATEST EXPERIENCE IN A MOTION PICTURE THEATRE!

No picture in years has given me the same emotional quality which I derived from SEQUOIA. Combined with the most excellent photography,it is a magnificent social study of animals. The words of old,in the Bible, I think---the lion and the lamb shall lie down together-- are made to glow again in SEQUOIA.

The director took a mountain lion,gave it a leading role and made of it a Jean Harlow. And all the deers that appear on the screen are much more natural and have more poise than most Hollywood players. There are moments in the film which reach emotional grandeur. The cub caressing its dead mother is a scene which I shall never forget. It is written on my heart forever. How any man can go out and kill a deer after seeing this picture is more than I can understand. While watching the deers in the film I recalled Walter Winchell's splendid thought--that the deer should be allowed to shoot back at the hunter.

SEQUOIA is an animal film which a man can leave without too much shame for his fellows. Those who made this film had a fundamental love of animals in their souls--and not their destruction. If I could do one thing for the youth of the world in order to make a cleaner and finer and more understanding generation when we at last are dust--it would be to send them each and all to see this film at my expense. I often grow discouarged about films. SEQUOIA renewed my faith. I congratulate its makers.

Sincerely

Jim Tully

"Should Be A Smash In Any Theatre"

After more than a year and a half in production, John W. Considine, Jr., has turned out for Metro what is probably the most unique screen feature ever made. Based on the Vance Hoyt novel, "Malibu," picture tells the story of a strange friendship, that of a mountain lion or puma and a deer, a story of palship, animal love and devotion that is rarely equalled, even among humans.

After viewing the finished product, it is not to be wondered at that filming required in excess of 18 months. Plenty of patience must have been required on the part of Director Chester Franklin, and all concerned in the production, to secure the unusually strange pictures, even granting that the two animals, around whom the story is built, must have been carefully and painstakingly trained.

"Sequoia" is fit fan fodder for young and old, and should be a smash in any theatre, from the metropolitan deluxers to the backwoods nickelodeons. It has everything. Thrills, pathos, comedy, majestic scenery and above everything else, humanness.

Orphaned shortly after their birth in the High Sierras, the baby puma and deer are adopted by Jean Parker, who is living in the mountain fastness with her father, Samuel S. Hinds, a writer. While engaged in rescuing the cat and the doe, Miss Parker is saved from savage dogs by Russell Hardie, a young Forest Ranger, and their love romance is adroitly carried out throughout the unfolding of the strange yarn.

Hardie insists the attempt to raise the two wild animals will fail as they are natural enemies, with Hinds contending that only sheer necessity makes them antagonistic to each other. The doe is named Malibu, meaning a hard row to travel, and Gato is the cognomen bestowed upon the puma, at first believed to mean misunderstood one, but later developing the meaning is outlaw and murderer.

Throughout the story puma and deer show the effects of a year spent together before they are turned loose to shift for themselves. Time after time both have narrow escapes with their lives, but in each instance the other animal comes to the rescue.

The climax comes when Paul Hurst, a rancher, and his henchman, Ben Hall, turn loose a herd of protected deer from the forest reservation for city hunters to shoot. Malibu effects their release, is tracked by Hurst and when cornered is saved through the interference of Gato, with the deer finally to the rescue. Fadeout has the strange friends of the wilds in affectionate gambols atop the snowcapped mountain.

Human characters are all well suited for their parts, with Miss Parker particularly effective.

Variety

"THRILLS, SPECTACLE AND EXCITEMENT"

Adapted from a book by Vance Hoyt, noted author of animal and nature stories, this is an unusual kind of outdoor picture. Fundamentally it is the drama, comedy, thrill, danger and the peculiar human interest attached to the struggle of wild creatures in native habitat.

Two animals, native of California's High Sierra Mountains, the locale, are the principal figures.

First demonstrating that natural enemies can become friends as Jean Parker, finding a cougar cub and a fawn, raises them to maturity in companionship, the animals are released again to the redwood forests. When danger comes to the doe, the cougar saves her. As her mate is killed the doe leads her fawn to Jean Parker's cabin with the protecting cougar tagging along. When hunters, rounding up a herd of deer, would kill the deer and fawn, it is the vicious lion that rushes to their rescue.

Accompanying these features is a human interest love story between Jean Parker and Russell Hardie. For spectacle, there is the beautiful photography of the wild Sierra Mountain country, the excitement of animal conflict and the spectacles of nature as it is unleashed in blizzards, thunder and lightning storms, forest fires and floods. One publicity feature that should not be overlooked in connection with this is the recent radio address made by President Roosevelt calling attention to the national park.

"A Worthy Attraction For Any Theatre"

This is an unusual wild animal picture filmed against the beautiful Sierra Mountains with Malibu, a deer, and Gato, a puma, natural enemies, starred. The picture seems destined to be outstanding and one of the most talked about. It is a worthy attraction for any theatre.

Essentially, the production maintains the theory that only hereditary instinct causes animal enmity. As exemplified by the pair, adopted in orphaned babyhood by Jean Parker, the theory is proved.

For entertainment it skillfully blends natural drama, comedy, romance, thrills, action, menace and conflict. When, upon maturity, the creatures are released in the forest, they continually befriend each other.

Marked by understandable sympathy-generating humanness, it builds situations so that full value is derived from every element. In the finale when death from humans menaces Malibu, the stalking Gato fights the mutual foe to exhaustion and Malibu administers the coup de grace. For an epilogue both gambol in friendly companionship.

Everyone connected with the picture is entitled to plaudits. Chester Franklin's direction, aided by Vance Hoyt, the author, is a triumph of patience and understanding. The screen play by Ann Cunningham, Sam Armstrong and Carey Wilson actually makes the animals human. Chester Lyons' photography is also a feature the patrons will talk about.

"EXHIBITOR BAGS WINNER IN 'SEQUOIA'"

The entire story is wound around the strange friendship of the deer and cougar with love interest between Parker and Hardie worked in for story purposes. Otherwise it is a fascinating animal story playing to nature human interest. Tie up with the local zoo and sporting goods stores. Get a display of guns and hunting equipment as well as trophies. Work up a hunting license throwaway with copy "Stop Hunting for Good Entertainment. See 'Sequoia' and You've Bagged a Winner."

SEQUOIA PRAISES!

"SUPERIOR TO ANY ANIMAL FILM MADE"

It would be difficult and extremely unfair to class "Sequoia" with other wild animal pictures, yet it must come under this classification. Still, it is so far superior, not alone in actual thrills, but in the delicate handling, the unusual methods employed to capture the so-called "freedom of the woods" and the great amount of patience it undoubtedly required to undertake such a tremendous, vital task. One of the most interesting pictures I have ever seen is "Sequoia".

Special mention should go to Chester Franklin, the director, for his indomitable patience, his sympathy with his trying subjects and the most interesting manner in which he told his story.

LIBERTY MAGAZINE SAYS:

There has never been another picture quite like SEQUOIA. One of the cinema achievements of the year.

"Worth Walking Many Miles To See!"

You can all just step up and take your hats off to Director Chester M. Franklin and Photographer Chester A. Lyons for making one of the most "human," beautiful animal pictures that has ever been captured for the celluloid.

You'll walk many miles to see and enjoy the life stories of "Malibu," the deer, and "Gato," the puma. There is more humor, naturalness and drama around those two than you've seen in a long time, and it will be decidedly worth it to any exhibitor to figure out a good advertising campaign, because once the audiences can be gotten into the theatre, they'll take the picture to their hearts and love it. It's elegant animal stuff.

You have never seen anything like the shots of both scenery and animal life that this picture boasts and Chester Franklin has patiently, so patiently, waited for every opportunity to catch these animals in their most appealing and dramatic moments. They do cute things, they do bad things, they do good things and they are at all times themselves.

So far as the cast is concerned, everyone acquits himself well.

There are swell fight scenes between various animals and a chase at the end that will have you sitting on the edge of your seat from sheer excitement. By all means, play it up to the greatest extent possible because this is really swell entertainment for the whole darned family. Incidentally, Herbert Stothart is again to be congratulated for his excellent musical scoring of the picture. It's the perfect background for this picture.

—Hollywood Reporter

"A Pleasure For Real Showmen!"

From prior publicity, practically every one in the show business knows that this is a native wild animal picture. But what comes up on the screen, in relation to that which is either known or surmised, is so vastly different that the picture's successful marketing most likely will prove a pleasure for real showmen.

"Sequoia" is filmed entirely against the beautiful Sierra Mountain scenery, an asset of which expert photography has taken remarkable advantage. Its stars are two animals; Malibu, a deer, and Gato, a puma. Wonderfully trained, they are great actors. Wearing neither makeup nor costumes other than those given them by nature, and everything done being the result of patient and understanding training, from the standpoint of creating and maintaining human interest, they actually give many an enameled Hollywood clotheshorse fact lessons in natural acting.

As the picture is unusual, it is difficult to describe it in an ordinary manner. As it unfolds upon the screen, a strange but understandable "humanness" predominating, it runs the scale of natural drama, romance, comedy, tragedy, spectacle, thrill, conflict, menace. There are times when the action of the animals provokes howls of glee. Then it becomes vividly exciting, a quality counterbalanced by soft tenderness. Its tragedy is tinged with sadness, and the whole is climaxed by a stalking chase and villain-man hero-puma fight, in which the deer revenges himself upon the would-be killer. Topping off the finale of the deer-puma palship came the most enthusiastic burst of applause heard in months.

Here are the entertainment and showmanship highlights. Toni Martin, refusing to believe that it is contrary to natural law, adopts and mothers Malibu, an orphaned fawn, and Gato, a puma cub. Human necessity causes their release to the forest. Then the pair become the whole show. Gato crouches to spring on a drinking deer, but recognizes Malibu and both drink and play together. There's romance in the spring time. No human ever made such tender love as Malibu to his doe mate. There is tragedy as the mother is killed, but Malibu leads his fawn to Toni's cabin for shelter. Chinese Baby Feng Soo and the fawn, tethered together, are menaced by a rattlesnake. The baby would play, but Malibu dashes up and kills the snake. Hunters come to kill. Guide Bergman leads them nowhere. Desperate, he raids the government game refuge. Stalked by Malibu, he leads the herd to his corral. Malibu shows his kind how to escape. Then comes the big punch, Bergman trailing Malibu, and Gato stalking Bergman. About to fire on Malibu, Bergman is hit by a bundle of enraged puma fury. Malibu watches. When Gato is exhausted Malibu rushes in and pushes Bergman over a cliff to death.

—M. P. Herald

"ORDINARY ADJECTIVES OF PRAISE INSUFFICIENT"

Ordinary adjectives of praise are inadequate.

So real is the story, so genuine is the picture, anyone will marvel at the painstaking effort and patience of Producer John Considine, Director Chester M. Franklin, and Cameraman Chester Lyons, who put this beautiful story on celluloid.

Any one who doesn't enjoy this picture doesn't enjoy life—or living.

Why not call this picture "MALIBU"? He is the REAL STAR—some of your "so-called stars" could take lessons from him. Someone knows his animals at your studio.

A good story. Wonderful photography. Give us some more of this. A relief from the common run of pictures.

I consider this picture a rare treat, suitable for juniors and grownups and I expect to announce my opinion of it at the next Parent Teachers Association. If only more pictures as clean and educational as this one could be made.

At last we have a clean and wholesome picture suited for young and old.

A four star picture. Congratulations to you and Jean Parker for her wonderful acting.

Most wonderful story of animal life ever portrayed.

Have spent years with animals. This picture amazing. No criticism!

Positively wonderful! Enjoyed every moment of the picture.

You have a fine and unusual picture with a great cast. Jean Parker's work was especially good. The scenes between the deer and the mountain lion are the finest things in that line I have ever seen.

THIS COULD GO ON FOREVER! AND IT WILL!

National Organizations are getting behind "Sequoia." Save this advertisement for local tie-ups. Start now to talk it up!

Mrs. William A. Burk,
Western Vice-Chairman,
Committee on Motion Pictures,
General Federation of Women's Clubs.

May I thank you for the pleasure of seeing your beautiful picture, Sequoia?

It is one of the finest productions brought to the screen. Beautiful in all its technical phases, finely directed, it has photography of unusual beauty with great human interest and high entertainment values for all ages."

Below is the official report Mrs. Burk sent to every woman's club in America. The report is headed "outstanding for all ages" and it says: "This delightful film, based on the novel, Malibu, portrays the wild life of California. It revolves around the birth and lives of a puma and a deer and has its setting in the beautiful high Sierras. An enthralling picture, directed with consummate skill, replete with human interest, magnificently photographed, beautifully staged, a real pictorial gem."

Mrs. Mildred Lewis Russell,
National Chairman Better Films
Committee, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Congratulations for Sequoia! In this excellent film Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has achieved that rare combination of high entertainment values, unique subject matter and remarkable photography...have given it my highest rating, I...A...(F), which means, excellent entertainment, clean, suitable for all ages.

"Mr. Chester Franklin and his corps of assistants have done a notably fine piece of work . . ."

Mrs. Bernard Wyle,

National Council of Jewish Women.

(Excerpts from official report sent to all organized Jewish women in the United States):

A grand picture of wild life in the high Sierras, magnificently photographed and having a depth of beauty and meaning invaluable in its power to establish standards and attitudes of the highest, most fundamental ethical values.

I heartily recommend Sequoia. It sets a new standard in family entertainment.

Mrs. David Ray, ★ ★
National Councilor of Better Films.
National Society of New England Women.

(Official report sent to all branches of the Society):

Merely its unique photography of the poetic beauty of the virgin forest with its herds of graceful deer, makes Sequoia an enchanting film for any audience. An exceptionally beautiful picture which no one can afford to miss and one which indicates the power the cinema can exert.

Laura O. Vruwink ★ ★
The Women's University Club.

I believe that Sequoia is one of the most remarkable films I have ever seen because of the exquisite scenes of wild animal life in natural settings. Sound and photography were as nearly perfect as one could imagine. It seems almost impossible to have caught so realistically the feeling of perfectly unconscious behavior in wild creatures of the woods. A genuinely fine accomplishment which will have wide appeal for older children and family audiences (too emotional in latter part for children under 10).

WHAT OTHER NOTABLES THINK OF "SEQUOIA"

Zane Grey

noted author says:

Last night I saw the preview of not only the best outdoor picture I have ever seen but for me the greatest picture of the last decade.

It was taken in the wilderness, among the big trees, a singularly beautiful setting. The principal roles were taken by deer and mountain lions. Jean Parker . . . plays the part of a woodland girl . . . a lover of wild creatures . . . she is simplicity itself, and all we could wish of youth and beauty and charm.

But outside of Jean you hardly realize the other human characters . . . It is only a motion picture but it tells the truth. I happen to know a great deal about deer and more about lions. Once I was a hunter of both, but no more! I think every hunter in the world should see this picture and that those of them who have intelligence and feeling will never kill another deer for sport . . . The children and the young folk and the lovers will make of Sequoia a grand success. It is a splendid augury of future pictures. Mr. Chester Franklin, the director, is to be congratulated upon a picture of supreme artistry.

TO CATHOLIC WOMEN!

Mrs. Thomas Hearn,
National Chairman of Films,
National Council of Catholic Women.

I wish to congratulate you upon your picture, Sequoia, and to thank you for the privilege of previewing it.

In this age of superficial living, this drama of wild animal life set in a background of flowing masterpieces of nature, touches a human depth that it is well to awaken.

This picture is so fundamental and fine... the story is so filled with thrilling action, that it will provide entertainment for all ages and classes.

(A personal letter...but a report of similar sentiments will be sent to every Catholic woman.)

Hugh Walpole, ★ ★
Noted English Author.

It is a splendid picture. It thrilled me tremendously. The direction was fine and the photoplay hauntingly beautiful.

By Henry Chamberlain, President,
Los Angeles Chapter, Isaak Walton League.

I was fortunate last night in seeing the preview of Sequoia.

As representative of a large group of conservationists, the Isaak Walton League, known as "Defenders of woods, waters and wild life," I feel it incumbent on me to commend a picture of this type. The choice of Jean Parker as the youngster sympathetic with wild life is particularly fortunate in that the public has undoubtedly come to associate this talented young actress with everything that is fine and sincere.

The picture as a whole is a wonderful piece of work and cannot help but impress and interest the public. Our organization is particularly glad to note the accentuated difference, depicted in the picture, between the game law violator, a typical killer, and the respectable sportsman. This is a point that is very seldom understood by the general public.

Let me thank you, in behalf of my organization, for this very fine production.

Margaret Hughes,
Manager, Pacific Geographic Society.

The photography is superb and the animal work beyond anything we have ever seen, at times almost unbelievable. We could only show our approval by constantly breaking into applause. Sequoia...is direction, photography and acting magnificently combined.

Sarah McLean Mullen,
National Council of Teachers of English.

Your preview of the picture, Sequoia, gave me great pleasure, as it seemingly did to the entire audience, if one can judge by the enthusiasm of their response. Perhaps my pleasure was greater because both my mother as a child and I had played in those same great woods and know the life of the wild as shown in the picture to be authentic.

Sequoia is unique not only among the general run of pictures, but also among animal films, for the rarity of the action and emotional expression. The two leading animal actors in their simple and sincere response to the direction of their unseen owner excel the performance of any previous animals on the screen.

W. S. Van Dyke,
Director of "Trader Horn", "Thin Man", etc.

In my opinion Sequoia is one of the finest nature pictures I have ever seen. The animal sequences are superbly done. Having done a great deal of this kind of work myself, I can imagine the patience and efforts extended in getting it. But the results were well worth it.

This picture should contribute a mite to the preservation of our North American game, as I am sure that it will arouse in others as it did in me, an understanding sympathy with and for our game preservation commission.

Five Cantors Back from Europe; Eddie Kept Busy

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Returning from a six weeks' holiday in London, Paris, St. Moritz and Italy, Eddie Cantor stated that his vacation turned out to be a lot of work and now that he has returned he'll get down to business and take a real holiday. He arrived on the ice-coated Ile de France with Ida, his wife, three of his five daughters and valet. He didn't explain what happened to the rest of his family.

"While I was abroad I broadcast and made several personal appearances in theatres for some friends of mine," he told Motion Picture Daily as he debarked. He was the first passenger to come down the gangplank as the liner docked and was forthwith hounded by autograph hunters. Block and Sully, who appeared in Cantor's latest film, "Kid Millions," were among the reception committee.

Cantor stated that on Feb. 3 he will resume his radio broadcast, this time for Pebeco with Rubinoff and Ted Husing on the program. The show will be on the air from 8 to 8:30 P.M. Sunday nights.

Disscussing his next picture, the banjo-eyed comedian said that he had three or four ideas in mind and was immediately going into a story huddle with a number of writers. He also said that he would call Samuel Goldwyn on the telephone last night to discuss story material. Cantor wants fewer women in his next picture, less music and more story material.

"Theatre conditions in London are very good," he declared. "London is the joy spot of all Europe. All picture houses are doing business and the people are contented. England is showing more signs of recovery than any other country in the world.

"Italy is in good shape, thanks to the leadership of Mussolini. He is rapidly putting people to work and has turned swamp lands into nice livable places. He is above board and the people have a deep respect for him. When Il Duce orders something, it is done and there are no two ways about it."

Paris is not as gay as it could be. Cantor held. This is not the fault of the people, but is due to the constant change of government. It's like a train which changes engineers at every station, he explained.

The comedian plans to go to Florida. On April 28, the day after his last broadcast, Cantor will leave for Hollywood to work on his next film. He intends to stay on the coast for five months.

Says Prudence Bond Delays Hurt Seneca

Charges that the failure of the state superintendent of banks to act on the bonds of Prudence Co., Inc., was holding up efforts to reorganize the affairs of Seneca Holding Corp., Paramount subsidiary which controls the Astoria studio, were made yesterday by Frederick Powell, attorney for the Prudence trustees.

The charge was made at a further hearing before Special Master James G. More, acting for the U. S. District Court in Brooklyn. One of the proposals in the reorganization is for a refunding of an issue of $930 000 in bonds by extending the maturities to Jan. 1, 1941, and reducing the interest from five and one-half to four and one-half per cent.

prosecutions, it being pointed out that the department will probably watch the reaction to what it has already done and proceed further as opportunity offers.

How far the department will go with its prosecutions depends largely upon what officials in charge of them think of their chances of success. The major effort of the Government is never to bring a case unless it is fairly certain that a verdict can be secured. A large number of affidavits from various sections of the country are known to be available and are being studied to determine whether they afford a satisfactory basis for additional proceedings.

Following the conclusion of the St. Louis probe, Russell Hardy, one of the two special assistants to the Attorney General in charge of the case, left for Los Angeles, indicating that the next move of the department would be in that territory.

Prohibition of block booking will be sought in a bill to be introduced in Congress during the present session, it was indicated at the Capitol today.

Seeks Hearing Soon

Declaring that he would ask for an early hearing on his bill to create a motion picture commission, Representative Francis D. Culkin, New York, stated that his present plans do not contemplate pushing the measure beyond the hearing stage. He revealed that right of way will be given to legislation confined entirely to block booking which is understood to be in process of drafting.

Explaining that he does not know just what will happen to his measure, as he has not yet had an opportunity to discuss it with Representative Rayburn of Texas, chairman of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, Culkin expressed the view that there should be a public discussion of the matter and said he would seek a hearing in the near future.

The New York Congressman has no intention of pressing censorship legislation, feeling that the Legion of Decency has been a beneficial influence as far as protecting the public is concerned and that its threat to boycott theatres unless better pictures are made available has tended to improve the situation.

Evidence of considerable improvement in comparison with last year is seen by Culkin, who declared that if the industry, on its own initiative, would abandon block booking, it would have nothing to fear from Congress. However, he added, he has observed considerable support throughout the country for a movement to "straighten the movies out."

The Department of Justice prosecution in St. Louis, he believes, is a step in the right direction and the campaign should be continued.

"I have noticed that the motion pictures have improved materially and I hope they will show a tendency to produce a type of film that is suitable for children," the Congressman said. "There has been substantial improvement over the past year and I am hoping the industry will continue to make better product."

Social Bills, Tax Piling Up In California

the bills likely to pass. Under bills already introduced in the Assembly, employers would pay a maximum of four per cent fo payrolls and a minimum of two per cent while employes would pay a maximum of two and a minimum of one per cent. Under the maximum bill, one reserve fund would be established for all industries, spreading the unemployment risk over all. Contributions toward it would begin under the legislation next year with the first benefit payments to the jobless to be made Jan. 1, 1937.

The only film workers who might be exempt under the bill would be certain persons engaged in interstate commerce and part time employes.

Physically able persons out of work after making contributions would receive a minimum of $7 and a maximum of $15 a week. Such payments would continue for a suggested period of 16 weeks.

After a contributor became jobless, a period of from two to four weeks would elapse before payment of reserve funds, the unemployed person making application for work during that time to a free state employment agency. The bill proposes that no final action be taken on a California plan until a Federal policy has been established.

Under a bill proposed to the Assembly the maximum working day for all workers would be six hours, no person being allowed to work more than six days per week. Exempted under this bill are the domestic servants of any employer, who are allowed to work eight hours a day. The length of the week was not set forth in the bill.

Probably the greatest threat to high salaried persons in the industry is the personal income tax bill introduced into the Senate which would levy a tax on the net income of every resident of the state. The bill will follow the Federal plan with one-third of the Federal rate charged against returns.

Two Nebraska Bills Stir Omaha Protest

OMAHA, Jan. 15.—All city exhibitors met in a hastily called meeting to study two bills introduced in the Nebraska legislature last week, which are aimed directly at exhibitors. One of the measures calls for operators for each projection machine and the other would tax circuit theatres $25 each for two or more theatres; for 21 or more theatres the tax would be upped to $300 each.

Exhibitors will name a committee to appear in Lincoln when the bills come up for committee hearing.

Delaware Interests Work on Sunday Bill

WILMINGTON, Jan. 15.—Limited Sunday film shows will be allowed in Delaware if a bill now being prepared for introduction into the Legislature is enacted.

Details has not been worked out, but it is said the preliminary draft calls for shows after 9 o'clock Sunday nights. This is designed to meet possible objections.

Presbytery Silent On Its Film Drive

The New York Presbytery yesterday refused to make any comment on its proposed campaign for clean pictures other than to commend the Legion of Decency for its drive toward the same end. The Presbytery does not agree with the Legion in all the details of its program, however, because of what is described as the traditional Presbyterian disapproval of the principles of ecclesiastical control as manifested in the Legion's boycott of condemned pictures.

At the annual mid-winter meeting of the Presbytery recently, it was suggested that approved lists of pictures be set up on the bulletin boards of all churches and that all churchgoers demand Congressional legislation requiring producers to label their product in such a way as to differentiate between pictures suitable for adults and those for children. It was indicated, however, that this will be the extent of the Presbyterian campaign, for the present at any rate.

Earle Price Reduction Worries Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—The Earle today announced a price slash from 65 cents top to 40 cents, beginning Friday. Mastbaum competition is blamed for the reduction, imminent for some time.

The reduction has independent exhibitors worried and may lead to either new lower clearance arrangements or price cutting. It is believed the morning price of 25 cents, plus stage show, will cut into neighborhoods, which must charge as much or more on second runs. The M. P. T. O. is investigating the situation.

Des Moines House Burns

DES MOINES, Jan. 15.—The Strand here was destroyed by fire today. The loss is estimated at $60,000. The house is a downtown second run of the Tri-State Theatre Corp. and one of the oldest in the city. Investigation revealed the fire to have started in the projection booth and to have made great headway when discovered. No plans for rebuilding have been announced.

Industry Signs Deal With Czechoslovakia

has been signed between the Czech government and the industry in this country, according to a dispatch received yesterday by Col. Frederick L. Herron, foreign manager of the M. P. P. D. A., from George Canty, U. S. trade commissioner in Czechoslovakia, who affixed his signature to the compact on behalf of American distributors.

The following has been agreed to by both parties:

1. Distribution of American pictures in Czechoslovakia on a registration fee basis instead of under a compulsory quota system as formerly.

2. Where pictures are produced in Czechoslovakia, the government will allow a subsidy to the company producing such pictures, with allowance on registration fees for pictures imported by the producing company.

"Bill" Grabs Washington's Top, $24,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—"Broadway Bill" took top honors last week at the Earle by getting $24,000. This was over par by 36.3 per cent. Close second was Loew's Fox with "The Mighty Barnum" claiming $27,800, over the line by 35.6 per cent.

Wednesday and Thursday night business at Loew's Fox was bolstered by two appearances on each night of Guy Lombardo and his radio show, which subbed for the regular house stage attraction, the N. T. G. Revue.

All other houses were way under par due to playing partial third weeks and curtailed engagements to get back onto Friday openings on Jan. 11.

"The Wicked Woman" at Loew's Columbia did a great $1,800 for three days, but "The Church Mouse" was very weak at $1,400 for four days at the Metropolitan.

Three days on the third week of "The Little Minister" at RKO-Keith's were good for $3,800, and "Forsaking All Others" playing a similar period at Loew's Palace took $4,200.

Because of the short weeks, the total for the week's pictures as reported was only $63,000. Average for a full six-theatre, seven-day week is $71,200.

Estimated takings, exclusive of tax, for the week ending Jan. 10:

"BROADWAY BILL" (Col.)
EARLE—(2,218), 25c-77c, 7 days. Stage: "Variey Revels of 1935," with Paul Ash, m. c., David & Hilda Murray, Jackie Green, Barbara Blaine, Stanley Brothers, Audrey Seiber, Bert Granoff, 16 Paul Ash Girls. Gross: $24,000. (Average, $17,600)

"THE WICKED WOMAN" (M-G-M)
LOEW'S COLUMBIA—(1,264), 25c-40c, 3 days. Gross: $1,800. (Average for 7 days, $3,100)

The sessions will be divided into two periods with preliminary examination of the entries before lunch and final judging immediately after. Majority vote of the committee will determine the winners.

and, if the present agreement is approved by the court, will become president and a director for the term of his operating contract. Charles would be secretary of the company and J. J. Friedl probably will be continued as general manager.

Consolidated net earnings of the company for 1933 were approximately $250,000 and for the first nine months of last year were $180,000. A blanket mortgage of $500,000 held by the Hamm interests will be extended for five years and new adjusted leases will be entered into by Minnesota for all theatres for which the Hamm interests are the lessors.

Ohio Scales Shift For New Sales Tax

cents, including the three per cent retail sales tax, effective Jan. 1. The law prescribes this must be paid by the patron and not absorbed by the exhibitor.

In some instances, prices in the lower brackets, which were increased to figures divisible by five when the 10 per cent tax became effective, have not been reduced, which means a corresponding profit to the exhibitor.

In other cases, where the intermediate scales were advanced only the equivalent of the 10 per cent, prices have been restored to their original levels. This represents a reduction to the patron, and a loss to the exhibitor, who, for bookkeeping purposes, now must consider his admission three per cent less than his established figure.

Price differential among the subsequents is by no means uniform. Through the application of various methods of adjustment, they are higher in some situations and lower in others.

The 10-cent houses, exempt under the former tax law, now must pay three per cent. No exemptions exist, and the tax applies on total grosses, computed and payable monthly.

Missouri Sales Tax Jump Starts Fight

Missouri Retailers' Ass'n. for action against an increase. The opposition has not, however, changed the administration's viewpoint that an increase is necessary for relief and school requirements.

Merchants contend that if the present tax were efficiently and completely collected, an increase would not be necessary. While exhibitors have expressed no organized opposition, the consensus is that a higher tax would have to be passed on.

Many Changes In Proposed Quota Sought

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Dec. 12.—Many changes are sought by the industry in the framework of the proposed quota law which American distributors, to a man, are opposing.

The industry asks for: (1) an opportunity of conferring with the Government in detail; (2) the elimination of the distributors' clause; (3) uniform legislation in all states as one state alone cannot operate the quota; (4) the elimination of the rights of the minister to control the film business; (5) simplification of the quota law based upon quality and the right of the exhibitor to buy his picture where he likes.

The feeling behind the industry's action is a desire to prevent exploitation of the quota by mushroom companies, and a repetition of the quota "quickies" which flooded the market after the British quota law came into operation. Neither exhibitors nor distributors here are loth to handle well-made local productions while producers consider that inferior Australian films will militate against their chances of establishing the local producing industry on a firm and lasting basis.

To combat the quota law, which they maintain would prove disastrous in its present state to the producing and exhibiting industry, 500 combined exhibitors, distributors and producers have formed the M. P. and Allied Trades Industry Council. This will enable them to provide a united front when taking their representations before the legislators.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Details of the quota law introduced by the government of New South Wales have been made public here by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The quota for exhibitors would be four per cent for the first year, five per cent for the second year, seven and a half per cent for the third year, 10 per cent for the fourth year, and 12½ per cent for the fifth year.

The distributor's quota would be five per cent for the first year, seven and a half per cent for the second year, 10 per cent for the third year, 12½ per cent for the fourth year and 15 per cent for the fifth year.

This bill was introduced Dec. 5. It follows the introduction of similar legislation in Victoria, which was withdrawn in the face of objections similar to those which are now made to the bill in New South Wales.

Twin Theatre Being Built in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Jan. 15.—The Bexley, being built by Theodore Lindenberg in a suburban location, will, it is claimed, be the first twin theatre of its kind in the country. The house will have an aggregate seating capacity of approximately 600, and will be divided into two separate units by a solid wall, with an equal number of seats on each side. Pictures will be shown on both screens simultaneously from the same projector, using Lindenberg's own sound system.

The dual arrangement of the theatre will facilitate handling capacity business, and permit one auditorium to be closed when attendance is light. Moreover, since no unnatural enlargement of sound is necessary in a small auditorium, this, together with other improvements which the system embodies, will insure absolutely perfect sound, the inventor says. With this new system, subjects are shown life size on the screen, and it is possible to project pictures on more than two screens at the same time.

Youngclaus Forming Circuit in Midwest

OMAHA, Jan. 15.—W. L. Youngclaus, widely known for his lawsuits against distributors, one of which tied up the Omaha trade territory to the extent so that the code has been operating under limited authority because of a Federal injunction, may return to exhibition as head of a new circuit.

According to word received here, Youngclaus plans a string of houses in Nebraska and Iowa. He has already started renovating and equipping a new house in Albion, Neb. Others said to follow are to be located in O'Neill, Broken Bow and Wayne, Neb., and in Harlan, Ia.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Old Curiosity Shop"

(Associated British Pictures)

LONDON, Dec. 26.—A magnificent performance by Hay Petrie, the well-known British stage player, in the Chaney-esque role of Quilp is in itself sufficient to make this picture one to be very seriously considered. There is also the point that, if a sequence of Dickens' pictures is due, this is one which reproduces the atmosphere and the actual settings of the author with an exceptional fidelity; it is Dickens for the Dickensians—and they are a big community, numerically.

Petrie undoubtedly scores a triumph. Chaney might have achieved a make-up, grim grotesque and sometimes humorous without being impossibly revolting, comparable to that of the British artiste; it is doubtful if he could have acted it as well. Quilp is sometimes regarded as one of Dickens' monsters; as Petrie plays him, he is a monster of flesh and blood, with conviction in every caper of his distorted body and in every grimace of his evil face.

The story deftly epitomizes the famous novel, following the adventures of Little Nell and her grandfather before and after they have left the Old Curiosity Shop in fear that Quilp, having seized the shop, will have the old man sent to an asylum. Their wanderings bring them into touch with the rich range of Dickens characters—Mrs. Jarley of the famous Waxworks; Codlin and Short, the Punch and Judy men; the traveling showmen—all against the background of an England in which the stage-coach, the coaching inn, the horse and the hostler reappear as the first Dickens illustrator saw them. Parallel with the main story is the romance of Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness, and for the greater part the machinations of Quilp, until he meets death in the river in an attempt to escape the police, provide a sinister under-current.

Thomas Bentley, the director, has treated the ultra-sentimental episode of Little Nell's death with discretion. In Elaine Benson he has found an instinctive interpreter of the part. He is at his best, however, in the direction of Quilp's scenes and in the sense of character which he displays in the minor comedy. The Swiveller-Marchioness episode is somewhat stagey, and a more boyish Kit might have been selected, while the grandfather, though well played by Ben Webster, is necessarily rather a tiresome character.

Gibb McLaughlin as Sampson Brass, Dick Tubb as Codlin, Amy Veness as Mrs. Jarley, J. Fisher-White as the schoolmaster and Beatrix Thompson as Mrs. Quilp all seem to have stepped straight out of the pages of Dickens, and this fidelity to the original, on top of Petrie's achievement, takes the film well out of the rut.

"Mysterious Mr. Wong"

(Monogram)

Here is a combined mystery thriller and newspaper yarn that should please audiences and create favorable comment. It has fast moving and credible action backed up by good performances on the part of the entire cast. Effective comedy is thrown in for good measure.

William Nigh's direction is capable in that he did not let the story get away from him and turn into a farce. Harry Neuman's photography is good.

A sinister search for the mysterious 12 coins of Confucius, which are supposed to give their possessor sole sway over the Manchurian province of Keelat, has cast a pall over San Francisco's Chinatown. Murder after murder is committed as Bela Lugosi tries to get the coins. Wallace Ford, a reporter, is assigned to cover the murders and takes his girl friend, Arlene Judge, with him. Ford gets one of the coins, so Lugosi's hatchet men seize him and Miss Judge and imprison them in a torture chamber. From here on things move to a rapid climax with everything working out to general satisfaction.

Ford is particularly effective as the breezy reporter and Lugosi's portrayal of the sinister Oriental is very good.

This picture should hold its own on any program. Production Code Seal No. 423. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

"Cowboy Holiday"

(Syndicate)

There are no dusty saddles in "Cowboy Holiday," an Arthur Alexander western bearing the Beacon Prod. trade-mark. The appearance of "Big Boy" Williams is the cue for action, and when the fellow gets going he makes the villain's existence pretty miserable. There are the board refused. No testimony was given and a decision against Fox West Coast was handed down. Code Authority, in reversing the lower board, held that there was no reason for proceeding with the case after the compainant had requested dismissal. William Powers, attorney for F. W. C., last week charged the board with bias and prejudice when the case was up on appeal.

Seven decisions by local boards ordering bank nights stopped were sustained by Campi. They were: E. M. Tracey, Princess, Storm Lake, Ia., against George R. Norman, Empire, same city; Roy McAmis, Princess, Sayre, Okla., against G. A. Stovall and S. O. White, Rio, same city; Main Street, Circle, Lyric and Plaza, Oklahoma City, against Cozy, same city; Main Street, Circle, Lyric and Plaza, Tulsa, Okla., against the Gem, Tulsa, Okla.; Alameda, Alameda, Cal., against Arthur Richards, Neptune Palace, same city; C. A. Ferry, Granada, Alhambra, Cal., against O. W. Lewis, Mission, San Gabriel, Cal.; Mrs. Jennie H. Dodge, Mission, Ventura, Cal., against F. W. C. Glenn City, Santa Paula, Cal.

Leasing complaint of Barney Dubinsky, Miller & Jefferson, Jefferson City, Mo., against Leo Levy, Harry Sodini and W. H. Mueller, St. Louis, which was certified to Campi for determination, was dismissed.

Local boards were sustained in three clearance cases. They were: Alex Bellette, Grand, Frederickstown, Pa., against Peter Profili, American, Vestaburg, Pa.; Earl M. Forte, Ambassador, Philadelphia, against Stanley Co. of America, Benn, same city; John H. Hiser, State, Bethesda, Md., against Warners' Avalon, Washington, D. C.

Clearance Cut for Two Virginia Towns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Clearance given Martinsville over Bassetts, Va., was cut from 30 to 14 days by decision of the grievance board today in a case brought by J. B. Webster, Bassetts, against Mrs. R. W. Carper, Martinsville.

C. E. Carey, operating the Capital, Ocean City, Md., protested the clearance given Salisbury theatres and asked that protection be removed, especially during the summer. The board decided that the present 14 days is reasonable, but stated that Carey might make whatever private agreement between Salisbury and distributors he could for the benefit of his resort houses.

Four Board Changes Approved by Campi

Four replacements on local boards have been approved by Campi.

E. L. Cole succeeds Love B. Harrell as secretary of the Atlanta board. Roy M. Avery, new Atlanta branch manager for M-G-M, succeeds the late James W. Hanlon on the local clearance and zoning board. I. W. Farrar of Loew's replaces Jack Flex, same circuit, on the Indianapolis clearance and zoning board. A. J. O'Keefe of Universal has succeeded William C. Riter of Columbia on the Los Angeles clearance and zoning board.

Looking 'Em Over

times when the tale grows pretty tall, but this weakness is more than made up for by the sizzling pace and excitement of the story.

The villain is a deputy sheriff who takes advantage of the security offered by his position to prey on ranch folk. By night he poses as a notorious bandit, who happens to have gone straight. The villain doesn't know this, and so it is that suspicion is aroused that the one responsible for all the outlawry is someone other than the reformed bad man. From then on it is just a question of maneuvering the villain into a tight spot, something that is neatly and easily done with Williams around.

There is worked into the story a suggestion of a romance between Williams and Janet Chandler. Julian Revaro, Dick Alexander, John Elliott, Julia Bejarano and Alma Chester are other players. Bob Hill directed.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Carnival"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.—Using puppet show people against a circus background, Robert Riskin's story, directed by Walter Lang, tells of Lee Tracy, whose wife dies in childbirth, leaving him as the father and mother of a baby boy, aided by Sally Eilers and abetted by Jimmy Durante.

Successfully introducing the ingredients of father love, hokum comedy, baby parade, "hey rube" fight and circus fire, the entertainment is directed more to the eye than to the heart, though emotions are touched somewhat.

Tracy, Miss Eilers and Durante hold three top spots, giving substantial performances, with Durante shading the others as Tracy's light-fingered pal. Florence Rice, Thomas Jackson and Lucien Littlefield support. Sideshow freaks are introduced, as are incubator babies and other showmanship angles, all of which give exhibitors' exploitation opportunities.

The picture is good ordinary entertainment and satisfies as such. Production Code Seal No. 531. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Schall's NRA Attack Not Taken Seriously

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Introduction in the Senate yesterday of a bill to repeal Title I of the NIRA by Senator Schall of Minnesota was dismissed today in informed circles as of little or no importance.

The bill would eliminate all provisions for codes from the law, a step to which the Administration would be uncompromisingly opposed.

On the other hand, the President is said to have before him a report from his advisors outlining three ways for handling the NRA in the future. One method would call for skeletonizing of codes to labor provisions and a few trade practices. The second would call for continuation of the NRA on a temporary basis, say for another year, while the third contemplates continuation of the administration permanently and with but little change in its setup or aims.

Senator Schall has been fighting the Administration and has attacked at various times both the codes and the Federal Communications Commission, charging the latter with aiding the Administration in an alleged effort to abolish freedom of speech.

Burglars Get $1,500

WEIRTON, W. Va., Jan. 15.—Burglars dynamited the safe of the Manos Amusement Co., escaping with $1,500, the receipts of the company's three theatres and a restaurant.

Dubinsky Wins His One Operator Fight

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 15.—After a long squabble with the unions, Ed Dubinsky has won his fight for one-man operation from the I. A. T. S. E. operators' local here, it is revealed by reinstatement of the unions at his four houses here. Stagehands and musicians who opposed Dubinsky in sympathy with the operators, also have been recalled.

The operators returned to work at the old scale of $52.50 weekly, which prevailed before the break in the fall of 1933. The saving is in the booth personnel.

Members of the Independent M. P. Operators' Union, brought in by Dubinsky to replace the I. A. T. S. E. men, have been discharged. Irked over losing their jobs, they have filed claims for $6,500 with the NRA compliance board here demanding return of wages allegedly withheld in the period they worked for Dubinsky during the circuit's trouble with the I. A. T. S. E.

The complaint states each operator was compelled to kick back $17.50 of his $52.50 weekly wage, Dubinsky assertedly using the money to defray the expense of its controversy with the I. A. T. S. E.

Neb.-Ia. Unit for Code with Changes

OMAHA, Jan. 15.—A majority of the members of the Nebraska and Iowa M. P. T. O. at their convention here today indicated that they favored the continued operation of the code though some changes were held essential for its success. Particularly they suggested some means should be found to get quicker action from Code Authority on appeals. They also asked code procedure be simplified, that it have more teeth in order to be more operative.

No official vote was taken on any question.

Dale Goldie of Cherokee, Ia., and R. E. Falkenberg of Lexington, Neb., were named second and third vice-presidents, respectively. Regular election of officers is scheduled for October.

Loew Withdraws Two Grievance Charges

Loew withdrew two complaints filed before the New York grievance board yesterday. One was the complaint by Loew's Gates, Brooklyn, against the Marvin on reduced admissions. Loew's previously had won a decision.

The second case was Loew's New York against the Liberty for premature advertising.

M-G-M's complaint against James E. Ring, Thomas Gluck, Julia Weiss and Fords Plauhouse, Inc., for alleged illegal transfer of a theatre was dismissed by the board because of non-appearance of the complainant.

Exhibitors Had Fun Until Those 24 Dots Were Found

Up to Saturday night all Manhattan exhibitors, most of those from Brooklyn and a few of those from Staten Island thought they knew something about dice. They had heard the cubes had six sides and 21 dots, at least.

They also knew a gold brick salesman when they met one, and none of them ever bought 25-cent wrist watches.

That was up to Saturday night.

Distributors, of course, were gullible. If an exhibitor short-changed them on a percentage deal it was all in the day's work. Should they suspect a percentage deal on their nights off?

Saturday night they donned the stiff shirts, aired the camphor out of the dinner clothes, partook of some rich food and strolled into the rooms off the ballroom at the Astor to do a little wheel-spinning and roll a few bones. It was all for the benefit of

English Archbishop Demands Censorship

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The Archbishop of Canterbury yesterday headed a deputation that visited Prime Minister MacDonald to denounce immorality in pictures and demand a state censorship.

At present the release of pictures is controlled by a board of censors and the present board is neither paid by nor responsible to the government. "In fact," claimed a member of the deputation, "it pays for and censors itself."

MacDonald promised the subject would be "examined immediately with a view of deciding what is the wisest course to pursue."

Sir Charles Grant Robertson, chairman of the National Cinema Inquiry Committee, supported the Archbishop and said that independent investigation revealed that at least one-quarter of the pictures passed by the censor were for one reason or another "unsatisfactory."

The Prime Minister then announced that the government was ready to consider any practical steps to relieve this situation.

Brandt, S. & C. Battle

Harry Brandt and Springer & Cocalis are in a competitive battle on Long Island with both independent circuit operators bidding for product. Brandt recently acquired the Capitol, Bayside, former S. & C. house. S. & C. took over the Rectory, same city, after he lost the Capitol, and is now trying to get exchanges to switch contracts, a move Brandt is fighting.

Producer Row Before Campi For 1st Time

Goldsmith made the picture for Mascot, leaving Hollywood with contracts for 100 theatres which it cannot serve.

Jacob Schechter represented Bellman; Stephen Eller, Goldsmith Prod., and Gordon W. Levoy, Mascot. The complainant submitted 27 exhibits, the defendant, two.

A Mascot official stated last night that Goldsmith had supervised the picture for Mascot. There was no hope of settling the dispute at a late hour last evening. Levoy and Eller came from California to try the case.

Schwartz-RKO Case To Be Heard Today

A. H. Schwartz's clearance and zoning complaint against RKO asking that the latter's seven-day protection for the Columbia and Park, Far Rockaway, and the Alden, Jamaica, over Century's Fantasy, Rockville Center, be eliminated, will come up today before the main New York clearance board. Louis Nizer has been retained by RKO and Mitchell Klupt will represent the independent circuit.

Originally scheduled to come before the Long Island advisory board in accordance with the custom in all previous cases involving that territory, the main board took the dispute out of the lower board's hands when it was found that most of the members of the advisory committee were affiliated with Century in one way or another.

Morris Kutinsky's overbuying complaint against Century, involving selective contracts, is slated to be decided by Campi today. The New York grievance board previously awarded Kutinsky all over 250 films Century had bought for its Queen, Queens Village, L. I. Kutinsky has the Community, same town.

Coast Rate Charge Is Heard by Campi

Charges that Morgan Walsh did not live up to the minimum admission price in his contracts for the T. & D., Oakland, Cal., made by J. Blumenfeld of the American, same city, were heard on appeal yesterday by a Campi committee consisting of Harry H. Buxbaum and William Yoost. John C. Flinn sat in as a member of the board in the absence of R. H. Cochrane.

Other cases heard were the clearance complaint by the Fenray, Martins Ferry, O., against all first runs in Wheeling, W. Va. L. F. Eick, manager of the Fenray, said that his theatre is not in competition with the Warner houses and that Wheeling is two miles from his city.

The Capitol, Bellaire, O., also complained against Warners clearance in Wheeling, but the complainant was not on hand to give additional testimony. I. Levinson, L. J. Kaufman and Nickitas Dipson represented Warners. Sidney Justin represented Paramount which has a theatre in Wheeling.

declared the stories were a "bit premature." He arrived on the Olympic with Elisabeth Bergner, who opens in a few days in "Escape Me Never."

The Selwyn-Cochran tieup was announced last week in a publicity release by Nat Dorfman, Selwyn's press agent. The story was accorded quite a break by all New York dailies.

Cochran also explained that S. R. Kent and Winfield Sheehan some time ago released him from his contract with the company so that he could concentrate on other activities.

Miss Bergner recently completed a picture version for B. & D. of "Escape Me Never." She will remain in New York with the play for 12 weeks and then return to appear in "St. Joan," by George Bernard Shaw. The author also wrote the script for the picture and negotiations are now under way with an English company to produce. Dr. Paul Czinner, Miss Bergner's husband, will direct. Cochran will return to London in 10 days, he said.

Broadcasters Seek Revival Of Popularity

sun as producers of consequence," the publication asserts.

"Today some 90 per cent of the leading radio programs are produced by advertising agencies or production groups associated with advertising agencies, giving the broadcasters no choice but to remain exhibitors only. Now the broadcasters find that the agencies are not showmen but are submerging the talent of their continuity writers and contract performers to the commercial messages of their clients, 'depopularizing' radio entertainment."

In their effort "to become producers again" the broadcasters, according to the Herald, "face the prospect of expanding their skeleton sales staffs, engaging the services of first class theatrical producers with a background of practical radio production, hiring better talent as a general practice for all programs rather than for a few and speeding up the mechanism of all departments, even to the inclusion of less wearisome facilities for handling studio audiences."

The new types of shows would run much longer than they do now, even as much as three hours, with entertainment of every variety. Any number of advertisers would have time on the same program.

NBC and CBS are leading the new movement. The former has already discussed the idea with a number of national advertisers.

The big radio chains are so confident that the new policy will capture public approval that they are advancing their rates.

LITTLE ME

HARRISON'S REPORTS January 12, 1935

"Little Men"

(Mascot Pictures; running time 77 min.)

The best independent picture produced in years.

It is wholesome entertainment for the family trade. It has deep human interest. Some of the situations should bring tears to the eyes, and others should provoke hearty laughter. Supposedly a continuation of the life led by Jo, the heroine of "Little Women," after she had married the professor, most of the action revolves, not around the grownups, but around the orphan children being cared for and educated by Jo and her husband. The picture deals mostly with the joys, sorrows, squabbles and pranks of the children. Fine performances are given by the boys, particularly by Buster Phelps, who is crippled and occasionally bemoans the fact that he cannot join the other boys at play; also by Frankie Darro, who is rough but honest, and ready to help out others in trouble, as well as David Durand, who is at times weak, but always generous. The most sympathetic character, however, is Erin O'Brien-Moore (Jo), who is gentle and motherly in her treatment of all the children.

In the development of the plot, Darro, who had been induced by Durant to join the orphan asylum, is accused of a theft he had not committed. Despite Erin's protestations, he is sent to a reform school. It is later discovered that Darro is innocent. At a holiday celebration everyone feels that their joy would be complete if Darro were with them. And he does return, having run away from the school, because he had been treated cruelly.

The story is by Louise M. Alcott. Phil Rosen is the director. In the cast are Ralph Morgan, Trent Durkin, Cora Sue Collins, Phyllis Fraser, Dickie Moore, Gustave Von Seyffertitz, and others.

Regardless of its box office value, this picture should be shown everywhere; it will do the industry much good.

Excellent for children, adolescents, and Sundays.
Suitability, Class A.

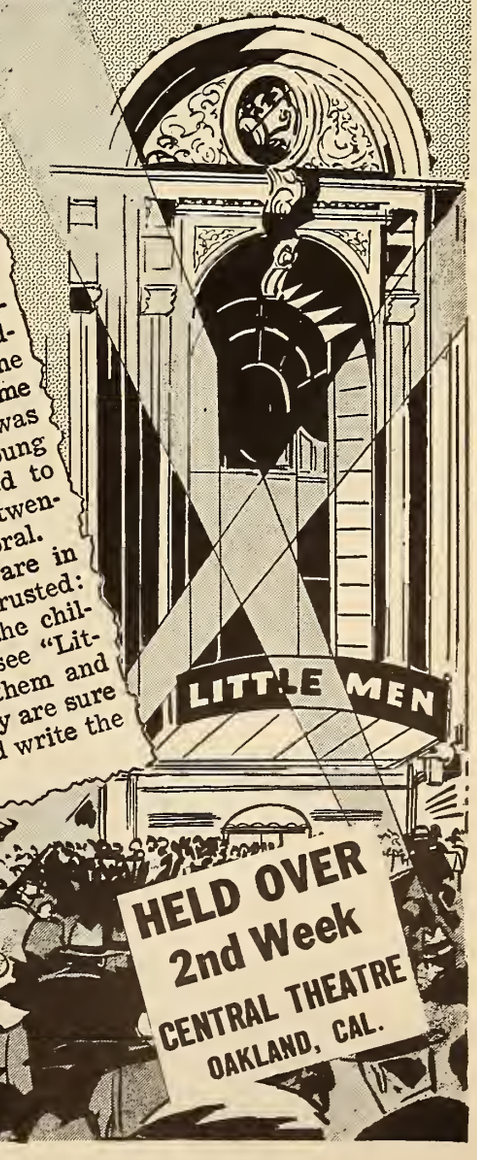
FRIDAY, DECEMBER 28.

A great intellect is a generation's best endowment.

SEE "LITTLE MEN."



The telephone rang—which was not news. A lady introduced herself—which was almost news, because many females are inclined to conceal their identity on the wire. "I am," she said, "an old-fashioned mother, and I have two boys. I often have to complain about the movies that are offered; so, when I see one that is fine, I think I ought to commend it. There is at the Byrd this week a film called 'Little Men.' It is one of the best I ever saw, especially for children. I wish you would urge every mother in Richmond to take her children to see it."

Adult judgment of pictures is not always accurate, according to the standards of youth. We decided to check the good report by the impression of some young movie fans. Their verdict was enthusiastic. "It's swell," one young gentleman remarked, and proceeded to outline the plot with none of the twentieth-century avoidance of the moral.

When youth and motherhood are in accord, their guidance can be trusted: Be sure, therefore, to send all the children to the Byrd forthwith to see "Little Men" and, if you go with them and like the picture as much as they are sure to do, tell the management and write the producer.

VIRGINIA'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER says:

Hope to Get Funds In Czechoslovakia

in Czechoslovakia after an interruption of more than 18 months. Although the agreement has been accepted for the industry, several large distributors retain hope of further concessions from Czechoslovakian authorities who, it is reported, have indicated a willingness to engage in further negotiations.

Not only leave to withdraw capital from Czechoslovakia is desired by distributors, as some expressed hopes of obtaining an import fee applied to negatives instead of positives. Action on this would probably await a three months' trial to disclose earnings possibilities on the present basis.

An inter-company agreement among the distributors delays the actual release of pictures in Czechoslovakia until Feb. 8 to permit companies who are without quarters in Prague to organize distribution facilities for an equal physical start.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Runaway Bride"

(B. & D.-U. A.)

Here is a picture from Britain that, although not as lavish in production values as some previous English efforts, should receive a nice reception here. It has none of the common defects usually found in films of this type, such as clipped accents, poor photography, lighting and sound tied in with a weak story.

Herbert Wilcox handled the direction in such a way that the story keeps moving at a pace fast enough to maintain audience interest throughout. The camera work of F. A. Young is particularly commendable because of outdoor scenes in the Swiss Alps and lakes.

In short, the story answers the question: Can romance defy caste? It is a tale of a queen and a commoner. Beautiful Anna Neagle is recalled from a New York store to ascend the throne of a European kingdom. In spite of all efforts for peace, a revolutionary party led by the commoner, Fernand Graavey, overthrows her and sets up a republic as she flees to Switzerland. Graavey, now president, leaves for a rest and meets the queen in the Swiss Alps. In this romantic surrounding, the two succumb to each other's charms, but keep their respective identities to themselves. Miss Neagle is then recalled by her people and Graavey is seized as a traitor. The action then moves quickly to the climax that finds the lovers together again and ready to head the government, Miss Neagle when it desires a queen and her husband when it desires a president.

Exploitation angles are here for showmen to use. It should prove a satisfactory picture from both sides of the box-office.

Production Code Seal No. 0216. Running time, 69 minutes. "G."

adding that this move was one of the various things he was going to look into. He will report his findings to Mark Ostrer who will arrive in three weeks for a five weeks' visit.

"Gaumont British during 1933-34 had its biggest year," Bernerd declared. He could not give figures, but added that the company's features are breaking records in English theatres. He also said that he did not bring any pictures over with him.

Originally, Bernerd said that his trip was his first holiday in years, but when pressed on the realignment subject admitted there was something to it.

On the same boat were Ida Lupino and her sister. Paramount recently took up the second-year option on Miss Lupino's contract and she heads for the coast tomorrow, her next picture unknown.

John Wood, who has been signed by RKO Radio, was a fellow passenger. He leaves for Hollywood today. Elisabeth Bergner was on the boat, too.

Row Over Maynard Is Sent to Campi

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 16.—J. O. Donovan, local code representative, has forwarded to New York for adjudication a complaint by Charles Burr of Burr Enterprises, who charges Ken Maynard with jumping a contract to make a series of pictures and signing up with Majestic. Also named are Larry Darmour and the Small-Landau Agency.

Burr says deals on the series had been closed throughout the country when the alleged breach of contract occurred and production was to have gotten underway Jan. 1.

Small-Landau asserts Burr failed to produce a bond agreed upon to bind an option secured by the producer on Maynard's services, with offers from Monogram and Majestic pending in the meantime.

Darmour is said to have given financial assurance to carry through the program of eight films the actor was to make. Burr allegedly spent much time and money feeling out the demand for Maynard, yet, the agency maintains, Burr was not financially able to carry out the contract and did not exercise his option when due.

Exhibitors Had Fun Until Those 24 Dots Were Found

the Independent Theatre Owners' treasury—on the up and up, as it were—and maybe a little fun on the side.

At one of the dice tables the chips were five smackers; at the other one buck would start the fun. The players rolled the dice down toward the boy who raked in the chips and threw the cubes back. One player won $8—he admits it. Others didn't.

Some say the losses ranged from $3,000 up to $20,000. Harry Brandt says it was only a few hundreds, but whatever it was Henry Randell, Brooklyn branch manager for Paramount, thought it was "colossal." He picked up the dice and found two sides with five dots on, instead of the customary two opposite the five.

Conversation developed. Somebody even used the word "crooked." The losers all crowded back to the tables and expressed themselves in the well-modulated tones the occasion demanded. Harry Brandt exercised his presidential authority and insisted that the house winnings should be returned and they were.

Later it developed that the playing privileges had been rented out to the owner of the equipment on a percentage basis. Exhibitors don't like checkers, so none was hired.

Since early Sunday morning everyone has been trying to keep it quiet and forget about it. They still are, but what some wives think of husbands who play with 24-dot dice — — —.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 16.—"Biography of a Bachelor Girl" took top money in a quiet week here. The $4,500 gross went $500 over average at the Midwest.

The Liberty fared well on its split week policy, getting $2,300 in four days with a combination of "Babbitt" on the screen and the Singers Midget Band on the stage. "Strange Wives," on for the other three days of the week, grossed only $500.

Total first run business was $13,200. Average is $13,500.

Indianans Asked to Push Family Shows

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 16.—Exhibitors are being urged by Associated Theatre Owners to cooperate with the American Ass'n of University Women in arranging family nights and children's matinees.

The women want family shows on Friday nights, with all subjects approved. They also want double bills eliminated on Saturdays when children attend matinees and object to "horror" pictures on these programs.

The Parent-Teacher groups have an ordinance, for which they are working, which would make family nights compulsory.

Gaumont May Handle B.I.P. Product Here

Ostrer and Dent Admit Discussing Proposal

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Gaumont British may distribute for British International in the United States. Mark Ostrer of G. B. and Arthur Dent of B. I. P. today admitted to your correspondent that such discussions have been held.

On the strength of continued and persistent reports that the Ostrers and John Maxwell, dominant factor in B. I. P. are discussing deals, perhaps of a varied assortment, shares of Associated British Pictures were higher today at 6/3d. and Gaumont British as well at 10/7d.

It is understood Maxwell has offered the committee of investigation of Premiums Gaining

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Current estimates are that approximately 160 theatres here are now using premiums and giveaways. Recent failure to put the premium question to a vote promises to increase the number of houses using giveaways.

Premium distributors are decidedly optimistic. Eight concerns, mostly along film row, are handling premiums.

Long Fox Met Struggle Goes Added Round

Charges Made, Apology Asked, That's All

All of the eminent counsel in the proceedings to reorganize Fox Metropolitan Playhouses have been agreed for months that prompt action in the case is essential or the estate and its patient creditors will take a terrific licking. Yesterday, in the third year of the rehabilitating process, counsel told Federal Judge Julian W. Mack that they were still of the same mind.

In fact, the principal Fox Met noteholders' committee, which claims to represent 89 per cent of the $12,460,000 secured notes of the company, has had its second completed plan of reorganization in hand each time it has come to court during the past month. It seems to be having some unexpected difficulty, however, in leaving the plan behind when the committee's counsel goes out of the courtroom. So many things keep cropping

Cummings Is Examining St. Louis Data

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A full evaluation of the results achieved in the St. Louis prosecutions is being made by the Department of Justice before a determination is reached as to where the Government will strike next, it was indicated today by Attorney General Homer Cummings.

It was said by the Attorney General that no immediate investigation was contemplated in any other city, but it was admitted at the department that complaints have been received from other places which are being studied. The Attorney General, however, admitted that unless a matter reaches a stage where sufficient substance is indicated to go into court it would not come to his attention.

Although Cummings said that so far as he knew there was no investigation going on in southern California,

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

IF the inside on the inside is all accurate and there appears reasonable reasons to conclude that it is, efforts made to ward off the St. Louis excitement were plentiful and valiant, reaching as they did into high places around the house painted white in Washington but with results already apparent and uncomfortable. Now what? That's the next question bandied about for answer, or answers, of which there may be several. It's largely a problem in attitude. If the Justice Department is lumbering along on the avowed purpose of proving at large that the anti-trust laws are not moss-covered and too completely lethargic, the additional grand jury probes hinted for other key cities beyond St. Louis first and Los Angeles second undoubtedly will develop. . . .

The original inside tip from Potomac shores, if you recall, had it that the film business was being jumped on as a sort of convenient springboard from which the trust busters of the nation could propel themselves into wholesale action. If this version holds up, its implications are extremely important in that they throw daylight into the situation's values and would tend to demonstrate that St. Louis developed, not so much because it rated development, but because it furnished the legalistic crusaders a reasonable opportunity to break their lances against a non-resisting enemy with many newspaper headlines gathered in the spoils. . . .

Another angle, suffused in reasonable conjecture, points up the Justice Department's reputed displeasure over the block booking system and its current gyrations as a scare designed to frighten the industry into some sort of a trade. Since this business often lacks the rigidity in its backbone which it might better enjoy, an offhand guess, based on considerable observation, informs that the odds of getting away with such a scheme were in Washington's favor. For the doctrine prevailing on many high film pinnacles is one of erroneous compromise when the pressure becomes felt on the theory there is far too much at stake to risk disruptions of major proportions. . . .

And still another slant concerns what is known as a consent decree. This is a very legal document in which indicted companies and individuals set forth in writing properly phrased their shame over deeds committed and their promise never more to tread the way of the transgressor. They sign it in all solemnity, as does the government; the pact is made binding for a period of years and the expensive goings on of waging and resisting a trial before the Federal bar is vitiated. A procedure such as this, however, must develop out of a mutuality arrived at by both parties. The indicted companies, if the Warner attitude is any criterion, will insist on a trial. But so may the government for that matter. Which leaves all of what has gone before in the dead center of exactly nothing except conjecture. . . .

The accord arrived at between the Czech government and the industry is important. It reopens that territory for American films and allows domestic producers to mill around in Europe's third best market. France is one and Spain is two. England, of course, outsteps all of them. . . .

officials admitted that agents are now in Los Angeles and the department is still studying the complaints from that area, but has not yet decided what course will be followed.

While the Attorney General stressed that no immediate action is planned, observers saw nothing in his statement to indicate that the department was not going ahead with the consideration of other prosecutions, although, naturally, the course it will follow will depend almost entirely upon what officials think of their chances to secure convictions. It is still predicted in Washington that the next move will be in Los Angeles.

Pictures Aiding in Crime War: Milliken

The industry is giving "definite assistance" to the nationwide crime drive, declares Carl E. Milliken, secretary of the M.P.P.D.A. He made this declaration yesterday at the annual meeting of the Federal Grand Jury Ass'n of the southern district of the N. Y. Bar Ass'n.

Milliken said pictures were using every means to avoid contributing to the making of crime or to undermining character and were continuing "definite and specific efforts to present within the proper scope of artistic creation, the best and most scientific methods of crime suppression by police and other law enforcement agencies."

Payroll Tax of 3% Asked for Insurance

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Employers in the film industry will be subject to a payroll tax, beginning Jan. 1, next, at one per cent and rising by the beginning of 1938 to three per cent, under an unemployment insurance bill introduced in Congress today by Senator Wagner of New York. The bill is designed to conform with a message from President Roosevelt asking for the enactment of social legislation.

Old age and unemployment insurance will be financed jointly by employers and state and Federal governments. The old age insurance tax, however, is not to be borne alone by employers, but half of the tax is to be deducted from employes' wages. Further, it is provided, there is to be no tax upon that portion of a payroll representing non-manual employes receiving more than $250 per month.

Clearance Dispute Ends in New Haven

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 17.—Following a long battle before the clearance and zoning board, in which the Dixwell protested against an increase in protection from 30 to 41 days, as a result of Loew's College unprecedented second run, the board passed a compromise decision of 37 days in favor of the Dixwell today.

Contending since the first hearing of the case on Jan. 7, that for eight years prior to this season the Dixwell had been served 30 days after first run, Dr. J. P. Fishman nevertheless agreed that 37 days' maximum would be a fair decision, reaffirming the provision of the revised clearance-zoning schedule, the adoption of which by Campi New Haven exhibs have been urging strongly.

The final decision was passed by a three to two vote, Morris Joseph not voting. It provides that the College shall have a 30-day maximum clearance, so long as it charges 30 cents; and that the Dixwell shall have a 37-day maximum on a 25-cent admission, or a 30-day maximum on a corresponding raise in admission. It is specifically stated that the board does not intend to increase existing clearances which are shorter than the maximum set out in the revised schedule.

A similar case has been filed by the Whalley, and Edward G. Levy, M. P. T. O. secretary, reports several others are in the offing.

The State here, filed a complaint against the Lawrence this week under the reduced admission clause. The Lawrence counterpointed by filing an identical complaint against the State, and obtained a continuance of the hearing on the first complaint from Friday to Monday, Jan. 21, when both cases will be heard by the grievance board. In the meantime, both theatres will run five-cent matinees Saturday.

Delay Century-RKO Case

Century's clearance complaint against RKO in Long Island was again postponed yesterday, this time at the request of the complainant. The new hearing is set for Jan. 31. The plaintiff seeks to eliminate a seven-day protection RKO houses have in Far Rockaway and Jamaica over the Fantasy, Rockville Center.

Looking 'Em Over

"Clive of India"

(20th Century-United Artists)

Three times in India and back in London to meet the carping criticism piled up around his head by enemies, it is a stirring and simple speech which Ronald Colman, as Lord Clive, makes to the House of Commons in defense of his career. And when the prime minister shortly thereafter tells him of the high measure in which the King holds those services, the picture of which these two effective sequences are a part comes to a touching conclusion.

But all of "Clive of India" is not on the same plane. Or perhaps that is asking too much. Dash and verve mark its opening sequences, showing, as they do, the impetuous East India Company clerk, the destiny that takes him into the army and courage that makes him the conqueror of Southern India. In his headlong dash toward the top, Clive sweeps Loretta Young off her feet and into his arms as he sweeps the enemy before him.

The first phase of his job done, he goes back to England on promise to his wife that there he will remain. Then comes the second urge and so Clive goes back to the scene of his first victories to further cement for England the empire over the seas. Ultimately develops the second return to England and private life, if only for a spell. The third venture finds him going alone, his wife discouraged by his broken promises and warning him that inevitably success will be crowned with disaster. On Indian soil, with at home newspapers after his scalp, Clive hurries to the mother country again, and as the picture closes, is found in his wife's arms and with the King's gratitude ringing in his ears.

There is considerable color in the production which has been turned out on a large scale. The armored elephants in the battle of Plassey are something new in celluloid battles, but the staccato close-ups of men dying in their audible terror are unnecessary and unsuited for feminine and juvenile patronage.

As the picture stands, it is somewhat repetitious and seemingly overlong. In point of acting, Colman and Miss Young are good in the principal roles with an assortment of sincere performances furnished by Colin Clive, Francis Lister, C. Aubrey Smith, Montagu Love, Lumsden Hare and others. Richard Boleslawski directed.

"Hollywood Mystery"

(Principal)

Regal has produced in "Hollywood Mystery" entertainment that ought to go well at neighborhood houses. It is fast-moving, filled with action, its story briskly told and its acting capable for the most part. The tale mingles the underworld with the world of Hollywood.

Frank Albertson, publicity man for a producing company, tries to help his boss (Tenen Holtz) to handle an inflated foreign director, who demands a real gangster for the chief role of a racketeer in an underworld picture. To mollify the fellow Albertson hires an Italian actor (Jose Crespo) to pose as a gang chieftain.

A fight is staged in a night spot in which the ham is made to emerge in heroic colors. The director (John Davidson) is completely taken in and insists the bogus gangster be signed for the star role. At the same time Albertson manages to get the girl friend (June Clyde) engaged for the feminine lead.

Things start to get hot when the discovery is made that the ham socked an underworld big shot by mistake. When the gangster learns the identity of the man who smacked him, it takes him no time to corner him and hand him a lacing. The police break up the little party, pull in the tough guy and his pals and learn the truth about Signor Crespo.

There is considerable fun in the film as well as melodramatics. Breezy Eason directed. No code seal. Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

Buddy Morris, son of the foreign head and president of Music Publishers Holding Corp., which controls Witmark, Harms and several other companies, also was a passenger on the Italian liner. He said that he renewed a contract with Bert Feldman of Feldman & Co. to handle Warner music in England for the next three years. He also closed a three-year deal with Chappell & Co. for the Continent and Australia.

Discussing music conditions abroad, Buddy Morris declared there was no need for signing foreign writers, since most of the music is of American origin. "Every place you go you hear American tunes," he said.

Long Fox Met Struggle Goes Added Round

up that have to be settled first. For example, yesterday's hearing was diverted by an indelicate charge by one lawyer that some other lawyers were laying unholy hands on money that belonged to the bondholders. Time was taken out while the advisability of apologies or, in lieu of them, a scolding by the court, was argued.

Milton C. Weisman, present as receiver for Fox Theatres Corp., which owns the 100,000 shares of Fox Met common stock outstanding, had made the discomfiting implication against Beekman, Bogue & Clark, counsel for the Fox Met noteholders' committee, in a brief submitted to the court. Weisman took the position, in arguing against the necessity for an apology, that, while he may have been mistaken in his premise, no harm had been done. The argument promised to continue indefinitely, but Judge Mack terminated it neatly by observing to Weisman that "if you, as an attorney, cannot see the need here for an apology, nothing the court could say would make it plainer to you."

$5,750,000 Claim Against Fox Met

Weisman has filed a claim of $5,750,000 against Fox Met on behalf of Fox Theatres' stock ownership in the former. The Fox Theatres' receivers who preceded Weisman had regarded this claim as worth only $4,500,000 and indicated they would be willing to settle for $100,000. Weisman disdained such a settlement and filed the claim in the increased amount. The bondholders' committee contends that Fox Met is insolvent and intimates, in effect, that the stock certificates might make an interesting wall design in the refurbishing of an office in the modern motif.

An alleged attempt by Weisman to convert the committee to a different viewpoint was recounted to the court yesterday by Morton G. Bogue, of counsel for the committee. According to this version, Weisman lunched with Bogue, his associate, William L. Bainton, and Alvin J. Schlosser and Ernest W. Niver, members of the noteholders' committee, and proposed a plan of reorganization for Fox Met which would give noteholders the same amount of bonds of a reorganized company as is now proposed in the bondholders' own reorganization plan, and for the balance of their claims they would receive some cash and a non-cumulative preferred stock of the new company, while Fox Theatres would subscribe $500,000 for all of the common stock of the new company.

Makes Charge Against Weisman

"After listening to his proposal," Bogue related, "we showed him how far apart we were in our viewpoints."

He failed to state who paid for the lunch.

Thereafter, Bogue said, Weisman, accompanied by Basil O'Connor, counsel for the Fox Theatres' receiver, met him a second time and, according to Bogue, "threatened to destroy the committee and its members by introducing charges against them, and otherwise, unless they got what they wanted."

Weisman denied the charge, saying that he was "not so foolish as to threaten."

"I merely tried to get together with them," Weisman said, "because I believe the estate could be destroyed while we fought, if obliged to."

Weisman previously had stated to the court that he "had been informed" that William M. Greve, a member of the bondholders' committee, had traded in Fox Met bonds to the extent of $600.000, buying them at prices ranging from $40 to $130 per $1,000 and that Greve had subsequently transferred ownership of the bonds "to one of the corporations he controls after learning of my plans to bring charges against him." Weisman also charged that Max Horwitz, another member of the committee, who, he said, was formerly identified with Hallgarten & Co., had traded in the bonds for that company. He concluded by saying that members of the committee should submit themselves for examination in court on their trading in Fox Met bonds.

Bogue, as counsel for the committee members, entered a denial of the charges, pointing out that an examination as to their alleged trading in the bonds, could take place at the time of a hearing on the fairness of a plan of reorganization.

Judge Mack declared that Weisman had no standing as between the bondholders' committee and their doings, stating that it was up to the committee whether or not the men on it should be removed, but adding that "the charges against them will be taken up by the court before any plan is approved."

"There ought to be some plan evolved soon," Judge Mack said, "to avoid throwing this company back into a detrimental receivership or bankruptcy. I am willing to sit down with the parties in interest and try to make an adjustment of their differences for that reason."

Judge Mack granted applications by both the bondholders' committee and the Fox Theatres' receiver for leave to intervene in the reorganization proceedings. The motion of each was opposed by the other, and Bogue offered to withdraw his committee's application when Weisman made his opposition but was not permitted to by the court. The order of intervention has but little significance, merely entitling intervenors to be served with notices of all proceedings. Bogue's application for court sanction of the mailing out of copies of the committee's plan of reorganization to creditors with provable claims for their acceptance was denied by the court as unnecessary to the procedure.

The committee will now proceed with its effort to obtain acceptances of the plan prior to formally filing it with the court for a hearing on its fairness. This is regarded as a routine procedure as only 25 per cent of the bondholders are required to accept the plan in order to have it presented to the court.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Whole Town's Talking"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 17.—Using as a springboard the dual role of tough gangster and meek clerk, Edward G. Robinson literally bounces back into the limelight in one of the season's finest entertainments. It should be a terrific moneymaker.

Not since "Little Caesar" has Robinson had a role so meaty as the one he milks with such deftness for crackling audience reactions of sympathy, laughter and hate.

As a timid wage slave addicted to writing poetry, he unknowingly resembles Public Enemy No. 1. Catapulted into a dragnet, the police insist he is Killer Mannion until he is identified as Clerk Jones. The police, to protect themselves, give him a letter of identification in order to leave them free to hunt Mannion.

Stimulated by drink and with his ego expanded by an admiring boss and a reporter, he comes home and meets Mannion face to face. The gangster demands the identification letter for night use, agreeing to let the clerk use it in the daytime, both to occupy the clerk's apartment.

With such a satirical, yet laugh-provoking premise, the ensuing action is fraught with tingling excitement and surprise twists, the action moving at breckneck speed and with a suspense that gave a preview audience the jitters.

The contrasting swagger of the gang leader and the self-effacing mannerisms of the clerk furnish hilarious laughter until a romance climaxes in powerful dramatic strokes as the gang chief is rubbed out.

John Ford again demonstrates in "The Whole Town's Talking" the directorial genius evinced in "Arrowsmith," "The Lost Patrol" and "Judge Priest." Jo Swerling's and Robert Riskin's screen play from W. B. Burnett's story is a model in dextrous writing of balanced comedy, drama and smart dialogue.

The cast is outstanding. It includes Jean Arthur, Wallace Ford, Donald Meek, Ed Brophy, Arthur Hohl, Arthur Byron, Etienne Girardot, J. Farrell MacDonald, John Wray and Effie Ellsler. Joe August's photography, including his double exposure, is excellent.

The high spot is Robinson's drinking scene. It is Chaplinesque. The preview audience applauded vigorously.

Combining violent melodrama with whimsical characterization and laughs aplenty, Columbia has produced smash entertainment that may well bracket in popularity "It Happened One Night" and "One Night of Love." Previewed without Production Code Seal. Running time, 97 minutes. "G."

Closed Para. Hearings to Be Requested

the hearing of all those opposed to the consolidated plans.

Efforts may be made, it is understood, to restrict the time allotted to those in opposition to the plan tomorrow so that all may be heard briefly. Detailed opposition to the plan will be restricted to the closed hearings in chambers later, if the application to conduct such hearings is granted by the court. In this case, objectors would probably be heard separately.

Opposition to the plan is still not clearly defined in the ranks of influential creditor representation. Samuel Zirn, counsel for a small bondholders' group, and Archibald Palmer, appearing in the nature of public defender, rather than as a creditor representative, have constituted the sole opposition to the proceedings thus far. Classified in the probable ranks of opposition, also, is an independent bondholders' group represented by Szold and Brandwen.

Seek 2 to 4 Industry Men

The stockholders' committee and the merchandise creditors' committee, both being influential groups, are known to favor the addition to the board of directors of the new company as many as two to four men of industry experience. While not outwardly opposed to the plan, these groups may withhold their approval of it until some adjustment of their views on the new management has been made.

Reorganization groups held several meetings during the past week on nomination of new candidates for the board, including a lengthy meeting yesterday, but failed to arrive at anything decisive. Additional meetings are scheduled for this week-end. Meanwhile, the names of George Schaefer, Paramount general manager; Frank C. Walker, vice-president of M. E .Comerford Circuit; Charles E. Richardson, former Paramount Publix trustee, and Barney Balaban of B. & K., recur most frequently in reorganization circles in this connection.

Palmer is expected to lead opposition to the plan at today's hearing with a charge that the reorganization procedure is irregular in that the plan is being offered by Paramount Publix whereas, he charges, no stockholders' meeting was held at which the plan was adopted for the company by its stockholders. Opposition to the payment of six per cent interest on the Paramount bank debt of $3,600,000, provided in the cash settlement of the banks' claims, is also expected to be renewed today and may lead to modification of that agreement. Demands for preferred treatment in the plan of subscribers to new common stock is also anticipated.

held Wednesday, when it was recommended to the litigants that efforts should be made to settle the case. This, however, failed to materialize and the hearing resumed where the litigants left off the previous day.

George Moser and John Golder of the Hollywood, Buffalo and Philadelphia exchanges, respectively, appeared for brief testimony. Both stated that they had been selling "Little Men" for some time and had not been advised to stop.

Bellman testified under examination by Mascot's attorney that he had entered into a deal with Ken Goldsmith of Goldsmith Prod., Ltd., on June 6, 1933, for six pictures, one of which was "Little Men." He said he had advertised and sold this picture to his accounts under terms of his contract and had not been advised directly by Goldsmith that the picture would not be delivered. Bellman added that he learned through the trade papers some time ago that Mascot was making it and that Goldsmith was supervising.

The plaintiff said that he had not defaulted on any payments under his contract and on May 7, 1934, entered into a modified agreement with Goldsmith on the picture.

Bellman Charges Conspiracy

Through his counsel, Jacob Schechter, Bellman declared that Mascot and Goldsmith had conspired to take the picture away from him.

Mascot's attorney held Bellman's contract was with Goldsmith Prod. and did not provide that Goldsmith himself should make it.

During the hearing, it was brought out that Bellman had signed for eight Ken Maynard pictures to be produced by C. C. Burr and that these will not be delivered because Burr's option has expired and he is making the series for Mascot. This evidence was stricken from the record after objection by Schechter.

Jack Fier of Mascot stated that production started on "Little Men" about Nov. 15 and a month later it was previewed at Green Bay, Wis. Stephen Eller represented Goldsmith Prod. The committee's recommendation will be sent to Campi for final determination.

Briefs were ordered submitted on Monday, but meanwhile the committee will study the evidence and exhibits. Depositions of interested parties in Hollywood who did not appear may be sought by the committee, it was indicated.

has been dark for some time, and at the Warner Theatre department it was stated that the theatre was merely leased for advertising purposes by the R. G. Miller Co.

Meantime, it appears that efforts on the part of Leonard O'Neill of the Cameo to stop the Saturday show by filing a complaint against Warner's theatre department, will be unsuccessful, since there is not sufficient time to call a meeting. O'Neill states that the Warner exchange head denied all knowledge of the booking. The Cameo manager maintains that the Warner theatre department is responsible.

The gathering was told that negotiations for a new standard contract cannot be consummated until after the present standard agreement, prepared by the Academy, expires next March.

No intimation was given that the actors would seek to gain their ends through the medium of a strike. The understanding, rather, was that the players desired to negotiate with producers on a friendly basis for the best interests of both sides, yet the guild was represented as definitely going on record as recognizing no agreements other than those prepared by it.

The guild yesterday received verification of its A.A.A.A. charter, which becomes effective when details are worked out.

When the first show broke at 10:11 P. M., crowds waiting for orchestra and mezzanine seats made it necessary to put up the tape.

Campi Reverses Contract On Selective Buys

Campi yesterday handed down an important decision relative to selective contracts when it reached a final determination on Morris Kutinsky's overbuying complaint against the Century circuit on Long Island. The plaintiff operates the Community, Queens Village, and Century has the Queens, same town.

When the case was decided by the New York grievance board, Kutinsky was awarded all over 250 pictures bought by Century. The respondent was ordered to submit within 15 days two lists of pictures over that figure from which the plaintiff could make his choice. Century appealed. Louis Nizer represented the plaintiff, while Mitchell Klupt represented Century.

Testifying to his confidence in the company's future, Johnston said that, based on his "intimate knowledge" of Paramount, he would have been willing to accept for his bank a settlement of the $13,000,000 claim against the company by its creditor bank

Seek to Avoid New Colorado Theatre Taxes

DENVER, Jan. 18.—With evidence proving that millions in Denver theatre investments have been lost in the past few years, exhibitors hope to convince the Colorado Legislature, now in session, that it should pass theatres by when looking for additional revenue for the next two years. An effort is to be made to pass a sales tax, and exhibitors will exert their influence to keep tickets exempt.

In Denver, and there is no reason to believe the situation is any worse here than in other sections of the state, 36 of the 40 theatres have suffered bankruptcy, rent adjustments, foreclosures or evictions.

All but three have changed hands,

Charnow 'Mercy' Plea Casts Campi Session Into Turmoil

Cries of "help" and a plea for "mercy" rang through the RKO Building and penetrated Campi's sanctum yesterday afternoon as Julius Charnow, operator of the Leonia, Leonia, N. J., screamed hysterically in the reception room at Code Authority headquarters. Campi members were "shocked" and temporarily bewildered at the outburst and had to call a halt to discussions of the Los Angeles clearance schedule until the echoes of Charnow's screams ebbed into oblivion.

Charnow, knowing that Campi was in session, several times asked the attendant to bring word to Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth for an interview. The New Jersey exhibitor wanted to see the NRA official in regard to his clearance situation, but all requests were denied.

Having lost his mother about three weeks ago, when she was killed in an automobile accident, and fearing the loss of his theatre because he could get no clearance relief from either the New York boards or Campi, Charnow lost control of himself and shrieked at the top of his lungs.

About two years ago the Leonia, which had been leased to Fox Metro-

Para.'s Bank Payment Plan Is Attacked

Lawyers Also Criticize Para. B'way Moves

Vigorous attacks on the proposed settlement of Paramount's $13,600,000 bank debt and on phases of the proposed plan of reorganization for Paramount Broadway, holding company for the Paramount Bldg. and theatre, marked the resumption of hearings yesterday on the Paramount Publix plan of reorganization before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe.

The hearing was adjourned until next Wednesday, at which time arguments in opposition to the consolidated Paramount Publix and Paramount Broadway plans will be heard. Efforts will be made to limit the arguments at this session and to conduct further hearings at closed sessions in chambers, it was learned. Yesterday's hearing saw the conclusion of the formal proof of both the Paramount and Broadway plans.

Attacks on the bank settlement which provides for the payment of $5,175,000 cash were led by Archibald Palmer, who also essayed to show that the reorganization procedure is irregular in that the plan is being offered by Paramount, whereas no stockholders' meeting was held at which the plan was adopted for the company.

Malcolm Sumner, counsel for bondholders, and Allied Owners' Corp., a large Paramount creditor, opposed phases of the Paramount Broadway reorganization plan. This plan, however, is favored by the two largest Broadway bondholders' committees, which together represent approximately half of the $8,875,000 bonds outstanding. Opponents of the plan contended that the bondholders' claims would not aggregate more than $3,000,000 or $4,000,000, whereas the reorganization plan, they held, involves Paramount in guarantees aggregating $4,400,000 and also provide for an annual rental of $260,000 for the Paramount Theatre and $188,000 for office space in the Paramount Bldg. The rentals were attacked as high.

Paramount Theatre Called Burden

A separation of the Broadway plan from the Paramount Publix plan was urged on the grounds that the Paramount is a hazardous financial investment and that without it Paramount could sell its first run pictures to other Broadway theatres and net $350,000 to $500,000 annually.

In addition to being defended for their utilitarian, good will and advertising values by the principal Broadway bondholders' committees, retention of the Paramount Bldg. and theatre was defended by Alfred Cook, counsel for Paramount Publix.

Objections by Allied Owners to the Broadway plan and the indicated objections to the Paramount plan of Szold & Brandwen, representing debenture holders, earlier in the day, disclosed the only new opposition to the plan to date. Nathan Burkan, representing the merchandise creditors' committee, indicated that that group might oppose the plan unless an agreement with reorganization committees is arrived at by Tuesday or Wednesday. Burkan's committee favors the election of additional industry men to the board of the new company.

Done Him Wrong," which played there two years ago. The house was compelled to keep open until 5 A. M. last Saturday because of the crowds.

The Capitol took a nosedive, garnering only $19,800 with "One Night of Love." "David Copperfield" opened strong yesterday and four policemen had to keep the early crowds in check.

"Evergreen," at the Music Hall last week dipped to a gross of $52,000. At the Roxy, "Unfinished Symphony" garnered a weak $22,500. Gaumont British spent $6,000 and the Roxy $2,500 for newspaper ads on the latter. "Enter Madame," at the Palace, tallied around $8,000.

"The Mighty Barnum" in five days of the fourth week at the Rivoli grossed $10,560.

Johnston Favors Banking Control for Para. Board group which provided for a cash payment of less than the $5,175,000 which the reorganization plan proposes.

"I confidently believe that all of the bank creditors will get their money," he said. "However, there are 15 banks involved and some of them, either because they haven't the intimate knowledge of Paramount that I have or because it would be unwise for some of them to accept any large amount of stock in settlement of their claims, cannot feel as I do about accepting a proposal other than this."

Under questioning by Archibald Palmer, counsel for holders of 3,600 shares of Paramount stock, Johnston's testimony proved one of the lighter interludes of an all-day court session marked by routine procedure.

Asked by Palmer why he opposed the exclusion of company men from the board of reorganized Paramount, Johnston replied: "Because they would be placed in the position of passing upon their own acts. That was tried before in Paramount, you know."

"At this time," Palmer pursued, "with the church and press assailing the industry as an immoral institution, you still believe the right policy would be to exclude from the board men with intimate knowledge of the industry in favor of bankers and economists?"

"I certainly do," Johnston replied. "We don't have to know how to make a picture. I don't know how to run a train or make an American radiator, but I am on the board of companies that do those things. I do think we know how to pick our management. That's the important thing."

"But you can make mistakes, Mr. Johnston?" Palmer asked.

"I don't know of anyone living who can't," was the reply.

"Do you think the Paramount board as now constituted is a good one?" Palmer asked next.

"I can speak only for myself. I think you could get a much better director than I, and I would be happy if you did," Johnston answered. "I resigned from 15 boards at the beginning of the year to conserve my time."

Johnston denied in response to a question that the banks had refused to accept a settlement on any other basis than that contained in the plan. Asked whether, in the course of the settlement negotiations between the bank committee and reorganization factors, the spokesmen for any other creditor committee had opposed the $5,175,000 cash payment to the banks, Johnston replied that Frank A. Vanderlip and other members of the debenture holders' committee, and Duncan Holmes and Maurice Newton of the stockholders' committee had. He said, however, that after discussion it was finally agreed that because the banks had put new money into Paramount they should receive an equal amount in cash and, for the balance of their claim, which represented old credit, they would take their place with other creditors of Paramount.

Johnston testified that the reorganization committees had discussed the underwriting of the new Paramount common stock with "numerous" financial houses, among them Hayden Stone & Co., Haligarten & Co. and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., but that the subject is still in an "ephemeral state." He added, however, that the underwriting "can be secured, barring a general economic calamity." He stated that, in his opinion, the new stock subscription rights would "have a value," basing his opinion on the present market quotations on Paramount certificates.

although the most recent change had nothing to do with financial difficulties.

The three largest and newest first runs have been in bankruptcy. The Denver and Paramount reverted to their owners when Paramount-Publix failed, and the Orpheum was taken over by the bondholders when RKO got into financial difficulties. Harry Huffman is now operating all three. Huffman also has the Tabor, former Bishop-Cass house, which has been through varied financial troubles.

The America has been torn down and the site is occupied by a department store. Other downtown theatres, still operating, but at reduced admissions, are the Isis, Rivoli, State, Victory, Plaza and Rialto.

Neighborhood houses have been hard hit. Several have been remodeled into stores, some are closed, some have been sold with losses, and others are operating with reduced rents.

Sold House at Third Cost

The Oriental, largest house in North Denver, was lost to the builder through foreclosure. Frank Culp erected the Granada for $36,000, and sold it four years later for $12,000. The Egyptian, eight years old, is now operating for half the rent called for originally. The Highlands and Alcott have been turned into department stores.

Builders lost money in the Washington Park, Gothic, Majestic, Hiawatha, Santa Fe and Jewel, and in the past five years, all have been through the courts once or more under bankruptcy or foreclosure.

The Aladdin, Ogden, Webber and Denham are the only spots in the city that have escaped the courts and are still operating at nearly their former scale of prices.

Novarro-M-G-M Split

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—Ramon Novarro's contract to do one more film for M-G-M has been canceled by mutual agreement. Lack of a suitable story was given as the reason. The actor, in cooperation with his brother, plans to make independently for the open market a film in Spanish and English, cash supplied by himself.

Upon the film's completion he will leave the beginning of April on a personal appearance tour of Europe. On his return, should M-G-M have found a story for him, he will return to the company; otherwise he will become a free agent, it is said.

Abilene and Salina Protection Row Up

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—H. F. Strowig, operating the Lyric and Seelye, Abilene, Kan., has filed a complaint with the local clearance and zoning board against seven days' protection held by Salina, Kan., over his town. He asserts the protection is excessive considering the fact the situations are separated by 25 miles. Salina is the larger town.

The board has set next Monday as the date for a hearing on the complaint of subsequents in St. Joseph, Mo., against Dubinsky Bros. charging excessive protection. Distributors named as respondents are Consolidated Film, Columbia, Fox, Majestic, M-G-M, Midwest, Paramount, RKO, Security, U. A., Universal, Vitagraph.

The four complainants allege an agreement exists between Dubinsky and the distributors to prohibit their buying second city run or to allow them to play pictures at an admission higher than 15 cents and thereby secure a prior run over Dubinsky's Crystal, or to allow them to secure films day and date with the Dubinsky house.

Regional Board Gets Two Operator Cases

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—The Regional Labor Board here is to hold hearings on two complaints by operators against exhibitors. Both charge violation of Section 7-A of the NIRA and make other allegations.

The I.A.T.S.E. local at Topeka charges discrimination in the discharge of its men by the new owner of the Best at the time he took the house over from Fox Midwest.

The second case involves E. S. Young, Central, Kansas City, who discharged an operator affiliated with a "rump" union when he entered into an agreement with Local 170, I.A.T.S.E. The independent union charges breach of contract.

Campi Makes Shifts

Ben Berinstein, a member of the Los Angeles grievance board, has been switched to the clearance board by Campi. He replaces Russell Rogers, unaffiliated exhibitor, resigned. M. Whitson succeeds Berinstein on the grievance committee. Abe Kaplan of U. A. has replaced Dave Miller on the Buffalo clearance and zoning board. Miller recently joined Warners in Philadelphia.

M. Rose of First Division has been appointed to the Albany clearance and zoning board.

L. A. Schedule Debated

After an all-day session yesterday devoted to discussion of the Los Angeles clearance schedule, Campi tabled the matter for the next hearing on Jan. 23. Fox, M-G-M and Warners are understood to have raised objections to the principle of admission price as the basis for clearance.

No action was taken on the Philadelphia ban on premiums.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Mystery of Edwin Drood"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.—Dickens' unfinished novel emerges as an exciting murder mystery laid in a small English village. The yarn concerns Claude Rains, dope addict, who murders his nephew, David Manners, in a jealous rage over Heather Angel, his betrothed.

Rains then contrives to build up circumstantial evidence against Douglass Montgomery, also in love with Miss Angel, but Montgomery, disguised as an old man, finally pins the murder where it belongs.

The story, well adapted to the screen by Leopold Atlas and Bradley King, features a spooky background for thrills and chills. Stuart Walker's direction shows a fine understanding of characterization and suspense elements. The cast is topnotch, including Rains, Manners, Montgomery, Miss Angel, George Ernest as a street urchin, Zeffie Tilbury as an opium woman, Walter Kingsford as Miss Angel's guardian, Franklin L. Sullivan as Tutor Crisparkle, and Forrester Harvey as Durdles.

The photography by George Robinson is excellent. The picture was produced smartly by Edmund Grainger. It rates well in production values and dramatic interest and should give satisfaction entertainment-wise and at the box-office. It is good for any spot. Production Code Seal No. 544. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

decide within 21 days after a picture plays on Broadway whether or not he will date it. If Century fails to reach a decision within the three-week period, the film immediately becomes available to Kutinsky.

The ruling is a reversal of the standard contract clause on selectivity. The contract provision states that if an exhibitor does not date a picture within 21 days after Broadway, this means that he has decided to play it later. The Code Authority ruling makes it imperative for Century to notify exchanges within three weeks if it wants a picture playing on Broadway. Otherwise, it loses the right to date it in.

On all pictures released previous to Jan. 1, Schwartz must decide within 10 days whether he wants them. Those passed by the boards will become available to Kutinsky.

K. C. Group May Go To U. S. with Plaints

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—If the I. T. O. at its meeting Monday fails to act against distributors on the local clearance setup and other grievances, a group of independents plans to take matters in its own hands and may carry its fight to Washington, it was revealed today. The showmen charge the protection program is being foisted on them under the guise of the NRA.

politan Playhouses, was dumped in his lap by Irving Trust Co., receivers. The house under Fox Met had been operated by Skouras Theatres Corp., which during its tenancy played prior runs. Since the theatre reverted to him, Charnow declares he has been unable to buy first, second or third runs, adding that he has to play after Loew's Embassy in Jersey City from 60 to 70 days because of the circuit's cumulative protection. This, Charnow declares, will force him to close and lose his entire investment in the house and make him penniless.

Similar Case in Fort Lee

Several weeks ago E. Thornton Kelly, who had the Palisades, Fort Lee, N. J., had a similar clearance situation and advised the local board and Campi that if he did not get relief he would be forced to close. No relief was given and Kelly is no longer an exhibitor.

Charnow's case had been before Campi several times, the final decision of the body being that it could do nothing for him.

At the sound of his screams several Campi members left the session and calmed Charnow, promising him nothing, but telling him that they would try to get the interested parties together and see what they could do for him. Farnsworth spoke to Charnow after he had calmed down.

The New Jersey exhibitor is a member of Allied, one of the first to sign the code, a member of the New Jersey clearance advisory committee and has sat in as a member of several Campi appeal committees.

Nathan Yamins, an Allied board member and president of the Independent Exhibitors of New England, was chairman of the Campi session yesterday.

Ontario to Extend Its Censorship Law

TORONTO, Jan. 18.—Legislation is to be brought down at the forthcoming session of the Ontario Parliament to provide for censorship of all "narrow film" for public presentation in the province as a result of the quandary in which the Provincial Government finds itself in connection with the showing of the Russian propaganda film "Ten Days That Shook the World."

Complaints have been received from various centres regarding the exhibition of this picture by the so-called Workers' Sports Ass'n., which is classed as a Red organization. No official action could be taken by the Government, however, because it was discovered that the Theatres and Cinematographs' Act did not require the censoring of narrow prints.

After the legislators get through with the proposed amendment all narrow films, including industrial, educational and religious subjects intended for showing before an audience will have to be passed upon by the censor board.

Sub-Standard Film Men Hit Censorship

The Miniature Movies Institute has started a drive to obtain exemption of 8mm and 16mm films from the provisions of State Senator John T. McCall's censorship bill calling for annual license fees and the posting of bonds by distributors and exhibitors. Petitions have been sent to the Senate Committee on Public Education, Governor Lehman, Senator McCall and other members of the legislature.

The institute points out that "35mm is the width of the theatre motion pictures which the McCall bill aims to regulate," adding that to place under the bill films intended for non-theatrical showing would be unfair.

Flareup Over Protection in K. C. Expected

Independents Protesting Against Fox Midwest

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20.—A flareup over protection is imminent in Kansas City, according to independent exhibitors who are demanding that the I. T. O. take some action. Their protest is against Fox Midwest, which, they charge, is being favored by distributors.

The St. Louis grand jury indictments have encouraged some independents to discuss the feasibility of bringing the local situation to the attention of Federal authorities. There is also talk of possible court action. Both of these courses are generally discounted, however, and calmer heads

Expect Hearing on Alien Actors Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Questions relating to the employment of alien actors in the United States are expected to be aired again before the House immigration committee within the next two weeks, in connection with the bill introduced by Representative Dickstein to make such persons subject to the contract labor provisions of the Immigration Law.

While Dickstein did not originally contemplate holding hearings, believing that all pertinent information had been developed at the hearings last year, members of the committee are

"I DON'T know how to run a train or make an American Radiator, but I am on the board of companies that do those things," said Percy H. Johnston during round three of the Paramount reorganization hearings on Friday. The former president and now the chairman of the board of the Chemical Bank was expounding again his theory that the management should be kept in the background and banking and investment houses in the foreground of Paramount's future operation. . . .

JOHNSTON'S attitude is the typical, to-be-expected attitude of the banking coterie toward this industry. It persuades this column to decide quickly that it is columns of figures which look appetizing because they happen to be temporarily lodged on the right side of the ledgers which induce that opinion, plus an impression that the divinely-designated banking men can do no wrong. Which is more than passing strange in view of the opinion, subscribed to here and

New British Regulations In Prospect

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Already operating under the Quota Act, legislation further regulating distributors is in the offing, the proposed restrictions being viewed as aimed principally at American companies.

The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. is active in the movement, its attitude and its course having been made clear by Major Ellis, a member of its general council, in an address before the Devon and Cornwall branch of the C. Jersey Clearance Up For Hearing Jan. 28

Hearing on an appeal of the Rosenblatt-Welt theatres against New Jersey exchanges for a reduction of clearance by Warners over the R-W Maplewood, Maplewood, is slated for Jan. 28.

Last year the Maplewood had Fox and U. A. and followed downtown Newark houses 21 days after the last playdate. This season Warner houses have both products with the 21-day provision and now the Maplewood has to wait not only the original three weeks, but, in addition, the extra clearance for the individual Warner houses.

Short Forcing Outlook Stirs Up Australia

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Dec. 12.—Exhibitors here are getting restive under a policy laid down by some distributors that in 1935 shorts must be bought with features. When the N. S. W. Exhibitors' Ass'n asked distributors to define their policy, Fox, Universal and United Artists declared that they would sell separately. Silence on the subject from other distributors is regarded as ominous.

As 99 per cent of Australian theatres run dual-feature bills, exhibitors contend that they have room for nothing more than a news reel, or shorts of proved drawing power, such as "Three Little Pigs." Realizing the

Impartial Man Ends Wisconsin Tie Vote

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 20.—The impartial member of the local clearance and zoning board was called upon to cast the deciding vote in the case of J. E. Draginis, operator of the Classic, Waupun vs. Fox Film, United Artists and the Fond du Lac Theatre at Fond du Lac.

Draginis sought relief from clearance claiming there was no competition between the Classic and Fond du Lac, which are approximately 20 miles apart. The deciding vote was cast in Draginis' favor and the board opined no clearance between the two towns was required.

RKO and Loew Product Deal Under Attack

M. & S. Demanding Films For Downtown Spots

Attempts to arbitrate charges brought by Meyer & Schneider involving an alleged conspiracy through the metropolitan product agreement entered into between RKO and Loew's last September will be made tomorrow before a trio of arbitrators, it was learned on Saturday. If sustained, the M. & S. charges may nullify the Loew's-RKO product agreement, possibly creating a film supply crisis here for RKO, in the opinion of Max D. Steuer, counsel for the plaintiffs.

The charges are based on an alleged breach of a lease provision entered into between RKO and M. & S. under which RKO is said to have agreed to play all first runs at the Hollywood

Move to Tip Scales Here Is Called Off

A plan to boost prices at local theatres has died aborning. A meeting of leading independent and circuit officials was to have been called several times, but the session never materialized.

According to the plan, all theatres were to boost admissions for evening shows. Many exhibitors find that with the low admission for matinee performances, patrons tend to keep away from the box-office at night because of the increased tariff. Hence, all meetings were called off.

in many other places as well, that the last four or five years had demonstrated pretty much beyond argument that even the bankers, elect and exclusive, did not quite understand what it was all about. . . .

There are so many costly experiences to draw upon from the not so dim pages of film history that furrowing familiar ground such as again seems to be timely must prove tiresome and as well as repetitious. Outsiders looking down on the celluloid scene usually to a man forget its volatile make-up, the slashing competition which often marks its careening course, the constant and bitter fight for place, the vital necessity for dispatch in framing decisions, the many and deep pitfalls so simple to fall into and so difficult of escape. . . .

Railroad men run the railroads, having sweated and slaved to earn their business majority over long periods of years. And so the parallel might be drawn in other fields. Why the bankers regard the film business in any other light is difficult to understand. There have been errors of judgment in all directions in this industry and those mistakes frequently have been costly. What of it? Certainly the bankers, as an institution, have not been wallowing in any particular glory in recent times, nor have they kept their noses so meticulously clean. . . .

One might imagine that, as the years slip by, the realization would come that there are elements of chance which stamp this industry as something apart from others. Rant against it and deplore it, but the facts are inescapable, nevertheless. Bankers play a part, of course, and it is an important and indispensable part. Management and a hefty word in the formulation of policy, however, belong to the men who may not know all, but who know more than the bankers about the flips of the wheel, the chances and the opportunities, the need for do and dare. So should it be not only at Paramount, but elsewhere. Film administration may be expensive. Go further and call it extravagant. Yet it can't, it couldn't cost more than a banker-for-bankers' operation for the long haul. . . .

Campi's week-end decision sustaining the selective buying provision of the code and, at the same time, reversing the standard contract, may do things to the long-established practice of block selling without the need for frenzied legislative activities in Washington. The standard form of contract stipulates that the exhibitor who has made his buy selectively must date pictures within 21 days after conclusion of the first run or resign himself to play films so undated at some nebulous and future time. The code stipulates the exhibitor who has made his buy selectively must book or reject within 21 days. Otherwise, the film becomes available to his competitor. . . .

It is this provision of the NRA document which Campi now upholds and, by so doing, negates the standard contract clause designed to cover this point. The case in issue was that of Morris Kutinsky, operator of the Community in Queens Village, versus A. H. Schwartz and his Century circuit, operating the Queens, same community. Campi held that the Queens, which had purchased 208 selectively from a group of 319 had not overbought. Rapidly thereafter, exhibition opinion began to formulate itself in the metropolitan area and drew the conclusion that, with this first test of the code's selectivity clause, it appears no longer necessary for them to buy any one distributor's product 100 per cent in order to acquire a preferred group of attractions. In other words, they read into Campi's decision a formal recognition of their right to buy selectively even if more pictures are tied up than may be required. . . .

Exchanges, no doubt, will insist that exhibitors will have to buy their output complete to get a preferred group. But now, as always, there is the factor of circuit buying power which exchanges cannot and will not ignore. This poises as anything but remote the ability of a circuit so blessed to get the pictures it may want on a selective basis without the necessity for taking the "also rans" as well. And that sounds like a pretty good-sized wallop at block booking. . . .

and Apollo day and date with the Academy and Jefferson. Under the provisions of the RKO-Loew's product agreement of last September, whereby Loew's released all of the Fox product and half of Columbia and Universal to RKO for situations not in conflict with Loew's, RKO was prevented from carrying out its first run playing agreement with M. & S. in the Hollywood and Apollo, it is charged. The two houses, which RKO leases from M. & S., are in competition with Loew's Delancey and Avenue B and thus under the terms of the product agreement, it is alleged, were prevented from playing day and date with the Academy and Jefferson, which are not competition for Loew's.

Under the provisions of the RKO-M. & S. lease, all disputes are to be submitted to arbitration prior to summary court action. The arbitrators named to hear the case at the N. Y. County Lawyers Ass'n tomorrow are George W. Retz, Judge Robert McC. Marsh and Maurice Deiches.

Essential Purpose of Action

The essential action brought by M. & S. is to compel RKO to play the same pictures at the Hollywood and Apollo which it plays in its other houses in the metropolitan area. This involves the playing of the Fox, Columbia and Universal product released to RKO by Loew's under the September agreement. Loew's had acquired this product early in the season, but entered into the releasing agreement with RKO when the latter, which had acquired only Radio and half of the Paramount and Warner product, was faced with a critical film supply situation.

Efforts were made at the time of the RKO-Loew's agreement to settle the complications presented by the Apollo and Hollywood, with RKO reported to have offered M. & S. $100,000 in settlement of the leases. Prior to that RKO had expended $20,000 on remodeling the houses. M. & S. was reported to have declined to consider a settlement offer of less than $160,000.

Attempts to reach William Mallard and I. E. Lambert of RKO for comment on the case Saturday were unsuccessful, as were similar attempts to communicate with J. Robert Rubin, Leopold Friedman and C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's.

"Marines" and Holiday Bill Boston Smash

Boston, Jan. 10.—In one of those New Year's eve shifts the RKO Boston ran up a huge $25,000, over par by $15,000. "The Marines Are Coming" with seven acts of vaudeville were bolstered New Year's night with "Romance in Manhattan."

The same situation prevailed at Keith's Memorial where "The Little Minister" ran for the week with "Romance in Manhattan" New Year's eve. Standing room was sold. The $15,500 take was $3,500 over par.

"Forsaking All Others" was the best straight film draw of the week, topping the usual take by $6,000 for a gross of $16,000 at Loew's State.

Total first run business was $76,500. Average is $64,000.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 4:

position, executives here have told their home offices to discontinue sending shorts, as it's impossible to place them, but in some cases, apparently, that attitude has cut no ice.

Two representatives of producers, distributors and exhibitors, and three outside the industry (one of whom will be Cresswell O'Reilly, the Federal censor) will comprise the advisory committee which will assist the minister to determine whether a picture submitted for quota reaches the necessary standard of merit under the discussed proposal.

Encouraged by the fact that they succeeded in blocking the quota in Victoria, British interests then turned their attention to N. S. W., but to no avail. The N. S. W. quota is fundamentally the same as that on which the Victorian Government did an inglorious volte face a few weeks ago. After announcing the quota would go through, the Victorian Cabinet, under hot pressure from British producers, threw it out when it went before the House.

Trouble has been simmering for some time between exhibitors and the Australian Performing Right Ass'n over the latter's proposal to calculate its receipts on turnover instead of seating capacity. A. P. R. A's. plan is to charge one penny a pound on gross receipts. The circuits estimate this would mean an added impost of £5,000 a year to them individually.

The parties in dispute prevented a threatening press propaganda campaign by deciding to go before arbitration, but since then they made a second decision to settle their differences between themselves if possible, and thus save expensive litigation. What surprises the industry is that A. P. R. A. dare seek increased charges when the Royal Commission as recently as three years ago described their fees, even at the existing rate, as excessive.

MELBOURNE, Dec. 12. — Centenary celebration here proved the greatest competition the amusement industry has had in years. Whereas theatre men were looking to the huge influx of visitors to boost them, receipts nose dived by reason of the plethora of outside attractions offered to the public for free admission.

Melbourne theatre men will have every reason to remember the last three months of 1934 as about the worst in their history. Not only did the centenary and visit of royalty hit them severely, but the last days of November and early days of December were accompanied by the severest storms ever experienced in the state.

advise filing a complaint with the clearance and zoning board.

That the situation will be forced to a showdown in the near future is generally believed.

Independents are disturbed over the fact they are being set back in clearance more than at any time in the last three years, and that subsequents charging 25 cents or more, which are Fox Midwest houses, are getting longer protection than provided in the last schedule published by the local board. That schedule was later amended following a general hearing here at which George Schaefer of Paramount and Edward A. Golden of Monogram, representing the Campi clearance committee, attempted to convince independents of the desirability of bargaining for protection. The revisions, however, were not revealed because they still have to be approved by Campi.

In the absence of any approved clearance schedule, distributors say they are selling "the best way they can," and are believed generally to be following the plan drafted by the local board before the last revisions.

Complaints chiefly are from independents who delayed buying until recently. But it is said that even though contracts have been effected, major distributors will extend protection over a house if it adopts premiums or cuts prices.

Efforts to reach John C. Flinn at Code Authority were unavailing since the office was closed Saturday. The decision may be handed out today with a number of others rendered by Campi at the Thursday and Friday sessions.

Asserts McNabb Is Running Bank Night

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 20.—When A. B. McNabb filed an overbuying complaint against Glen Klock, Neodesha, Kan., he stated inability to obtain product had compelled him to keep his house, the Gem, closed.

Now comes Klock and swears that not only has McNabb been operating his theatre, but has been running bank nights and putting on free shows in conjunction with local merchants. Klock so charges in complaints.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 20.—The grievance board has ordered the Grandview, Columbus, to stop advertising prior to first run. Complainant was the RKO Palace, same city.

Ohio Sales Tax to Reach 10c Vending

COLUMBUS, Jan. 20.—Vending machines in theatres will have to pay the new sales tax, exhibitors have been inferred by the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio. License forms must be obtained. The tax does not apply to sales under nine cents.

The I. T. O. has advised members to pass the new sales tax on to the public. In many cases, it has been found, theatre men have cut the odd figures prevailing under the recent admission tax so that scales which were formerly 17c-22c-33c are now 15c-20c-25c-30c. Members are being advised to restore enough of the odd figures to take care of the sales tax which goes into effect Jan. 27.

Looking 'Em Over

"My Heart Is Calling"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Jan. 8.—Another transcription of a Continental (Cine-Alliance) production in which the gaiety and originality of the material does definitely survive the use of English speech and the dangers of remaking. It has strong appeal on musical and spectacular values and should please the critical public by reason of real ingeunity in situation. The laughs are plenty and a lot of them are earned by new methods.

The selling names are Marta Eggerth, Jan Kiepura and Sonnie Hale. The first will be remembered in "Unfinished Symphony." Kiepura is a widely publicized tenor, whose last picture was "My Song for You." Hale is a very hard-working comedian and a good one, despite his all-British methods. There is also good comedy work from Hugh Wakefield as an eccentric opera director, and Ernest Thesiger as his secretary.

The story goes that Mario Delmonte, tenor of an opera company en route third class from South America to Monte Carlo, finds a girl stowaway in his cabin. To pay for her passage, he climbs the rigging and gives a concert to the first class passengers gathered on the deck. In Monte Carlo, an expected opera engagement falls through. Rosee, the impresario, goes with Delmonte to the Casino to find the opera director, and the tenor gives an impromptu concert in the gaming rooms, holding off the attendants with a pair of property pistols. They are taken off to prison.

The ex-stowaway, Carla, slaps a policeman's face in order to be arrested and join them, but they have been released and she is kept in prison. Rosee gets the idea of presenting "Tosca" in the Casino Gardens in opposition to the regular company in the opera house. Mario sings marvelously and the audience deserts the theatre for the opposition show. Carla is released and joins Mario in the moment of triumph, when the Rosee company is offered a contract on its own terms.

The three big scenes of the mast-head concert, the performance in the Casino, and the out-door opera, take the picture out of the rut. The love story of the tenor and the stowaway is daintily told. There is a good theme song and ballads aplenty to balance the operatic numbers. Definitely entertainment.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G." ALLAN

"Lawless Frontier"

(Monogram)

This is a worthy member of the Lone Star series. It has good portrayals by the cast, an interesting story and enough action to satisfy.

R. N. Bradbury's direction keeps things moving at a fast pace and the photography of Archie Stout is particularly good on the outdoor shots. John Wayne heads a competent cast composed of Sheila Terry, Jack Rockwell, George Hayes, Buffalo Bill, Jr., Yakima Canutt.

The yarn has Wayne, on discovering his family murdered by Rockwell, setting out to find the killer. Instead he rescues Sheila Terry from a river, and discovers that she is fleeing from the man he is seeking. After much hard riding around the countryside and despite the blunders of a cocksure sheriff, Wayne gets his man. The windup finds Wayne the new officer of the law, with Miss Terry his wife.

Action loving fans and particularly children should go for this one in a big way. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 59 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Old Faithful Speaks"

(Audio-1st Division)

The opening release in a series called "Thrilling Jouneys," produced by Audio Prod. This is a black-and-white subject pointing up the natural wonders of Yellowstone National Park, first described by a narrator and later telling their own story in natural sound. The kick is the hourly rumble, then the explosion of Old Faithful, the renowned geyser, which sounds off its own yarn in terms of thunder and awe. This shot closes the picture with a smash and a crash rarely achieved before in a one reeler. No code seal. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"In a Monastery Garden"

(Audio-1st Division)

San Juan Capistrano is the garden spot to which Robert C. Bruce turned for the photographic accompaniment of this "Musical Moods" release featuring the well known song from which the subject gets its title. The peace of a contemplative life, as reflected in the calm of the monastery, is well depicted and the entire job effectively handled. A superior short. Production Code Seal No. 0249. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Feminine Rhythm"

(Paramount)

Ina Ray Hutton and her all-feminine orchestra featured. A jazz number, including torch songs, and Miss Hutton in a sort of fashion show composed of a varied assortment of evening gowns. Satisfactory entertainment, but undistinguished. Production Code Seal No. 0281. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Time" Hits a New Formula

Opportunity came yesterday to witness what the current excitement, labeled "The March of Time," is all about.

Drawn from the formula which lurks behind the sensational national broadcast of the same name, what was shown yesterday was an experimental reel made about four months ago and designed to point the way, technique-wise, for "The March of Time" to follow.

How it works, using the Morro Castle disaster as a typical instance: Opening shot is a reenactment of the Federal inquiry which followed the tragedy. Then, by the flashback method, the story pieces itself together. You get shots of the ship, in gala atmosphere, slipping its berth in New York; its arrival in Havana and its departure; the cocktail hour aboard vessel, the outbreak of fire and its subsequent pandemonium, the piling up of the liner on the beach at Asbury Park.

Then the Saar and why, until a few days ago, it was a powder box threatening to touch off peace in Europe. Long shots of the disputed territory, showing its wealth in ore and industry, dramatic flashes of Hitler of Germany and Laval of France, of the Treaty of Versailles, marching troops—briefly and succinctly and in a few minutes the highlights of the why and wherefore of the issue, reduced to simple and understandable images and words.

"The March of Time" proposes to get behind the news and to interpret it, to tell how as well as when. To do this, it will use actual newsreel clips and reenactment of dramatic highlights which concentrate camera and tongue where the highlights linger.

The formula is new. That is, it is new in pictures. Time, the magazine, has been proceeding along these lines since starting on its successful publishing career. And so, the idea is actually a transposition of printed word to eye and ear entertainment. It is refreshing and full of promise.

Children's Film Ban Up in Massachusetts

BOSTON, Jan. 21.—A bill prohibiting those under 14 from seeing films except such as are "suitable for children" has been placed before the Massachusetts legislature by Representative Thomas A. Dorgan of Dorchester.

Under the terms of the measure determination as to what films are fit for child patronage shall rest with "an unpaid board to consist of a representative of each religious denomination appointed by the Governor, to serve in the department of public safety." Anyone "showing or producing" a film without official approval "shall have his license revoked," according to the bill.

Dorgan is the same person who failed in an attempt last year to force through unfavorable film legislation.

The belief in film circles here is that the bill would apparently take enforcement beyond the exhibition field. The danger is said to lie in the variable meaning of the word "produce." It is held conceivable that the religious body set up under the measure to pass on films could find legal right to revoke the licenses of distributors.

No Film Deals Here, Cochran Says Again

In face of persistent press releases by Nat Dorfman, press agent for Arch Selwyn, that Charles B. Cochran will be associated with Selwyn in forming a new company to produce films in Great Britain and America, Cochran yesterday again denied the story to MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Cochran stated he came over for the purpose of being on hand for Elisabeth Bergner's debut in "Escape Me Never" at the Shubert. The star has appeared in the picture, which was made in England.

"I did not come to America on any film deals. The only picture I am interested in at the present time is 'Saint Joan,' which I will make in England. Negotiations are under way with a producer abroad and I expect to complete them on my return to England," Cochran said. He sails Friday on the Berengaria.

The English producer emphasized the fact that after this film is completed he will stick to the theatre, contending he is not a film man.

Although the press release stated Selwyn leaves today for the coast by plane with Cochran, the latter denied this. He said on his return to England he will stage "Anything Goes," the rights for which he closed some time ago.

Sirovich also asserted his intention of taking up the question of block booking, probably through legislation affecting the copyright law. Kutinsky to Play Duals, Giveaways films under its selective contracts. The Campi overbuying stand was a reversal of the findings of a lower board and an appeal committee.

Kutinsky, in a few days, will start playing dual bills at 10 and 20 cents at all times. In addition, he plans to institute a giveaway policy several nights a week. Heretofore, Kutinsky has been playing single attractions.

When the New York grievance board decided the local product dispute, it held that Century must submit two lists of pictures over 250. An appeal was heard and it is understood that the committee decided Kutinsky was entitled to greater relief than the local board had awarded him. Campi discussed the case for five hours last week before reaching the decision.

Kutinsky is planning to seek a rehearing of the case, and if this is denied will go directly to the NRA in Washington.

Missouri Sales Tax Increase Introduced the Missouri legislature by Representative E. E. Montgomery of Kansas City.

A similar increase, from the present levy of one-half of one per cent, is also being urged by St. Louis municipal officials. Under their proposal half the revenue collected would be allocated back to the counties. St. Louis has made several attempts to increase its revenue by city taxes, including a levy on theatres, all of which have been defeated.

Seitz Appeal Dismissed

Campi officials yesterday verified reports from Cleveland that the overbuying complaint of Earl Seitz of the State, Sandusky, O., against Warners, had been dismissed. This is the complaint originally heard by the Cleveland grievance board which dismissed it. When Seitz brought a second complaint, the local board certified it to Code Authority. An appeal committee of E. C. Grainger and Joseph Seider recommended dismissal, which Campi sustained.

effort to control hours of labor and wages.

Upon the opinion of the court in this case will depend to considerable extent the form to be taken by the new recovery legislation. Continuation for another year or two of the act practically as now written, to permit of further "experimentation," was urged last week by S. Clay Williams, chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board. Other plans suggested to the President, however, call for the stripping from the act of all except the labor provisions and, from the case, of most of the fair trade practice clauses. Whether the act can be continued in its present form or will require amendment will hinge upon the Supreme Court's ruling.

Gets Campi Ruling, But Can't Get Film

CLEVELAND, Jan. 21.—How to benefit by a favorable decision of Code Authority is one of the problems of Meyer Fischer and William Weiss, lessees and operators of the Mall.

Campi recently upheld a decision of the clearance and zoning board by taking the Mall out of the zone of the Strand, Standard and Carter theatres, all operated by the Community Circuit. The Community circuit, it is claimed, during the interim between the announcement of the local board decision and the decision of Campi, bought product with protection over the Mall.

Now that Campi has upheld the local decision, the Mall claims it is still unable to get product, due to contracts entered into between the distributors and Community circuit.

This creates an awkward situation. If distributors take product away from Community circuit as per the Code Authority decision, they may be open to a breach of contract suit by Community circuit. If they continue to fulfill their Community contracts, they may be open to charges by the Mall.

Fischer would like to adjust the matter amicably. However, failure to do so may, he says, result in a suit in Federal court to enforce the decision of Campi.

RKO Contends M. & S. Lease Terms Are Met

only Radio, half of Paramount and half of Warners.

An RKO spokesman yesterday characterized the M. & S. charges merely as "a landlord and tenant's disagreement." He stated that the lease on the Hollywood provides that the house shall play neighborhood subsequent run, whereas M. & S. contend it should be first or second neighborhood run. He said the Apollo is playing neighborhood first run, as specified in the lease, but admitted that Fox, Columbia and Universal first runs were excepted. Under the product agreement of last September, the product released to RKO by Loew's was not to be made available to RKO houses in competition with Loew houses. The Hollywood and Apollo are regarded as competition for Loew's Delancey and Avenue B.

M. & S. receives a percentage of net profits as well as a flat rental for the two houses leased to RKO. It is seeking to compel RKO to play the same first run pictures at the Hollywood and Apollo which it alleges are played in other RKO houses, which means the Fox, Columbia and Universal supply. RKO maintains that many of its houses in the metropolitan sector do not play that product and that the provisions of its M. & S. lease are not being violated in this respect.

The dispute goes before a board of three arbitrators at the N. Y. County Lawyers Ass'n. today.

O'Hara, Maloy Aide, Indicted in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Ralph O'Hara, organizer for Tom Maloy's operators' union, has been indicted by a Federal grand jury on a charge of perjury. His bond has been set at $15,000 and a capias for his arrest issued by Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

The grand jury is reported to have evidence that O'Hara accepted more than $100,000 from exhibitors here for Maloy in return for reducing the number of men in booths. Mentioned in the indictment as having made payments are Joseph Stern of Essaness Theatres; James Coston, Warner theatres, Barney Balaban, Aaron Jones, Edward Silverman and others.

O'Hara denied receiving any money.

O'Hara's indictment results from renewal of the government probe into the income tax returns of Maloy some three weeks ago. It is known that local exhibitors have been appearing almost daily to give testimony. The payments are alleged to have been made in 1932.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Murder on a Honeymoon"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 21.—Edna May Oliver and James Gleason are teamed advantageously again in a mystery comedy well fortified with laughs and suspense. There are good cast portrayals and smooth direction and the Catalina locale provides a different background to counterbalance the plot.

The usual mystery plot formula has everyone under suspicion for the murder of a racketeer with an unusual angle featuring crime committed aboard an airplane en route from the mainland to Catalina.

Miss Oliver is an amateur sleuth who smells a mouse even before the crime takes place. Officer Gleason follows her tips after arresting everybody in the film, finally taking credit for Miss Oliver's detective work in running down the murderer. The plot is climaxed with three murders amid riotous athletics by Miss Oliver, who finally finds a solution to the crime in a fish pond and landscape sketch.

George Meeker, Lola Lane, Dorothy Libaire and Chick Chandler give good portrayals, with a colored actor named Sleepaneat providing the comedy highspot in a small role.

Lloyd Corrigan reveals himself as a director with a fine timing for comedy suspense. Seton I. Miller and Robert Benchley penned the entertaining screen play from the Stuart Palmer novel. Nick Musuraca and Vernon Walker are well teamed on photography and effects.

For both neighborhood and deluxe trade this is good entertainment.

No code seal. Running time, 77 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Baboona"

(Fox)

Years of experience with animals in jungles and on open veldts stood Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson in good stead when they started out to make this animal picture, which opened last night at the Rialto. It enabled them to get an element of novelty, and to mix thrills with touches of pathos and humor. The novelty consists of the aeroplane shots.

With planes equipped to land on water or land, they succeeded in combining scenery and adventure in a way that furnishes fine entertainment. The appeal is as fundamental as that of a circus both for adults and children, and the editing has been done with such skill by Truman Talley that scenes build up dramatically.

Some of the shots have never been seen before on the screen. Planes sweep down over thousands of running zebras and buffalo; lions creep up on the planes where the Johnsons are ensconced with cameras and guns; baboons and monkeys do some remarkable tricks; black natives argue in their strange dialects. The ground shots have been shrewdly combined with the aerial.

The photography throughout is exceptional, another product of the Johnsons' long experience in the humid heat and brilliant light of Africa.

Production Code Seal No. 0272. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"Rocky Mountain Mystery"

(Paramount)

Here is a mystery yarn the setting of which is a mine perched on a mountainside out west. This justifies the title of the story adapted from a Zane Grey novel. A lot of double dealing, shooting and killing goes on and the result is only mild entertainment enhanced by the character portrayal of Charles ("Chic") Sales.

Charles Barton's direction is good, and, although he appears to have tried hard, the solution of the crimes is obvious once the film starts untolding. Archie Stout's photography is pleasing.

The cast includes Randolph Scott, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Kathleen Burke, Ann Sheridan, Florence Roberts, George Marion, Charles Wilson and Willie Fung.

The yarn has Scott arriving at the mine to replace his brother-in-law as head engineer. He discovers that the foreman has been murdered and his relative accused, so he joins up with Sales and goes to work

Representatives of exhibitors are scheduled to meet here this week in an endeavor to solve the problem which threatens to make the country pictureless, as the output of local producers is insufficient to supply the country's needs and the product obtainable from Europe is insufficient.

It has also been learned along film row that Ex-President Abelardo Rodriguez ordered reductions on some duties and taxes and the elimination of others just before the expiration of his term on Nov. 13. The present administration, however, has not acted upon these reductions as yet. It is thought, however, that the whole situation will be cleared up soon.

It was stated that the committee for reciprocity information would receive written statements from those interested up to March 11 and will hold a public hearing on the proposed Canadian agreement on March 18.

"Women Must Dress"

(Monogram)

Verbosity tends to retard the first three reels. The action picks up after passing this point, however, and moves to the climax in a thoroughly entertaining fashion.

Reginald Barker's direction is okay once he disentangles himself from the complicated beginning of Frank Farnsworth's story. The photography by Milton Krasner is good.

Minna Gombell, Gavin Gordon, Suzanne Kaaren, Hardie Albright, Lenita Lane and Zeffie Tilbury comprise a competent cast. Albright, Miss Gombell and Gordon handle their roles with understanding and sincerity. The seven Monogram-Agfa contest winners are also spotted in bit parts.

The yarn is centered around Miss Gombell, who, when she loses her husband to another woman because she paid more attention to her home than to herself, realizes the full meaning of the expression "women must dress," and decides to live up to it with a vengeance. She takes a job as a partner-designer in a fashionable modiste shop and her husband, Gordon, sails for South America. Albright, a struggling young doctor, in the meantime had been practically engaged to Miss Kaaren, Miss Gombell's daughter. The mother wrecks this romance to save her child from a fate similar to hers, but is finally forced to admit the two youngsters are meant for each other. Gordon, returning for his daughter's wedding, realizes he loves his wife, and their reunion is a happy one.

The last half is filmed against a lavish background of dress salons and latest fashions. This should have particular appeal to women, and exhibitors should profit by exploiting this angle. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 77 minutes. "G."

Coast Independents Make Trust Charges

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—An appeal against block booking and alleged monopoly in this territory was mailed to President Roosevelt today by local independent theatre owners. Copies of the letter have been sent to two California senators, 20 California congressmen, Senator Borah, Attorney-General Cummings, Senator Nye and U. S. Congressmen Culkin and Celler.

The letter states that for many years a monopoly has existed in the industry, forcing independent exhibitors to sign contracts wholly favorable to the distributor if they wish to keep their theatres open. It is charged compulsory block booking and the forcing of shorts, newsreels and percentage pictures prevent the exhibitor from making a profit and virtually make the producer-distributor a partner in his business without investment and without sharing any of his losses.

Percentages, it is alleged, make it possible for distributors to swap information on receipts. The charge is made that information obtained in this way can be used by the producer-distributor operating theatres to force independent competitors out of business by imposing higher percentages.

Monopoly, it is contended, promotes lower wages, throws many out of work and causes the exhibitor losses.

Short Subjects

"Barcarolle"

(Audio-1st Division)

On the sound track: the familiar "Barcarolle" from Offenbach's opera, "The Tales of Hoffman." On the screen: impressionistic views of Venice in color as caught through the camera piloted by Robert C. Bruce. The orchestral treatment ties in with the setting of the sun and the advent of twilight while the scenes accompanying the "Barcarolle" are early evening sequences in the approximate mood of the words of the song, "O Belle Nuit." Exquisitely handled. Production Code Seal No. 0432. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Irish Melody"

(Audio-1st Division)

In which the melodies of typical Irish songs play it out against gorgeous Technicolor scenes photographed by Robert C. Bruce on Erin's soil. Tunes like "The Minstrel Boy," "St. Patrick's Day," "The Low-Backed Car" and "Killarney" combine into a nostalgic tone poem shot through with beautiful vistas and charming pastorals of the Celtic countryside. The result is a "Musical Moods" emphatically worthwhile. Production Code Seal No. 0434. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Baby, Be Good"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

A rather cute Betty Boop cartoon, this one. Betty's offspring goes on a childish rampage, raises havoc, is chased by a lion and saved by mater after the junior ruffian doubles back and repairs all of the damage done. Production Code Seal No. 0271. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Tent No. 11 established another precedent last week when it held its first Ladies' Night Smoker, with HARRY E. LOHMEYER and LEONARD B. SCHLOSS, kings for a day.

Ladies were invited to join an auxiliary organization to Variety Club for which two bits are the annual dues. But what the ladies did not know was that there wasn't any club at all—just a gag to aid the Welfare Fund.

For the ladies who had the audacity to ignore the kings' commands and appear in evening gowns, there were large house aprons which the malefactors were required to wear the entire evening.

Cards and other games, with prizes, were the sources of amusement other than scintillating conversation.

Variety Party Feb. 3

"Chairman" Pulls $20,000, Buffalo

BUFFALO, Jan. 21.—"The County Chairman" at $20,000 was the week's big news, although "Broadway Bill's" $9,500 in its second week was quite a feat, too. Cold, foggy weather was replaced by high winds and ice that made motoring dangerous.

Total take was $50,300. Normal is $42,800.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 18:

"Chairman" Is Philadelphia Top, $18,000

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—Business fluctuated last week, with the total way down.

Best figure of the week was $18,000 at the Fox for seven days of "The County Chairman." The Earle, with $13,000 for "The Band Plays On" and Ted Lewis on the stage, was the only other house to hold above the average mark, though the Earle show was probably more expensive than recent offerings and the outlook for much profit is dubious.

Because of the delay in "Clive of India," the Aldine forced three more days on "The Mighty Barnum," running out three and a half weeks.

Total first run business was $98,600. Average is $107,600.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 17:

"Bill" and Cantor Smash Omaha Hits

OMAHA, Jan. 21.—"Broadway Bill" and "Kid Millions" were sensational here last week. The former grossed $8,200 at the Brandeis, going over the average mark by $4,400.

The Cantor musical doubled par at the World by getting $8,000. In spite of the heavy competition the dual bill at the Orpheum, "Behold My Wife" and "Music in the Air," was strong at $8,500.

Total first run business was $24,700. Average is $16,000.

14,552 Houses Operating In U. S.; A Gain of 816

Increase Is Steady in Last 2 Years—Viewed As a Plus Sign

Up by 816 over the previous year, 14,552 theatres were in operation throughout the United States at the dawn of 1935.

The statistics, drawn from individual reports of Film Board of Trade secretaries and made public yesterday, were construed as indicating by fact and figure that conditions were definitely winging their way toward more prosperous climes.

The national breakdown of data checked over in all exchange centers reveals theatres operating as of Jan. 1 of this year had a seating capacity of 9,719,537. The 14,552 houses which make up this total compare with 13,736 operating as of Jan. 1 of last year and with 13,416 operating as of Jan. 1, 1933.

The source material pointed out that theatres in total throughout the country were 18,263 with a combined seating capacity of 11,132,595. This

Hearing of Opponents of Para. Plan Postponed to Next Monday

Hearing of opposition to the Paramount Publix plan of reorganization, scheduled for today before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, was postponed until Monday by agreement of counsel yesterday.

Inability of reorganization groups to effect an agreement with Nathan Burkan, counsel for the merchandise creditors' committee, at meetings held yesterday is believed to have been responsible for the adjournment. Burkan has stated that he would appear in opposition to the plan unless some agreement were reached of his committee's views on the makeup of the new Paramount board.

Whether Judge Coxe would consent to the examination today of 20 witnesses subpoenaed for the scheduled hearing by Samuel Zirn and Archibald Palmer, opposition attorneys, could not be learned late last night. Indications were that these examinations might be permitted to proceed independently of the hearing on opposition to the plan.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

OUT of the field of fancy and conjecture and very much into the category of cold, hard statistics comes the annual theatre survey of the Film Boards of Trade to prove rather conclusively that, if things aren't better, flocks of theatre operators are wrong. Pieced together from every exchange center in this broad and embracing land is the word that, as of January 1, 1935, there were open for whatever business they could catch 816 more theatres to a total of 14,552 than were active a year ago to the dot. . . .

We ask you to pause and to contemplate what this means. New Vikings in exhibition there may be among that very important 816. You might turn to such a conclusion by way of answering the why and the wherefore. But it does seem stretching it a bit to conclude that those 816 additionally functioning houses are manned solely by interests not in the theatre business at the dawn of 1934. We, for one, do not subscribe to such an answer. Rather, we believe that houses, darkened by the depression, have decided to light up again because the men who owned them and so shuttered them have concluded the time has come to try their fortune in the theatre field once again. . . .

If you will travel back with us another twelvemonth, the observation that things must be up and beginning to go, at least, becomes more striking. As 1933 blossomed in, theatres with box-offices open for business ran to 13,416. By the beginning of 1934, there were 320 more brave operators ready for a fling they refused to essay a year earlier. By the advent of this current year, it was a jump of 816 additionally, or an increase in film accounts of 1,136 in the two-year span. Of course, you can't tell if these additional theatres have been returning a profit, but the chances based on what the Film Boards' statistical fabric reveals, are that the going (1) hasn't been so bad and (2) the hope for the future is somewhat rosier. . . .

Approach it from another angle which a cursory analysis of the figures suggests. The nation's theatres are 18,263. That's 108 less than the adding machine tallied at the outset of 1934. Yet, more houses are functioning today. We ask you. What are they functioning for, if not for a profit or in anticipation there will be a profit in the reasonable future? Of the 18,263 spotted around the American map, 3,711 are dark. Sounds like a lot and is a lot, but note the padlocked total for 1934 which was 4,635. Indicating inescapably that sunshine is beginning to break through is the two-year comparison for, even at 3,711 now dark, it was considerably gloomier in 1933 when 5,895 were in the non-operating division. . . .

Suggesting that producers who went on a theatre spree to their ultimate sorrow a few years back are remaining true to their spots is the dope on affiliated circuits. In 1934, that type of holdings, bulked, ended at 1,954 houses seating 2,586,643. With 1935, the total had clambered to 2,073 houses and a combined capacity of 2,718,701. Not much of an increase, to be sure, but sufficient to indicate a drift toward danger and a lack of any whole-hearted producer intention to reduce participation in exhibition. That makes it time to hoist the storm signals and so up the halyard they go. Now. . . .

Even more striking on the other hand and because of numerical preponderance, is the changing tide in unaffiliated circuits. Their total is on the rise, the Film Board survey reporting 3,070 houses in this classification in 1935 as against 2,846 in 1934. Of significance, too, is the shrinkage in independent theatres, although it may be that expansion, precipitated by cheaper buys, has moved more independents into the unaffiliated circuit division, thereby causing the shift in the statistical balance. . . .

The figures, for what they are however, show 13,796 for 1933; 13,571 for 1934 and 13,120—451 off—for 1935. Do we hear Allied tearing the ozone with those faintly nostalgic cries of monopoly? If that should be in the offing, it is well to point out that, while the independent division shriveled in point of numbers of theatres, it gained in numbers of seats, so indicating the boys have been busy stepping into richer clover. . . .

John Hertz is angling hard to re-enter the Paramount picture and fails to look with particular glee upon a mere directorship; it's the presidency he is after. So whirl the latest stories around the company headquartering at the crossroads of the world. A new and hitherto unmentioned factor, the same insiders insist, is Frank Altschul of Lazard Freres, an extremely important banking institution. The general idea seems to swing about a shift in the scenery which would allow each group to nominate and elect members of their choosing for the new directorate. . . .

Tying in with eddies and currents is the report Hertz wants Adolph Zukor's post for various and sundry reasons, some of them backfiring to the days when the Chicago man was a factor of moment in Paramount's affairs. The large committees—bonds, stocks and banks—called a truce yesterday until Monday to discuss a compromise which would retain Zukor as president, but possibly embrace three or four of the board nominees of the other groups. These committees are said to be uncompromising in their support of Paramount's founder. Many, therefore, will cheer. . . .

Olympia Stock Buy Now Up to Referee

A proposal to expedite reorganization of Olympia Theatres, large Paramount New England subsidiary, by purchasing for $50,000 the remainder of the circuit's stock not held by Paramount and allowing a claim of $1,824,562 filed by an Olympia stockholders' committee against Paramount, was filed yesterday with Special Master John E. Joyce.

A hearing on the proposal was set for Jan. 28. In their petition for approval of the plan, counsel for the Paramount trustees state that a plan of reorganization for Olympia is under way which makes no provision for stockholders of the company, as both Olympia and its affiliate, Olympia Operating Co., are insolvent, they state. The petition adds that the trustees have been advised by the Olympia stockholders' committee, of which Frank L. Converse is chairman, that any plan which does not provide for the stockholders will be opposed by the committee.

The petition sets forth that while the Paramount trustees believe the stockholders' claims to an equity in reorganized Olympia could ultimately be defeated, it would involve litigation costing approximately $50,000 and might result in a delay of one year in the reorganization of the circuit. To avoid the delay, the trustees propose the purchase for $50,000 of the outstanding stock not owned by Paramount and the allowance of the $1,824,562 claim, based on a default by Paramount of a stock purchase agreement made in 1925 under which control of Olympia was acquired. Paramount defaulted the agreement in January, 1933, with $1,636,881, exclusive of interest and guaranteed dividends, still owing. Prior to that, Paramount had met stock purchase payments aggregating $5,803,488.

Snow Hits Seattle; Stalls Film Outfit

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—The heaviest snowfall in several winters has struck this city, and theatres are suffering keenly. Grosses this week are expected to hit a new low, with the weather bureau's prediction of continued snowfall and increasingly cold weather.

The premiere of "Sequoia" at the Fifth Avenue has been maintaining a fairly strong average. Opening night ceremonies, however, were somewhat marred by a wintry storm which kept many invited guests at home in spite of the personal appearances of Jean Parker, Russell Hardie and John W. Considine, Jr., the producer and a former Seattleite.

20th Century's "Call of the Wild" company, which includes Clark Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie, is stalled in Bellingham because roads into Mount Baker are impassable.

Director William Wellman is unable to work as a result of a cold. The city of Dawson, built at Mount Baker for outdoor scenes, is completely under snow. At a cost reported to be $15,000 daily, the 80-odd performers, technicians, directors, etc., are waiting for better weather—and shivering!

Columbia Is Trying New York Previews

Columbia is going in for eastern unannounced previews in addition to those held on the coast for all pictures. On Monday night, home office executives slipped "Carnival" in unadvertised at a local Loew house and when the audience didn't respond to two scenes, which were intended to be funny, they were ordered eliminated.

Different types of houses are chosen for each picture, Columbia trying to pick the locality where it is believed the picture will most likely be received according to its classification.

Radio Leases More Space

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 22.—Radio has leased the old Tec-Art studios for Merian C. Cooper's production, "She." It is planned to use the studios for other productions following completion of the Cooper vehicle because of a lack of space and an increased production schedule at the Gower St. plant.

HOW TO PUT A PICTURE OVER

1. Be sure that you have booked a good picture. (Note: This can best be done by getting a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract).

2. See that the picture has good name attractions. (Note: This can best be done by signing with M-G-M and getting practically all the stars).

3. See that the picture has been nationally exploited so that you get the benefit locally as well. (Note: In the case of "David Copperfield" 40 national magazine full-page ads for a total of 34,048,736 circulation).

4. See that tie-ups have been made. (M-G-M rarely has less than 50 tie-ups on a picture).

5. That serials have been placed. (1,000 serializations on "Copperfield" running in as many newspapers).

6. That good posters and press matter are available—also exploiteers. (More M-G-M angles).

7. If you have been ill this will be the result—

SAN SIMEON, Cal., Jan. 17.—

Warner Brothers have produced a moving picture, "Devil Dogs of the Air," that should be seen by every intelligent American, and by every member of Congress.

In this picture you will see, not actors imitating airmen, but real fliers, officers and men of the United States Marine Flying Corps. You see actual operations on our airplane carriers, discharging planes as needed, trained officers of the United States Navy issuing brief orders. You see the laying of smoke screens for the protection of surface ships, torpedo boats and landing parties, every detail of the training and marvelous efficiency of American airmen.

Young American men and women, seeing the actual flying, extraordinary courage and skill of American war pilots, will be fired with the ambition to fly and help conquer man's newly acquired realm, the ocean of the air. And, from our marvelously efficient and courageous little "sample" national air fleet, you will learn that, weak as we are in the air, weakest among important nations, the fliers that America develops could subject any hostile air fleet to exceedingly unpleasant experiences.

Congressmen and Governors of States, seeing this picture, will take pride in the marvelous efficiency of the American flier and will be humiliated by the knowledge that among the world's important nations we stand last in airplane defense.

One or five hundred of the bravest, most skillful fighting airmen that ever lived could not protect six thousand miles of coast line and the nation's great cities against an attacking fleet of four or five thousand invading planes.

There is the usual American "love story" in Warner Brothers' picture. Actor James Cagney looks extraordinarily brave and broad shouldered. Although infinitely "tougher" men of the United States Marines do the actual flying. A dear little girl runs out on the air field in high heels and an apron to reward with one kiss or more the hero, who hasn't really done anything. The real picture is in the flying of real American air fighters. Don't fail to see it.

Warner Brothers deserve thanks for producing a picture that will stimulate patriotism, and make the nation think of air defense.

Quigley Grand Award Won by Bill Hendricks

of the Regent, Newark, N. J., on "Judge Priest."

With 28 industry executives as judges, the final balloting took place at the N. Y. Athletic Club and climaxed a year's race among the 4,000 members of the Managers' Round Table Club of Motion Picture Herald for the top spots among the nation's up and going showmen.

All winners of the monthly plaques in the 1934 Quigley Awards competition were eligible for the annual prizes. For the past year, the competition has been conducted by A-Mike Vogel, chairman of the Round Table department, through the columns of his weekly Herald feature.

Voting ballots were furnished the judges as they arrived together with itemized, numbered lists containing the names of the monthly winners. The campaigns were laid out on a long table where they underwent careful scrutiny and study. The luncheon which followed and which was presided over by Terry Ramsaye, editor of Motion Picture Herald, was delayed until the final vote had been cast.

Ramsaye traced the scope of the awards plan and, in part, said:

"This august gathering reminds me much of the time that John Flinn opened a sales convention by looking over a large and costly gathering with the remark: 'Good morning, overhead.'

Ramsaye Lauds Participants

"A lot of the industry's overhead is around this table and it is a tribute to the direct motion picture dollar significance of the efforts of the showmen in the works of their craft which is brought to focus in the contest which today decides the annual Quigley Award for picture exploitation. You may properly be reminded that among the 4,000 members of the Managers' Round Table Club there are not less than 3,000 active men and, if you will consider a moment how many of your pictures play on a percentage basis, you will agree in my calculation that those campaigns out on that table in the next room represent the flower of the effort that has in the last year brought the motion picture industry not less than 65 to 70 per cent of its gross revenue. That's money, and they've done a job."

He next introduced Martin Quigley, publisher of the Herald, who expounded his thoughts on trade journalism.

"The activity represented here," he said, "is a definite part of the process by which we find motion picture journalism integrated with the industry, showing that we are a working part of it, not something superimposed upon it. Functions performed and evidenced here are indication enough that we can and do serve in the furtherance of the constructive works of the business, that the journalism of the motion picture as represented by this work of the Managers' Round Table is a part of it. We are appreciative, too, of the large contribution that is continuously being made by the executives around this table, another tribute to the fact that the Round Table of the Herald is a part of the motion picture industry."

Vogel was the third and last speaker. He stressed the point that the awards plan had fastened the attention of circuit operators on the merits of the manpower in their employes and pointed out that five promotions among the monthly winners had resulted last year as a result of managerial participation in the competition.

The judges were drawn from representative companies and men in the industry and included:

Neil F. Agnew, Paramount; Harry Arthur, Fanchon and Marco; Leon J. Bamberger, RKO; Paul Burger, United Artists; Mort Blumenstock, Warner Theatres; Felix F. Feist, M-G-M; Oscar A. Doob, Loew's, Inc.; S. Charles Einfeld, Warners; Ed Finney, Monogram; Robert M. Gillham, Paramount; Eddie Golden, Monogram; Paul Gulick, Universal; Hal Horne, United Artists; Irving Lesser, Roxy Theatre; Carl Lesserman, Warners; Frank J. A. McCarthy, Universal; S. Barret McCormick, RKO; Arthur Mayer, Rialto Theatre; Dan Michalove, Fox; Russell Moon, Fox; George J. Schaefer, Paramount; Moe Silver, Warner Theatres; P. K. Thomajan, First Division, and Joe R. Vogel, Loew's, Inc.

Early contenders in the final race had included Charles Curran, Strand, New York; Gene Curtis and Ken Finlay, Palace, Montreal; Ken Grimes, Warner, Morgantown, W. Va.; Ed M. Hart, Oxford, Plainfield, N. J.; R. E. Knight, Fairmont, Fairmont, W. Va.; Nevin McCord, Granada, Boise, Ida.; Bob Suits, Colonial, Reading, Pa.; Howard Sweet, State, East Lansing, Mich., and James M. Totman, Warner, Erie, Pa.

While Hendricks emerged as winner of the Quigley Grand Award, other theatremen on that circuit figured importantly in monthly awards throughout the year. In January, June, July and November and December, Warner managers came out on top. Loew managers landed in the winning column in October and December with Rosenthal of Bridgeport finishing in second place for the grand award.

The Butterfield circuit was represented in February, Publix in March, and the Walter Reade circuit in August. Famous Players Canadian theatre men clicked in May. Independents were represented by the Riverside, Jacksonville, named in April. Both circuit and independent managers shared the many first and honorable mentions given in 1934.

Various types of theatres were included among the winners, de luxe first run houses sharing honors with subsequent run operations. Towns as small as East Lansing, Mich., were included, as were large cities such as New York.

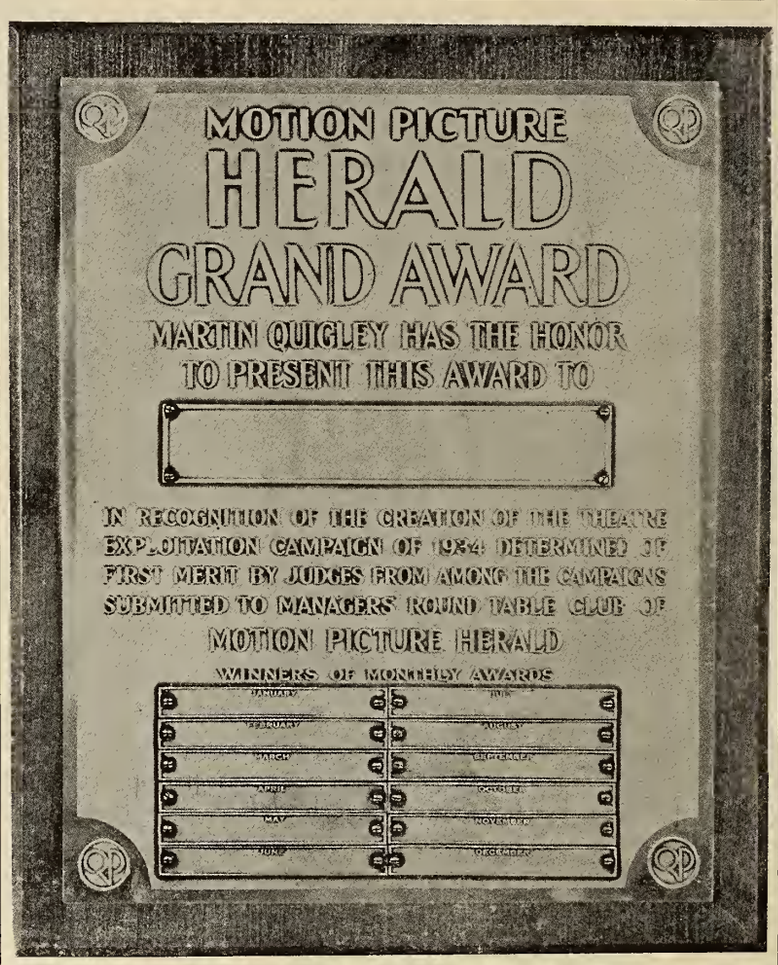
The Quigley Awards, now in their second year, were inaugurated by Motion Picture Herald through the Managers' Round Table Club, to bring recognition to the efforts of the theatre manager responsible for the advertising and exploitation campaigns on individual pictures.

For this purpose, in 1934, silver plaques were awarded, one each month, for the campaigns which, in the opinion of the judges were the most meritorious of all those submitted. First and honorable mention certificates to those finishing next were also given.

To decide the competitions, three different judges acted each month, these representing the distribution, advertising and exhibition branches, respectively. Many of those who served on the 1934 monthly committees participated in yesterday's judging.

Awards Presented by Notables

During the past year, presentation of the monthly awards have been made to the winners in many instances by the governors of states represented. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early acted in this capacity as did Senator Gaffney of Pennsylvania, Postmaster General James J. Farley, Mayor Camillien Houde, of Montreal, Mayor William N. McNair of Pittsburgh, Mayor John T. Alsop of Jacksonville, Joe E. Brown, Warner star.



The state heads represented were William A. Comstock of Michigan, C. Ben Ross of Idaho, David Sholtz of Florida, Herbert H. Lehman of New York and A. Harry Moore of New Jersey.

The 1934 Quigley Grand Award is 11 inches wide by 14 inches dep. Lettering and details of design are finished in strong relief and included are the names of the monthly winners etched on special plates.

The Second Grand Award is a desk piece, similar in design and execution to the monthly awards and larger in size. Preparations for the presentations of both awards are now under way.

For 1935, it has been decided to award two plaques, silver and bronze, monthly and sheepskin certificates for first and honorable mentions. The two yearly prizes are to be continued.

It Goes to Hendricks

This is the Quigley Grand Award which yesterday went to Bill Hendricks, manager of the Warner, Memphis, for his campaign on "Six Day Bike Rider." The competition was conducted by A-Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers' Round Table Club of Motion Picture Herald, through the columns of that department.

The plaque is in silver, is 11 inches wide by 14 inches deep. Lettering and details of design are finished in strong relief and to be included are the names of Hendricks as No. 1 man as well as the winners of the monthly Quigley Award.

Allied to Get Out Weekly Publication

Plans to issue a national weekly publication for Allied members were formulated yesterday at a meeting of the New Jersey unit, the purpose being to disseminate to the public information regarding product, the code and admission prices. The first issue will be out in about five weeks with a circulation estimated roughly at between 200,000 to 300,000.

Other topics discussed at the session, presided over by Sidney Samuelson, head of the unit, were bank nights, release dates, substitutions, non-theatrical competition from high schools, sound servicing, print shortages, the code and supply buying.

Allied to Meet Feb. 13

National directors of Allied will meet in Washington for a three-day convention starting Feb. 13. It was originally planned to hold the meeting tomorrow and Friday.

At the session officers for the new year will be elected.

Epidemic of Bank Nights Hits Frisco against Levin Theatres, also with six spots. The grievance board rendered a desist order, but Levin paid no attention to it. In the meantime the bank nights continued to spread in the neighborhoods.

Nasser decided to drop any attempt to secure a stop film order and installed bank nights on the circuit.

Now Robert A. McNeil, who manages 14 houses for Golden State, says he's going to adopt them. About six months ago McNeil dropped all forms of prizes and giveaways with the understanding that others would do likewise.

On top of all this some of the major downtown first runs say they will begin bank nights unless the practice is stopped elsewhere.

Allied for Wilentz To Aid Charnow Case

Allied of New Jersey is planning to retain David T. Wilentz, attorney general of N. J. and prosecuting attorney in the Hauptmann trial, to represent Julius Charnow of the Leonia, Leonia, in an action contemplated against Campi for constant delays in handing down a decision on Charnow's complaint against Loew's and Skouras for clearance relief.

Charnow last Friday visited Campi while the members were in session and demanded a hearing before it decided on a recommendation of an appeal committee. After raising a rumpus, Charnow insisted that the board decide according to the minutes, declaring "that certain circuit representatives have already advised Campi how to vote."

At a meeting of the New Jersey unit yesterday the executive committee and Sidney Samuelson, president, were directed to take prompt action for retaining counsel and appropriate the necessary funds.

When Samuelson was asked about Wilentz, he said:

"We will get him, if, and when, he is available."

Connery Will Probe Code Labor Angles

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Activities of the National Recovery Administration and the code authorities with respect to labor provisions of codes will be investigated by the House Labor Committee of which he is chairman, it was made known today by Congressman William P. Connery, Jr., of Massachusetts.

Connery's investigation will be made in connection with a bill he has prepared, calling for equal representation of labor on all code authorities.

Only when labor is given a voice on the code authorities will any equitable administration and proper enforcement of labor provisions of codes be possible, the congressman asserted.

While the measure, if enacted, would provide for labor representation on the film code authority, Connery said his investigation would cover the major manufacturing industries only.

Chicago Clearance Appeals Rush Seen

Ind., asked elimination of protection held by South Bend, Ind., on the ground that the two cities were so far apart there could be no competition. Loudermilk's petition was denied and he will appeal.

Aside, and entirely apart from the foregoing cases, under-surface rumblings have it that distributors' salesmen are swelling their sales quota by playing both ends against the middle. The procedure, according to gossip, comes in the form of veiled assurances to an exhibitor that despite the fact that his competitor has bought certain protection the second theatre still has a chance to beat him by filing a case with the local board. In the event that the decision goes against him he has the further opportunity of filing appeal with Campi.

The extent to which these practices are being employed cannot be definitely ascertained. They are pronounced, enough, however, to cause sub-rosa conversation in local film and exhibitor groups.

Thompson's Absence Delays Grievances

Failure of former Senator George Thompson to appear yesterday for the meeting of the New York grievance board necessitated a postponement of three cases for a week.

Of late, several members have been unable to attend meetings and it has been extremely difficult to get a board together. Harry H. Thomas, president of First Division, yesterday resigned from the board because he cannot attend the meetings.

RKO Reported Against Move To Avoid Suit

Steuer, counsel for Meyer & Schneider, an adjournment was taken until tomorrow. It is planned then to continue the hearings throughout Friday and Saturday in an effort to complete the taking of testimony some time next week. Under the terms of the RKO leases on the Hollywood and Apollo, the arbitrators, George W. Retz, Judge Robert McC. Marsh and Maurice Deiches, are required to render a decision within 10 days after the close of hearings.

Leases Presented in Evidence

M. & S. is seeking to compel RKO to play the same pictures at the Hollywood and Apollo that are played in other RKO houses, contending that the lease provides for such a policy. Steuer yesterday introduced the leases for the two houses in evidence, claiming that the Apollo's lease made it a neighborhood first run designated to play day and date with either the Academy of Music or the Jefferson, and the Hollywood's lease made it a neighborhood subsequent run to play either second or first run.

Charles Steiner, vice-president of Clinton Apollo, Inc., holding company for the Apollo, produced film bookings from Sept., 1934, to date, for the Apollo, Hollywood, Academy of Music, and Jefferson to show that the day and date playing provisions alleged to be specified in the lease were complied with only infrequently. He also produced bookings to show that none of the product which played Loew's Avenue B or Delancey played the Apollo or Hollywood. This product, Steiner testified, was played in RKO houses in other situations.

Prevented Product Playing: Steuer

Steuer attempted to show that the product agreement between Loew's and RKO, entered into last September, prevented the playing of Fox, Columbia and Universal product at the Apollo and Hollywood. Under the agreement, Loew's released to RKO the Fox product, half of Columbia and half of Universal for situations not in competition with Loew's houses. The agreement eased a critical film supply problem for RKO. Steiner testified that the Apollo and Hollywood were competition for Loew's Delancey and Avenue B.

Felix Jenkins, Fox attorney, was subpoenaed by Steuer to produce documentary evidence in an endeavor to show differences between Fox contracts with Loew's and those with RKO. Morris Ruffman, Warner attorney, was subpoenaed to produce contracts intended to show differences between Warner contracts with Loew's and those with RKO.

RKO's leases on the Hollywood and Apollo are for 10 years from last Sept. 1 and call for a percentage of profits in addition to flat rental. Bruce Bromley of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, and I. E. Lambert, RKO theatre attorney, are representing RKO.

is a drop of 108 as compared with statistics released a year ago which bulked theatres into an 18,371 total and a capacity of 11,028,950 and a drop of 1,048 when compared with the Film Board report of Jan. 1, 1933, which placed the nation's houses at 19,311 and their capacity at 11,161,193.

Theatres running sound increased, the 1935 report shows. There were 16,325 in that classification at the advent of this year and 1,938 silent. This compares with 15,652 sound houses and 2,719 silent last year and 15,231 sound and 4,080 silent the year before.

Darkened houses are reported currently at 3,711, which is 924 less than the 4,635 shuttered a year ago and 1,148 less than the 5,895 dark the year before that.

Affiliated circuits, the report shows, gained, their total at the dawn of this year being placed at 2,073 houses seating 2,718,701 as compared with 1,954 seating 2,586,643 last year but dropped when compared with the year before when their total was 2,266 seating 2,937,644.

Unaffiliated circuits also are reported in the ascendancy. The 1935 figures give their total at 3,070 with a combined capacity of 2,539,416 seats as against 2,846 theatres seating 2,493,382 last year. However, the current level dips under the 1933 figures which totaled 3,189 houses seating 2,561,726.

Independently operated houses, on the other hand, show steady shrinkage. Whereas the Film Board recapitulation places their total at 13,796 seating 5,585,830 for 1933 and 13,571 houses seating 5,948,925 for 1934, the current totals dip to 13,120 houses with seats bulking 5,874,478. The indication is, on the other hand, that more big houses have been returned to independents in that total seats in 1935 showed a substantial gain over 1933, although scattered over fewer theatres in number.

Ticket Tax Income Runs at '33 Level

Washington, Jan. 23.—Theatre grosses are practically at the level of a year ago, it was indicated by figures made public today by the Internal Revenue Bureau which show admission tax collections in December as $1,666,059.98 compared with $1,665,660.65 in the same month in 1933.

Collections from this source for the first half of the fiscal year, however, showed an increase of more than a half million dollars over the preceding corresponding period, totaling $7,848,246 against $7,218,315.

Report Roxy Will Return To Stage Shows at Center

Roxy may return to Broadway in charge of a program of stage spectacles at the Center if plans reliably understood to be making progress develop. Details are reported being whipped up by Roxy and W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Music Hall and direct representative of the Rockefellers in that enterprise.

Broadway yesterday also heard reports that "The Great Waltz," Max Gordon musical generally viewed as having been financed in part, at least, by the Rockefellers, will go into the Mastbaum, Philadelphia, when it completes its run here. This is the house Roxy is now operating under a deal with the Warners. The succeeding attraction will be "Midsummer Night's Dream," although no date has been mentioned for its Center debut. Fanchon & Marco hold the production rights.

Los Angeles Zoning Moves Bogged Again

Efforts of Campi members to work out a clearance schedule for Los Angeles were vain yesterday as distributors again refused to accept admission prices as the basic principle. Sales heads contended yesterday that any plan based on prices would seriously affect the revenue of all companies in addition to creating print shortages.

With Nathan Yamins as chairman of the session, adjourned from last Friday, the gathering broke up after three and one half hours, getting no further on the subject than they were weeks ago. No meeting was held in the afternoon, but the members will reconvene today to discuss other topics than clearance plans.

Argument on Para. Setup Causes Delay hearing on the reorganization plan which had been scheduled for yesterday. Between now and Monday Paramount reorganization factors, headed by Alfred A. Cook, as counsel for Paramount Publix, will endeavor to agree upon a conciliatory program which will permit hearings on the plan to continue. This failing, Cook is expected to bring counter charges involving alleged bad faith in opposing the plan against the minority groups when their opposition is brought into open court.

Identity Not Exactly Clear

The identity of the minority groups and their objective are not quite clear, due largely to the fact that none of them has appeared in open court with opposition to the plan of reorganization yet. The registered opposition of Samuel Zirn and Archibald Palmer, counsel for small groups of bond and stockholders, and the indicated opposition of the Munger debenture committee to provisions of the plan are not involved in the current situation. The behind-the-scenes opposition is not directed at the plan itself, but is said to center solely on the makeup of the new board and the company management for the future.

Taking a prominent part in the battle of individual interests is John Hertz, who served for a brief time prior to Paramount's bankruptcy as chairman of its finance committee. He is now associated with Lehman Bros. and his demands for a place on the Paramount board with some assurances of a high executive post in the company are said to have the support of the Continental Illinois and First National of Chicago, two large creditor banks, in addition to reputedly appreciable stock and bond holdings. Frank Altschul, banker, is also reported to be aligned with Hertz, whose spokesman is Edwin L. Weisl, downtown attorney.

Greve Also Seeks a Berth

Added to this faction is William L. Greve of Allied Owners, who also seeks a place on the new board. A link of interest lending support to the faction are downtown banks and creditor interests dedicated to the eradication of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. from the future Paramount scene. The same groups advocate the supplanting of Adolph Zukor as president of the new company. Some of them favor George Schaefer for this post, although other names have been mentioned.

Also identified with demands for representation on the new board and a voice in the naming of new executives is the merchandise creditors' committee, for which Nathan Burkan is counsel.

These groups have no community of interest other than their claims to representation on the new board and in the naming of new executives. Each appears to have its own candidates for posts in question. The conciliatory moves during the next few days, however, will have to embrace them all. Those for whom the conciliation attempts fail will probably appear in open opposition to the plan Monday.

Judge Alfred C. Coxe indicated yesterday he would not permit the examination on Monday of the 15 or more witnesses subpoenaed by Zirn and Palmer. The list included Zukor and virtually all principals in Paramount reorganization activities.

Report Roxy Will Return To Stage Shows at Center

have been talking lately about "important plans" for his return to the Broadway scene. The deal with the Rockefellers easily may be it.

Van Schmus told MOTION PICTURE DAILY last night that, so far as he knew, the rumors about Roxy were merely that. He also denied knowledge of "The Great Waltz" booking for the Mastbaum and the impending engagement of "Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Center.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—Hope Williams, executive assistant to Roxy, said tonight reported plans for the latter's return to New York were news to her. She expressed her doubt over the reports circulating in New York and was more emphatic where stories booking "The Great Waltz" into the Mastbaum were concerned.

"I know that it is not the fact," she declared.

Deliveries Not Affected

No delays in deliveries of prints by the various film deliveries in the local territory were reported yesterday, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned after checking up with exchanges.

Although the snow kept piling up yesterday, there was no tardiness in deliveries today. Exchange officials compared yesterday's storm to that of a year ago when no delays were experienced. Exchanges are well pleased with the local trucking service and most of the delivery companies have emergency trucks at intermediate points to take care of possible breakdowns.

operating the Orpheum, San Francisco; Harry L. Hartman of the Orpheum, San Diego, and Charles Skouras for F. W. C.

With disposition of the suit, the way is now cleared for reorganization of Wesco under the new name of National Theatres. The new plan was to have gone into effect Jan. 1, but Marshall Square's action has been holding it up. Spyros Skouras, E. L. Alperson, Elmer C. Rhoden and Rick Ricketson are due here next week, probably Wednesday, for conferences with Charles Skouras on the new setup of National and its various subsidiaries. Fox Midwest will be reorganized as Fox Midcontinent and Fox Rocky Mountain will be known as Associated Theatres when it is reorganized in three months.

Jules C. Goldstone, attorney for Marshall Square, and Hartman refused to divulge details of the settlement made in full today, saying only that it involved cash and concessions, which was construed to mean that both Orpheums would get better breaks on first run product in addition to the payment of attorney's and other fees.

Charles A. Buckley, F.W.C. counsel, while refusing to discuss the terms of the settlement, said the physical transfer of the chain's bankrupt assets to National Theatres would take place shortly.

Whitestone Ruling Approved by Campi reversed the local grievance board which held that Walter Reade had overbought 68 pictures for the Majestic, Strand and Crescent, Perth Amboy, N. J. The complaint was filed by Aaron Shusterman of the Roky, same town, and was appealed.

Meyer Schine, operating the Colonia, Norwich, and Oneonta and Palace, Oneonta, N. Y., was the winner in his premature advertising complaint against William C. Smalley's Sidney, Sidney; Delhi, Delhi; and Cooperstown, Cooperstown, N. Y. Smalley appealed from a cease and desist order of the Albany grievance board.

Nine decisions by local boards ordering various forms of bank nights stopped were sustained by Campi. The cases involved the following:

Bank Night Decisions Sustained

Kentucky and Mary Anderson, Louisville, against Rialto, same city; Lisbon Opera House, Lisbon, O., against the Rex, same city; Fargo, Geneva, Ill., against Arcadia, St. Charles, Ill.; Mission, Ventura, Cal., against Oxnard, Oxnard, Cal.; Hipp, Sioux City, Iowa, against Rialto, same city; Capitol, Sioux City, Iowa, against the Rialto, same city; Palomar, Oceanside, Cal., against Pala, Escondido, Cal.; Wateska, Wateska, Ill., against the Little, same city; Majestic, Milford, Ill.; Lorraine, Hoopeston, and Little, Wateska, Ill.

A complaint of M-G-M in Cleveland against B. W. Bickert of the Palace, Ashland, O., for advertising a picture as "Pirate Treasure" when the plaintiff had "Treasure Island," deemed an unfair practice, was upheld by Campi.

Peter Vournakis was found guilty of reducing admissions at the Strand and Liberty, Watertown, N. Y., on complaint by Graham & Ludlow, Palace and Victoria, same town.

In three decisions on clearance and zoning, Code Authority sustained local boards. The Washington board reduced the 30-day clearance of first runs in Norfolk to 21 days on complaint of the Bayne, Virginia Beach, Va.; the same board cut a week from the 21-day clearance of Frank Durkee's McHenry and Pacey's Garden, Baltimore, on complaint of Herman Zimmerman, Echo, same city, who wanted the schedule reduced to 10 days; the New York board sliced two weeks off the 30-day protection for Walter Reade's Asbury Park houses when the Liberty, Freehold, N. J., objected.

Employes in Mexico Want to Get Houses

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 23.—Intimations by American distributors that they might withdraw from Mexico unless tax relief is given soon were met here yesterday by a mass meeting of organized film employes under the auspices of the Federation of Workers and Peasants at which a resolution was adopted in favor of government expropriation of all houses.

This would permit operation of the houses by cooperative groups of employes and would afford greater facilities for French, German and Russian producers to supply product if the Americans carry out their threat to withdraw after Feb. 18.

Advises Clocks

New Orleans, Jan. 23.—A. Labas, who daily runs a box on the front page of the Item, prints this advice to theatre managers: "All of you should have clocks to remind wives of going home in time to cook supper for their husbands, to warn salesmen when to report back to the office after a hard day's work, and to serve various other useful purposes."

Reliance Appeals in Buffalo Buying Case

BUFFALO, Jan. 23.—Reliance Theatres, Inc., has filed an appeal with Campi from the grievance board's dismissal of overbuying charges brought against the Schine Theatrical Co., Inc., and Fox, First Division, M-G-M, Paramount, RKO, United Artists, Universal and Warners. Nicholas J. Basil, operator of a string of second run independents, filed a dissenting opinion.

Reliance operates the Palace, Lockport, where the Hiart and Rialto are operated by Schine. The official determination found that frequent changes and double features require 11 pictures a week to supply Schine's two theatres.

Charges of unnecessary and too frequent changes of program were dismissed on the ground that "complainant's theatre changes its program as frequently as either of the theatres complained of."

Recommending that "both plaintiff and defendant should get together and satisfactorily operate all three theatres in Lockport without hurting each other," Basil, in his dissenting opinion, declared that "although technically not overbought, Schine is making too many changes and using an unnecessary number of pictures."

"After conferring with my advisers," Rosenblatt said, "I have decided to give the producer members of the committee a reasonable time to forward any comments they may care to make in regard to the demand for hearing."

No decision will be made as to the holding of a hearing until after the producers have filed their brief.

Rosenblatt's decision was reached after a conference with Edward J. Loeb, of Loeb, Walker and Loeb of Los Angeles, counsel for the producer members of the committee.

Jersey Tax to Be Passed to Public

being forced to include the tax, the first plan advocated.

Opposition of north Jersey retail merchants was responsible for the change. These merchants do not want the tax used competitively, but want the consumer to realize he is paying the tax on each sale or admission price. Since the tax bill could not be passed in the Legislature without support of these retail merchant groups, decision was reached to pass the tax on to the consumer.

The sales tax bill will be introduced Monday night. Both branches adjourned last Monday for the week before the tax bill was ready. Exhibitors are awaiting the bill in the forlorn hope theatres may be exempt. Pressure is being brought to bear on the Republican majority to exempt intangible services, such as theatre admissions, but the latest word is they will be included.

Missouri's 2% Tax Move Seen Gaining

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 23.—Theatres would be saddled with a tax of two per cent of the gross if a movement under way in the Missouri legislature is successful. This would be included in a hike in the general sales tax, which now is one-half of one per cent.

Strong sentiment for the increase has developed in administration circles in the wake of the President's social security program, laid before Congress last week.

Governor Park, who has recommended a boost to one per cent, said he was not opposed to a two per cent tax. It is estimated the latter measure would raise more than $20,000,000.

Aside from relief and other purposes, House leaders plan to tie the sales tax levy into the old-age pension legislation. Seven bills are pending on that subject.

Hartford Club Hits Censorship Demands

HARTFORD, Jan. 23.—The Hi-Yi club of the North End Federated Clubs here has gone on record as opposed to all suggestions for Federal censorship or municipal operation of pictures to insure decent film fare. A poll of the Hi-Yi members revealed that they did not believe the public would support censored films.

Ten best pictures selected by the club included "Imitation of Life," "We Live Again," "The Last Gentleman," "Anne of Green Gables," "Little Women," "Catherine the Great," "The Pursuit of Happiness," "No Greater Glory," "Broadway Bill" and "Barretts of Wimpole Street."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Rumba"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—Capturing rumba rhythm, investing it with distinction and glamour while sustaining an effective romance, this registers as real box-office entertainment, particularly for the masses.

While following the pattern of "Bolero," the story spins easier motivations, grooving more readily with the locale of Cuba and New York.

George Raft, an ex-Manhattan underworld character, now a cabaret hoofer in Cuba, intrigues Carole Lombard, a society girl who slaps him down. When her parents decide Miss Lombard should marry a society sap she goes to Raft, who determines to return the treatment, using Margo, his dance partner, for conflict. Sensing Miss Lombard has not come for adventure, but for genuine love, Raft is bereft. In the face of a Manhattan gang menace, Raft accepts a stage engagement in New York, hoping to meet Miss Lombard. On his opening night, with the gang threatening to kill Raft and Margo fainting, Miss Lombard substitutes and dances with Raft.

The Raft-Lombard name draw as a team conveys lure aplenty with the latter's underplaying and ease decided assets and Raft's articulation smoother than heretofore. Margo has plenty.

Bill LeBaron's production is lavish and eye-filling with an earthy vibrance that impacts primary emotion. Ralph Rainger's music has oomph with stirring numbers in good taste.

Marion Gering's direction is splendid. The picture's reliable entertainment values presage good business in all spots.

"The Ghost Walks"

(Invincible)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—This one clicks as an entertaining melodrama and should make a favorable box-office showing on neighborhood bills.

Balanced with a good story, direction and cast performances, the film has a speedy tempo and will keep mystery and ghost yarn patrons guessing throughout.

The nucleus of the yarn centers around John Miljan trying to sell a play to producer Richard Carle. Miljan frames a trip in a lonely country home and through a pretended car breakdown forces Carle and his secretary, Johnny Arthur, to stay throughout the night, being conveniently aided by a terrific thunderstorm. After scaring the wits out of Carle and Arthur through the mysterious activities of a balmy woman (Eva Sothern), as well as Spencer Charters, June Collyer and Henry Kolker, Miljan confesses the producer has just witnessed the first act of his play with hired actors.

Things really happen from there on. People disappear, pictures move, mysterious hands creep into every scene. An insane professor is finally run down as the guilty party and, although nobody is hurt, Carle and Arthur think the play is still on.

Director Frank Strayer handled the suspense capably. The portrayals are good. Charles S. Belden's story is good screen material. This should please mystery patrons.

Previewed without code seal. Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"Copperfield" Gets Praise from Bishop

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23.—David O. Selznick has received a letter from Bishop John J. Cantwell of this diocese, commending M-G-M on the production of "David Copperfield."

"'David Copperfield'," the letter states, "is excellent and I congratulate you on so fine an achievement. From start to finish it is very enjoyable entertainment. Hearty good wishes for continued success."

Seek Club for Omaha

OMAHA, Jan. 23.—A movement for organization of a local Variety Club is under way here with H. J. Shumow, M-G-M branch manager, and William Miskell, manager of the Orpheum, doing the preliminary work. Actual organization is anticipated by Feb. 15.

British Film Plan Hits Chemical Snag

George's reign, it was learned here today.

The advance publicity, and there was lots of it, and promotion stated the film was to show the principal events of His Majesty's reign and was to be presented throughout the Empire for the King's silver jubilee.

Winston Churchill did the scenario and no expense was spared to collect action shots.

The picture was to have cost approximately $500,000 when completed, but it was announced here today that distribution of the film had been abandoned for "purely chemical reasons," so it is assumed the film may be lightstruck.

Short Subjects

"Mr. Widget"

The fans that Joe Cook may have collected because of his work on the radio will probably be disappointed in this short that features him. Some of his trick gadgets will undoubtedly amuse, but his inane chatter might have the opposite effect on audiences.

Cook is presented as a real estate salesman that has never made a sale. This gives him the liberty to wander around his own office and the town, wisecracking in his own fashion and using some of his trick devices. He thinks the boss' daughter loves him, and when he arrives at a rendezvous he finds her eloping with another man. No production code seal. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Italian Caprice"

(Audio-1st Division)

A noteworthy member of the "Musical Moods" series, featuring Tschaikowsky's famous "Italian Caprice," Technicolor photography at its peak to date and the sympathetic camera of Robert C. Bruce. The opening shots were made around Lake Como and are breath-taking in their placid splendor. Most of the subject records the Palio celebration at Sienna and the horse race staged annually there in the pageantry and glamour of the original, now several hundred years old. Nothing finer in shorts is around. Production Code Seal No. 0432. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"Fingal's Cave"

(Audio-1st Division)

This ranks well up in the "Musical Moods" series. Drawing upon Mendelssohn-Bartholdy's popular melody for its music and the restless surf of Oregon for its picture accompaniment, this emerges as eight minutes of interesting and different entertainment. Worthy of a spot on any program and ahead of many shorts now in circulation. Production Code Seal No. 0298. "G."

"Casting for Luck"

(Educational)

This, the latest of the "Adventures of a News Cameraman" series, has fewer thrills than most of its predecessors, but it should nevertheless make a welcome addition to any program. It covers fishing in all its forms and variations, and particularly interesting are the deep sea shots. No code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Dog Show"

(Educational)

This Terry-Toon presents a vaudeville show with all the talented performers of dogdom doing their stuff. The result is fair entertainment. In several of the early shots, however, the comedy presented is above the average, but the rest of the reel falls short. No code seal. Running time, 4 mins. "G."

Korda Signs Flaherty

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Alexander Korda, head of London Films, has signed Robert Flaherty to direct a picture tentatively titled "Elephant Boy." Shooting will be in India and the company expects to leave here in two weeks.

WHAT IS THE M

WHAT IS IT? It is a twenty-minute picture, issued once a month. Each release contains five or more complete dramatic stories. For the first time you will see the hidden beginnings, play-by-play developments and breath-taking endings of world happenings you've read and wondered about.

HOW IS IT PRODUCED? From wherever things happen, reporters and camera men of THE MARCH OF TIME send hundreds of stories and thousands of feet of film. The best of these are woven together in radio MARCH OF TIME'S curt, concise manner. Re-enacting those scenes that are missing, it brings to the screen complete dramatic episodes.

IS IT A NEWSREEL? No.

THEN HOW DOES IT COMPARE WITH A NEWSREEL? THE MARCH OF TIME makes no attempt to cover the complete news of the day. In fact, the last minute, exciting flashes of the news reels prepare your audience for MARCH OF TIME'S searching dramatizations. For only events of universal interest that have a dramatic background worthy of development are used by the MARCH OF TIME. It no more competes with a newsreel than a magazine story does with a front-page headline. THE MARCH OF TIME is made to go on a programme with a newsreel.

THE MARCH

ARCH OF TIME?

PHIL M. DALY IN THE FILM DAILY—At last we have had the opportunity to view the much touted impending screen innovation . . . "The March of Time" . . . They have so dramatized the news as to create an entirely new form of screen entertainment.

It is really hard to define . . . in showing us showmen something new in showmanship. . . . It is simply True Life Stories embellished with the story form of the screen.

KANN IN MOTION PICTURE DAILY—Opportunity came yesterday to witness what the current excitement labeled "The March of Time," is all about. Drawn from the formula which lurks behind the sensational national broadcast of the same name. . . . "The March of Time" proposes to get behind the news and to interpret it, to tell how as well as when. The formula is new. That is, it is new in pictures. . . . It is refreshing and full of promise.

Flinn Queries Impartial Men On CodeWork

Answers to Be Compiled In Report to Campi

Questionnaires have been sent to all impartial members of local clearance and zoning and grievance boards by Code Authority for suggestions and recommendations on activities and procedure. The answers are to be included in a report being prepared by John C. Flinn, executive secretary, on the year's work. The resume is to be submitted to Campi for approval shortly.

In addition to the questionnaire sent to government representatives, Flinn has compiled a complete record of all cases before local agencies and the disposition of each complaint.

The queries to outside board members consisted of eight questions, as follows:

STATE CAPITOL, SACRAMENTO, Jan. 24.—Two bills, one calling for a one-cent tax and the other for a three-cent levy on each foot of negative film exposed in California, are being prepared for introduction in the legislature. Distributors Adamant on Price Objections

Another attempt by Campi to work out a clearance schedule for Los Angeles yesterday met with failure as producers' representatives refused to accept a plan predicated on admission prices. The contention of distributors is that there never has been a schedule based on admissions and if one along those lines were adopted it would not work out.

Distributors hold that since pictures are their property they have the right to sell as they please and to whom they wish. Further, it is contended, they can sell protection to the highest bidder regardless of admissions charged. It is also held that if all

Radio Raises Gross

Chicago, Jan. 24.—Believe it or not, a radio broadcast was responsible for pouring shekels into a theatre box-office. The phenomenon happened when local NBC studio facilities proved inadequate for the employes, friends and families of employes to hear Jack Benny broadcast. So Benny's sponsor bought 1,000 tickets for Balaban & Katz's Chicago where the comedian and his troupe are appearing in person. Officials have verified the unusual event.

Wehrenberg Fights Missouri Sale Tax

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 24.—Fred Wehrenberg, president of the M.P.T.O. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, has sent out an appeal to every exhibitor in Missouri to oppose the inclusion of theatre admissions in the two per cent sales tax bills to be presented to the General Assembly by Governor Guy B. Park.

Theatres have been absorbing the present half of one per cent sales tax, but Wehrenberg insists the two per cent levy would be too great a burden.

Each exhibitor is being asked to see members of the House and Senator from his district. Members of the General Assembly should be advised, Wehrenberg says, that in New York, Illinois and other states having sales taxes admissions are exempt.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THE tug o' war, which is another name for Paramount, early 1935 style, continues with backs breaking, sinews stretching, and not a few groans renting a very charged atmosphere. Centering in Wall and La Salle Streets, as well as in Times Square, the test of brawn with fight for place and grinding of personal axes billed well up in the featured cast, is a compliment extraordinary to the texture of the company's commercial backbone and the virility of its personnel's morale. Comfort may nestle in that. . . .

There are more ideas around than breakneck speed can keep up with. The spoils are plentiful and rich and the candidates for juicy plums numerous. One group wants Zukor. Another does not. Ideas are afloat about the studio and how that ought to be handled, including the suggestion of Albert Cook, who represents the common stockholders, that the man for the post is J. Boyce Smith. If you remember Lillian Gish, you may remember Charles H. Duell. If you remember him, you might recall Inspiration Pictures and even Smith. For he was active in that company. Exactly what in his experience persuades Cook to believe his hatrack should be lodged in or near Manny Cohen's office is something this column is ignorant of, although willing to listen to Cook's enumeration of the Smith qualifications. . . .

This should be an old, old story to you by this time. It represents familiar ground, well grooved by a well-worn heel. It has to do again and it will again and again, if needs be, with a bit of advice, no doubt resented and viewed as none of this outlet's business, to the men who would turn Paramount into a testing ground for new theories of operation and management. All of that has been tried before with varied and unsatisfactory results. While the novices and the inexperienced in years gone by were endeavoring to make the filmatic yardstick even itself off with measuring rods from other industries, their competitors kept on becoming more competitive. . . .

Nothing germane to this business is exclusive. Smart business men recruited from other fields, of course, can learn the ins and outs. That, however, takes time. In the meantime, what? The other day the volatile, even explosive, complexion of this industry was stressed. Now we go specific and point out how this bears vitally on the Paramount situation. While the wrangling flourishes, the studio is expected to bang through with pictures that click. Cohen is supposed to maintain enthusiasm in the ranks by reflection of his own. Yet how he, or any one else in the same spot, can be expected to hold the line defies definition. A tragedy in the maelstrom is the hurt which confronts Paramount's attractions and the wholesale damage, born of pictures made in uncertainty, trailing its heels. . . .

Once a year minimum for the past twenty-two years, Carl Laemmle has been poising an offer to sell out. Some of the bidders have been very hopeful, also very shy of the wherewithal; other flirtations have been the McCoy. Sam Katz and Dick Rowland, two good, old film names, had a notion a year or so ago, for instance. Laemmle's good luck in the guise of a couple of real box-office numbers and Katz's and Rowland's indifferent luck in the form of finances which did not jell, kicked that over. Today it is A. C. Blumenthal whose hat is in one corner of the ring and Myron and Dave Selznick's in the other. How will it go? The odds would appear to be twenty-two to one. And yet. . . .

Lord Lee of Fareham, one time first lord of the British Admiralty and now high in the councils of Gaumont British, asks why Hollywood makes it more difficult to sell its wares in England by using terms unfamiliar to British eardrums.

"For instance, instead of giving a character the rank of lieutenant or 'leftenant' why not make him a captain? And call headgear a hat, not a bowler or a derby?"

A very good idea about which this typewriter pounder had an idea the studios on the coast had been doing things for several years now. . . .

Continues My Lord Lee:

"We have been endeavoring to vulgarize and doll up the English dialect in our British films to make them more popular in the American market. I profoundly disbelieve in that theory. If once you take away the national tang and individuality from a picture you have made a profound mistake. You are not going to salt the savor of the English tongue by giving Ophelia a middle western accent."

It's all in the point of view. The public's reaction to the sharp and the clipped English accents will not help Gaumont British in this market. If Lord Lee, stalwart Britisher that he is, would have his company stand the gaff until the paygoers in this young and raw land educate themselves up to Oxfordian and cockney English, the privilege is his. A price to pay, however, merely to have Britannia wave on high over American soil. . . .

Production at New High; 44 Features

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 24.—Production for the week ending Jan. 19 reached the highest level for many months with 44 features and seven shorts before the cameras as compared to 36 and five for the preceding week. This record breaking activity exceeds the normal production of 38 and six during the past year. Indication that the pace will continue, are seen in the fact that 23 features and 16 shorts are in the final stages of preparation.

Warners have gained the lead for activity from Paramount, which has been the most active for the past four weeks, with eight features before the cameras, two preparing and six editing. Paramount follows a close second with seven, two and two; Radio has five, five and one; Fox, four, five and three; M-G-M, four, one and nine; Columbia, four, one and two; Universal, three, two and one; 20th Century, three, one and zero; Goldwyn, one, zero and zero; while the independent group registers five, four and six.

In the short subject division M-G-M reports one before the cameras, five preparing and five editing; Roach has one, two and four; Warners, one, zero and zero; Universal, zero, one and one; Columbia, zero, two and zero; Radio, zero, one and two, while the independents have four, five and seven.

John W. Loranger Dead

DETROIT, Jan. 24.—Word has been received here of the death in Pasadena of John W. Loranger, former film man here and recently sales manager of the Packard Motor Car Co. He was 41. He was manager here for the old Casino Feature Film Co. When that firm was purchased by Paramount he was sent to Pittsburgh as manager of the Paramount branch there. Later he returned here as manager of the local Paramount branch. Following the war, he joined the Packard sales forces. His widow and two sons survive.

"'BABOONA' THE BEST AND MOST ENTERTAINING OF JUNGLE PICTURES!" states ARTHUR MAYER, Managing Director, Rialto Theatre, New York who has made the Rialto Theatre one of the most consistently profitable houses on Broadway through his understanding of showmanship and entertainment values.

Read his full statement:

"In all the years I have been in this business, I have never seen a picture that affords showmen greater opportunity.

"'Baboona' is the sort of entertainment that will be enjoyed by all types of theatre-goers. I am more than glad to be privileged to stage the world premiere. I look forward to big business.

"One need not worry about the audience reaction. The job here is to sell the picture properly. They'll go out praising it, for it's full of excitement, extraordinary sights, thrilling episodes that will hold them and make them talk.

"Fox Film has a big money-maker in 'Baboona.' It is decidedly different from any jungle picture produced. It has showmanship written all over it.

"The presence of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson is of eminent importance. In their field they stand absolutely tops. It is the best made by the Johnsons and the best and most entertaining of jungle pictures.

"This business can stand a lot more showmen's pictures like 'Baboona.'"

Piccione, Freeport, Files Buying Charge

G. Piccione of the Plaza, Freeport, L. I., has filed an over-buying complaint against Century Circuit, contending that the respondent has purchased for the Grove and Freeport, same city, all first runs on selective contracts and all second runs with the exception of M-G-M on a similar basis. Piccione contends in his complaint that Century has tied up for first and second run 992 pictures, of which the Plaza can get none.

The complaint is somewhat similar to the Kutinsky issue against the same circuit. After the local board had granted the Community, Queens Village, relief, Campi took the pictures away when it reversed the lower board.

Weinstock Wins on Clearance in Newark

Complaint of David Weinstock of the Rialto, Newark, seeking denial of Warners' request for 30 days' clearance at the Goodwin, same city, over the independent house, was sustained yesterday by the New York clearance board.

According to Weinstock, the Goodwin originally had seven days and later increased the period to two weeks. Subsequently, Warners demanded that the 14 days be increased to 30. Weinstock complained to the local board, but Warners agreed to let the two-week period stand.

Yesterday's action followed after Warners started to negotiate new contracts requesting one month's clearance.

given an airing. The Government is seeking $39,011.54, plus interest. The years principally affected are 1920, 1921, 1928 and 1930.

The Government contends that these claims were adjudicated by the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals prior to the filing of a voluntary petition in bankruptcy by the company. The chief point of contention is whether the Government should allow certain deductions. The Government, if it establishes its claim, would become a preferred creditor.

Nelson Cunliff, trustee in bankruptcy for the company, has filed an objection.

The Chicago teritory is pointed to as one example where distributors have to call in extra prints from surrounding exchanges in order to meet release dates.

While the prospects for adopting a schedule dimmed yesterday, Code Authority members may attempt to tackle the coast plan at the meeting next Thursday.

Because of an investigation being conducted into the theatre situation in Philadelphia, the discussion on the Philadelphia ban on premiums was tabled for the next session. About 15 appeal decisions were handed down.

"U" Records Demanded in M. & S. Case

Fox, Universal and Columbia product which was made available to RKO last September after having been purchased earlier by Loew's. The Hollywood and Apollo are competition for Loew's Delancey and Avenue B. M. & S. are seeking damages and an order requiring RKO to play the same product in the Hollywood and Apollo which plays other RKO houses.

Adolph Schimel, of Universal's legal department, yesterday produced contracts and correspondence between the company and RKO and Loew's which disclosed that, subject to an agreement with Loew's, RKO was to receive 28 of Universal's new season pictures in addition to "Imitation of Life," from last season's schedule, after Loew's had selected six pictures from the new season Universal schedule of 36, one of which was to be "The Million Dollar Ransom." The agreement specified that Universal was to receive from RKO $249,000 for the 29 pictures, to be paid in installments of not less than $62,250 each three months.

Asks Daily Gross Receipts

Max D. Steuer, counsel for M. & S., requested all additional contracts in Universal's files pertaining to the deal. His request for daily gross receipts of Loew's Delancey was opposed by Isidore Frey of Loew's, on the ground that the information sought was in the nature of a trade secret. Steuer subsequently agreed to take semi-annual gross statements from 1929 on; to have the figures divulged to the arbitrators at a closed session and to have the information excluded from the record. His object, Steuer said, was to show that the Apollo had as good earnings possibilities, or better, than the Delancey.

C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's testified briefly yesterday and David Loew will appear as a witness when the session resumes today in the N. Y. County Lawyers' Assn. Bldg. before Arbitrators Robert McC. Marsh, George Retz and Maurice Deiches.

Admissions that the Apollo day-and-dated certain pictures with either the Academy of Music or Jefferson, as provided in the lease, were elicited from Charles Steiner, former executive at the Apollo, by Bruce Bromley, counsel for RKO. Steiner also admitted that the Apollo's first runs included the east side district from 13th Street to the Battery. He testified that the Apollo's film contracts were disavowed when Manhattan Playhouses, the former operator, went into bankruptcy. Bromley drew the inference that RKO might have been required to perform those contracts when it took over the house on a 10-year lease last September.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24.—U. S. District Court Judge Harry A. Holzer today issued a writ against members of the local grievance board, M-G-M, Vitagraph, Paramount and United Artists ordering them to show cause why they should not comply with contracts with O. W. Lewis, operating the San Gabriel.

The board several weeks ago ordered Lewis to discontinue bank nights. The order was upheld on appeal to Campi. The matter has been referred to New York. This is said to be the first case of its kind here.

Decision Reserved in "Legit" Ticket Case

Decision was reserved by Supreme Court Justice McGeehan yesterday in the suit brought by five local ticket agencies to restrain the legitimate theatre code authority from enforcing its regulations against speculation, which were held illegal and unconstitutional by counsel for the plaintiffs.

The agents said that to make a profit they have to resell tickets at more than 75 cents above the box-office price, since they are forced to pay that much on each ticket to "certain brokers favored by the producers."

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25.—Some of the independent exhibitors in Kansas City have determined to bring the local protection situation to the attention of the Government on the ground of violation of the anti-trust laws, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learns. They assert action will be forthcoming "very soon."

The chief objection is to arrangements said to have been effected between distributors and Fox Midwest, in that, it is charged, protection has been set up in the city on the basis of contracts held by the circuit. Report Moves To End Cases In St. Louis

Justice Dept. Is Silent; No Word Locally

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Reports that tentative suggestions have reached the Department of Justice looking toward a settlement of the St. Louis indictments involving Warners, RKO and Paramount without a trial circulated here today but could not be verified within the department.

In a number of cases, consent decrees have been accepted by the Government in similar cases in the past in order to save the expense and time which would be required by litigation. Following its customary policy of not discussing pending matters, officials of the department declined to comment on the reports.

Spokesmen for Warners, Paramount and RKO here said yesterday that no word of an attempted settlement of the St. Louis case in order to avoid trial had reached them. Discounting the Washington reports, they

Producers Busy on Answer for Actors

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—Producer members of the actors' five-five committee are busy preparing under the direction of Edwin Loeb, their counsel, an answer to the players' brief for a code of fair practice, now on file with the NRA in Washington.

It is rumored here the producers will attempt to point out that actors are no more entitled to a place in the code than agents, whose draft of a fair practice code was turned back by Washington for stronger evidence showing why they should be included in the industry NRA pact.

Bushel and Gottlieb, lawyers for Du-Art, stated, however, they proposed pressing the action for trial and at that time seek to have the injunction reinstated. Another course of contemplated action is to seek money damages to the extent of $500,000.

Du-Art claims it holds a contract with "U" to handle its prints and that the company, following its financing deal with Consolidated, recently began to shift its work to the Consolidated laboratories.

Purely Personal

HARRY ARTHUR has a farm and horses near Pawling. He also has a 13-year-old boy named TOM. HARRY says TOM is the impresario of the family. HAL HORNE's been up to the place from time to time talking to TOM about the business. Result: TOM thinks HORNE wrote the book. Being more or less the film authority at the Bronxville High School, TOM volunteered to produce an expert on pictures when his class decided to embark on a quick course in celluloid calisthenics. So up in front of the school went the notice, informing those who stopped long enough that HORNE would supply the lecture. HAL knew nothing of it since TOM, it appears, had been unable to get him on the phone. Last night was the night. More later.

Britain's Jubilee Film Mystery Deep

the release date in May and because the picture could not have been completed in that time, what with scenes re-enacted with actors and studio sets.

"The film could be compiled from old newsreels which would not require the trade show necessary before booking under the Cinematograph Act, but London Films feels that this is not practicable, as at least one other company has announced its intention of giving away a jubilee film," company officials declared today.

Pathe has jumped in with "Twenty-Five Years a King" in conjunction with Sir Austen Chamberlain and John Drinkwater. This will be edited from old newsreel clips, as will be Gaumont British's proposed free jubilee film.

Reports along Wardour St. today had it principal circuits had been booking London's film, now abandoned, blindly at 40 and 50 per cent, whereas all pictures for release here by law must be trade shown first. Speculation is rife as to how London came a cropper. It may have been the C. E. A. or individual exhibitors or rival distributors.

Fox Met. Authorized To Drop Audubon

Oct., 1932; $60,000 the following year, $77,000 last year and $16,000 from Oct., 1934, to Jan. 15, this year. The application stated that at time of the Fox Met receivership in 1932 the company was paying Fox Theatres $120,000 annually for the Audubon and subletting it to Skouras for $95,000. Subsequently, the receiver for Fox Met obtained a reduction in rent to $72,000 per year.

Court Ruling On Huffman's Case Pending

Theatres, Inc., and the Aladdin Theatre Corp., a circuit of eight houses in Denver, has been operating under a restraining order granted by a judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver and as a result of this order has been getting product for his theatres.

Appellees at the hearing here were M-G-M, Fox, United Artists, Universal, Vitagraph, Gaumont British and Columbia; members of the Denver grievance board and Denham Theatres, Inc., and International Amusement Co., Denver exhibitors and competitors of Huffman, who placed the original complaint with the grievance board.

The writ for a permanent injunction asked that the court permanently restrain the appellees from violating or disregarding contracts or from refusing to make delivery of film to Huffman; that the members of the board refrain in the future from molesting or interfering with Huffman's business or contracts, or from inducing a boycott by distributors; that the Denham Theatres, Inc., and the International Amusement Co. restrain from future interference with the affairs of the Huffman theatres through the grievance board.

Prices Not Held Affected

Frazer Arnold, Huffman's attorney, told the court that Huffman had been giving away tickets both in the theatre and on Denver streets, that the winners of the automobiles did not have to be present at the theatre at the time of the drawings, and that giving away the cars was in reality only a means of advertising the theatres and that it in no way lowered the price of admission to Huffman's theatres as appellees had contended

Arnold also claimed that Huffman's theatres do not come under Campi because he is not engaged in interstate commerce, as the distributors are, and therefore Huffman's theatres do not come under the jurisdiction of the code. Huffman has never signed the code.

Eugene I. Reed, attorney, appeared for the grievance board and the Denham Theatre, Inc., and the International Amusement Co. Byron Rogers, assistant attorney general at Denver, represented the Federal Government and Campi, assisted by Special Attorney Maston G. White of Washington. Thomas Keeley, Denver, appeared for the seven distributors named as appellees except Columbia and Gaumont British, who were not represented.

Study of Films for History Use Planned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The study of the stabiliity of motion picture films for historical purposes is about to be undertaken by the National Bureau of Standards, it was learned today.

An appropriation of $5,000, made by the National Research Council, will be used for the study, the purpose of which will be to determine how long films may be expected to keep without deterioration and what method of prolonging their life may be developed.

Because of its low cost, the conservation of storage space and convenience in handling, scientists anticipate that film, both still and motion, is destined to become an important means for the preservation of records, not only of documents but also of important events.

Report Moves To End Cases In St. Louis pointed out that criminal indictments cannot be quashed by a consent decree without preliminary legal moves which have not yet been suggested.

To enter a consent decree, it was said, the Department of Justice first would have to take steps to nolle prosse the criminal indictments, then initiate equity actions and withdraw the criminal charges. Thereafter, the equity case could be disposed of with a consent decree.

Copies of the St. Louis indictments of Harry M. Warner, Abel Cary Thomas, Gradwell Sears, Herman Starr, Ned Depinet and George Schaefer have not been received here yet. Until they are forwarded those indicted cannot be arraigned nor their bonds fixed and posted.

Independents Want Federal Probe in K. C.

rangements on later runs, which is affecting them at the box-office.

While, as it is pointed out, some of the Fox theatres are subject to the same clearances which the independents are fighting, the latter claim they are affected chiefly since their theatres are in admission brackets over which protection has been extended.

A spokesman for the protesting group, which is said to include practically all independents, charges that the present setup is illegal because the schedule incorporated in contracts with Fox was the one the local clearance board anticipated would be approved by Campi, but that while no schedule has been approved the distributors are enforcing it generally under the guise of sanction by code officials.

Independents also are protesting that some of the major companies will not sell product to be shown at 10 cents and have placed restrictions on double billing.

Contend Clearances Prolonged

The chief bone of contention is that distributors are prolonging clearances between runs, starting with 20-cent houses. Protection which formerly was 14 days for each five-cent drop in admission has been extended considerably.

The arrangement followed by one major and believed to have been adopted generally by all distributors is: First runs get 35 to 42 days over the Fox Plaza, first subsequent run, charging 30 cents; Plaza, seven days over the Fox Isis, second subsequent run, which charges 25 cents; Isis, 14 days over other 25-cent spots; 20-cent houses follow by 28 days; 15 cents, 35 days after 20 cents; 10 cents, 171 days after first run.

Whereas 20-cent situations formerly followed first run by 70 days, the period now is 84 days. Theatres at 15 cents have been set back to 119 days behind first run, instead of 84 days as previously. Ten-cent spots formerly followed first run by 98 days. This period has been prolonged to a maximum of 180 days, according to exhibitors.

The independents claim this arrangement works to the advantage of Fox Midwest and that the circuit's buying power is treated with preferential consideration by the distributors.

Looking 'Em Over

"Behind the Evidence"

(Columbia)

Fair entertainment resides in this melodrama, which has many popular ingredients that ought to please neighborhood audiences. The film throws crime, the police and the press into one pot and the resulting stew has an exciting flavor. There is action aplenty.

Norman Foster is the hero. He plays a prominent sportsman forced by the loss of his fortune in a bank crash to go to work. He talks himself into a newspaper job and is catapulted into a mess of excitement when he becomes suspicious of Donald Cook, who has won Sheila Mannors, society bud, away from Foster.

After investigation Foster discovers that Cook, ostensibly a stock broker, is the brains behind a series of sensational payroll robberies. When Cook gets wind of what the newspaper novice is up to, he puts the "spot" on the fellow. Foster pulls through, but not before he has had some pretty close shaves. His biggest reward is to find himself again the man in Miss Mannor's life.

Among the other players are Geneva Mitchell, Samuel Hinds, Frank Darien, Pat O'Malley, Gordon De Main and Edward Keane. Lambert Hillyer directed.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"When a Man's a Man"

(Lesser-Zanft-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 25.—Sol Lesser, in producing this speedy, human, high-class western, gives George O'Brien the best role of his career and presents topnotch entertainment to all houses demanding this type of show.

Harold Bell Wright's novel has received shrewd, sympathetic treatment from Agnes Christine Johnston and Frank Dazey, who concocted a smooth and convincing screen play, which Eddie Cline directed with more than the usual flair for scenic beauty, romance and suspense.

While the story is not new, the production minds have given it a twist and a pace grooving all motivations for real enjoyment.

O'Brien, a rich man's son, losing all, comes west, locates on a ranch where the owner, his daughter (Dorothy Wilson) and the foreman (Paul Kelly) are being crowded out by Harry Woods' villainy. O'Brien tames a horse, his objective, saves the ranch and gets the girl while Kelly, sacrificingly, rides off.

The production is made more worthwhile by Frank Good's fine photography. A western wow, it should clean up, as star, story and amusement values tab it for higher brackets.

No code seal. Running time, 68 minutes. "G."

New Tax Program Is Asked in California

STATE CAPITOL, SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 25.—Repeal of the sales tax, with a $175,000,000 biennial tax on gross receipts, incomes and profits, has been proposed in the State Assembly. Rates would be scaled from a quarter to two and a half per cent. The measure would make other state taxes unnecessary, it is argued.

Another bill calls for a tax of two and one-half per cent on stock transfers and of one per cent on bonds.

Only 2 Film Men, Zukor And Schaefer, Among 16 Selected

By SHERWIN A. KANE

Financial interests in the Paramount Publix reorganization won a sweping victory in week-end meetings at which the complete and, presumably, final makeup of the initial board of directors was resolved. Only two management men, Adolph Zukor and George Schaefer, were named to the complete working board of 16 members.

Two additional men with operating experience in the industry are given places on the board. They are Charles E. Richardson, who served approximately a year and a half as trustee in bankruptcy for Paramount and, prior to that, was treasurer of Fox Film Corp., and John D. Hertz, who was chairman of Paramount's finance committee for the year prior to the company's bankruptcy, and who is also a director of Balaban & Katz, Paramount's Chicago theatre subsidiary.

Hertz Has Bank Support

Richardson is the board nominee of the merchandise creditors' committee, which also supported the Zukor and Schaefer elections. Hertz, a vice-president of Lehman Bros., is regarded as having had the support of the Continental Illinois National Bank and of independent bond and stock holders of appreciable size. His election removes the opposition to the Paramount reorganization plan which had been indicated from these sources.

Other new members of the board agreed upon, whose selection pacified other potential opposition to the plan include Floyd B. Odlum, president and director of the Atlas Utilities Corp., and a Mr. Fordington, representative of British insurance companies owning large blocks of Paramount stock. Atlas is understood to have appreciable holdings in Paramount bonds not deposited with the bondholders' committees and, according to reports, may also participate in the underwriting of the new Paramount stock.

Paramount's creditor bank group adds William S. Gray, Jr., vice-president of Central Hanover Bank and

Theatres of World Reach 60,918 Top

Figures Are Compiled by Government Bureau

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27. — Total number of picture houses throughout the world in 1934 was 60,918, or a gain of 571 over 1933 when the total was computed as 60,347 by the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

While 1934 showed an increase over 1933, last year suffered a decline of 1,006 houses as compared with 1932, when the total, as prepared by this government bureau, was computed at 61,924.

A three-year comparison of theatres throughout the world, by territories and nations, appears on pages 11 and 12.

Injunction on ASCAP's Fees May Be Asked

Reports emanating from the middle west are to the effect a movement is under way among exhibitors to enjoin collection of the music tax by A. S. C. A. P. until the Government's anti-trust suit against the organization is determined.

Exhibitor groups in one state are preparing to take action through the Federal courts against collection by A. S. C. A. P. of the increased schedule of fees which went into effect last Oct. 1.

Counsel has been instructed to file an injunction suit against the music composers' and publishers' organization on behalf of theatre owners jointly. It is planned to ask the Federal court to impound fees already

Availability In Code Terms To Be Defined

Definition of the term "availability" in the code section dealing with selective contracts has Campi's legal committee working on a proposed amendment to the code to clarify existing doubt on the interpretation.

According to the code, films bought selectively must be rejected within 21 days after availability, otherwise the exhibitor must be resigned to take the pictures at a later date. The term availability may mean when a picture is released in a given territory and then again it may indicate that films are ready for showing 21 days after first runs in a given area are through with showings.

Hope for a Monday morning: If, through some magic, the editorial approach of the Boston Traveler on production code activities and results could find duplication in thought, not necessarily in language, in the newspaper think tanks of the nation, what a Monday this would be! Or a Tuesday or another day for that matter. What the Traveler scrivener wrote is so good, this column goes to it generously, not overlooking the strain on its own dubious enterprise which the generous use of scissors and paste lightens. . . .

You are now in Boston:

"To those persons who have decried the motion picture for its vulgarity we address ourselves.

"Did you mean it or were you merely indulging in the luxury of self-righteousness?

"You were right when you said that the movies needed cleaning. They have been cleaned. What have you done about it? Have you supported the new movie? Have you even gone to see it? We have. Our hearts have lifted as we have witnessed the superb artistry, the high drama, the intense love interest, the sheer beauty, the gripping action of several masterpieces, pictures that cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. And some of them are financial failures.

". . . Joseph I. Breen says: 'If this condition is not remedied either the producing companies will go into bankruptcy, or we shall have enormous difficulty in maintaining our present standard of film fare.'

"No, the pictures are not dull; they are brilliant. No, they are not namby-pamby; they have punch and plenty of it. No, they do not lack sex; they have sex that is legitimately virile, exquisitely feminine. Nobody can accuse us of being tricolored violas, and the pictures satisfy our appetites.

"If all the people who said they would go to the movies regularly if the producers made pictures worth seeing would only keep their promise, the motion picture art at its highest standard would be maintained.

"Here is the challenge! Do with it what you will."

Of the octette which John C. Flinn has caused to be deposited on the desks of impartial code board members, the first question is of considerable interest. We refresh your memory:

> "Are the members of your local code board sincere in their determination and is the individual fair in reaching conclusions or is he swayed by the group he represents?"

Which intrigues this department mightily, for it causes its guardian to recall one day, months back now, when he discussed the code, what it was supposed to do and what it was not doing. The doubt which crept into this space was the same which patently prevails in Flinn's own mind today. The original premise was merely this, and it is simple enough: Whether or not exhibitors and exchangemen alike could or would forget the normal function of operating their own business for a profit long enough to observe the theory and the altruism of the NRA? The impression, while neither entirely clearcut nor irrevocably etched, was that, in the main, they would not. . . .

Then as now, this is no attempt to label code board members at large with infidelity to a pledge. We believe that many of them swing pronouncedly in the direction of fulfillment. The point about it all is that, when investments either in dollars or jobs are at stake, the natural inclination is to protect those investments. In the case of the exhibitor who may be in business for himself or in partnership with a circuit, the way he is apt to think is exactly what you figure it: In the case of the exchangeman, he has New York displeasure and his sales quota to concern himself about. Agree or not, as you prefer, Flinn's query rather conclusively demonstrates that the thought which stirred this sector months ago now has found lodging in official Campi circles as well. . . .

Question No. 8 deals with clearance and zoning and inquires from the impartial men what they think should be done about it. There may or may not develop a lot of ideas and about it or them the results seem headed for the entirely negligible. The problem of clearance will remain exactly where it is just as long as distributors insist they are selling two things: (1) film and (2) protection for their films. Sales managers, as matters go today, maintain the two equations are indivisible. Some even go beyond and argue the two equations are not that at all, but actually one. This marks their sales methods as something unalterable. At least, unalterable through any known pressure or argument so far come to light from within the industry itself. It has long been the impression of the viewpoint now pounding the typewriter in the hope that you read that something, an unpleasant and troublesome something, will some day bounce in from the outside and induce the unreasonable to remember that to the mighty do not necessarily go the spoils. That is, not always. . . .

Nominate Drum, Weiss

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27. — J. W. Drum, Allied exchange manager here, and George Weiss, district manager for Warners, have been recommended as alternates for the local clearance and zoning and grievance boards to fill posts left vacant by the resignations of William Rider and Leon Levy.

Coast Men to Hear From Justice Dept.

Assistant Attorney General Harold M. Stephens.

Department officials were silent about its contents, but the impression prevails here that a sympathetic stand has been taken toward the coast complaints, one of which is that F.W.C. has violated the consent decree of 1930.

Whether attempts at prosecution will develop is something that cannot be foretold at present.

If the department starts prosecutions, it was said, they may be either in the form of charges of violation of the consent decree or an action similar to that started in St. Louis.

Cummings to Reopen Paramount in Omaha

OMAHA, Jan. 27.—Everett R. Cummings, district manager for A. H. Blank, is supervising the reopening planned for Feb. 8 of the Paramount. The house, which has 2,800 seats, has been closed for some time.

A vaudeville policy with a single feature for week-ends and double features for the rest of the week will be inaugurated with the exception of the first week when the opening revue will be held for the full week.

Cummings said negotiations with stagehands and musicians plus the fact that ground rental has been substantially reduced assured the reopening of what has been considered a jinx house.

Theatres of the World Reach Total of 60,918

States are heading for speculation in the industry. The division declares there are only 10,143 theatres in the country and bases its calculation on the Bureau of Census survey which was completed in December. It sharply alters the division's early data, as is evidenced by the 19,000 total set down for 1933 and the 19,042 listed for 1932.

By the inclusion of all halls and other places of exhibition in Russia, the total for Europe takes a pronounced rise. The government compilers declare there were 39,547 houses on that continent as the dawn of 1935 broke, comparing with 29,693 in 1933 and 30,623 in 1932.

Latin America, with a total of 5,002 houses, shows a shrinkage of 268 from the 5,270 total given it in 1933 and a more emphatic deflation under 1932 when the division credited that territory with 5,546 houses.

The Far East is credited with a gain, its combined total running to 4,718 houses for 1934 as compared with 4,639 for 1933, although this is 204 under the 4,922 total for 1932.

Without explanation, the division this year has cut Canada's fixed total of 1,100 in 1932 and 1933 to 823 for 1934, while the Far East is up 40 to a total of 685 comparing with 645 in 1933 and 691 in 1932.

40,869 Talk

Washington, Jan. 27. — World theatres equipped for sound totaled 40,869 at the beginning of the year, according to annual statistics prepared by the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

This compares with the division's own figures of 41,822 for 1933 and 36,955 for 1932.

Production Drops Slightly on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27.—Production receded last week from the high level of the preceding week, but remained several points above normal. During the past week a total of 40 features and five shorts were before the cameras as compared to 44 and seven for the previous week. In addition, a total of 28 features and 13 shorts are in the final stages of preparation, while 35 features and 20 shorts were in the cutting rooms.

Paramount continued to lead with eight features before the cameras, three preparing and two editing. Warners had seven, three and seven; M-G-M, five, one and nine; Radio, four, five and three; Fox, three, seven and three; Century, three, one and zero; Universal, three, two and one; Columbia, two, zero and five; Goldwyn, one, zero and zero; while the independents registered a total of four, six and five.

In the short subject division Roach had one before the cameras, one preparing and three editing; Columbia had one, zero and three; M-G-M, zero, five and five; Universal, zero, one and one; Warners, zero, zero and one; Radio, zero, two and two, while the independents have a total of three, four and five.

Culkin in Patman's Mantle on Booking

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Introduction in Congress by Representative Culkin of New York of the block booking bill that has long borne the name of Representative Patman of Texas is seen in Washington as an effort of the former to don the mantle dropped by the Texas member this year that he might devote himself to bonus legislation.

Representative Culkin has already introduced a bill to create a film commission. In taking up the Patman bill prohibiting block booking he is running in competition with Representative Celler of New York, who has long had such a measure in the House.

Also interested in film legislation is Representative Sirovich, a third New Yorker, who, however, has kept aloof from the block booking fight.

Submission of the bill has been expected for some time, but it is not likely that any action will be taken on it in the near future.

It is the Patman bill which long has been familiar to the industry, prohibiting compulsory block booking, compelling the furnishing of accurate synopses before release and making the Clayton Act apply to license agreements and sales.

Two Labor Measures Approved by Lehman

ALBANY, Jan. 27.—Promises to join or not to join a labor union, company or otherwise, are void under the terms of a bill just approved by Governor Herbert Lehman. The measure was introduced by Senator McNaboe as an amendment to the civil rights law.

Another labor bill introduced by Assemblyman Wojtkowiak specifically declares that the labor of human beings cannot be held a commodity or article of commerce. Governor Lehman also approved this bill.

Financiers Control New Para. Board

Trust Co., to its representation on the directorate, which already included Percy H. Johnston and Charles A. McCulloch. Gray replaces Max D. Howell, who had been named to the board in a temporary capacity earlier.

The Vanderlip bondholders' committee substitutes Robert K. Cassatt, New York and Philadelphia financier, for Dr. Julius Klein, a business consultant, who was actively engaged in development of the reorganization plan at all stages and who was placed on the board earlier. This committee is also represented on the board by Frank A. Vanderlip and Duncan G. Harris. The stockholders' protective committee retains Gerald Brooks and Maurice Newton on the board. Henry R. Luce, also elected earlier, remains.

Stephen Callaghan, one of the three trustees in bankruptcy for Allied Owners Corp., a large Paramount creditor, goes on the board as the representative of that company and as the nominee of William Greve, former head of Allied and also one of its trustees in bankruptcy. This appointment removes the potential opposition to the plan from the Greve-Allied Owners faction.

No agreement among the reorganization groups has been reached as yet on the presidency of reorganized Paramount.

Schaefer Seen Heavily Backed

Considerable support for Schaefer for the post is reported, with more or less general sentiment holding to the belief that while Zukor rightly belongs in a prominent position it need not necessarily be the presidency.

Austin Keough, Paramount secretary, and Walter B. Cokell, treasurer, who, with Howell, were elected to the board in temporary capacities in December, are now eliminated from that body.

Agreements on the board as now constituted remove all opposition to the reorganization plan which has been considered in any wise significant by those directing the reorganization moves. The claims for representation of Lazard Freres and Frank Altschul apparently are ignored. The agreements leave only Samuel Zirn, counsel for a small bondholders' group, and Archibald Palmer, counsel for a small stockholders' group, in opposition. The indicated opposition of the Munger debenture committee, represented by Szold & Brandwen, has not definitely resolved itself and may not be pressed, it is reported.

With the elimination of all major opposition to the plan through the board agreements, the reorganization is expected to make rapid progress with the resumption of hearings on the plan before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today.

Short Subjects

"The Spirit of 1976"

(Radio)

This miniature musical comedy featuring Walter King and Betty Grabble is an entertaining short subject that should fit in on many a program.

The story takes the audience ahead about 40 years and shows the country, of which King is president, operating on a no-work basis. Dissatisfaction sets in and people become tired of playing all the time, so comes the revolution and the inception of an all-work policy. King and Miss Grabble sing several songs in a pleasant fashion. Production Code Seal, No. 431. Running time, 21½ minutes. "G."

"The Little Big Top"

(Educational)

As the title implies, this short is built around a circus. Junior Coghlan and Dorothea Kent combine to present a neighborhood circus for an orphan asylum and enlist all the kids as performers. They get Poodles Hanneford's horse which has wandered away from his show. To repay them he does his riding act for their circus and thus puts it over with a bang. Good entertainment. Production code seal, 450. Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Listenin' In"

(Vitaphone)

Radio fans should appreciate this in a big way, for it presents Cross and Dunn, Mary Small and Irene Taylor in some of their best numbers. The photography and recording are good and no attempt is made to link the performers with any story or plot. They merely do their stuff in an entertaining manner. To be recommended. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Pharaohland"

(Van Beuren-Radio)

This is a travelogue that covers Egypt, particularly Port Said and the surrounding territory, to the humorous off-screen comments of Jane and Goodman Ace (The Easy Aces). The treatment here is novel and the picture as a whole is good entertainment, having both comedy and interesting shots of a strange land. Production Code Seal, No. 0289. Running time, 9 minutes. "G."

Big Crowd Expected At Censor's Dinner

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—The M.P.-T.O. testimonial dinner to Samuel D. Schwartz, retiring chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors, to be held Monday night at the Bellevue-Stratford promises to be one of the film events of the season.

Joseph Schenck, president of United Artists, will head a delegation of New York guests, while the local industry is responding whole-heartedly. The function will not only be a farewell to Schwartz, but will also serve to introduce L. Howell Davis, incoming chairman of the board, to the industry.

working on a definition for an amendment to the code. The definition will be made in the form of a recommendation to Campi which will submit the proposal to Washington for a public hearing.

The interpretation of the legal body will have no bearing on Code Authority's recent decision in the Kutinsky-Schwartz selective issue. In this instance, Campi held that unless Schwartz decides within three weeks whether he will book pictures after they play Broadway, the undated films become available to Kutinsky for negotiation.

This is the only amendment before Code Authority at the present time, all others having been given public hearings at the Capitol.

Clearance for L. A. Up Again Thursday

days, members of Code Authority discussed the coast plan, but were stymied on the basic principle of admissions governing clearance.

At the last session, the contract dispute between Jack Bellman of Hollywood Exchanges, against Ken Goldsmith and Mascot on "Little Men" did not come up, the committee hearing the complaint not having reported on its findings. Austin C. Keough, Paul Burger and Joseph Seider acted as the committee and are now studying the evidence and testimony.

C. C. Burr's protest against Mascot regarding the services of Ken Maynard is on the docket for Thursday. Papers from the litigants were received after the last Campi session with the result that John C. Flinn turned them over to the legal committee, comprising Keough. Willard C. McKay and J. Robert Rubin. Rubin is slated to leave for Palm Beach today for about two weeks and this may delay action by Code Authority.

Appeal hearings resume today after a week's layoff necessitated by the two-day Campi session last week. There are about 40 cases on the docket and they are expected to be cleaned up by the end of next month. Code Authority is anxious to wash up the appeals as quickly as possible. During the last two sessions, 56 were decided.

La Hiff's Tavern

A chop house of exceptional merit

156-8 West 48th St., N. Y. C.

Purely Personal

HENRY GINSBERG is crowding his days with shows, afternoon and evening. He's been out of New York so long, company to trail along is not especially easy to get. His friends, to a man, have seen most of the plays GINSBERG is catching up on.

LYNN FARNOL is in a stew and so is his wife, NELL. He has just signed a lease on a house in 62nd St. Gradually now painters and decorators will be creeping up on them with the usual results—and expense.

MERLE OBERON gets in from the coast today. She plans to attend the opening of "The Scarlet Pimpernel" at the Music Hall before returning to her home in London in about two weeks.

BOB GOLDSTEIN didn't get away for Chicago Saturday as he planned. Business held him in town. HARRY GOETZ made the train, however, and should hit the coast tomorrow.

Quip of the Day

Victor Mansfield Shapiro, all the way from Hollywood:

"Headline in the A.F.A. Reporter urges unemployment insurance for the actor, does it?

"A lot of fellows out here are asking how about a little employment assurance."

ARTHUR BROMBERG and CLAUDE EZELL, Monogram southern distributors, left over the week-end for their homes in Atlanta and Dallas, respectively, after a week's conferences here at the home office.

S. CHARLES EINFELD is already thinking about that next trip to the coast, what with all the cold weather around here. He is scheduled to leave for Hollywood in about three weeks.

BEN VERSCHLEISER, of the Monogram production organization, left for Hollywood over the week-end after visiting his father in Mt. Sinai Hospital.

JULIUS KLEIN remains faithful to those week-ends in Washington. And this in the face of all the Paramount angles and tangles.

PHIL HURN, co-author of "Wings in the Dark," has just returned from the gold mining country in Northern Ontario where he has been gathering material for a new yarn, "Gold Flight." He is at the 44th St. Hotel and expects to leave shortly for Hollywood.

SAM HOFFENSTEIN and DOROTHY PARKER, both known in Hollywood and elsewhere, are working on "Two on a Tower," legitimate show piece in which MARY ELLIS and TULLIO CARMINATI are booked for the leads.

BILL SHIFFRIN, formerly with LELAND HEYWARD in the east and now studio contact for HOLKS-VOLCKS in Hollywood, is pining for New York and plans to see his eastern friends shortly.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD, as Sadie Thompson in the stage revival of "Rain," is due to arrive at the Music Box on or about Feb. 11. Can't ever tell about exact dates.

TREM CARR, who prefers Hollywood climes to New York's snow, is staying on a few more weeks to complete production conferences with W. RAY JOHNSTON.

DOROTHY ARZNER, Columbia director, arrives in town from the coast this morning. She's on a vacation and wants to see some shows here.

JOE BRANDT sails Feb. 4 on the long-deferred Mediterranean cruise. MARY—Mrs. B. to you—goes along. There'll be eight weeks of it.

LOUISE BEAVERS, who starts a personal appearance tour in St. Louis this week, is booked into the Roxy for late next month.

PAUL MUNI is digging into WILLIAM BEYER'S dramatization of the life of Nijinsky. The play may find MUNI in the lead.

HOWARD S. CULLMAN delivered a talk on the ratification of the Child-Labor Law last night over station WOR.

NORTON RICHEY, JR., is off, "Rolling Down to Rio" tomorrow, to handle Monogram product in Brazil.

R. E. ANDERSON of Erpi is on the sick list.

See Little Hope of Deal by RKO-M.&S.

Little likelihood of a settlement of the Meyer & Schneider breach of lease charges against RKO involving film playing policies at the Apollo and Hollywood is seen at this time by RKO representatives, who are preparing to resume arbitration hearings on the complaints tomorrow.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for M. & S., lessor of the houses, is reported to have asked $225,000 for a settlement of the charges, which are seen as having a bearing on the September agreement by which Loew's released Fox, Columbia and Universal product to RKO. Representatives of the latter company term the proposal "ridiculous" and said Saturday they would be unwilling to discuss a settlement "at anything like that amount."

One Missouri Bill Has 3% Sales Levy

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 27.—Among several sales tax bills introduced in the Missouri legislature, one providing for a three per cent levy has been brought in by Senator Shotwell of St. Louis County. This measure is almost all-inclusive in its scope, and would apply to theatre tickets.

The bill recommended by Governor Park to hike the present levy of one-half of one per cent to a full one per cent has been introduced in the House. The measure also would extend the life of the sales tax to Dec. 31, 1937. Under the present law the tax would expire Dec. 31, this year.

Legislative circles predict the administration will ask the rate be fixed at two per cent.

Injunction on ASCAP's Fees May Be Asked

collected and to act as a repository for all fees to be paid by exhibitors. The court will be petitioned to hold the collections in escrow until the Government hands down its decision in the anti-trust action. If A. S. C. A. P. is found to be a monopoly and dissolved, the funds would be returned to exhibitors. In the event of a ruling favorable to the composers' organization, the court would hand the collections over to it.

Lawyers who are studying the matter doubt that A. S. C. A. P. legally has the authority to collect fees on behalf of all music composers.

Fight Expected on Operators' Scales

Fireworks are expected at the public hearing in Washington on Feb. 1 on the basic operators' wage scale for metropolitan New York. Representatives of the fact-finding committee, which has been holding a series of meetings with Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt during the past few weeks, will oppose the plan on the present basis.

The I. A. T. S. E., acting for Local 306, is understood to be against the 30-hour week provided in the schedule, preferring to continue on the present 40-hour basis. The T. O. C. C., representing a number of small theatres, is opposed to the 75 cents minimum clause as well as the $60 a week low for booth costs. The contention is that many exhibitors are now paying from $35 to $45 a week for booth operation and cannot stand the increase.

Century circuit and Springer & Cocalis are also prepared to fight the scale, both circuits having Empire State operators under long-term contracts which are considerably lower than the proposed schedule. Both circuits also are against Empire becoming a part of Local 306, a provision for which is contained in the new booth agreement. According to officials of these circuits, they are prepared to go to the courts to prevent an amalgamation of membership.

Reports current over the week-end had it that a basic plan for the local territory will not go through. Three bus loads of independent exhibitors are understood ready to go to Washington Thursday for the hearing, which from all indications will last more than one day.

Chicago Operators' Scales to Continue

CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Wage scales for local operators will continue on substantially the same basis here for another year. Aaron Saperstein, president of Allied Theatres of Illinois, has signed a new working agreement with the operators' union for 120 houses in his organization.

Deal between the operators' union and circuit and other houses represented by Jack Miller, head of the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n, has not yet been completed.

Montreal Tragedies Stir New Agitation

MONTREAL, Jan. 27. — Further repercussions are expected to follow the death of a woman and four children during a projection machine fire in a private home. The machine was being used for a show for neighborhood children.

Quebec statutes forbid the attendance of juveniles at theatres, but twice this winter two serious incidents have occurred at shows under non-supervised auspices and theatre proprietors have taken up the matter of removing the Government ban on the admission of juveniles to inspected theatres where no accidents have taken place.

In one case, at Quebec City, 150 children fell when the stairway to a church hall collapsed under their weight as they pressed into the second-story auditorium. Many were seriously injured.

At Montreal, Carmel Birtz, a licensed operator for the past six years, was conducting a show in a private house when the film took fire and five of the 40 patrons were killed.

Hot Words Fly As Selectives Come Up Again

Board Pierces Verbal Fog; Drops Case

Selective contracts again stirred the equanimity of the New York grievance board yesterday when the overbuying complaint of G. Piccione, Plaza, Freeport, L. I., against Century's Grove and Freeport developed into a heated debate. The debate, arguments and counter-arguments became erratic and at times resembled a free-for-all between lawyers and members of the board. Although Myron Sattler of Paramount was chairman of the session, George Thompson, impartial member, had to call for order several times.

There were accusations by Mitchell Klupt, representing Century, of tricky questioning on the part of Melvin Albert, representing Piccione, followed by an open denunciation by Louis Nizer of the theory of selective pacts.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 29.—Exhibitors filing a grievance action against a competitor on reduced admissions must be free of such practices themselves before the local boards can be expected to enforce cease and desist orders against respondents.

Court Again Requested To Name a Board

Appointment by the court of a group of voting trustees to head Paramount in place of a board of directors after the reorganization of the company was urged upon Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday for the third time in two days of hearings of opposition to the Paramount reorganization plan.

Archibald C. Palmer, who says he represents several thousand shares of Paramount stock, made the appeal to the court yesterday following identical appeals made on Monday by Robert Szold, counsel for the Munger debenture committee, and Louis Boehm, attorney for stockholders. Reading from MOTION PICTURE DAILY's exclusive list of the 16 men agreed upon for the new Paramount board by the principal creditors' groups, Palmer attacked the fitness of each.

U.A.-M-G-M Win in Midnight Show Case

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 29.—Unauthorized midnight showings prior to the day set in contracts for the first exhibition of a film were barred in a decision handed down this week by U. S. District Court Judge Gibson. The case was brought by United Artists and M-G-M against Bart Dattola, operator of the Paramount at New Kensington, Pa.

The court ruled that an exhibitor must have written permission to show a film prior to 6 A.M. of the day set for the start of a run. The defendant contended he had oral permission and that he had included the receipts of the midnight showing in his accounting of the first day's gross, but the court ruled that because he had failed to make a separate accounting of the midnight gross acceptance of the money by the two distributors could not be construed as approval of the showing.

Monroe Greenthal will preside in the absence of William Ferguson who is down Florida-way trying to take a vacation from M-G-M exploitation duties.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

FROM Gatti-Casazza up or down the line, as you like it, to syndicate writers, magazine editors, daily and trade paper critics, Erpi executives, an occasional independent distributor and the more lowly in publicity dispensers, a formidable group turned out and into the Waldorf as evening fell last night to see what the first release of the much-heralded "March of Time" had to say for itself. No longer the experimental subject, this was what first runs will get beginning Friday. . . .

It is a six-part affair, twenty minutes in length. It is interesting and refreshing and true to the conception behind Time, the magazine and the subject's mentor, that news, provided the editorial judgment that sifts it is nicely balanced, is most arresting when it is interpreted. Outstanding far and away to this observer is the story built around Prince Kimmochi Saionji, "the wise old man of Okitsu, twice premier of Japan, last of the Elder Statesmen." With flash-back and editorial ingenuity and in the space of a handful or more of minutes, the screen shows and the narrator explains the crisis which confronts Nippon. Are the men of war or the men of peace to plant their standard in victory? "The March of Time" poises the issue, gives no answer but pungently, dramatically and emotionally, tells and shows the factors that maintain the scales in the balance. . . .

There is significance in that Japanese episode. It demonstrates that when the producers find something into which they can sink their teeth, they bite hard. This column urges that they continue to look and to bite in the conviction that enough of guts and interest in this troublesome, issue-sodden existence is waiting to have its story presented. The very title, "The March of Time," induces visions of a record on celluloid and on sound track of events that mean something to the transients in a world beset with vexatious and interesting problems. Under its own decreed policy of interpretative news, peering into the why, how and when, "The March of Time" has an unusual opportunity to be provocative and attention-holding without necessarily being partial. . . .

For its other five episodes, the producers selected the story of "21," famous New York speakeasy and how its owners beat the Feds during prohibition; the safety campaign in London under Transport Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha and what the public did to his beacons; Fred Perkins, York, Pa., battery manufacturer who defied the NRA and found rallying round him legalistic talent which fortunes could not buy; Moe Buchsbaum, arrested for speeding in France who refused to pay his $6.60 fine unless to the American Government by way of reducing the Frence war debt; Gatti-Casazza and his 28th and final first night of opera at the Metropolitan. . . .

Merit runs through all of the subject matter. The selection is adroit, the treatment different and fresh. But there remains additional opportunity to go further. If the vigor and viewpoint which have made Time such a publication gargantuan prevail, as indications have it they will, "The March of Time," as good as it is, making as auspicious a debut as it does, sounding off a newsreel idea sans ski jumpers, baby parades and fashion shows and concentrating more on the fibre than the fluff, will better with succeeding issues. . . .

Many are the versions of the Paramount, Adolph Zukor situation, et al. Reason, not hearsay, credits the inside fight, over now, to exclude him from the board of the new company as a movement led principally by H. A. Fortington, representing securities controlled by big and British insurance companies; John D. Hertz, one-time chairman of the Paramount finance committee; Floyd Odlum, through Atlas which owns large blocks of bonds never deposited with the bondholders' committee; William Greve of Allied Owners and, presumably, several important creditor banks. These interests capitulated only when conviction finally became theirs that the Zukor name means something at Paramount, the convincing being credited to the A. Z. supporters. . . .

Not merely that, however. This point is supposed to have been made: That Zukor, out of Paramount and with a competing company might have traveling by his side Paramount executives and Paramount talent of sufficient weight to help the competition and handicap Paramount. At any rate, he is on the board. And now what what? Will he be president and, if he is, what brakes will be placed upon his functioning? Or isn't it a conjecture closer to fact that he will be named to head an executive committee whereon other members will carry vote as well as voice? . . .

The executive committee—it doesn't even exist so far—is expected to be the real force in the management. In addition to actual administrative powers, it is very apt—it might well do it—relied upon heavily by the uninitiated and new board of directors for practical slants on what the film business is all about. Speculative solely, but around plenty, if you listen, is the report George J. Schaefer is likely fodder for the presidency. Around as well are other reports about that post, the names most frequently mentioned belonging to Charles E. Richardson, John D. Hertz, Zukor. And Steve Lynch. . . .

Yesterday developed a doubt about Kuhn, Loeb and earlier reports that Paramount's original financial daddy was out of the situation. Archibald Palmer, about whom more is told if you will turn this page to the left, charged in court that Frank A. Vanderlip, one of the new directors, and several bank nominees have K., L. connections by either directly representing that firm's Paramount bond holdings or through K., L.'s stock interest in several of the banks with representation on the board. Some insiders lean toward this viewpoint. That's a whisper. Counsel for the bank group, as well as for Vanderlip, in court yesterday denied the allegation. That's a statement. . . .

attacks on the board nominees. "If there must be a board it should have on it the president, general manager, general counsel and other executives of the company. If the bankers want to watch, put a few of them on the finance committee, but don't let them run the company. The management is the most important to the company's future. The court should name a voting trust for three years which could get a management the industry will not sneer at."

Palmer followed his attack on the proposed directorate with criticism of virtually every phase of the plan, but with special emphasis on the bank debt settlement. Several of his statements regarding the fitness of the proposed directors were challenged as "untrue" by Morton G. Bogue, of counsel for the bank group, and Lansing P. Reed, of counsel for the Vanderlip debenture committee.

Palmer, earlier, had been required by the court to furnish a list of the stockholders he claimed to represent. Alfred A. Cook, counsel for Paramount and for the stockholders' committee, reported to the court yesterday that there was no record of any of the holders named in the list supplied by Palmer.

Attacks Para. B'way Plan

Monroe Goldwater, law partner of Edward J. Flynn, Bronx Democratic leader, appearing as counsel for Allied Owners, a large Paramount creditor, described the reorganization plan as "good, on the whole," but attacked the plan for reorganization of Paramount Broadway, holding company for the Paramount Building and theatre. Asserting that the rental for office space and the theatre is "excessive," Goldwater urged abandonment of the property in favor of cheaper headquarters for Paramount elsewhere. He charged that the terms provided for bondholders in the Broadway plan "remove the possibility of the parent company ever deriving any profit from the property."

Jacob Lesser, representing stockholders, attacked various phases of the plan, particularly those relating to the $2 assessment on stockholders. He asked the court to appoint counsel in addition to Cook to represent Paramount in the proceedings. Opposition was also registered by counsel for the 1432 Broadway Corp., whose rent claim of $400,000 is being contested by counsel for the Paramount trustees.

The hearing will be resumed today.

Para. Studio Lease Approved by Court

An order approving the leasing by Paramount News of the Astoria, L. I., studio has been signed by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, counsel for the Paramount Publix trustees reported yesterday. The studio lease is part of a plan under which Paramount retains possession of various properties held by Seneca Holding Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary.

A plan for expediting the reorganization of Olympia Theatres, Paramount's New England subsidiary, by purchasing for $50,000 outstanding stock of the company not owned by Paramount and allowing a $1,800,000 claim of Olympia stockholders for alleged breach of a stock purchase agreement by Paramount, was taken under advisement yesterday by Special Master John E. Joyce following a hearing. The proposal is regarded as a means of avoiding a delay of one year in the reorganization of Olympia, which might be occasioned by dissenting stockholders.

is accepted as a precedent to be followed by local boards, and indicates a procedure wherein the complainant must also agree to drop code violations.

Inasmuch as it is the practice of respondents to bring charges against complainants where they are also violating the code, this ruling, it is expected, will expedite the work of local boards and cut down on the number of appeals to Campi.

Campi determined this point in deciding an appeal by John Feeney of the Gem in Tulsa from a decision awarded to Southwestern Theatres of the same city. Feeney contended Southwestern Theatres were likewise violating the reduced admission clause of the code and he was forced to adopt bank nights and similar devices in self defense.

Campi affirmed the cease and desist order issued against Feeney, but ruled in cases such as this the order shall become effective and remain in effect "only so long as the complainant abides by the provisions of Article V-E, Part 3, Section 1 of the code."

Tulsa Houses Given Stay on Bank Nights

bans on bank nights against the Gem and Cozy theatres, Tulsa, pending a decision by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals on the Huffman case which originated in Denver.

A petition filed by the Tulsa houses named six major distributors and members of the grievance board. It alleged that distributors were threatening to stop film service.

Eldon J. Dick, attorney for the theatres, pointed out that the case was exactly like the Huffman case.

Tacit Pact Retains Cleveland's Zoning and is being continued to the satisfaction to all, he said. In a few instances, some unimportant houses are "chiseling," Gusdanovic declared.

According to the agreement, theatres charging 25 cents get pictures 35 days after first run, houses with admissions of 20 cents, 56 days; 15 cents, 65 days, and 10 cents, 100 or more days.

Duals are rare in Cleveland, the circuit operator stated. He added that independent distributors are interesting outside parties to reopen dark houses with double features, naming the Temple, Metropolitan, Family and Alhambra as instances. He said that where independents have good features they are booked in single programs, but much of the product from the smaller exchanges does not warrant this type of playing time.

The Alhambra, which dropped duals when it booked "Imitation of Life," has held the Universal picture four weeks, Gusdanovic said.

Exhibitors are now discussing renewing the dual ban agreement which expires July 8. The exhibitor stated that in Cleveland proper there are no giveaways or two-for-ones prevalent. Price cutting is also absent, he held.

distribution official asserted: "We are not thinking about trouble until we meet it face to face." His opinion was that if protection will prolong the life of a theatre over an inferior house, it will be given the necessary protection.

An attempt was made to extend this theory to double bills when Columbia and Universal initiated a move to set duals back 28 days behind the regular dating spot. When exhibitors protested, the major distributors went into a huddle and decided to release features for dualing on the single bill spot.

The independents want the distributors to return to the old method, which proved generally satisfactory for three years, of granting equally priced houses identical clearance. This, however, the Campi clearance committee claims is illegal, and has been rejected as the basis for a schedule.

its case to Federal District Attorney Pierson M. Hall, who will defend it against the show cause order issued Jan. 24 by Judge Harry A. Holzer of the U. S. District Court.

The court, on that date, issued a temporary restraining order against the board requiring it to show cause why a cease and desist order should be applied to the Mission Theatre, San Gabriel, on the bank night complaint filed by the Granada of Alhambra. The same order also applied to M-G-M, Vitagraph, United Artists and Paramount.

Hot Words Fly As Selectives Come Up Again

Louis Geller disputed Nizer's statements and then Sattler and Jack Bellman tried to settle the whole argument by asking Century immediately to choose 85 second runs so that the complainant could begin negotiations for the product he needed. This suggestion met with a negative response when Century contended it could not tell from its contracts what pictures it was getting, most of the pacts having production numbers without mention of star or story.

Piccione claimed that Century's buying of 376 first runs for the Freeport and Grove in addition to a selection of 66 of the total for second run at the first house tied up all the product so that he could not get any pictures until Century passed them up. The complainant also held that Century had First Division, Capital, Hollywood and Gaumont British films bought, but Klupt countered with the information that although some pictures from these companies were played they were bought on individual pacts.

Tom Murray of Century stated that when the circuit books first run pictures it immediately books or rejects its second run films for the Freeport, thus giving Piccione ample time to book. Murray also said that he has to wait from 35 to 45 days after Broadway first run before he can run in Freeport. He offered to help Piccione if he would come up to see him.

Nizer Calls System Wrong

Nizer, who represented Morris Kutinsky of the Community, Queens Village, in a similar complaint against Century, contended that the system of selective contracts is wrong and that exchanges do not want to sell that way.

Klupt stated: "We don't want to buy blind. I sweated down in Washington at the time of the drafting of the code to get designations and couldn't get it. If you can tell us what pictures we are going to get, we will make our selection." He pointed out that there is no agreement between Century or any of the exchanges not to sell the Plaza. Piccione last year bought Paramount and Fox when Century couldn't get together on a deal, but this season A. H. Schwartz has the two products.

After an executive session, the board dismissed the complaint, stating that Century must date or reject second runs within 21 days after Broadway first runs.

Loew's complaint against Ben Roman of the Renaissance for prematurely advertising ahead of the Victoria and Broadway runs was also decided. Roman was found guilty of advertising ahead of Broadway, but can advertise seven days after the Victoria which has protection over the Renaissance.

Fox Midwest and Fox Rocky Mountain have reported to both New York and Los Angeles.

His operating contract is not yet set, Skouras said, and it would be premature to talk about it, as it will not be effected until after reorganization.

Skouras also paid tribute to the operations of Elmer C. Rhoden and Rick Ricketson and said that they, and other division heads, can remain in their present posts as long as they desire.

Skouras and Edward Alperson met H. J. Fitzgerald of Fox Wisconsin at Milwaukee and the three arrived here yesterday. With Rhoden, they will meet Ricketson at Las Vegas, arriving on the coast Wednesday. Frank L. Newman of the Evergreen Theatres in Seattle is also scheduled to attend the coast conferences.

Skouras expects to return to New York Monday, but Alperson may stay longer.

New Jersey Tax May Not Reach Theatres

services may also be exempt in the light of new revenue estimates.

For the second week in succession introduction of the sales and income tax bills was delayed to permit changes suggested by the Governor. One of the major changes in the sales tax is reported to be elimination of amusements from paying the tax, although details of the measure were a closely guarded secret. It will not be known definitely whether amusements are exempted until the bill is introduced and printed later this week.

A major change in policy is contemplated for the income tax measure. Personal and corporate incomes are being separated by tax experts to determine whether a higher rate on corporations would be effective. The first proposal of Governor Hoffman was for a two per cent income tax with approximately the same exemptions as the Federal levy.

Now the plan is reported to be a two per cent rate on personal incomes and a higher graduated schedule for corporations.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Shadow of Doubt"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—"Shadow of Doubt" leaves no doubt that the picture will get successful audience reaction in any man's town. Rich story quality and fast tempo, plus capable delivery point up a well-balanced cast headed by Ricardo Cortez, Virginia Bruce, Constance Collier, Isabel Jewell, Betty Furness, Arthur Byron and others.

George Seitz's brilliant direction extracts all possible from the story material, which was adapted by Wells Root from Arthur Somers Roche's original depicting a multiple murder with the suspects a radio solicitor, a press agent and a temperamental film star.

Cortez and Miss Bruce carry the romantic interest, with Miss Collier dominating throughout by playing an old aunt opposed to her nephew, Cortez, falling in love with an actress. So many fast situations develop that the plot becomes secondary, and, although few murders are committed, unraveling these crimes makes good entertainment for the average theatre-goer.

Beautiful settings and expert photography add to the splendid acting and direction. The film was produced by Lucien Hubbard.

Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

New Idea in London Automatic Theatres

American tourists in London will soon have more than the fog, driving on the opposite side of the road and cockney accents to contend with. An automatic theatre is about to be installed, if dispatches from the London Sunday Express can be believed, and Americans that must have pictures, be they where they may, will probably find themselves stumped for the first time.

L. J. Briggs is the inventor in the case. His idea is to have a shilling-in-the-slot box-office—or six pence or half a crown, according to the seat.

Automatic projection does away with men in the booth. This because three miles of film can be loaded into one machine and breakage is done away with by means of a new sprocket that works without pressure.

A time switch will cause doors to open and close according to the will of the proprietor, who, in fact, need not go near his house except to collect—or in case of an emergency.

In describing his plan, Briggs says: "A gate allows one patron through at a time when he or she puts the money in the slot.

"When all the seats are full, the gate locks itself, lights a sign announcing the fact and seals the money slot."

Briggs doesn't say, however, what is done when a family, say of five, is passing through, with papa dropping shillings into the slot, and suddenly signs begin to light up telling him no more can get in when half his family is already inside. Or, if a gallant swain passes his girl friend in and finds himself on the outside.

Plan Roosevelt Party

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—All studios will join in staging a Roosevelt birthday party tonight at the Warner Sunset studio. Top-line stars will appear, among them Wallace Beery and Bing Crosby. Sid Grauman and Norman Manning comprise the entertainment committee. Thirty per cent of the proceeds will go to Warm Springs, the balance to the local fund.

Gusdanovic Appeals Cleveland Decision

Declaring that the Temple, Cleveland, always maintained 14 days' protection over the Sun, Paul Gusdanovic, operator of the former house, yesterday appealed a decision of the Cleveland clearance and zoning board, which recently held that the two theatres were in different zones. The appellant stated that although he had bought protection over the Sun this season, it was for future film buys that he was complaining.

Gusdanovic contended at a hearing before Leslie E. Thompson, Roy L. Haines and John Benas that the first decision of the local board had unanimously held that the two theatres were in the same zone and competitive, amending the decision with a clause that if the Sun stopped advertising admissions in newspapers it would consider an application to put the Temple in zone 18 and the Sun in zone 17. The Temple pays from $50 to $800 for a picture while the Sun pays from $10 to $50, Gusdanovic said.

The Sun followed the suggestion and when the case came before the local board again, the two houses were put in separate zones by the board. It is from this ruling that Gusdanovic appealed.

Other appeals discussed by the committee were:

Charles Gottlob, Sunbeam, Cleveland, against the Sun, same city, on reduced admissions; Joseph Litvag, Roxy, St. Louis, against the Granada and Kingsland, same city, on clearance and zoning; Ira, St. Louis, against Mikado, Tivoli and Wellston, same city, on clearance and zoning.

No Milton Sunday Shows

MILTON, Mass., Jan. 29. — The Board of Selectmen has voted against licensing Sunday pictures. Chairman Frederick A. Gaskins gave the reason for the dismissal as "lack of interest of the citizens." 600 or more would be raised from $150 to $1,500. These hikes are in addition to license fees exhibitors are now paying for marquees, cooling systems, stage shows and oil burners.

Important independent and circuit men met yesterday at a secret session to discuss action to be taken today. The I. T. O. A. called off its regular meeting so that members could be on hand for the downtown conclave. Some independents hold that if the proposed increases go through they will be forced to close their doors.

Bitter Cold Hits Lincoln Theatres

LINCOLN, Jan. 29.—Bitter cold with gales pushing the thermometer down to 12 below zero hit theatres last week.

"Imitation of Life" at the Stuart started well, but slipped with the mercury. Final tally was $2,700, below average by $400. "We Live Again," Lincoln, bolstered by a big short program started to wow 'em, but skidded, too. The take was only $1,700.

Wired Houses Of World Cut, Study Claims

Industry Figures Show Total Is 40,869

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—Wired theatres throughout the world shriveled in number in 1934 as compared with 1933, a further analysis of statistics prepared by the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce shows. This conclusion fails to jibe with the division's own figures on world theatres which show there were 571 more in 1934 when the total ran to 60,918 than that government bureau could find around in 1933. The figures for that year are given as 60,347.

Houses equipped for sound in 1934, according to this authority, were 40,869 as against 41,823 in 1933 and 36,955 in 1932. The discrepancy between

Kuhn, Loeb Seen Eliminated From New Paramount Setup

Complete elimination of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. from Paramount affairs of the future is regarded as having been virtually brought about by important reorganization factors.

This banking institution which handled Paramount's first public financing more than 15 years ago and has been closely identified since with the financial affairs of the company, through all phases of its theatre, production and distribution expansion, was recently involved in suits brought by the Paramount trustees over operations in connection with an employes' stock purchase plan of 1928 to 1932. This entanglement is popularly credited in reorganization circles as the reason for the elimination of the bank from future Paramount affairs. Other reports, however, hold that brisk competition for the financing of the new company has played its part in the current situation.

The anti-Kuhn, Loeb maneuvers are held to be directly responsible for the elimination from the new Paramount board late last week of Dr. Julius

German Double Print Patent Ruled Valid

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The Tobis double-print patent is valid and fully covered by the present methods of copying, according to a decision recently handed down by the German Supreme Court, states Trade Commissioner George R. Canty in Leipzig in a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce. The details of the decision will not be made public for several weeks.

The decision, which is of basic importance to the German film copying industry and not without effect in the American industry, related to the joint suit of Ufa-Afifa (the Ufa's laboratory subsidiary) and Hubert Schenger against the Tobis group to test the validity of the double-print patent.

This patent covers the copying of two negatives, which have been independently shot and developed, on a single positive film. The patent was originally granted to one Hans Zogt, of Berlin, in 1921; afterward sold to the Tri-Ergon patent holders in 1924; and then, upon liquidation of these latter, it fell into the hands of the Tobis group in 1928.

After lengthy deliberations, the Leipzig Court sustained the Tobis rights.

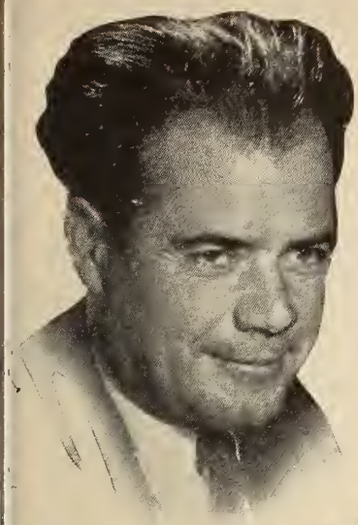
single feature agreement that became effective July 8, 1934 for a one-year period. Kaplan says he is delighted with the way the single feature agreement has worked out and is anxious to continue it. He reports that others operating small independent outlying houses are also anxious to continue the policy, but in order to have it successful it must be in general effect.

On the other hand, the few double feature houses report business is beyond their expectations. The Metropolitan, closed for more than 10 years, and situated in a neighborhood remote from residences, resports business has increased each week since the opening four weeks ago to such an extent that the operators, Stern Brothers, were obliged to open and outfit the balcony.



The Grand Central, formerly operated by Max Kaplan and owned by Mrs. Max Kaplan, went to double features this week, making the fifth double feature house. The other double feature houses are the Temple, Family, Alhambra, Metropolitan.

into the poster business. Deals are now under consideration and in process of negotiation between National Screen and major distributors whereby National Screen will handle distribution of posters and advertising accessories of these film companies from a central point in each territory," declares the current issue of The Contact, organ of the M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania.

The house organ then proceeds to attack the plan, describing it as "but one step away from monopoly and complete control of the poster situation with the elimination of the poster exchanges throughout the country."

I HAVE photographed 220 pictures in my career, but never have I been more impressed than with Edward G. Robinson's amazing performance in "The Whole Town's Talking". This is surely a new type of story, and a real new ROBINSON, such as the world has never seen before. It is a masterpiece of direction by John Ford and written by Jo Swerling and Robert Riskin, from a story by W.R. Burnett.

Wired Houses Of World Cut, Study Claims

government and film industry figures becomes the sharper in view of the recently announced statistics of the Film Boards of Trade whose secretaries, by their own survey, concluded there were 18,263 houses in United States and not merely 10,143 arrived at by the Bureau of the Census last December. Currently, the Motion Picture Division, turning to the census bureau as its source, has trimmed American theatres from the 19,000 cited for 1933 to the 10,143 cited by census officials. That covers all theatres. The division further reduced sound theatres in this country from its own announced figure of 15,000 for 1933 again to the census calculation of 10,143.

Big Gain in Europe

Thus, while in the world's richest market, the statistics would indicate sound is reaching the public through fewer outlets, the division reports a decided gain in Europe where the 1934 total is placed at 23,460 as against 20,934 for 1933. In that territory, the most pronounced gains are reported from Germany which is up 489 as compared with 4,000 for 1933 and France which now presumably operates 2,900 sound houses when it had only 2,550 in 1933.

Reporting a wider spread of talking pictures, as well, are England, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Belgium, Poland, Denmark, Hungary, Switzerland, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Greece, Latvia, Turkey and Esthonia. Operating fewer sound houses according to the division, are: Russia, Spain, Austria, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Lithuania.

Latin-America today has 575 more wired houses than it had in 1933, the current total being 2,783 as compared with 2,208. Brazil reported the largest increase—275. While the rise was general, these countries show a decline: Chile, Honduras, Dominican Republic and Paraguay.

Second only to Europe as a more fruitful market for sound is the Far East. Sound houses there in 1934 were 3,362 when there were only 2,539 in 1933. The gain of 823 was made chiefly in Japan and India which are accountable for 593 of the total increase.

Loss in Africa, Near East

Africa and the Near East showed less progress than the rest of the world, barring, of course, the startling difference between government and industry statistics embracing the United States. In that corner of the world, the total is given as 411 for 1934 as compared with 432 in 1933.

A two-year comparison of sound theatres, prepared by MOTION PICTURE DAILY from the Motion Picture Division's statistics follows:

World's Sound Theatres in Drop, Gov't Bureau Asserts

Washington, Jan. 28.—Wired theatres throughout the world in 1934 were 954 under the 1933 total of 41,823, but were 3,914 ahead of the 1932 figure at 36,955, according to a subsequent breakdown of statistics compiled by the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce.

Whereas the division credited the United States with 15,000 in 1933, the current total is given as 10,143, or the result reached by the Bureau of the Census in its survey made public in December.

A three-year comparison follows:

	1934	1933	1932

The film Board of Trade annual theatre survey, details of which appeared in Motion Picture Daily on Jan. 23, gave the United States total as 14,552 theatres in operation as compared with a total of 18,263 in the country.

"Chan" at $14,000; Is Given Holdover

"The Silver Streak" fared badly on account of the snowstorm. The 11-day take was $13,500.

"Baboona" hit a nice $15,000 at the Rialto and is being held over. "Bordertown," at the Strand, is expected to tally around $30,000 for the first seven days. It's being held a second week, followed by "Devil Dogs of the Air," which will probably go two weeks and then will be succeeded by "Sweet Music," with Rudy Vallee, which is dated in for three weeks.

"David Copperfield" is holding strong on its second week at the Capitol and is set for another seven days with a probability of a fourth week. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" garnered $45,000 on its second week at the Paramount. It holds for a third and last week with a possibility that it may go into another Broadway house adjacent to the Paramount. The same picture is in its second week at the Paramount Brooklyn and also is being held for a fortnight at the Paramount, Newark. At the Brooklyn theatre, "Lancers" speared $26,000 during the first session and Si Fabian is studying the possibility of a third week.

Bernerd for an End To Sales in Blocks

the Fox exchange and the press were in attendance. The two are on a tour of exchanges and are due back Monday.

In England, no exchange has cause to chase dates, Bernerd stated, adding that it was "just too bad" for the exchange there if the exhibitor did not trust it.

Gaumont British will see to it that every exhibitor who plays its pictures in this country will be satisfied, Bernerd promised. He declared his satisfaction with progress made by his American organization to date, complimented George W. Weeks, G. B.'s general sales manager, and revealed his organization has a deal calling for an interchange of stars with Fox.

Next season's program will range from six to 16 pictures with Mark Ostrer arriving from London shortly to set the schedule. Bernerd also revealed that in the offing was a special to be made for the American market with a minimum of dialect and with more American faces.

He conceded that the handling of salesmen in this country was a problem that was being worked out. Gaumont British today has 70 in the domestic field. "See every picture before booking," he advised theatremen present, continuing that Gaumont British will give allowances to any theatre losing money on the product. Asserting that anyone can sell pictures once, Bernerd gave it as his opinion that coming back year after year and increasing business constituted his idea of real salesmanship. Gaumont planned to do this, he concluded.

Jersey Sales Tax Opposition Gains

by Governor Harold G. Hoffman. Passage of either measure at this time appears doubtful.

The sales tax bill is slated for introduction in the Assembly tonight, but the income tax bill will not be ready for some time. The sales tax bill, it is understood, still carries the two per cent levy on gross business of theatres, but provision is made for passing the tax on to admission prices.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic leader, is heading the opposition to the sales tax. The mayor at a conference of Democratic legislators got them to oppose any new taxes. Since the Democrats have 26 votes in the Assembly, and the Republicans have only three more than necessary to pass bills, the Governor's program is in a precarious position. Five of the Republican assemblymen ran on a platform opposed to the sales tax and unless there is a decided shift the bill will not pass the House.

This industry would have three members on the council, one each for management, investors and owners and labor.

The council, among other things, would have control of the financing of film companies and subsidiaries, distribution of product, the use of so-called labor-saving machinery and devices, the age limits of employes, rearrangement of hours so that unemployed might be given jobs and the assignment of these unemployed to definite positions, distribution in a more equitable manner of wealth, distribution of income, and the strict adherence to a high standard of labor laws to be determined later. The council would be vested with authority to enter compacts with other states.

Four Creditor Groups Attack Para. Lineup

The complete list of the 16 directors agreed upon by the guiding reorganization groups appeared exclusively in yesterday's MOTION PICTURE DAILY and placed a premium on copies of the paper which found their way into the courtroom.

The importance of the pacified groups as ranking creditors was disclosed during the day when George Z. Medalie, former Federal district attorney here, appearing as counsel for the consolidated interests, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that they represented a total of $14,000,000 in claims, largely made up of bond and stock holdings. Among the interests represented by the claims are the Atlas investment group, British insurance companies holding Paramount securities, several banks and the John D. Hertz interests. This group placed three representatives on the board.

The only registered opposition to the Paramount plan, it was indicated yesterday, will be made by Samuel Zirn, counsel for a small bondholders' group; Archibald Palmer, counsel for a small amount of stock; the Munger debenture committee, represented by Szold and Brandwen, and Louis Boehm, representing a small stockholders' group. Allied Owners, which is given representation on the board through the recent agreements, will confine its opposition to the Paramount Broadway plan.

Others Slated to Be Heard

Yesterday, Zirn, Boehm and Robert Szold were heard. Palmer and Monroe Goldwater, counsel for the Allied Owners' trustees in bankruptcy, will be heard when the hearing resumes today. Thereafter, the proponents of the plan, which include all of the important bond, stock, bank and merchandise creditors' committees, will be given a hearing, following which Alfred Cook, counsel for Paramount and for the stockholders' committee, will offer rebuttal to the opposition. Thereafter, the court indicated, it would take the plan under advisement and either give it tentative approval or recommend changes. The plan would then be issued to creditors with requests for their assents and returned for the court's final approval.

Yesterday's opposition centered mainly on phases of the Paramount bank debt settlement; the provisions for taking care of stockholders and the directorate of the new company.

Szold and Boehm both stated they favored the naming of voting trustees by the court in place of a creditor elected directorate, or the naming by the court of a temporary board to serve for at least one year after reorganization. Zirn also asked for close court supervision over the board, with the terms of directors to be limited to one or two years instead of the four-year period provided in the plan. Szold asked for a good representation of "business" men on the board, as distinguished from "financial men with Wall St. connections." The proposed board represents a large majority of financial men.

The opposition of Szold and Boehm was in exact conflict with the former contending that the plan favored stockholders to the detriment of bond and creditor interests, and the latter holding that stockholders, who, through the specified assessment put new money into the company, are being grievously discriminated against. Zirn asked that no interest be paid on the bank debt after March, 1933, when Paramount went into bankruptcy, and attacked the $5,000,000 Allied Owners' settlement on the grounds that the claim was one for breach of lease and was not provable for more than $2,400,000.

Kuhn, Loeb Seen Eliminated From New Paramount Setup

Klein, business consultant and assistant secretary of commerce under President Hoover, who served the banking house in the development of the Paramount reorganization plan Klein was a member of the Vanderlip bondholders' protective committee and was replaced by Robert K. Cassatt, New York and Philadelphia financier, as a representative of that committee on the board.

H. A. Fortington, also slated for the new board, was identified yesterday as the representative of six or seven British insurance companies, including London, Liverpool & Globe and Royal Indemnity and Royal Assurance, among others, with holdings of approximately $2,100,000 of Paramount bonds. Fortington's interests are allied with the Atlas investment interests, John D. Hertz and Lehman Bros., several other banks, stock and bond holders and the William Greve-Allied Owners' interests. The group is represented by George Z. Medalie, as counsel, and holds total claims of approximately $14,000,000. In addition to Fortington, these consolidated interests placed Hertz. Stephen Callaghan of Allied Owners and Floyd B. Odlum of Atlas, on the new board.

might be in excess of the two per cent of the moneys handled for the bankrupt estate by the trustees, as specified in the old bankruptcy law. Judge Hulbert had ruled that the old law prevailed in fixing the $32,500 fees.

Half of Appeals Are Great States Cases

Three of the six appeals heard by a Campi appeal committee yesterday involved Publix Great States. Felix A. Jenkins of Fox, Jack Bellman of Hollywood Exchanges and J. Louis Geller, independent exhibitor, constituted the committee. The cases heard were:

Publix Great States, operating the Belasco, Orpheum and Washington, Quincy, Ill., and Orpheum, Springfield, Ill., against the Colonial, Family, Quincy and Star, Quincy and Capitol, Empress, Lincoln, Majestic, Pantheon, Strand, Senate and Tivoli, Springfield, on clearance and zoning; Publix Great States, LaSalle, Ill., against the Peru and State, Peru, Ill., on reduced admissions; Publix Great States' Majestic and LaSalle, LaSalle, Ill., against the Peru, Peru, Ill., on premature advertising.

Glen, Glen Ellyn, Ill., against Sam Tishman, Paramount, Wheaton, Ill., the plaintiff objecting to seven days' clearance by the respondent; the Maplewood, Maplewood, N. J., against the Cameo, South Orange; Milburn, Milburn, and Sanford, Irvington, on clearance and zoning. Leon Rosenblatt objected to the 14 days' clearance the Warner houses have over the Maplewood, Carl Anderka, Cozy, Orange Grove, Tex., against Henry Hall, Rialto, Alice, Tex., on premature advertising.

Al Fair to Handle Alexander Selling

Al Fair, former general manager of Universal Chain Theatres, Inc., has contracted with the Alexander Film Co. to handle the negotiations for advertising privileges with theatre owners and circuits throughout the country. Fair's headquarters will be in New York.

The Alexander Film Co. has long been producing syndicated film advertising and servicing in its studios in Colorado Springs, Col., and has sales forces in practically all key cities.

Theatres to Study Municipal Circuit

Effects of the proposed circuit of municipal theatres will be studied by a committee of four appointed yesterday at the general meeting of The League of New York Theatres by Dr. Henry Moskowitz, chairman. Besides Dr. Moskowitz, those named are Brock Pemberton, Herman Shumlin and George Haight. The committee will report at the next meeting, which will be held in about a week or 10 days.

The proposal of the circuit of theatres was made some time ago by the drama department of the Department of Public Welfare. The houses would be situated in outlying sections of the five boroughs and would be operated at 25 cents top, the idea being to promote interest in the legitimate theatre and afford entertainment at the same time.

Samuelson Garners Laurels as Pleader

Sidney Samuelson adds new laurels to the title of Allied of New Jersey and national Allied president. He has just been declared victorious in his first code case, which he fought for a member of the Jersey unit.

Representing Joseph Sicardi of the Liberty, Plainfield, N. J., Samuelson won a decision at the New York grievance board which declared Walter Reade had overbought 70 pictures for the Oxford, Strand and Paramount, Plainfield. Appealed by Reade, Samuelson again walked off with the decision by Campi.

Reade hasn't decided yet what he's going to do about the case, but promises action within a few days after receiving official notice from Code Authority. Leo Justin represented Reade.

Campi to Get Modification of Amendments make exhibitors responsible for the payment of code salaries by unit owners.

With respect to the lease interference clause, the Administration is opposed to its elimination, but has worked out some clarifying provisions recognizing the rights of property owners, holders of mortgages and others having a direct interest in seeking tenants. It is felt by the NRA that this provision is of considerable value and should be retained.

After consideration of its own amendment to make exhibitors responsible for the payment by contractors in theatres of code salaries, the Administration is prepared to drop the matter on the ground that there is already in the code, in Section 10, a provision which gives Code Authority the power to make rules concerning the relationship of independent contractors with exhibitors. This latter provision, it is believed, may be enforced so as to bring about the results which the Administration had in mind when it offered its amendment to require the exhibitor to see that the independent contractors did not "chisel."

managers will be asked to state by Feb. 7 the clearances under which pictures are being sold here.

Back of this latter request is a covert threat that the Department of Justice will be called upon to make an investigation in this territory similar to those already made in St. Louis and Los Angeles. The board has been authorized to appropriate such sums as may be necessary to assist in gathering material for a Federal investigation, and affidavits will be forwarded to the Department of Justice, members say.

In connection with the bank night agitation a resolution recently adopted says "that the members of this association believe that if the mechanics of the code cannot cause the ceasing of positive violations thereof, then any faith heretofore held in the code is shattered, and it will be just as well to ignore its existence and even go so far as to work toward its dissolution."

Campi Delays Moves On Charnow Decision

Campi is virtually stumped on the Julius Charnow clearance case against Loew's and Skouras and involving the Leonia, Leonia. Having heard that Code Authority has a seven-to-three decision against him, Charnow recently appeared at Campi headquarters during a session and demanded that instead of handing down the decision agreed upon, that the records be read and that he be given an opportunity to be heard.

Although Code Authority met two days last week no decision was officially handed down. A suggestion has been made that the case be settled out of Campi and this may be done.

Imagine It!

Archibald Palmer, counsel for Paramount stockholders, brought a Bible into Federal court yesterday from which to quote a passage to illustrate one phase of his opposition to the reorganization plan. When the session was adjourned his Bible had disappeared.

Samuel Zirn, opposition attorney representing bondholders, misplaced an overcoat in the courtroom, crowded mostly with financial district attorneys. He matched his tale of woe with Palmer's at the end of the day.

"Well, then," Palmer comforted him, "imagine what this Wall Street crowd will do to Paramount."

Medalie Suggests Plan Before Judge Coxe

A recommendation that provision be made in the Paramount plan of reorganization for an annual election of directors "to assure an active, efficient management," instead of the four-year directors' terms now specified, was made by George Z. Medalie, representing an important consolidated creditors' group, at the resumed hearings on the reorganization plan before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday.

Following the hearing, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned that unless the proposal for an annual election of directors is included in the bylaws of the new company as a part of the reorganization plan, the group represented by Medalie will appear in opposition to the plan when, in its final form, it is sent out for creditors' assents. The group represents combined claims aggregating $14,000,000, and includes the H. A. Fortington-British insurance company investors, Allied Owners, the merchandise creditors'

There was no discussion of the ticket speculator situation, however, since it was thought best to wait until the courts had rendered a decision before taking the matter up. The U. S. Annual Choice Of Paramount Board Sought committee, John Hertz and the Floyd B. Odlum-Atlas investment group. These creditors placed five representatives on the new Paramount board. They are Fortington, Hertz, Odlum, Charles E. Richardson and Stephen Callaghan.

Referring to MOTION PICTURE DAILY's exclusive publication of the names of the 16 nominees for the Paramount board agreed upon by the principal creditors' committees, Medalie answered attacks on their fitness made by Archibald Palmer, stockholders' counsel, at Tuesday's session. He stated that while the group as a whole "perhaps leans a little in favor of financial representation and is light on management men" not one of the nominees "needs a defense."

Favors Annual Election

Medalie advocated the annual election of directors, however, on the ground that it permits men to remain on the board long after the interests they were named to represent had disposed of their equity in the company. He described the procedure as an "old and outmoded" method of corporate direction, and declared that stock interests at the end of each year should be permitted to elect their own representatives, eliminating annually those who no longer represented any one.

"It is my understanding," Judge Coxe remarked, "that directors should represent all of the stockholders of a corporation rather than individual interests."

"But," Medalie responded, "when protected by long terms and dulled by new profits, directors may easily forget that obligation, along with whatever lessons they may have learned from the past. They need an annual awakening, such as an election."

"Perhaps this company, starting out new, needs some assurance of permanency in its directorate," Judge Coxe remarked.

"The directors can secure permanency by serving well enough to be returned at annual elections," Medalie said. "If they can't serve that well they ought to be out."

Reveals Alternate Proposal

Medalie revealed that in discussions had with reorganization groups on the subject of the annual elections, an alternate proposal had been made which would provide for three classes of directors to be elected for one, two and three-year terms, respectively. He added that this proposal was not satisfactory to the creditors' groups he represented. Medalie also advocated a provision for cumulative voting of stock at board elections.

Lansing P. Reed, of counsel for the Vanderlip debenture committee, stated he favored a board which would serve for the first three years after reorganization, with annual elections of directors to be held thereafter. He argued that Paramount bank creditors would receive 20 per cent of the company's new stock in settlement of their claims and would be required to liquidate it in the open market after a brief period. This could result in the stock being acquired by interests which would make a "political football" of the company, he said.

Answering earlier advocates of voting trustees to be appointed by the court in place of creditor-elected directors, Judge Coxe dealt summarily with the proposals yesterday by declaring that he did not believe the court should be asked to assume even partial responsibility for the management of the company. He advised Medalie, however, that this did not apply to the latter's proposal for annual elections of directors, which he described as still "an open question" in the court's mind.

Reed, whose committee represents more than 50 per cent of the Paramount bonds outstanding, voluntarily admitted to the court that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. appointed the Vanderlip committee members and recommended Reed's law firm as counsel. He defended major provisions of the plan and stated that despite the fact that his committee approved the bringing of suits by the trustees in bankruptcy to set aside the alleged preference of the bank creditors, he believed the settlement of the banks' claims contained in the plan to be fair. Reed advised the court that in every instance the important claim settlements contained in the plan represent the best terms which reorganization groups could obtain after lengthy negotiations and still retain the support for the plan of the creditors concerned.

"Take one block out of this plan," he said, "and the entire structure may fall."

The bank settlement was also defended by Morton G. Bogue, of counsel for the bank group, who related that state court litigation against the bank deal of 1932 had failed, and that the new credit advanced by the banks was in short term loans and financed the production of 23 films which, he said, netted the estate $5,000,000 after its receivership.

Opposition to the Paramount Broadway reorganization plan was answered yesterday by Sol Stroock, Julius Weiss, Saul E. Rogers and Austin Keough, who advocated retention of both the Paramount Bldg. and theatre after reorganization. Hearing of opposition to the Paramount plan was concluded with brief objections to the provisions for stockholders, described as being "too favorable," by Sam Spring, counsel for holders of claims aggregating about $2,225,000. Hearing of advocates of the plan will continue today, after which the court will take it under advisement and will either give it tentative approval or recommend changes. The final plan will then go out to creditors who will either assent to or reject it. If sufficient assents are obtained, it will come back to court for final hearings before being placed in effect.

Attorney Palmer Turns Poet

Archibald Palmer, representing common stockholders, read the new Paramount directorate, published exclusively in Motion Picture Daily, Monday, and found himself moved to issue forth with poetry.

Yesterday, at the third day of the resumed hearing, his opus had been completed. Whereupon, Palmer handed out flimsies to attorneys for the bankers, and did not overlook Judge Coxe.

The text:

To Paramount

You've been too long a banker's joy—
Will you now become a Wall Street toy?
Will you forsake your bright estate,
Will groveling be your future state?
How can you reach for yon far stars
With shackled feet clamp'd by bankers' bars?
How can the Genius of the Picture World
Lead on with banner brave unfurl'd,
With sparkling eyes and courage bold,
If glowing soul be damp'd by bankers' cold?

Does Paramount mean bonds and stocks?
Committees named by canyon'd street your program mocks
The thought of heights that yet remain
For Paramount to strive to gain.
Let not a program built by Greed bind you with hungry chains,
In time of need, to prove a reed.
Would you destroy the magic of a mystic weave,
An Empire of the Land of Make-Believe,
To satisfy self-seekers', narrow-minded, self-sought gains?

Come, then, you Justice with the blinded eyes, and seize the reins
And ride you well this Pegasus of brain and gold,
And ride you like a knight of old
Through pitfalls dark, and shadow'd dangers grim and stark.
And drive without her templed walls
The money changers who have claimed her halls,
Who care naught for the Movie Art,
Its Beauty, Wisdom—even Heart.
Then Paramount will rise 'bove the common horde—
And to its pristine kingly state once more will be restored.

Chicago Dime, Dual Ban Goes To U. S. Court

Loop. Virtually all distributors are also named as defendants.

Roden's suit charges the issuance of a so-called blacklist by the Chicago Exhibitors' Ass'n. to exchanges in which houses charging 10 cents and playing duals are named.

Validity of the current understanding between exhibitors and exchanges on 10-cent admissions is challenged, with Roden claiming he has been damaged to the extent of $300,000 under the Sherman anti-trust law's treble damage clause. Roden's lawyers asked for a temporary injunction. A hearing on this has been set for Feb. 15.

Both plaintiffs informed MOTION PICTURE DAILY that there was no connection between their action and the Federal indictments recently returned in St. Louis. They also said their suits had been filed independently of each other and without outside support.

The action is frankly viewed with alarm by exchange heads. Branch managers are awaiting instructions from New York.

So far the only points decided on are that the pictures should be shorts and be nationally distributed.

Determination to resort to films is believed due to a desire to pep up the Administration's housing campaign, which so far has fallen short of expectations.

Fishman Hits Exclusive 2nd Run by Loew's zoning committee, held that Campi does not recognize a schedule for New Haven, despite three attempts by the local board to get Code Authority to adopt it.

Although the local board twice approved a schedule for the territory without a dissenting vote, the third time the board was divided. That happened when the College protection entered into the plan. B. Kaufman of Warner theatres, and Al Kane, district manager for Paramount, voted in the negative, while Morris Joseph of Universal declined to cast a ballot. Ed Raffile, Joseph Dons and Adolf Johnson were in favor of the schedule, which has all 30-cent houses playing 30 days after downtown first runs and 25-cent houses 37 days after first runs.

Bought Exclusive Run

In buying new season's product, Loew bought an exclusive second run for the College, demanding seven days over other second runs, which means that theatres following the College cannot get film until 41 days after downtown first runs. Vogel and Greenfield contended that Loew was paying for the additional protection and the former entered into the record comparative rentals of the College and Dixwell on Columbia and RKO-Radio contracts. Greenfield said: "If we have a right to buy seven days' protection, we have a right to maintain it."

Fishman brought up the point of the College, which is in a different zone from the Dixwell, having the right to buy protection from a theatre four miles away and which for the past eight to 10 years has enjoyed the same protection. He also said that cut-throat competition was unhealthy for the industry. Fishman held that by Loew's getting the extra protection, 19 other independent houses were affected. He declared that while the Dixwell now charges 25 cents, he may later decide to boost the admission five cents with a right to the same protection as the College, which charges 30 cents.

Questions From All Sides

John C. Flinn and Schaefer were on the answering end most of the time, with questions flung at the two men during most of the session by the complainants, defendants, board men and observers. At one time, Fishman asked Schaefer if he was opposed to clearance based on admissions. The Paramount general manager answered in the affirmative, giving as his reason the unwarranted print shortages which would result if such a plan were put into effect generally.

He later added that he believed in prices as a guiding factor as a definite point in establishing availability of films, but still giving the theatre or theatres the right to buy protection.

Benjamin Trustman, attorney for the trustees of Olympic Theatres, operating the Paramount, New Haven, insisted that the maximum clearance of 60 days, and not 37, be maintained. He referred to two clauses in the clearance schedule. He said that while the Paramount was first run, it was directly affected by the decision of Campi.

Adolf Johnson, a member of the local board, stated that the decision was a compromise by all parties and fair and that Loew's should not be given the additional clearance. He said that if an independent had the house he could not get it. At first speaking as a member of the board, Schaefer reminded Johnson that the decision was not unanimous. Johnson then said that the views expressed were his own.

During the hearing, Vogel offered to swap receipts, profits and the College for the Dixwell and Fishman almost took him up on it. Vogel maintains the offer goes for anyone who wants the house. Vogel added that he has no objection to buying second run and if anyone can buy ahead of the College he can do so without Loew interference. He also pointed out that Loew's does not own the College, that it has an operating deal which runs indefinitely with the bondholders of Poli.

Attending the session also were George Cruzen, M. & P. division manager; William Scully, M-G-M district manager; Harry P. Lander, secretary of the local board; Jack Byrne, M-G-M New Haven manager; Harry Laveites, Pequoit; Johnson, Strand; David Sherman, Lawrence.

Hour Cuts, Labor on Code Boards Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Shorter hours and full participation of labor on all code boards were demanded today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, at the opening of hearings before the National Industrial Recovery Board on the question of employment provisions.

Appearing as the first of several hundred witnesses expected to testify, Green declared that only by further shortening of the work week can marked advance be made in re-employment, while labor participation in code authority deliberations was seen as the only way to secure real enforcement.

Green's testimony was in line with the stand consistently taken by labor, which was embodied in a bill introduced in Congress this week by Representative Connery of Massachusetts to provide for representation of labor on all code bodies.

McNabb Awarded 183 Of Klock Features

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 30.—A. B. McNabb, Gem, Neodesha, Kan., was awarded 183 features by the local grievance board after hearing his complaint on overbuying against Glen Klock, Klock Theatre, same town.

Testimony brought out Klock had purchased 414 features for 1934-35. The board ruled he is to confine his operations to six features a week for 35 weeks. On this basis, the board allowed him 210 pictures for the period Feb. 3 to Oct. 5. This was increased to 231 by the addition of 21 features, allowing for a possible cancellation of 10 per cent.

McNabb will select his product from two lists furnished by Klock comprising all excess features over 231. McNabb further is to guarantee film rentals on terms to be agreed upon with individual distributors.

Close Shave

W. G. Van Schmus booked "The Good Fairy" into the Music Hall, where it opens this morning, without having seen the picture. Advertising, with which Lynn Farnol had much to do, got going in the New York dailies on Wednesday with no print in possession of the theatre.

Two copies were being rushed from the studio via as many routes. The airmail print arrived yesterday and had to be submitted to the censor board, which cleared the picture in a hurry. Then various parties concerned began to breathe easier.

This morning, at the first show at the Music Hall, the Universal executive contingent will be on hand to see their own picture.

Seek Showdown on L. A. Zoning Today

schedule is growing and there is a possibility that the coast plan may go through. Loew's objection is the price angle as a basic factor. This was indicated yesterday when Joe Vogel and Irving Greenfield insisted on the right to buy protection, regardless of admissions.

There is a possibility that geographical areas and prices will be considered today as the basic features of the schedule, with the proviso that theatre men can go into the market and buy protection over houses where admissions are the same.

Just as soon as a decision is reached on the Los Angeles plan, the Kansas City and New Haven schedules will be brought up for action. Independents want Campi members as a whole to quit stalling and make decisions so that exhibitors know definitely where they stand on pending issues. Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth will attend and also bring up the matter of amendments to the code on the lease clause and vaudeville.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 30.—The I.T.O. decided today to defer its Federal anti-trust moves against distributors and Fox Midwest until Elmer Rhoden's return from the coast next week, when an I.T.O. committee will confer with him in an attempt to obtain a more satisfactory clearance arrangement.

The I.T.O. believes that an amicable settlement will be found in conferences with Rhoden, but is prepared to take action if no agreement is reached.

RKO May Seek Delay

RKO is expected to ask for a week's postponement today in the clearance complaint filed against the circuit by Century circuit. The delay will be sought, it is said, on the grounds that Johnny O'Connor, principal witness for RKO, may have to appear before an arbitration committee hearing the M. & S. issue against RKO.

Century, in its complaint, asks that RKO abandon protection by the Park and Columbia, Far Rockaway, and Alden, Jamaica, over the Fantasy, Rockville Center.

L. I. Theatre Sale Goes Up to the NRA

Following an appeal decision by Campi upholding the New York grievance board in finding the Mona Theatre Corp., Glad Amusement Co., Abraham Drogin and John Gladstone guilty of illegally transferring the Rialto, Whitestone, L. I., Code Authority has brought the matter to the attention of NRA officials in Washington for enforcement.

Exhibits and testimony in the case have been sent to Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt, who will decide what action shall be taken. The complaint was brought by M-G-M which charged that the defendants transferred the theatre to evade contracts. Louis Nizer represented the distributor at local and Campi hearings.

Henry Lyman and Morris Shapiro, among the defendants, were found not guilty because of insufficient evidence.

Edward L. O'Connor. When bank nights permits "the holder of a free number or a free chance to claim and procure the prize," this would not be a law violation, the opinion stated, but when the holder of a number or chance is required also to purchase a ticket of admission to the theatre, it is a violation, O'Connor said, for it requires the holder to "first part with a valuable consideration before being permitted to participate in the prize drawing."

A reasonable amount of time must be allowed the holder of a winning number to claim the prize, the opinion stated.

Local 306 Presents New Basic Schedule

Local 306 has submitted a new basic schedule to the NRA fact-finding committee similar to the one presented by Charles L. O'Reilly some weeks ago. The union's plan ranges from $12 and up under a point system and will be contested at the public hearing tomorrow before Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt in Washington.

Numerous exhibitors are expected to be on hand for the hearing as well as circuit representatives and I. A. T. S. E. men.

been summoned for a hearing on the Escondido's failure to comply with a previous ruling.

The third case, Mission vs. Oxnard, Oxnard, Cal., was also a non-compliance hearing, but no action was taken, as the respondent has applied to the Federal court for an injunction to restrain the board from interfering with his supply of film.

K. C. Cases Total 71 As New Year Starts

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 30.—As of Jan. 1, there had been 71 complaints filed with the local grievance board. In addition, the board has heard four cases as a Local Industrial Adjustment Agency, and seven complaints have been disposed of by the clearance and zoning board.

WORLD PREMIÈRE

THE MARCH OF TIME is a twenty minute picture, issued once a month containing five or more complete dramatic stories. It makes no attempt to give last minute flashes or to cover the complete news of the day.

From hundreds of stories and thousands of feet of film from all over the world, the best of these are taken and woven together in radio MARCH OF TIME'S curt, concise manner. Re-enacting those scenes that are missing. THE MARCH OF TIME brings to the screen complete, dramatic episodes of world happenings you've read and wondered about.

This week great theatres from coast to coast will show the first release of THE MARCH OF TIME. Announcements in lobbies and on the screen have already brought enthusiastic comment from theatre goers. The premiere of this new monthly series is packed with more box office interest than the introduction of any similar-length subject in the history of the industry.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—"Lives of a Bengal Lancer" got off to a flying start at the Paramount at $1.65 top and grabbed $6,000 in two days. "The President Vanishes" was on for the first five days of the week and held up well at $14,000, making the total take for the week at this house $20,000.

BUFFALO, Jan. 30.—"The Gilded Lily" was $3,000 over normal with $17,300 to make the celebration of the Buffalo theatre's ninth anniversary a success, while "Chu Chin Chow" topped average by $1,000 in the Lafayette to give Gaumont British a nice entering wedge. Looking 'Em Over

"The Phantom Light"

(Gainsborough-Gaumont British)

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A British film for the British, although cutting may, on account of its beautiful exteriors and some originality in the blending of comedy and sensationalism, render it acceptable to audiences with an acquired taste for Cockney.

Gordon Harker is a lighthouse keeper sent for duty to the Welsh coast, where he finds that his particular lighthouse has the reputation of being haunted. One keeper has disappeared, another has been driven out of his mind. There are mysterious stories of the light disappearing at night, while a "phantom" light at a distance lures ships on to the rocks. A "reporter" who turns out to be a naval officer and a girl detective who poses as a chorus girl come to the light and, after alarms and excursions in traditional vein, it is revealed that the wrecker is the local doctor, who insures ships as a side line.

The backgrounds and camera work are better than the script. Acting is uneven, but Harker is in good vein and his cracks will amuse those who can understand them. Ian Hunter is the naval hero with very little to do, and Binnie Hale as the girl is insipid and still manages to overact grossly. It should have been easy to make a much better picture from the opportunities offered by the lighthouse setting and the fair originality of the story.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

"Things Are Looking Up"

(Gaumont British)

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Farce comedy, with the accent on the farce. Cicely Courtneidge, dual-roling as a somewhat prim schoolmistress and her more than somewhat Bohemian twin sister, a circus star, carries most of the weight of it, but story and script writers have done their bits well. One or two of the situations are clever, most of them are reasonably funny and the film keeps up a very fair speed for a British effort.

Cicely Fytte, proprietor of and chief equestrienne in a traveling circus, takes the place of her twin sister, a schoolmistress who has eloped with a wrestler. She expects to stay at the school for a day, but the lovers take ship for South Africa and the imposture has to be maintained. An ally is found in the music master, Van Gaard, who is also sailing under false colors, but Cicely has a tough time when she is asked to play in the tennis championship at Wimbledon.

Another emergency arises when a possible buyer for the circus comes to see a performance. Deserted by most of her turns, Cicely has to work the performing seals, do a slack-wire act and finish up with some dizzy trapeze flying. She stays the course and also holds down the school job so well that her sister returns to find herself chief teacher.

The tennis match, with Suzanne Lenglen playing the straight stuff, is a first class piece of fooling; it will get laughs from the sport fans. The circus stuff is also well done and there is a laughable travesty of a school garden party. The lead is a wholehearted comedienne and the support is above average with William Gargan as the musician lover talking good American and Mark Lester, Henrietta Watson, Cicely Oates and Dick Henderson all well cast and intelligible. It has enough in it to amuse most audiences.

Running time, 80 minutes, "G."

ALLAN

"Victor and Victoria"

(Ufa)

This, the latest Ufa production to reach local theatres, is a charming and tuneful musical romance uniting again the stars of "Waltz Time in Vienna," Renate Mueller and Adolf Wohlbrueck. A big asset is the comedy content of its story, which, if a bit far-fetched, is at all times rich in entertainment values. Smartly produced and cleverly acted, the production has been sumptuously dressed. With the aid of the English subtitles American audiences should find this acceptable fare.

The fun centers around the attempt of Miss Mueller, a struggling actress, to pass herself off as a man. The duplicity has its birth when she helps out Hermann Thimig, a female impersonator down with a cold, by filling an engagement for him. She proves an immediate hit and at the urging of Thimig she continues the deception. Signed up by an impresario, who really believes her a man, she makes a grand tour of Europe, with Thimig stringing along as her manager.

The whole business is no pleasure, for she must put up with flirtatious women and curb her womanly instincts. When she meets Wohlbrueck, posing as a man becomes tougher. Wohlbrueck discovers her secret but never lets on, permitting himself a lot of fun at her expense. In the

"Lancer" Is Philadelphia Bet, $16,000

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—What started out to be a pretty fair week ran into the worst blizzard in 22 years on Wednesday. With traffic badly tangled for two days, all the downtown houses went into a decline, though in many cases a good start had been recorded.

The $16,000 for "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" at the Stanley was the town's best figure. It would undoubtedly have been bigger had it not been for the weather break. The Earle started off with a rush on its new low price policy and grosses were up between 30 and 40 per cent over recent weeks when the storm held the gross to $14,500. "Maybe It's Love" was the screen feature.

The Mastbaum also got off to a good start with "Gilded Lily," which, together with Roxy's stage show, got the best press notices yet. Snow kept the figure down to $27,000. The house will change its policy from Monday to Thursday openings and will hold "Gilded Lily" and the current show for an extra three days.

"Runaway Queen" nosedived at the Aldine and was yanked after four days. Second run of "Biography of Bachelor Girl" gave Keith's its most encouraging figure since it reopened Christmas.

Total first run business was $96,200. Average is $104,240.

Launched No Attack On Blocks—Bernerd

Jeffrey Bernerd of Gaumont British yesterday denied telling Philadelphia exhibitors on Monday that his company favored an end of block booking. The occasion was a luncheon tendered him in that city by Al Boyd, managing director of the Boyd.

"I did say that it seemed to me an extraordinary situation," declared Bernerd, "and a weakness to go through two operations in the sale of a film, one the sale and second, the necessity for salesmen to return to obtain dates. I further said it would seem commercially cheaper to sell and date in at the same time.

"I did not promise exhibitors rebates if they lost money on G. B. product, but I did state it would be futile to sell 16 pictures a year and then have theatremen lose on them in view of the fact that we had to return the following season and sell them all over again. I added that we must assure exhibitors against it and that the way to do it was through box-office value in the product itself."

Girl Contests Will Feature Iowa Meet

DES MOINES, Jan. 30.—Invitations have been sent to hundreds of theatre owners to attend the two-day movie frolic of Allied Theatre Owners to be held in Des Moines, Feb. 19 and 20, by Lester F. Martin of Nevada, Ia. Jan Garber and his band will be present from Chicago and three girls will be selected as winners of an Iowa personality contest.

Local contests are to be held by theatres and the winners will come to Des Moines for a series of elimination contests culminating in a public audition at the Coliseum in which 10 finalists will be chosen. Three winners will be sent to Hollywood and six of the 10 finalists will be given radio auditions.

Allied will hold a convention here during the affair, and the contestants will make their appearance at the theatremen's banquet Feb. 19.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Devil Dogs of the Air"

(Warners-Cosmopolitan)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 30.—The stars of "Here Comes the Navy," James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, again click in "Devil Dogs of the Air," new aerial film, Warners' first Cosmopolitan release, which had its world premiere at the Spreckles here last night.

The film contains spectacular photography of dare-devil flying and air and fleet maneuvers. Shots of fighting ships in action are among the best ever screened and should go big in inland cities.

Rivalry between Cagney, as Tommy O'Toole, barnstormer who joins the Marine air corps, and O'Brien, as Lieut. William Brannigan, for the hand of Margaret Lindsay, as Betty Roberts, supplies both heart interest and plot.

O'Brien, at first branded a softie who bails out of a burning plane carrying him and Cagney, eventually redeems himself by holding a torn wing in place until landing. Cocky Cagney, however, finally wins Margaret.

Plenty of laughs are supplied by Frank McHugh, as "Crash" Kelly, an ambulance driver who never gets any business.

Selling names are Cagney, O'Brien and Miss Lindsay, who turn in excellent performances. Director Lloyd Bacon got a well-deserved hand from the audience.

The Marine aviation background should be one of the biggest box-office points. The picture has thrills and entertainment value.

Production Code seal No. 514. Running time, 85 minutes. "G."

"After Office Hours"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 30.—As an example of interesting, exciting entertainment with magnetic names, Bernie Hyman has produced a corking picture here, congealing production forces of story, dialogue and action smoothly and hilariously.

In it are Clark Gable, editor; Constance Bennett, snooty society gal music critic; Stuart Erwin, news photographer and Gable's pal; Billie Burke, jittery mother of Miss Bennett; Harvey Stephens, socialite heavy, and Henry Armetta for comic relief.

It's all about Gable, who, in ferreting out a divorce scandal, involves himself with the upper crust, solves a murder and wins the run-around from Miss Bennett.

The backgrounds are a hectic newspaper office and swank society diggin's. Gable's flair for comedy rises again for big laughs and, although Miss Bennett is submerged, she is decoratively competent. Stephens is silky while Miss Burke, Erwin and Armetta are choice vignettes of merriment.

Robert Z. Leonard has paced his direction speedily; unessentials are eliminated and dialogue crackles in a first-rate job.

Herman Mankiewicz's screen play from a story by Laurence Stallings and Dale Van Every is taut and sparkles as gaily.

Having a good title, personalities and presenting a swell show, any audience is bound to get its money's worth. Previewed without production code seal. Running time, 71 minutes. "G."

"Wings in the Dark," which will be previewed at the Paramount tonight, was reviewed by wire from Hollywood on Jan. 11.

"Secret Bride," tonight's preview at the Roxy, was reviewed on Dec. 1.

Short Subjects

"The Lost City"

(Super-Serial-Regal)

This serial, on the basis of its opening four episodes, has a kick and a lot of thrills.

It deals with a series of electrical disturbances leading into floods and devastation in various parts of the world and the efforts on the part of Kane Richmond, young scientist, to discover who is responsible. Through a detector of his own development, the trail leads to a little known part of Africa where William (Stage) Boyd, madman of science, sits in splendor over his lost city and from it and its electrical wizardry brings down destruction as his power-swollen mind wills it.

Boyd's power actually is the result of the mechanical genius and the alert research of Josef Swickard, whose will bows to the madman's because of the latter's threats over the girl in the case, Claudia Dell, and Swickard's daughter.

The resultant thrills bounce along in lively style amid the crackling of dynamos and electrical byplay and are red meat, as well as duck soup, for those who like serials and their goings on.

"The Lost City" is very well up in its classification. K.

"Song Plugger"

(Educational)

Sylvia Froos and Brooks Adams, with Jean Lacey acting in a purely decorative capacity, are the three main characters in this one. Miss Froos and Adams sing several numbers capably, but that is about all there is to this one. The title was apparently suggested by the fact that the two main characters work at a sheet music stand in a department store. Production code seal, 0276. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Those Beautiful Dames"

(Vitaphone)

This Merrie Melodie cartoon, done in color, is another of the series featuring songs that have been used in Warner features. The characters are incidental and the plot negligible, but the music is well handled, however, and several sequences are very entertaining. Production Code Seal, No. 327. Running time, 4 mins. "G."

Gould Quartered Here

Walter Gould, in charge of all Latin-American countries for U. A., is now making his permanent headquarters in New York. He was formerly stationed at Panama. Gould recently returned from an 11 months' tour of exchanges under his supervision and in about five months will leave on another trip.

British May Fight Sunday Charity Tax

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 30.—British exhibitors may abandon Sunday opening as a protest against the increased levy on receipts for charity recently made public. An initial step looking toward this end was a recommendation made to exhibitors at Brighton by F. Spickernell, Portsmouth exhibitor, who urged the move on the ground that if Sunday opening was at all proper, it should be free and open.

At Portsmouth, a nominal levy of £200 is made, but the Brighton figure has been set at £1,050, although there has been free Sunday opening in the town for 20 years. The levy on Sunday receipts for charitable purposes was legalized by the Sunday Entertainments Act and the annual burden on London exhibitors is 14 per cent of takings, with a guarantee of £100,000 per annum.

If the drastic protest of voluntary Sunday closing is made in one district, it will probably be adopted by others. Advocates of the fighting policy declare that the public will back up the exhibitors and that a "strike" against the charity levy, backed by propaganda, would compel the government to revise its attitude.

Under the Sunday Entertainments Act, Sunday opening in England, except for districts in which it obtained before the act was passed, is dependent on the result of voting at a town meeting or of a subsequent poll of the electors. During 1934, there were 10 polls, five of which resulted in a vote for Sunday opening and five against. The total votes were: for, 32,269; against, 38,337.

In several districts, the proposal was defeated.

Ludovico Toeplitz de Grand Ry, principal of Toeplitz Prod., sails from London for New York on Feb. 2. He will seek stars for the second Toeplitz production, to be directed by Kurt Bernhardt, and the final selection between two stories will depend on his success in signing up certain Hollywood personalities.

The world premiere of "The Dictator," the first Toeplitz feature, with Madeleine Carroll and Clive Brook, will take place in Paris on Feb. 1. It will go into the Tivoli here on Feb. 7, with a New York premiere, under G. B. auspices, probable in late February or early March.

This looks like the funniest short that Buster Keaton has made in some time ... The wind-up is a wrestling match. This should have audiences roaring.
—Motion Picture Daily

Very amusing. This is a hilarious two-reeler about a mountaineer family which decides to abandon moonshining and exploit the strength of Dewey Robinson, one of the sons, who is pitted against Bull Montana in a wrestling match. The family life of the mountaineers is a funny travesty and the antics in the wrestling ring are on a par.

Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, Jan. 30.—The big noise of last week was the inaugural dinner for the new official family headed by ALLAN MORITZ, chief barker, held at the Netherland Plaza. Approximately 100 barkers and guests were on hand. Out-of-town barkers glimpsed around the table included, MARC WOLF, chief barker Tent No. 10. Others from the same tent were, V. U. YOUNG, Gary, Ind.; RAY BAIR, LADDIE HANCOCK, FLOYD BROWN and AL. LACHNIT, Indianapolis. LAURENCE BURNS and JACK NEEDHAM were here from Tent No. 2. MORITZ was presented a "loving cup."

Entertainment was provided by DUKE ELLINGTON, JACK SPRIGG and MEL SNYDER, filling separate local engagements, also by BILL FARRAR and his dog, together with a host of talented kiddies from a local vocal and dancing school. An added feature consisted of "Joan," plus JEAN CARTER, MARTHA DEVEAUX and HELENE DEVIERLE, here from Hollywood doing cosmetic demonstrations and style shows at a local department store.

DAN HELBIG, manager of the Andulus, a suburban house, is the latest recruit into barker membership.

BILL ONIE, second chief barker, is suffering from an attack of tonsilitis, with his neck swathed in bandages.

A talent hitherto unsuspected has been revealed by MIKE SPANAGEL, who swings a neat set of digits across the piano keyboard.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30. — All efforts are being bent on the inaugural dinner to be staged in one of the parlors of the Netherland Plaza Jan. 25, and which promises to be one of the real highlights of this season's fraternity shindigs.

H. J. ("Pop") WESSELL, whose son suffered the loss of a leg in an auto accident several months ago, reports that the boy has recovered and will go to Florida to rest up.

MANNY SHURE, first assistant chief barker, is fighting a cold, although still able to watch the lineups in front of the RKO Palace.

Philadelphia

Seated on the dais were MILTON ROGASNER, JAMES CLARK, JAY EMANUEL, JACK GREENBERG, SWEIGERT, DAVIS, MILLER, CHARLES SEGALL, LEONARD SCHESINGER, LEWEN PIZOR and HARRY WEINER.

Announcement was made of an entertainment to be held at the Penn A. C., Feb. 18. A premiere of a picture as well as many acts have been scheduled.

A special showing of "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" was given Sunday night for Governor EARLE and party at the Karlton.

Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 30.—Ticket sales for the President's birthday ball were ahead of last year, and the daily papers gave it a big plug. DOROTHY STONE, J. HAROLD MURRAY and ETHEL WATERS of "As Thousands Cheer," EDDIE LOWRY and MITZI GREEN, at the Harris-Alvin; POLLY MORAN at the Stanley and others volunteered their services. JOHN H. HARRIS was in general charge with M. J. CULLEN as chairman of the entertainment committee. Assisting him were HARRY KALMINE, HARRY BROWN and GEORGE TYSON.

ROY ATWELL is a daily visitor to the club with his "On to Fortune" company now at the Nixon. WILL ROGERS' daughter, MARY, also a regular visitor and a regular fellow.

Former Chief Barker of Tent No. 1, HARRY GOLDSTEIN, now in Cleveland, a visitor the other eve. Keeping DAVE KIMMELMAN busy hitting the territory.

BILL TILDEN, VINES, LOTT, MR. and MRS. BILL O'BRIEN all supper guests this past week after the tennis match.

Barker BILL BENSWANGER rushes in for luncheon and out again. His baseball team goes south to train soon.

AL BARNETT's Florida trip out for the time. Too much business.

Court Favors Paramount Plan with Minor Changes

Paramount Board May Go to 18 With Frank C. Walker Included

Paramount's initial board of directors may number 18 members instead of the 16 now agreed upon by creditor groups, it was disclosed at yesterday's reorganization hearing before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, at which it was stated that Frank C. Walker, vice-president of Comerford Theatres, may have a place on the board if he desires it. All creditor groups were said to be in accord on this.

If Walker accepts, a second new director would probably be added to the board to facilitate the election of an even numbered group of directors as terms expire. Judge Coxe ruled yesterday that the initial board should serve for three years with annual board elections to be held thereafter. This would mean that of a board of 18, six would be elected for one year; at the end of the first year, six would be elected for two years; at the end of the second year, six would be elected for one year. In the third year and annually thereafter, 18 would be elected.

Wants Three-Year Term For Initial Board Of Directors

Preliminary approval of the Paramount Publix plan of reorganization, with only two minor changes recommended, was given yesterday by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe at the conclusion of hearings for and against the plan.

The modifications recommended by Judge Coxe will be incorporated in a new draft of the plan which will be returned for the court's formal approval on Feb. 14. Thereafter, the plan will be sent out to creditors for their approval and if sufficient assents are obtained it will be submitted to the court to be placed in effect.

The changes in the plan recommended by Judge Coxe were a reduction from six to five per cent interest on the company's old bank debt and a revision of the management section of the plan to give the court the right of directors; substitute an initial three-year term for board members for the proposed four-year terms, with annual elections of directors after the first three years, and with the cumulative voting of stock authorized after the same period.

"I consider the plan in the main to be a fair and equitable one," Judge

Asserts RKO Bankers Are Buying Paramount's Stock

A charge that "a bank interested in RKO and with representation on the RKO board" had been buying large blocks of Paramount bonds and certificates during the past few months, presumably to obtain control of reorganized Paramount and perhaps with the intent of endeavoring to effect a merger of the two companies, was made by Alfred A. The charge appeared to be directed

Philadelphia Contract Dual Bans Enjoined

Perelman Wins Ruling; Appeal to Be Taken

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—U. S. District Judge George A. Welsh today granted an injunction to Harry Perelman which prevents nine major distributors from enforcing a dual ban in contracts.

The ruling was directed against Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., First National Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., RKO Distributing Corp., Paramount Publix Corp., Paramount Pictures Distributing Corp., M-G-M Distributing Corp., Fox Film Corp. and United Artists Corp.

The decision, which held that producers and distributors had conspired to violate the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws, resulted from a test suit brought by a group of independent theatre owners headed by Perelman.

The defendants are expected to ask for a supersedeas writ withholding

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—Reactions to the Academy's flank attack on the Actors' Guild by reaching a general agreement on a new form of standard contract were varied here today.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THOUGH for such a veteran is the status quo of Senior Laemmle. For eighteen days he has been in agony; a tormenting, but not necessarily dangerous eye condition, explains why. On Wednesday he was slated to leave Hollywood for San Francisco for special treatment. The trip was called off, Laemmle's doctor forbidding the journey. They went further, however, and ordered him home. He can see no members of his family. He can read or write no letters. He must answer no phones, send no wires. In solitary confinement for the first time in his 29 years in this business, Laemmle's road is a hard one for him to travel. . . .

The studio, of course, knew what's been going on. The sales crew scattered all over the land wasn't far behind. News has a manner of spreading like the well known prairie fire in this business. This, as a result, is happening: At the studio, the gang from top man to low man, is combining in a display of loyalty and a spirit of do, all for the purpose of dedicating its best to their absent president. In the field, the selling boys are following in, determined to show Laemmle that a job can and will be performed whether he's around to check up or not. This is no empty ballyhoo, nor is it hooey. And so thrilled beyond words is Bob Cochrane. So are we. So should you be. . . .

John E. Otterson, this department learns from a source completely authoritative, has turned down the presidency of Paramount. This, only in the last couple of days. The post could have been his. After twenty-four hours' deliberation, he declined. The name of Charles E. Richardson, one of Paramount's three trustees, is not to be wiped off your dope sheets, if you're figuring, as who is not? Eugene W. Leake, another of the trustees, seems headed for the chairmanship of the finance committee, an important post in any company. In the meantime, the studio job, not to be slighted by a helluva sight, is shuttling back and forth with these men mentioned most frequently: Ben Schulberg, Watty Rothacker, Manny Cohen, J. Boyce Smith. . . .

What's this? Two legal bouts, both looking a good deal like a real something, are creeping up on the horizon. One will aim at the vitals of the local clearance and zoning board. The other will swirl around Campi's already sorely tried heads. The names of two outstanding attorneys have been mentioned as counsel for the exhibitors who contemplate the actions. If all of this sounds mysterious, then this typewriter actually is functioning to no one's greater surprise than our own. . . .

A. C. Blumenthal's financial mentor in deals stewing and brewing but still on paper is reported to be Sir William Wiseman, partner in Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Wiseman is the man who long fanned fires for a Paramount managed by N. L. Nathanson. That, however, is all over now. "Nate" likes Canada, his Famous Players Canadian setup and his close affiliation with the Royal Bank Holts. . . .

Warners are servicing their own sound equipment. That's common knowledge. Paramount partners are dickering for a reduction in their servicing agreement with Erpi. That's known, too. Loew is next in line. In the interim and for reasons not entirely clear, the latter outfit has ruled Erpi men out of its theatres. The order applies to all houses, no exceptions. . . .

"It's easy to see, but hard to foresee," runs the slogan of the M.P.T.O.A. of Eastern Pennsylvania. Astigmatism is almost as great a problem in this business as clearance. Or greedy circuits. Or exorbitant negative costs.

There ought to be a campaign. . . .

Charles Cochran, the London producer who does very well by himself, publicity-wise, is extremely obliging in denying stories linking his activities with Mae West. Says he has not signed her. Who said he was negotiating? . . .

Ben Goetz sat through lunch with some of the Metro higher-uppers at the Motion Picture Club yesterday, but don't draw any conclusions. That does not mean he is joining Leo, as reports have indicated. Not at all. . . .

Did you notice "Al Lichtman presents" Leon Garganoff's "The Battle" which U. A. will release as "Thunder in the East"? A very swell picture, this, and in it a new star. His name is Charles Boyer. Remember it. . . .

"Bordertown" Gets $33,000 at Strand

The rehabilitated Strand came back to life with $33,000 on the first week of "Bordertown." "Clive of India" at the Rivoli was not shy at the box-office, the first week's tally being $41,500. "The Iron Duke" at the Music Hall did much better than "Romance in Manhattan" the previous week, garnering $58,000 during its tenancy. The second week of "The County Chairman" ended with a fair $22,000.

Columbia's "The Whole Town's Talking" is tentatively slated to open at the Music Hall on Feb. 14, following "The Scarlet Pimpernel."

David Loew was the only witness called yesterday by Max D. Steuer, counsel for M. & S. Loew was questioned on various phases of the RKO-Loew's product agreement of last September, under which Loew's made Fox, Universal and Columbia product, contracted for by it, available to RKO which was threatened with a product shortage in its metropolitan houses.

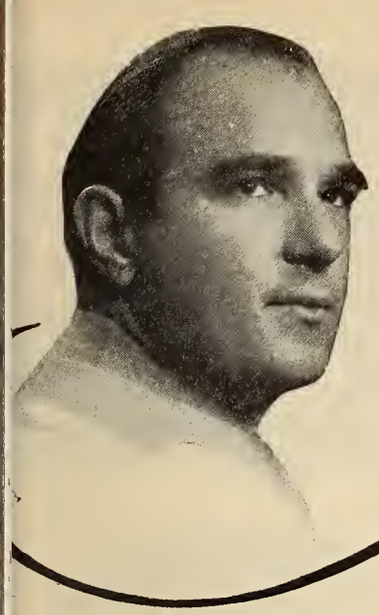
On Saturday, Arthur Lee will accompany Bernerd on a week's trip to Atlanta and Charlotte, returning by way of Chicago. Earlier in the week, Bernerd was in Philadelphia where Al Boyd tendered him a dinner.

Court Holds Operator

Ernest Hammett, film operator arrested several days ago with explosives in his possession, was held today in $100,000 bail in First Criminal Court. Newark, Fall River and Boston police are checking Hammett's activities on the theory that he has had something to do with theatre explosions in recent months.

RKO Gets G. B. Here



Gaumont British has closed a product deal with the RKO metropolitan circuit, involving 45 theatres in Greater New York. The first picture to be shown will be "Evergreen," which will start a tour of the circuit Feb. 12. Phil Meyer, New York branch manager, represented Gaumont British.

Hopper Planes to Coast

Harold Hopper, assistant to Larry Darmour, production head of Majestic, left for Hollywood by plane yesterday. Darmour left last Saturday and plans to be back again in two weeks for home office conferences on the 1935-36 schedule.

Census Figures on Films Questioned

by the M.P.P.D.A. indicating 13,736 film houses in operation in 1933, whereas the bureau figured only 10,133.

Ignored for more than a year, there was dug out of the files of the U. S. Senate today a report on national income made by the Department of Commerce in January, 1934, in response to a Senate resolution, in which are given figures on the amusement industry far in excess of those indicated by the Census Bureau survey.

That report placed the number of persons employed in film theatres throughout the country in 1932 at 225,400 as compared with the Census Bureau report of less than 63,000 in 1933. The department report estimated that $289,188,000 was paid those employes in wages, compared with the bureau estimate for the following year of some $85,000,000.

The box-office receipts of film houses in 1932 were placed by the department at $700,000,000, while the bureau estimate for 1933 was $406,000,000.

In issuing its report of the 1933 survey the Census Bureau admitted that its figures were not complete, citing Pennsylvania as an outstanding state in which the canvass was inaccurate. The difficulty in Pennsylvania, it has since been revealed, was due to a fight between political factions as to which should control the giving out of jobs created by the survey.

On the other hand, it is freely admitted that the figures in the report on national income are probably too high. The question, therefore, is what changes should be made in both the census and the report to arrive at a fairly accurate figure.

Can't Afford West, C. B. Cochran Says

Charles B. Cochran, English theatrical producer, yesterday again denied reports he had signed Mae West for a show to be produced in London. As one of the leading guests of Ampa, Cochran said he would like to have Miss West in a show, but could not possibly pay her the money she was making in pictures.

Freddie Bartholomew, young star of "David Copperfield," was bewildered facing the large gathering, but managed to recite a poem that took the assemblage by storm. Gene Raymond told a few stories and Rachael Carlay sang two numbers, one in French and the other in English. Rosita Ortega danced two of her Spanish routines from "Revenge with Music." Irving Jaffee told of his skating experiences and Jerry Mann gave an impersonation of George Givot, Greek ambassador. Emil Boreo told two smutty stories and sang one song, while Mike Romanoff limited his speech to three short sentences. Monroe Greenthal acted as chairman.

Z. E. Woodall Is Dead

RICHMOND, Jan. 31.—Zacharias E. Woodall, former publicity director for Wilmer & Vincent in the Richmond district, is dead here. At his death he was head of the copy desk of the Richmond News Leader.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"One More Spring"

(Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—As quality entertainment, yet with mass punch packed with down-to-earth comedy plus drama, this production rates all around plaudits. The picture should be music to showmen's ears, paralleling "Daddy Long Legs." The plot is timely and unique in its simplicity.

Warner Baxter's business fails, leaving him with nothing but an antique bed. Walter King's main asset is a coonskin coat, a genius for the fiddle and his debit, a tremendous appetite. The duo joins forces, moving the bed into a park. While King rehearses on the street and coins jingle in his cup, Baxter promotes Roger Imhoff's street cleaning stable for a residence. Janet Gaynor, an actress tired of sleeping in subways, opportunely meets Baxter moving in for the winter. Comedy and drama mount consistently from here and hit a hilarious climax when the happy-go-lucky trio takes in a harassed bank president, Grant Mitchell, whose bank had failed. The windup has King getting a symphony job and Mitchell returning to face the music and giving financial aid and jobs to Baxter and Miss Gaynor, between whom romance has blossomed.

Henry King's direction is superb throughout. Robert Nathan's popular novel receives sympathetic handling in Edwin Burke's screen play. All performances are topnotch, particularly Jane Darwell, Rosemary Ames, John Qualen, Nick Foran, Astrid Allwyn and Stepin Fetchit. John Seitz's photography is fine.

Keynoted by optimism and human appeal and played by box-office personalities, this production should line and pack ticket windows. Production Code Seal No. 530. Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"The Nut Farm"

(Monogram)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—This picture is good average fare.

The story, a comedy, concerns a man and his wife seeking their fortunes in California after coming from a jerkwater town in the east. Instead of investing in a nut farm they fall for a phony motion picture deal to the tune of $40,000. The matter is finally straightened out by Wallace Ford, who turns the deal into a million dollar asset.

Melville Brown aimed his direction for good laughs and hit the mark. Ford does smart trouping. Oscar Apfel, as the husband, and Florence Roberts, as the wife, contribute humor. Spencer Charters is outstanding as a deaf landlord. The photography by Harry Neuman is good.

Production Code Seal, No. 562. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Good Fairy"

(Universal)

A mixture of moods—wistful, romantic, gay to the point of being explosively funny, tender, and with an occasional tear; a gorgeous choice of ingredients so skillfully blended that the opening day Music Hall audience took it laughing and applauded at the finish.

"The Good Fairy" is human and so well done that it seems real. What more can be said of a picture sketched deftly by a master hand—or hands? Whether it was Ferenc Molnar's original play, or Preston Sturges' adaptation or William Wyler's direction is immaterial so far as the public is concerned. The product is delightful.

Alan Hale, a Budapest theatre owner, plucks a pretty orphan, Margaret Sullavan, from an asylum to become an usher, because he wants at least one unsophisticated girl who won't flirt. The complications move swiftly. She tells a stage door johnny she is married and hurries toward an unsuspecting waiter whom she indicates is her husband. The waiter gets her a ticket to a party in a hotel and Frank Morgan, wealthy head of a meat importing company, goes after her. Again she says she is married and makes a blind pass at a page of the telephone book to pick up her husband.

Hoping to gain her favor, Morgan goes to this new phantom husband,

"Transient Lady," Jan. 25; "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," Feb. 4; "Rendezvous at Midnight," Feb. 11; "The Good Fairy," now playing the Music Hall in New York, Feb. 18; "Night Life of the Gods," which plays the Roxy, New York the week of Feb. 22, goes out March 4; "It Happened in New York," March 11; "Princess O'Hara," March 18 and "Mr. Dynamite," March 25.

"Copperfield" Book Out

William R. Ferguson, M-G-M exploitation head, and his staff, have put together an unusual press book on "David Copperfield." It is 20x 14 inches, filled with a wealth of exploitation suggestions. Particularly, it is lavish in its suggestion of publicity angles. Other features are a serialization, a picture strip series and a wide assortment of ads, posters and other displays.

Joseph Brennan Honored

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—A testimonial banquet for Joseph Brennan, new executive secretary of Allied Theatres of Massachusetts, drew a crowd of 700 to the Copley-Plaza Hotel last night. Governor Curley and Mayor Mansfield were among the state and city officials present. Brennan, who severed his connections with Loew's after 25 years to accept the Allied post, received a gift of a $1,000 check.

Order Stoppage of Films for College

CINCINNATI, Jan. 31.—Distributors were ordered by the local grievance board to discontinue serving the Morehead, Ky., State Teachers' College, on complaint of Paul M. Hooven, Trimble, Mt. Sterling, Ky. Evidence showed respondent was in competition with regular houses by advertising for public patronage at a 20-cent adult scale and 10 cents for children. It also was proved that respondent was a non-taxpaying enterprise, showing pictures in the college auditorium without expense aside from film rentals.

Decision was postponed pending checkup of information and ironing out of certain details in an overbuying complaint of Zanesville Theatres, Inc., operating the Grand, Liberty, Imperial and Quimby, Zanesville, O., vs. M. A. Shea, operating the Weller, same city.

On complaint of the Roosevelt, local colored house, United Artists was ordered to cancel "Catherine the Great," as complainant was not in default under his contract at the time the request for cancellation was made under the 10 per cent cancellation clause.

Schine Wins in Six Attacks on Smalley

ALBANY, Jan. 31.—Six charges of unfair competition brought by Schine houses against Smalley's circuit have been decided in favor of the complainant by the grievance board.

The cases were: Colonia, Norwich, against Smalley's Norwich, protesting auction nights; Oneonta, Oneonta, against Smalley's Cooperstown, selling thrift coupon books at 20 per cent discount; Oneonta, Oneonta, against Smalley's Delhi, coupon books; Oneonta against Smalley's Cooperstown, turkey lotteries; Colonia, Norwich, against Smalley's Sidney, money prizes; Rialto, Little Falls, against Smalley's Johnsville, money prizes.

Smalley has announced that he will appeal a recent decision against his Cooperstown theatre and in favor of the Oneonta and Palace, at Oneonta, to the NRA in Washington. The clearance board decided there was no competition. Campi reversed this decision and awarded 14 days' clearance between the two towns.

Pittsburgh's Board Upholds Complaints

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 31.—Four decisions have been handed down recently by the grievance board. Two of these cases were brought by one exhibitor, A. Biondi, Majestic, Ellwood City, Pa., against Monessen Amusement Co., operator of the Manos. One complaint alleged that the Monessen company was offering cash prizes at drawings and the other that copies of ads presented at the box-office were good for reduced admissions. Both complaints were ordered sustained and the practices stopped.

Dr. C. E. Herman, New Carnegie, Carnegie, Pa., was sustained in a reduced admissions complaint against the Grand, same town, and the board issued a stop order.

I. L. Butler, Rex, Masontown, Pa., charged David Trimble, Liberty, same town, was using two-for-one admissions. The complaint was sustained and a stop order was issued.

Looking 'Em Over

"The Good Fairy"

finds he is a young lawyer, Herbert Marshall, and offers him a big legal job. In the meantime the waiter, Reginald Owen, continues to try to protect the girl.

All the principal roles are well handled. It is one of those kind of pictures women and girls talk about in a way that reacts on box-office.

Production Code Seal No. 561. Running time, 98 minutes. "G."

"Rendezvous at Midnight"

(Universal)

A minimum of movement and a maximum of dialogue in a series of modernistic settings are used to unfold a mystery story involving the murder of a former New York police commissioner who is about to be investigated by his successor and a new mayor.

Plenty of names have been put into the cast and obviously plenty of money has been put into the settings—two beautiful homes, a modiste's shop and a police commissioner's office, but the entire story, with the exception of one automobile chase, could have been restored to the stage from whence it came without changing a sequence.

Valerie Hobson telephones to her admirer, Ralph Bellamy, who is police commissioner, that she has just shot Arthur Vinton, the former commissioner. It's a ruse to get him to visit her, but becomes serious when she learns Vinton has actually been shot. The subsequent action is a series of scenes in which Bellamy is questioning various suspects for the purpose of clearing his sweetheart. A model is finally found to be the guilty one.

A few flashes of Edgar Kennedy as a police chauffeur and Helen Jerome Eddy's loyalty to Miss Hobson in the role of a maid furnish the comedy touches. Christy Cabanne directed. The script was done by Gladys Unger from an adaptation of Gaetano Faxio's stage play, "Silver Fox," done by Ferdinand Reyher. Women will like the beautiful gowns and decorative backgrounds.

Production Code Seal 492. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

"One Night"

(Scandinavian Talking Pictures)

This Swedish importation, turned out by A. B. Svensk Filmindustri, is tinged with red. Its propaganda, mild as it is, is likely to be resented by American audiences. Technically, photographically and in acting, it has something to offer. But there approval must end. For the rest it is a somewhat ponderous, halting and at times illogical story of a revolt in a Finnish border town in the days of the Russian revolution.

The hero of the tale, a young Finn, leaves his wealthy home to fight for the workers' cause. He is captured and sentenced to die. His brother, who is helping to put down the revolt, lets him out of prison to see his mother and sweetheart, with the understanding he return at dawn to face his doom. Returning, the youth is wounded by the Reds, who mistake him for one of the enemy, and he dies, without the ignominy of falling before a firing squad.

Into the story has been woven a touching romance between the youth and a Russian peasant girl working in Finland. The couple are played by Bjorn Berglund and Ingert Bjuggren. The film is supplied with English subtitles. Gustaf Molander directed.

No code seal. Running time, 80 minutes. "G."

Moss Urges Caution In Small Operations

Discussing possible hazards in theatres seating 600 and under, License Commissioner Paul E. Moss has warned exhibitors not to permit standees or admit children either as performers or as patrons at any time. He also talked on other precautions that should be taken for the best interest of customers.

Because the Circle at Columbus Circle permitted children on the stage, the house was ordered closed for one day yesterday as a penalty. Increases in common show license fees were not discussed, but another meeting is expected to be called for protests.

Florida Bank Night Held to Be Illegal

TAMPA, Jan. 31.—Bank night, as it has been conducted in Florida, has been given the full count of 10 by Attorney General Landis in an opinion delivered at Tallahassee.

Bank night has been very popular and apparently profitable for theatres all over the state for the past year. It has been conducted on a "you must be in the theatre to win" basis, and this brought up the question of legality. The attorney general says that bank night does not violate the state lottery laws, providing a person is not required to purchase a ticket or token in order to win.

Dubinskys Request Rehearing on Lease

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 31.—Dubinsky Bros. are requesting Campi to reopen the lease interference case involving their Jefferson City, Mo., houses. Campi last week dismissed Dubinsky's complaint against W. H. Mueller, Harry Sodini and Leo Levy without comment.

Ed Dubinsky has asked Campi for a reason for the dismissal. He believes that since Campi did not explain its action, it probably did not have a complete understanding of the case. He has requested a hearing in New York.

Regardless of the final outcome of the dispute, Dubinsky is making plans to build a theatre in Jefferson City. Cost is estimated at $70,000, exclusive of the site, which has been bought. Capacity will be 1,270, according to present plans. Dubinsky may close the Miller as soon as the new house is completed, probably next June.

St. Joseph Charge Amendment Ordered

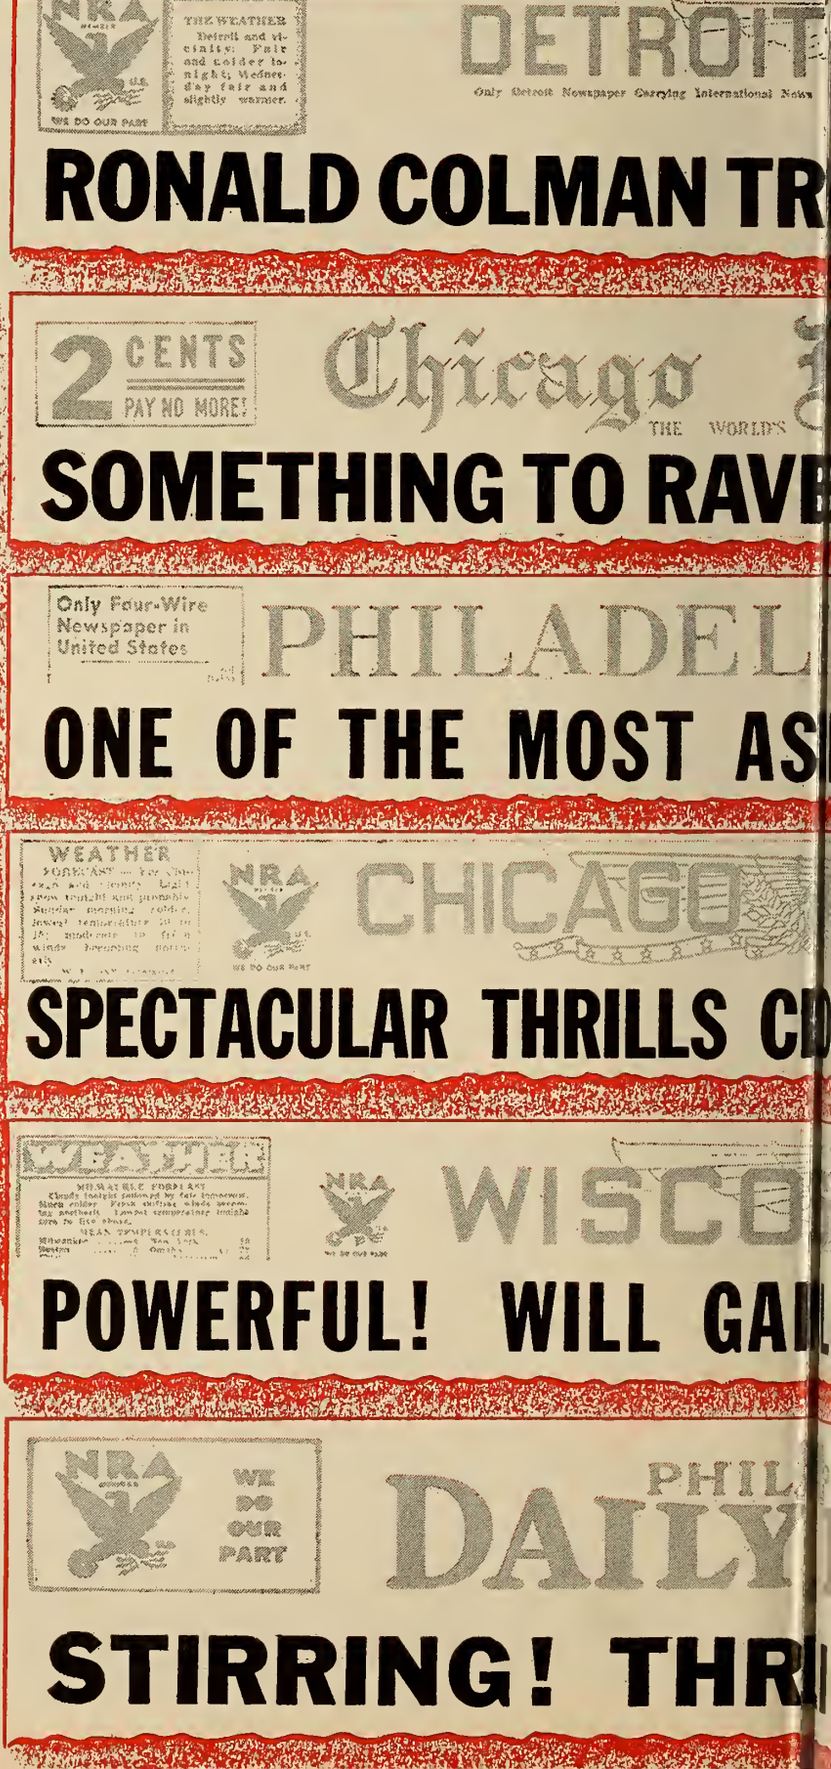
KANSAS CITY, Jan. 31.—The local clearance and zoning board refused to admit in the record certain allegations in the complain of four subsequents in St. Joseph, Mo., against Dubinsky Bros. and 11 distributors, and the complaint is to be revamped.

It was agreed at a hearing that a new complaint will be filed, shorn of the charges to which the board objected. These included that a monopolistic agreement exists between the circuit and the distributors preventing the subsequents from playing pictures day and date with or prior to the Crystal, 15-cent second run, and therefore preventing the subsequents from raising their admission price.

Frank H. Cassil, Rialto, and R. A. Gregory, Rivoli, will file the new complaint, which will request the board to reduce Dubinsky's second run protection of 14 days and also cut the circuit's first run protection.

Mascot to Jump Its List, Levine States

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—Nat Levine of Mascot says an increase of production on the 1934-35 program over the original 14 features and four serials announced at the beginning of the season is in prospect.



Although no definite number of features has been decided on, studio executives are now in a huddle to fix a new quota.

Pictures already completed on this year's program are: "Young and Beautiful," "Crimson Romance," "In Old Santa Fe," "The Marines Are Coming" and "Little Men." Films coming up are: "Behind the Green Lights," "One Frightened Night," "Headlines," "Waterfront Lady," "Confidential" and "Along Came A Woman." The remaining three films have not been set.

Off for a Week

On application by Louis Nizer, representing RKO in the clearance complaint by Century circuit in Long Island, the New York board yesterday postponed the hearing until next Thursday. John O'Connor, chief witness for RKO, was before an arbitration committee hearing a complaint against the circuit by M. & S.

Academy Move On Contracts Stirs Talent

NRA in Washington. Now it looks as though they have not only met all the actors' demands, but have gone farther and have agreed to use the Academy for arbitration of disputes where players want it.

What happens when they don't want it has the guild members agitated. Their next move remains to be seen.

Voting on the agreement has already been started, as ballots were sent out today to actor and producer members.

The present standard contract arrangement expires March 1.

The guild has had a 14-point program that included a demand for a basic eight-hour day with a 15-hour rest period, one hour of pay added for every hour worked overtime; abolition of the call bureau, curtailment of layoffs to one week for 40-week contract players, instead of single days through the year.

The Academy agreement just announced provides for a new form of contract for one-picture engagements, a new weekly minimum contract and revised conditions covering employment for day players. Contracts with artists receiving over $40,000 a year are not affected.

Arbitration Provided For

Arbitration under the new standard contract is provided for, if the artist so elects, and decisions will be enforceable on producers. Artists cannot be compelled to submit disputes to the Academy, if they prefer other methods of settlement.

It is provided that no player can be compelled to waive a 12-hour rest period at the end of each day's work, but if he should elect to do so he is entitled to a full day's pay. No emergency shall exempt a producer from making this payment.

Provision is made for keeping records of all dismissals and return calls in order to provide means of determining whether a player has received a full 12-hour rest period.

Minimum weekly contract players will not have to work on the six principal holidays, but will receive these as holidays with full pay. Should any emergency make work necessary on these holidays, the actor will receive double pay. Producers agree to make it a policy to endeavor not to work on Sundays immediately preceding or following holidays, and if any actor is required to render service on these Sundays he will receive an extra day's salary.

In computing the 12-hour rest period the 24 hours constituting Sundays and holidays will be eliminated unless the actor works on such Sundays and holidays and receives additional compensation therefor, or unless he has had a rest period of at least 36 hours during the preceding week.

Whenever a minimum weekly contract as submitted by a producer is signed and returned by the artist by noon of the succeeding business day it will automatically be binding on the company without awaiting the producer's signature.

The "on or about" starting date of weekly minimum contracts has been reduced to not more than 24 hours before or after the date specified, instead of 48 hours before or after.

Employment for day players will be on a consecutive day basis, exclusive of any Sundays and holidays on which the actor does not work. Should the producer terminate the engagement and recall the actor within less than two weeks to make further scenes, as distinguished from retakes, the actor will be paid for any intervening time during which he has been available. Provision is made for the conversion of daily employment contracts to employment under the weekly minimum contract on terms which the committee considers fair to the actor. In addition, day players will not only continue to receive the guarantee of eight hours' pay for each day of work, but the clause of the former day player agreement allowing the studio to lay the day player off for four hours or more without pay will be eliminated.

When an actor working by the day is required to report early to have elaborate makeup or wardrobe put on by the studio makeup or wardrobe workers the time required in excess of one hour will constitute working time.

It is contemplated that the agreement will be effective for five years from March 1, with provisions for amendment. The machinery for amendment has not been fully agreed upon, but is being worked out.

The joint committee which worked out the proposed revisions for producers included Henry Herzbrun, chairman; Samuel Briskin, J. J. Gain, William Koenig and Irving Thalberg, with B. B. Kahane an ex-officio member. The actors' committee included Lionel Atwill, chairman; DeWitt C. Jennings, George Irving, Raymond Hatton and Mitchell Lewis.

Nearing '35 Peak

Pittsburgh, Jan. 31.—Territorial tents of Variety Club, which sprang into existence here some years ago, today total 16. Twelve are in operation with St. Paul, Milwaukee, Dayton and Des Moines completing organization.

Only four more tents will be accepted this year since 20 has been fixed as the limitation on expansion during 1935. In less than one year, Variety Club tents have jumped from two to 16.

Bellman Appointed To Grievance Board

Jack Bellman has been named to the New York grievance board, succeeding Harry H. Thomas, resigned.

Request of Morris Kutinsky to reopen his complaint against Century circuit on overbuying and selective contracts was referred to the grievance board committee.

Julius Charnow's clearance issue involving the Leonia, Leonia, N. J., and against Loew's and Skouras was deferred a week for possible settlement. It is understood the two circuits are trying to work out the solution without a Campi decision.

Film Men Off for NRA Booth Hearing

rector Sol A. Rosenblatt presiding. Rosenblatt has taken a personal interest in the local union situation and is hopeful that a plan will be worked out to the best interests of all.

Several Monday sessions have been held by the fact-finding body within the last few weeks, but up until last Monday no agreement on a schedule could be reached. Local 306, at the last session, submitted modifications of the plan originally set up. According to independent exhibitors, objections will be raised on the minimum 75-cents-an-hour and $60-a-week booth cost, the contention being that many small exhibitors cannot afford to pay increases at this time. Many houses seating under 600 have a booth cost from $35 to $45 a week. The I.A.T.S.E., representing Local 306, will oppose the 30-hour week minimum. Springer & Cocalis will battle any attempt of the international union to bring Empire State operators into Local 306.

Among those leaving yesterday were: Charles L. O'Reilly, Milton C. Weisman, Tom Murray, Laurence Bolognino, Leslie E. Thompson and Charles C. Moskowitz.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—With the local stage set for a hearing on booth costs in the Metropolitan New York area tomorrow, officials of the NRA tonight were dubious of their chances of disposing of the subject without carrying the meeting over a second day. Wherever possible, a one-day hearing is preferred because of the expense and time entailed to business men who must hang around when the hearings are longer.

It is anticipated that the meeting tomorrow will bring several controversial questions to the fore, but hope was expressed that an amicable settlement could be reached without delay.

Tyree Dillard, Jr., legal representative of Campi, arrived late tonight to attend the hearing.

Burr-Darmour Case Returned to Coast

After studying C. C. Burr's complaint against Larry Darmour in connection with the signing of Ken Maynard after he had entered a deal with the complainant, Campi yesterday referred the matter to the coast office where a committee will hear and decide the case.

Because the committee consisting of Austin C. Keough, Joseph Seider and Paul Burger needed additional testimony, decision on the complaint of Jack Bellman against Ken Goldsmith and Mascot was held up pending depositions from Nat Levine and Goldsmith on the contract for "Little Men." Bellman claimed that some time ago he entered into a contract with Goldsmith Prod., Ltd., for the picture, but failed to get it. Mascot is handling it.

Union Appeals to NRA

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 31.—The local operators' union has appealed to the NRA compliance board asking that exhibitors paying less than union wages be ordered to pay back salary and abide by the union scale in the future.

Campi Adopts L. A. Plan on Price Basis

the coast plan was growing and that it might go through. This publication also stated that there was a possibility that geographical areas and prices will be considered as the basic features of the schedule with the proviso that theater men can go into the market and buy protection where admissions are the same.

This has actually happened. Campi predicated the schedule on admissions with the understanding that distributors can sell seven days' protection in second run situations where admissions are identical.

Campi all along has voted down schedules with the price factor as a basic principle. However, in adopting the coast plan distributors are incorporating a clause which will not permit exhibitors to make unreasonable demands on prints. This applies to theatres with same admissions and like availability. The vote was not unanimous.

29 Zones in Territory

There are 29 zones in Los Angeles covering 450 theatres in Long Beach, San Diego, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Alhambra, Whittier, Glendale, San Pedro, Santa Monica, Independence and Palm Springs, in addition to other smaller cities.

Theatres charging 40 cents evenings will play 21 days after downtown first runs under the schedule; houses with 35-cent admissions will play 28 days after first run, and theatres charging 30 cents can play 35 days after downtown houses. For houses charging 25 cents, showings are set back 49 days after first run.

Code Authority is expected to hand down an official order within two weeks, when the plan will go into effect. New Haven's schedule is on tap for next Thursday's session. It is in pretty good shape and will most likely be passed then. Campi will attempt to dispose quickly of Kansas City, Boston and Detroit plans at future meetings. Because Buffalo exhibitors withdrew their schedule in favor of individual protests, this territory will not have a plan.

Ed Kuykendall acted as chairman of the session with George J. Schaefer, Charles L. O'Reilly, Nathan Yamins, E. T. Gomersall, Robert Youngman, Felix A. Jenkins, Felix Feist, Harold S. Bareford and Edward Golden present. W. Ray Johnston will preside at the Feb. 7 session.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31. — Campi's adoption of a clearance schedule for Los Angeles based on admissions was hailed by the I. T. O. of Southern California today as a great victory for the organization. Campi's action is expected to prevent any future anti-trust complaints.

Reeves Espey, speaking for Fox West Coast, decribed the event as the healthiest and most sensible thing that has ever happened in the interest of theatre operators, both large and small.

Court Favors Para. Setup With Changes

Coxe concluded his opinion, "and with the changes enumerated I will sign an order so stating."

The change recommended in the interest rate on the bank debt would involve a reduction of only $84,000 in the approximately $500,000 of interest to be paid the 15 bank creditors under the proposed settlement advanced in the plan, or a reduction of approximately $5,500 to each creditor bank. This change is not expected to meet with any serious objections from the bank group.

Exceptions to the court's opinion on the changes in management provisions were taken by George Z. Medalie, representing an important consolidated creditor group with claims aggregating $14,000,000, and by Archibald Palmer, attorney for a small group of stockholders. Medalie's group had advocated annual elections of directors to eliminate those whose stock interest in the company might be disposed of during any year. Palmer had urged to the appointment by the court of a board of voting trustees to direct the company at the outset in place of a board of directors elected by the creditors.

Decision Given Orally

In his opinion, given orally from the bench immediately following the completion of argument yesterday, Judge Coxe reiterated statements he had made earlier to the effect that he did not believe the court could be asked to assume responsibility for a company's management or to impose upon it a divided control of its future.

"Those who own the principal equities in the company should be permitted to operate it free of court fetters," Judge Coxe said. "However, I do believe the court has a right to veto members of the first board without implying that their nomination was improper. I concur," he said, "in the belief that a change should be made from the provisions for four-year terms for directors to three-year terms, and at the end of three years elections should be held annually, and from that time on there should be cumulative voting. However, the company needs some assurance of permanency in management at the outset, and I do not believe that initial terms of less than three years are advisable."

Referring to the plan as a whole, Judge Coxe said he believed it had been arrived at "by interested groups trading at arm's length."

"The court must consider that as of first importance. It can't be too censorious or search for trivial faults when its first consideration is whether or not the plan is fair and equitable to all concerned."

Judge Coxe then took up the major claim settlements included in the plan one by one, pronouncing the Paramount Broadway reorganization plan, which is a part of the Paramount Publix plan, to be reasonable and fair. With this pronouncement he dismissed objections to the Broadway plan which had been made with a view to obtaining the separation of the Paramount Building and theatre from the company after reorganization. He said he recognized a real value in Paramount retaining possession of the properties under the terms of the plan and, feeling that the provisions for Broadway bondholders were fair, stated he believed the settlement should be carried out as provided.

Judge Coxe gave the same opinion of the Allied Owners' settlement which, he said, represented months of negotiations on the part of the Paramount Publix trustees and impressed him as being "reasonable and fair." Except for the interest rate specified in the bank settlement, the court viewed that provision as "fair and proper," since, Judge Coxe said, the need of a settlement to avoid lengthy delay in reorganization was clear.

The cash requirements of the company, including $6,500,000 of new money, were not questioned.

"I am not sure that more than $6,500,000 is needed," Judge Coxe remarked, "but I am sure that that much, at least, is needed."

Treatment of debenture holders and the allowance of interest on their claims to Jan. 1, 1935, was approved by the court with the comment that the provisions were fair "because this is a reorganization and not a liquidation." The conversion of preferred stock into common at the rate of one for seven was held to be entirely fair on the ground that creditors receiving the preferred in settlement of their claims should be able to have a voice in control through an exchange for voting stock.

Treatment of common stockholders and the provision for a $2 subscription warrant for new common was held to be "entirely fair and reasonable."

Asserts RKO Bankers Are Buying Paramount's Stock

at George Z. Medalie, counsel for creditor groups among whom are banking and investment houses which appeared in the Paramount reorganization proceedings only recently. Medalie, in any event, responded to the charge with the statement that "I can't meet mysterious insinuations. Let's have evidence and testimony to support the charge."

Medalie admitted earlier that Lehman Bros., former RKO bankers, was one of the creditors he represented. John D. Hertz, a vice-president of that bank, has been agreed upon for the new Paramount board.

The charge created a furore in the courtroom, with Robert Szold, Monroe Goldwater, Archibald Palmer and Samuel Zirn, all of whom are counsel for various creditors, demanding that the charge be fully investigated.

Medalie looked over the clamoring attorneys and turning to Cook, remarked smilingly, "See what you started."

Goldwater, who is counsel for Allied Owners' trustees, interpreted Cook's charge as a declaration that "Paramount securities are private ground, not to be trespassed upon by outsiders."

"Why should he object to some one else buying in?" Goldwater asked. "Just who is it wants the control? Let's go into this."

A check-up of sales and transfers of Paramount bonds within recent months showed Lehman Bros. purchasing approximately $300,000 worth; Lazard Freres, $500,000; Belden Co., $550,000; Kuhn, Loeb, $250,000, and smaller amounts to Hallgarten & Co. and Newborg Co., both of whom, however, have been active purchasers in recent months.

Sock Newsreel

All the stark, vivid and gripping drama of the Hauptmann trial is effectively and sensationally presented in the current issue of Universal Newsreel. No written scenario could have produced the effect of this drama of real life.

The reel opens with shots of Colonel Lindbergh, Mrs. Lindbergh and Dr. Condon on the stand. These are doubly effective in their brevity, but it is the cross-examination of the defendant by Attorney General Wilentz that will grip and hold audiences. The two fence with each other in a duel of wits as the camera catches words and gestures. This is a subject that probably will long be remembered.

Court Approves Plan For Northwest Group

An order approving the plan for ending the receivership of Minnesota Amusement Corp., Paramount subsidiary operating approximately 70 theatres in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, was signed yesterday by Special Master John E. Joyce.

The plan makes William Hamm, Jr., one of the receivers for Minnesota, who was also an executive of the Finkelstein and Rubin circuit prior to its acquisition by Paramount, operator of Minnesota under a short term contract expiring next June 27. It also provides for a five-year extension of a $500,000 mortgage against Minnesota, held by the Hamm interests, and for the settlement of other claims against the estate.

Campi Gets Amendments

Recommendations by the NRA on Campi amendments to the lease and vaudeville sections of the code were presented to Campi yesterday by Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth, who requested members to review the suggestions before a final official order is handed down in Washington.

Philadelphia Contract Dual Bans Enjoined

the enforcement of the injunction pending an appeal.

Judge Welsh contended the clause prohibiting the showing of two features restrained interstate trade and commerce, reduced the number of features that might be produced by independents and gave the nine major companies a monopolistic grip on the industry. The decision suggested the defendants conspired to violate the anti-trust laws, although conspiracy may not have been achieved by unlawful means.

As several independent exhibitors had complained that films of the majors were needed to fill out programs, Judge Welsh stated that "the situation places defendants in a peculiarly strategic position to dominate the whole situation. If the restraints of trade and commerce practiced by the defendants in their contracts now complained of were permitted to continue, the independent producer and independent exhibitor would be greatly injured and interfered with and the public welfare impaired."

Holding this to be dangerous, the judge stated, "this is particularly true just at this time when economic conditions are such that if the independent producers and exhibitors are permitted to be handicapped they will not be able to survive and if destroyed it might be a long tme before monopolistic control and domination would be challenged or broken."

Suit Filed Last Summer

The suit was filed in the U. S. District Court in Philadelphia late last summer by Harry Perelman, leader of a group of Philadelphia independent operators, who contended the double feature ban placed on them by the major companies was in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The hearings reached a climax in late November and early December and were featured by the testimony of local executives who were subpoenaed. Among those who testified were J. Robert Rubin and William F. Rodgers representing M-G-M; Ned Depinet and William Youngman, RKO; Earle W. Hammons, Educational; Al Lichtman and Edward Raftery, U. A.; A. W. Smith and Harold Bareford, Warners; E. C. Grainger, Fox and Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president. Walter Vincent of the Wilmer & Vincent circuit also appeared for the defense.

The hearings were concluded Dec. 6 and both sides were given until Dec. 21 to file briefs.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The appeal granted Harry Perelman yesterday in the much-discussed Philadelphia duals case may have repercussions in this territory. The newly-formed Allied Theatre Owners of the District of Columbia has been awaiting the decision before formulating a course of action of its own on dual clause restrictions in contracts.

The unit proposes to meet twice a month and is headed by C. H. Olive as president.

Coast Studios Lose Property Tax Writ

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—Universal, M-G-M, Paramount and Fox today were denied an injunction in Federal court to restrain Los Angeles County from assessing what were claimed to be excess taxes on front footage bordering their studio properties.

The court held that only in extraordinary cases could it issue a writ in a matter interfering with government operation, adding that the case should have gone through the state courts first. The plaintiffs said they would do this, meanwhile paying the assessments.

A victory for the studios is expected to save them about $120,000.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—Spyros Skouras presided today at a meeting of Fox West Coast division managers at the Beverly Wilshire at which future theatre operations and means of increasing business were discussed. There was no discussion of drastic changes or of reorganization moves.

L. A. Schedule Clears Sky in Clearance Row

Kansas City Is Next on List; Others Coming

Now that the Los Angeles plan has been accepted by Campi, steps are being taken to set up clearance and zoning schedules in other key cities which have submitted plans for official approval. The stumbling block all along has been distributors' opposition to admission prices as a basis for clearance. The argument was that sales heads had the right to sell protection; further, that if theatres with like admissions were given the same availability, a print shortage would ensue in every exchange center. Kansas City is the next schedule up for disposition Thursday.

Campi overcame both distributor objections at its last meeting when it

New Trust Suit Vs. FWC Filed in L. A.

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—Colcata Corp. of Pasadena and H. L. Gumbiner, local theatre operator, joined hands yesterday and filed a conspiracy suit under the Sherman anti-trust law against Fox West Coast, Downtown Theatres, Inc., Fox-Cosmopolitan Theatres Co., Ltd., and several major distributors. The plaintiffs are seeking $6,080,000 in damages.

Subsequents Irked By Pittsburgh Cuts

Pittsburgh, Feb. 3.—As an aftermath of the price-cutting started here by the Penn, and followed up by the Fulton, independent exhibitors have been squawking to the distributors, demanding reductions in film rentals.

In addition, the independents threaten to double feature every picture the Penn and Fulton play. The Penn here gets M-G-M, United Artists and half of Paramount, while the Hollywood, Feb. 3.—Emanuel Cohen is understood to have left unexpectedly for New York by 'plane yesterday on a quick summons of the new board of directors at Paramount who, it is reported on unimpeachable authority, will ask his resignation as head of production at a meeting to be held in the east Monday.

It is not believed Cohen holds a contract.

Coincident with this development, inside talk credits reports that Henry Herzbrun, for some years the company's attorney at the studio, is to be moved up into a more important post on the lot.

London, Jan. 22.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n is considering the possibility of asking the Government to impose a standard contract on the industry. Main clauses would confer a right of cancellation and restrict the percentage of receipts payable for films.

It is known that the Cinematograph Films Act is likely to be amended by new legislation providing, among other things, for control of the quota quickie and a more rigid restriction of block booking. C.E.A. demands are new going much beyond these matters.

Hollywood, Feb. 3.—B. F. Zeidman, Universal producer, resigned yesterday, ending a three-year association with the studio. He said he was considering three offers, which he asserted he would be unable to announce at present.

Zeidman declared his resignation was on his own volition and was due to his dissatisfaction with an offer by Universal involving a three-month extension of his recently expired option.

Paramount, Warners Get 80% Slashes; Other Deals Coming

New recording license agreements providing for drastically reduced rates for domestic recordings of dubbed versions, foreign versions and trailers have been made by Erpi with Paramount and Warners and negotiations for similar agreements will be opened with Erpi's other principal licensees in the near future, it was learned Saturday.

The amended rates represent, in some instances, reductions of 80 per cent as compared with the former rates. The royalties now established for dubbed versions and foreign versions are entirely new. They were not covered specifically in the old Erpi contracts, but were charged for on the basis of the standard rate of $500 per reel. Under the new contracts the recording rates for dubbed widely distributed, following the distribution through the nation's exhibitors of booklets and other literature prepared by the administration.

In a letter to exhibitors the work of the theatre men is highly commended, it being declared that "the activities of the Federal Housing Administration have had magnificent support and cooperation from the industry, and in recent weeks we have had many requests for motion pictures which could be shown in the theatres of the country and which would bring to the attention of audiences the significance of better housing and finer living.

"It is well recognized that the economic recovery which the better housing movement will unmistakably create will have an important effect on the frequency with which more and more people will patronize the motion picture theatres."

The administration is sponsoring more than 5,000 Better Housing Committees throughout the country, on which are serving mayors, civic leaders and business executives. These committees will contact exhibitors who express a willingness to show the housing films and arrange to notify residents of their communities so that each theatre will be assured an increased audience.

The movement is being heartily supported by Ed Kuykendall, president of the M.P.T.O.A., and numerous other organizations, it was said.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

MANY are the whispers that swirl about—and from—leading figures in the Paramount reorganization. And, without any commitment from this department as to their substantiality in fact or reason for being for that matter, many are interesting enough to bear passing along. The procession is now under way. . . .

The reorganization, being something of a checkerboard for financial men, most of the whispers revolve about the moves and counter moves of the financial houses represented. First of all, the whisperers presuppose a sharp rivalry of investment interests exists over the respective positions each is to occupy in the Paramount of the future. The stories place Kuhn, Loeb & Co. in one corner and a combination of several other financial houses headed by Lehman Brothers and Lazard Freres in the other. Each side seems prepared to go the limit for a knockout decision. . . .

In addition to the whispers there have been charges, both intimated and openly made in court, that Kuhn, Loeb holds the ends of strings that lead to men already agreed upon for the board, despite the absence of any obvious connection. Attorney Palmer actually named Frank A. Vanderlip as one of these in open court. The whisperers, by a devious route, add the name of Henry R. Luce, editor of Time and Fortune, who, they say, is related to Robert Swaine of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, the Kuhn, Loeb attorneys of many years' standing, who were introduced to Paramount by that banking house. . . .

They add that Attorney Alfred Cook, monitor for the court proceedings as counsel for Paramount and for the stockholders' committee, has a son who is a junior executive of K-L. This, they say, explains Cook's veiled attack on the Lehman-Lazard group in court Thursday through an implication that Lehman, former RKO bankers, sought control of Paramount to bring about a merger of the latter company and RKO. Just how seriously Cook takes the situation may be judged, they recite, by Cook's antagonism to the Lehman-Lazard group in the face of the reputed relationship of Frank B. Altschul of Lazard to I. Howard Lehman, law partner of Cook. . . .

ALTSCHUL, it is mentioned in passing, could have had a place on the Paramount board if he had wanted it but deferred to John D. Hertz of Lehman Bros., who apparently wanted it more. This reputed gesture is also advanced as evidence of the alliance between Lehman and Lazard. . . .

Cook also views as significant the active trading in Paramount bond certificates indulged in by Lehman-Lazard during the past two months, estimated to aggregate about $1,000,000 of face amount. The records of transactions on which this is based also show that K-L holds more than $250,000, while heavy transfers have gone to nominees whose banking connections are not entirely apparent. Foremost of these is the Belden Co., whose certificate assignments have passed the $500,000 mark. . . .

For whom Belden is buying, and for why appears a bit uncertain all the way through the reorganization scene. Another mysterious but active purchaser is the Newborg Co., which holds perhaps $200,000 of face amount bonds. If both are acting for K-L, as some whisperers would insist loudly, the Lehman-Lazard purchasing which so disturbs Cook, would appear to have a fairly evenly matched rival. If not, as others say, the underwriting race would seem to be too far advanced to shout a feeble "halt" after the leader, name not too clearly defined as all of this perhaps has already indicated. . . .

Your best Hollywood writers have never turned out a better or a more dramatic script. The drama in it and maybe the tragedy as well as the jitters a melee such as this gives the normal conduct of Paramount workers—production and sales. They have been tossed around so much and so bewilderingly that normal for them must be like a visit to the Times Square subway station at the height of the rush hour. A bit of quiet, coupled with a fair amount of assurance, is their due, long overdue. Never mind the individuals, if you prefer it that way, but for Paramount's sweet sake. . . .

"Clive" Gets $32,040

"Clive of India" tallied $32,040 during its second week at the Rivoli. For the last five days of "Baboona," the Rialto took in $5,500. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," which switched to the Rialto from the Paramount after three weeks, pulled a swell week-end business at Arthur Mayer's emporium.

versions are fixed at 25 per cent of the standard reel rate, or $125. Recording rates for foreign versions are now established at rates which will range from $200 to $300 per reel, according to the language in which the recording is made. Royalties for trailer recordings are slashed from the former $500 standard reel rate to $100 per reel.

The new agreements involve no change in recording rates for features, shorts or newsreels. The amended licenses, however, are regarded by producers as being generally broader in their terms.

While the adjustments contained in the new license agreements have been before producers for the past four or five years awaiting negotiation, the first was concluded only a few months ago with Warners and was made a part of the company's settlement with Erpi last June. This was followed more recently with a similar agreement granted to Paramount as a consideration in settlement of the 1,875,000 claim which Erpi filed in the Paramount bankruptcy proceedings. Under this settlement, Erpi's claim was allowed at $1,200,000, to be paid in new Paramount securities on the same basis as other general creditors of the bankrupt.

Other companies with which negotiations on the new rate agreement will be opened soon include M-G-M, Columbia, Universal, United Artists, Fox and Educational.

shal's office here on Saturday following receipt of certified copies of the personal indictments returned against the seven by a St. Louis Federal grand jury last month as a result of the investigation of film buying and selling there.

The indicted executives are Harry M. Warner, Abel Cary Thomas, Gradwell Sears and Herman Starr of Warners, George Schaefer of Paramount and Ned Depinet of RKO. Formal arraignment of the seven will take place in St. Louis, probably by appearance of counsel for those indicted. Former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri is counsel for Warners in the case, and Bruce Bromley of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood will represent Depinet. Paramount has not yet selected counsel for Schaefer.

provided in the coast plan a proviso which would protect exchanges in the event of an increased demand for prints under the schedule. The plan provides that where an exchange usually has a quota of six prints, and under the new schedule has eight similar second run availabilities, the distributor can sell two of the eight second runs either before or after the remaining six theatres. This covers the right to sell protection and also prevents any unreasonable demands for prints.

The Los Angeles plan will serve as a model for other schedules. For five weeks Campi worked over its various clauses and sections, finally reaching an agreement last Thursday. With the exception of three individual zoning appeals where theatres overlap, the schedule has been approved in toto. The three appeals will be disposed of next Thursday, after which the Kansas City plan will be threshed out.

In the event any part of the coast or any other plan to be adopted works a hardship on either exhibitor or distributor an appeal can be taken before the local board. If either party is still dissatisfied, another appeal can be taken to Campi.

K. C. Plan in Good Shape

The Kansas City plan is in pretty good shape and will probably be accepted without much ado. Several months ago George J. Schaefer and Edward Golden, appointed by Campi to visit Kansas City to work out a schedule with the varied interests, returned with a modified plan which seems to be the best yet for the territory. In this plan there is also a protection clause for distributors in the event an unreasonable demand is made for prints.

In many respects the Los Angeles plan is reminiscent of the Cleveland agreement with distributors and exhibitors whereby a clearance plan was put into effect for the year ending Jan. 1, 1935. A tacit agreement continues the plan and it is believed this city will not ask Campi to provide one to supplant the schedule in effect.

Kansas City I.T.O. Waits

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 3.—Members of the I. T. O. are awaiting word from Elmer C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest operating head, on the clearance and zoning schedule for this territory. Several attempts have been made by independents to have Fox Midwest agree with the I. T. O. on acceptance of the schedule submitted to Campi. Campi delayed action on the plan when the local price war broke out following reduction of admissions at the RKO Mainstreet and Tower with Loew's following suit at the Midland.

Loew's may reduce prices again. The circuit figures the Midland a consistent loser with an overhead of $8,000 a week, exclusive of salaries, advertising and film bills, before the house opens.

Under the schedule the first run protection would be cut 28 days in order to permit 25-cent spots to play 14 days after third subsequent runs charging 20 cents. Theatres charging 15 cents would play 21 days after 20-cent houses and dime houses would have to wait 133 days after first runs. The 10-cent houses under the original schedule would have to wait 171 days after downtown. Dual feature theatres are delayed 30 days after single bill houses with additional penalties for theatres distributing premiums.

of distributors are being expressed in strong language at exhibitors' meetings. It is pointed out that in Australia, where there is stringent control, the exhibitor has a 25 per cent right of cancellation and the average program cost is 20 per cent of takings. The British cost is declared to average 36 per cent, and there is no right of cancellation.

American distributors are attacked as responsible for the high-handed policy of the Kinematograph Renters' Society as shown in the credit restriction scheme and other matters, and it is asserted that legislation is necessary to control them, in view of the impossibility of getting 3,000 exhibitors to take common action.

A last minute snag has been encountered by the agreement governing wages and working conditions between London exhibitors and unions. At various times it has been announced that the agreement, engineered through a joint conciliation board, was generally accepted, accepted with reservations, and not accepted. The "nos" appear to have won for the moment.

Dominating factor in the situation is the attitude of the Electrical Trades Union, which objects to the hours schedule as opposed to their national minimum.

Some time ago it was announced that the agreement would be signed with a reservation of the E.T.U.'s dissent, but the C.E.A. finally took up the attitude that the London Trades Council must sign for all unions.

A three weeks' adjournment has been agreed to see if the E.T.U. can be brought into line.

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3.—A comedy of manners involving a newly rich Idaho couple, Charley Ruggles and Mary Boland, who become involved in a Paris poker game, win Charles Laughton, a gentleman's gentleman, from an impecunious Earl, Roland Young. Laughs galore are contrived from Harry Leon Wilson's story affording the cast and production contributors full outlets for their talents.

Jumping from the continent to Red Gap, Laughton, now in the service of Miss Boland and Ruggles, is mistaken for a British colonel and lionized by local climbers for pronounced effects and startling change in Laughton's newly absorbed behavior.

Confronted with the decision whether to return as a gentleman's gentleman or remain in Red Gap, Laughton determines to step out and do something for himself in the American spirit and opens an Anglo-American restaurant aided by Zasu Pitts.

Played for hilarity the production has an undercurrent of hands across the sea, blending English reserve with American expressiveness.

Arthur Hornblow, the producer, has moulded delightful entertainment which Leo McCarey directed with comedy uppermost although sentiment prevails.

Beside the leads the cast includes Leila Hyams as Nell Kenner, Maude Eburne as Ma Pettingill and Lucien Littlefield as Belknap Jackson. Alfred Gilky photographed.

After tightening, the film should be popular with Laughton, Miss Boland and Ruggles fans.

Production Code Seal, No. 537. Running time, 95 minutes. "G."

"Mystery Man"

(Monogram)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3.—Although the film is somewhat lacking in mystery element, the picture holds interest as a newspaper reporter exposé of a police baffling murder.

Robert Armstrong, a reporter, receives a gun from the district attorney for running down a criminal and also a $50 bonus from his paper on which he gets inebriated. Armstrong, fired, goes to Detroit and meets Maxine Doyle. His former boss, Henry Kolker, double-crosses him by not giving him proper credentials and he can't find a job. Finally he gets the lowdown of a story on a master criminal, Leroy Mason, and talks a Detroit editor, James Burke, into a job on the strength of the scoop. Armstrong accidentally becomes implicated in the case through his gun and is suspected of murder. His former boss comes through finally with the proper references and Armstrong gets out of the scrape. He and Miss Doyle finally carry the romantic thread to the altar.

Comedy is the keynote of the film with a well handled element of suspense. Ray McCarey directed intelligently. All performances are okay. This one should please neighborhood patrons.

Production Code Seal, No. 571. Running time, 67 minutes. "G."

Hauptmann Films Run on; Newsreel Editors Silent

Bruno Richard Hauptmann continued to answer the questions of Attorney General Wilentz on the screens of the country all day Saturday and yesterday.

Newsreel editors wouldn't talk Saturday. They had all done a lot of discussing behind closed doors, they admitted, but beyond that they were non-committal.

Hearst Metrotone clips were ordered out of the Loew circuit on Saturday, while Paramount notified Wilentz it had withdrawn all prints.

All the reels — Fox Movietone, Pathe, Hearst Metrotone, Universal and Paramount—issue new clips twice weekly. This one came out last Thursday. Another clip will be out shortly—so the first run situation will be taken care of. In spite of the fact that the Fox Movietone clip was supposed to have been withdrawn, New Jersey officials connected with the trial saw it Friday night only a few doors from their hotel in Trenton.

There's no mystery about how the pictures were obtained. The cameras have been running since the trial started, but little of the footage made when the court has actually been in session has appeared on the screens by agreement with Justice Trenchard. The court took the stand that it would be prejudicial to the interests of the defendant and undignified to have cameras all over the courtroom, either still or moving, but had no objection to the operation of the single moving picture camera in the balcony so long as it did not make a noise. The idea was that the films would become public property after the rendition of a verdict.

Just what will happen during the rest of the trial remains to be seen. The judge is annoyed. Sheriff John H. Curtiss is non-committal.

Code subjects will be handled by committees headed by Morgan A. Walsh of San Francisco and Jack Miller of Chicago.

British Television Eyes Crystal Tower

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Following announcement in the House of Commons Friday that the British Government would spend some $900,000 in the next two years to place television within the reach of the public, the British Broadcasting Corp. began work yesterday to bring the project to quick realization.

Pending the choice of a site for a television station, the Crystal Palace tower may be used for the initial broadcasts in August.

The decision of Great Britain to bring television into the homes of its people will spur efforts to put the transmission of wireless pictures on a commercial basis in this country, it was indicated Saturday. It is held that a Federal subsidy may be necessary.

ENCHANTING and whimsical little orphan girls have become the new fad in movie heroines. None has been more appealing and captivating than the latest, Margaret Sullavan, who is the Luisa of "The Good Fairy." She plays the role, interpreted by Helen Hayes, when the sparkling Molnar comedy graced the stage of Broadway.

"The Good Fairy" is no sappy account of a suffering orphan who is rescued from drudgery by a kindly bachelor. It is smart, spicy comedy. The high merriment is balanced skillfully by genuine pathos and charm.

Miss Sullavan is an exquisite Luisa and her support is great. With Frank Morgan, Herbert Marshall and Reginald Owen in the principal roles no comedy need lack spirit.

"The Good Fairy" is lighter, but no less distinguished than the star's previous hits, "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now?" It proves Miss Sullavan to be as fetching a comedienne as she is an impressive dramatic actress.

Margaret Sullavan, under the expert guidance of her director-husband, William Wyler, makes the most of the role which Helen Hayes created on the stage when Gilbert Miller presented the Hungarian comedy in New York three years ago. She is charmingly ingratiating as the orphan Luisa, the little usherette whose prettiness and innocence combine to make her a potent magnet for amorous, elderly gentlemen. Miss Sullavan's versatility is demonstrated by the effective way in which she puts over the comedy. She is as sure of herself in this medium as she was in the serious, dramatic roles in "Only Yesterday" and "Little Man, What Now?"

A delightful, heart-warming comedy with an incessant ripple of laughter ruffling the charm of its surface, the new Margaret Sullavan film fixes its star even more firmly in the affections of her audience, and brings the Music Hall its most appealing entertainment since "Little Women."

The adaptation of the Molnar fantasy has been wrought to retain all the bubbling mirth of the original plus that soupcon of pathos that points the comedy so effectively. And the drama, played as it is by a quartette of Hollywood's [illegible] tops for universal film fun. And that "universal" may be spelled with a big "U," as well, in compliment to the producers.

[illegible] how things work out yo[illegible] for yourself at the Music Ha[illegible] mean "must." For "The Good Fairy" is as thoroughly enjoyable a film as the new season has brought forth. Miss Sullavan's artistry, her wistful charm, the wide range of her talent become here more apparent than even in her earlier accomplishments.

Hauptmann's Reel Arouses Wilentz Ire

Asks Withdrawal; Fox Agrees, Others Silent

Sound pictures of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's cross-examination by Attorney General Wilentz at Flemington started fireworks yesterday and resulted in the withdrawal of the Fox Movietone News clip by Truman Talley, general manager.

Other reels dodged any comment on a telegraphic demand by Wilentz that the reels be withdrawn from circulation until after a verdict has been rendered by the jury.

All the reels have been operating under an agreement at Flemington and room has been allowed for one camera with sound equipment in the courthouse balcony. In accord with

"Dictator" Opens

By PIERRE AUTRE

Paris, Feb. 1.—"The Dictator," British film, initial Toeplitz production, was received enthusiastically at its world premiere at the Ermitage here tonight. Though too slow, it is highly clever and artistic, with splendid sets, fine direction by Victor Saville and marvelous photography by Franz Planer.

The film, which Gaumont British will distribute in the United Kingdom, tells of a dictator at the Danish court in the 18th century who has done much for his country. He becomes the lover of the British-born queen. Arrested, he sacrifices himself to save her honor.

Emlyn Williams is splendid as the Danish king and Madeleine Carroll good as the queen, with Clive Brook outstanding as the dictator.

The clever dialogue is too high for the average audience. The film should be a great success with more sophisticated audiences.

2 New Booth Cost Plans Up In Washington

Conferees Hold Comment Until Study Is Made

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Submission of two new proposals for the determination of booth costs in metropolitan New York, one of which had the support of all but a single member of the NRA fact-finding committee, today indicated that the one on which the call for the Washington hearing was based would not be the plan finally approved.

Meeting with Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt and other NRA officials for a discussion of the so-called "Brandt proposal," exhibitors and operator representatives alike found that new formulæ were to be submitted and, for the most part, reserved their comment until they had been given an opportunity to study them.

As a result, it was indicated another hearing would be called in the near future, unless a way can be

BUFFALO, Feb. 1.—The application of Grenor Corp. (Jules H. Michael), operating the Regent, for day-and-date clearance with the Victoria and Jefferson (Basil Bros.) and Elmwood (Shea) theatres has been dismissed by the local clearance and zoning board.

The Victoria has seven and the Elmwood 21 days' clearance over the Regent, which, the board held, is justified. The board ruled there was no cause for action on the request for open booking of the Jefferson and Regent theatres, as it now is in effect.

Hauptmann's Reel Arouses Wilentz Ire

an understanding with Justice Trenchard pictures have been made only when the court has not actually been in session. Shortly after the start of the trial a still photographer made a picture of Mrs. Lindbergh on the stand. After a reprimand by the judge the negative was destroyed in his presence.

This week the newsreel camera was kept going while Hauptmann was on the stand. Universal and Pathe got out special two-reel subjects on it. Hearst Metrotone used a half reel. Fox Movietone and Paramount used the regular clips.

Wilentz sent the following telegram to all the reels: "In the name of the state of New Jersey and in the name of decency, it is requested that you order the immediate withdrawal of Hauptmann trial pictures taken during actual trial sessions. These sound pictures were secured by trickery and in defiance of the order of the court."

Talley wired Wilentz that he did not consider that the pictures had been taken by trickery, but would withdraw them prior to a verdict. Wilentz replied expressing appreciation.

In the meantime Edward J. Reilly, defense counsel, talked of moving for a mistrial on the ground that his client was being persecuted and judged in advance of a jury verdict on the screens of the country. It was stated that Justice Trenchard was disturbed and was considering action of some kind.

Newsreel editors' comments were hard to get.

Mike Clofine, head of Hearst Metrotone, said early last evening that his reel was out and, pending further developments, would stay out.

Late last evening Charles Ford, editor of Universal reel, said that his reel was still being shown. A meeting of editors of all the reels to be held today might have some bearing on its continuance, he said.

2 New Booth Cost Plans Up In Washington

found to handle the matter by inviting those interested to file briefs, which is considered unlikely.

One of the new proposals was submitted by Charles L. O'Reilly, president of the T. O. C. C.; the other, by C. S. Thide, representing Local 306, I. A. T. S. E.

Submitting a report on behalf of the fact-finding committee, Major L. E. Thompson, chairman, explained the difficulties which had been encountered in reaching a basis for the determination of booth costs, and that, at a final meeting before coming to Washington for the hearing, the committee voted on the Brandt proposal, splitting three to three; on the O'Reilly plan, which it approved five to one, and on an incomplete proposal by Local 306, which it opposed one to five.

The O'Reilly formula, it was explained by its sponsor, when he submitted it, is based on the point system, with run, capacity and admission price taken into consideration, the result being figured at $12 per unit. Because it had not been made available in advance of the hearing this formula was not discussed, nor was that of the union, under which the so-called "vaudeville association" houses would retain the scale in effect Aug. 23, 1933, while other houses would be rated on a point system which would give them, it was said by Thide, a cost ranging from $81 for a house seating 600 or less on a 15-cent admission to $531 for a 4,000-seat theatre on a 50-cent admission.

Union Attacks Brandt Plan

The Brandt plan, the only one available for discussion, was attacked by the union representatives as an attempt to kill the two-men-in-a-booth program, although members of the committee denied that this point had been given any consideration.

A split in the ranks of Local 306 was indicated by the appearance of Matthew M. Levy as counsel for a "progressive group" of more than a thousand members of the local, who challenged the right of the committee to submit concrete cost proposals, contending that it was created merely to ascertain certain facts.

It was the contention of the group that the formula would tend to reduce the scale of wages in some of the houses, and it was also asserted that if the 30-hour week were adopted it should be provided that operators receive the same wage as for the longer time now worked.

Without attempting to press the adoption of his proposal, Harry Brandt declared he would be satisfied with any arrangement which brought peace in the operators' pay situation. Pointing out that it was agreed even by the president of Local 306 that there was no established wage scale in New York, he said five unions were operating there in addition to others seeking to get a foothold. Very few theatres in his group have two men in a booth, he declared.

The Brandt formula was opposed also by A. H. Howell of the Century circuit of New York and John E. Connelly of Trio-Consolidated, also operating theatres in New York, who took the ground it would be contrary to the New York State Supreme Court decision in the Springer and Cocalis case.

Connelly also declared that other factors besides capacity and admission should be considered, including location, supplementary programs and type of house, and that there should be distinction between houses operated only week-ends, those operating full time and those with varying admission rates.

Members of the Empire State M. P. Operators' Union saw in the formula an attempt to force a consolidation of all unions, leaving Local 306 dominant. This, it was declared by Abraham Kindler, would be the inevitable result of a formula which definitely fixed a booth cost minimum. One union would be acceptable if there were a shortage of operators, he said, but would not work out so well under present conditions.

A plea that booth cost be disregarded and costs fixed on an individual wage basis was made by Murray Harstn, who declared that otherwise reductions would result.

actor," would have got a huge kick out of it, too. For the suit and shoes his pop was wearing were discarded by Buddy before he departed these shores to make a picture for a British firm.

free lance players through the Academy reminds us of the story of a man who gave a bad check. When faced with the fact the check was bad he replied: 'That's all right; I will give you another.'

"The producers gave free lance actors a contract through the Academy five years ago. It turned out to be a bad check in less than a year. The statement given to the press explaining the so-called new Academy contract is inaccurate. There is nothing in it to prevent producers from requiring actors to waive its terms; there is nothing to prevent a new supplemental contract; there are no means of enforcement, and the terms for free lance actors who work by the day are even worse than at present. What the producers have done is to take the guild demands and say they will grant some of them through the Academy.

"Producers think actors will be fooled into deserting the guild. It's fun to be fooled, but more fun to know.

"Five dreary years have passed with no attempt by the Academy to better actor conditions. Actors will support the only organization that has and will continue to fight for them."

Television by Government Is British Plan

early establishment of a public television service."

It is understood the recommendation will be made that the British Broadcasting Corp. be given a monopoly of the television service.

The Television Committee's report represents the detailed conclusions of a body of experts, presided over by Lord Selsdon, who paid particular attention to technical matters, as well as to public and political considerations.

There is a general belief that the committee will recommend a pool of television patents, implying a standard form of transmitter and receiver, and that the official system will employ 180 "lines" against the 30 at present used by the B. B. C.

Protests from radio and film interests against the limitation of transmitting powers to official broadcasting stations may be expected but, with radio already a government monopoly, these are hardly likely to be successful.

Two or three hours of television transmission daily are probable as a start, with films providing much of the first program material. Radio experts envisage a general extension of television broadcasts until the present "sightless" broadcasts are abolished.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Life Begins at Forty"

(Wurtzel-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—Again Will Rogers delivers rib-rocking, heart-socking entertainment, loaded with laughter touched off by the comedian's inimitable brand of Americanese, officially clinching his right to the unofficial title of "the Mark Twain of the screen."

Chuckles, giggles, belly laughs and roars tumble over one another, meeting sob, throb and thrill, limned via melodrama, hokum and romance, in a production that exudes a salt-of-the-earth flavor and emerging as gorgeous entertainment.

Rogers is a small-town editor. Adding Richard Cromwell, an ex-convict, to his staff, he clashes with Banker George Barbier. Unable to pay Barbier his mortgage, Rogers starts a new paper called Wild Cat, giving the town real journalism, confounding Barbier and arousing a climax provocation by sending hog callers into action at Barbier's political rally. The highlight of hilarity is Rogers' pistol duel with Barbier, paving the way for the establishment of Cromwell's innocence and his marriage to Rochelle Hudson.

Rogers, safely ensconced as a comedian and humorist, adds to those accomplishments an uncanny acting ability, although surrounded by the outstanding support of Slim Summerville, whittling veteran; Sterling Holloway, Miss Hudson, Roger Imhof and Barbier, one of the screen's best troupers.

Sol Wurtzel, taking the title of Walter Pitkin's book, has projected Lamar Trotti's screen play into a five-star film, authentically mounted, neatly timed with moving incidents, and primed with explosions of laughter.

George Marshall's direction elects him to that select group who know how. Horace Jackson's photography is splendid.

As grand entertainment to suffuse an audience with a sense of elation and well-being, the film should flood showmen's coffers with plenty of do-re-mi.

"Symphony of Living"

(Invincible)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 1.—While possessing some emotional appeal, story values keep this in the dual bill class. It tells of a violinist with a symphony orchestra. He is Al Shean, who has two worthless children, John Darrow and Evelyn Brent. The children live off their father until an accident injures his hand, making it impossible for him to continue playing. Then they leave him. The daughter goes off to marry into society and the son leaves the straight and narrow.

Later Shean becomes a violin teacher and eventually instructs his own grandson, Lester Lee, who develops into a prodigy. He learns Lee's identity only after the boy has made a huge success. In a court battle Lee chooses Shean as his guardian. The minor love story is carried by John Harron and Gigi Parrish. Some good production values and fine music sequences highlight the film.

Production Code Seal No. 543. Running time, 73 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Hei Tiki"

(First Division)

Produced by Alexander Markey with a native cast on the Isle of Ghosts, New Zealand, "Hei Tiki" is only mildly interesting despite a commendable simplicity and a picturesque background, excellently photographed.

The story, based on a legend of the native Tapai tribe, has to do with the love of the tribal chieftain's daughter, who has been designated to become the bride of their legendary war god, for a young warrior of an enemy tribe. The film, in preview form, appears to be too long. Judicious cutting might tend to speed the action and heighten interest, as well as eliminate several native dances by men which contribute nothing to the picture and might be found objectionable by many.

Performances of the native principals are passable. Musical accompaniments and narration by Markey are good.

No code seal. Running time, 86 minutes. "G."

Supreme Court Hears Appeal On Tri-Ergon

Para. Argument Up; Two Cases Set for Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Arguments in the first of the three so-called Tri-Ergon cases started today before the U. S. Supreme Court with the presentation of the Paramount Publix case, to be followed by the Altoona Publix and Wilmer & Vincent cases, the last two being joined. It is expected the hearings will be concluded tomorrow, the court having allowed a total of four hours for all presentations.

The case came before the court on appeal from Paramount for reconsideration of its original refusal to review the decision of the lower courts holding that William Fox, through Tri-Ergon, was the owner of important sound patents.

The argument presented to the court today was highly technical, revolving around the flywheel and other

Blacklisting Not to Apply On Film Quota

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Blacklisting of nations unfair to American goods is not expected to extend to those countries which have created quota barriers against films and other products, it was indicated today.

Having itself adopted the quota system, the government is in no position to insist upon its abandonment by other countries. Instead, it is hoped this situation may be straightened out through the reciprocal trade agreements which are in process of negotiation or will be undertaken. In the case of the treaty with Brazil which was signed Saturday, that country pledges itself not to increase import rates on films.

Zukor Informs Him He Is Through—Herzbrun On Administration

By RED KANN

In a two-minute interview with Adolph Zukor yesterday, Emanuel Cohen, vice-president in charge of production of Paramount, was informed his period of service with the organization had been terminated.

Emanuel Cohen

No word came from company sources last night as to his successor, but the understanding is Henry Herzbrun, long the company's legal representative at the studio, will handle business administration with Ernst Lubitsch, ace director, in charge of production.

In his New York apartment towering high above Central Park, Cohen personally and verbally last night told of the end of an association which began with Zukor's invitation in 1927 to join Paramount and launch Paramount News. He issued no statement, merely announced briefly and succinctly that he was finished; that he had not resigned, but had been asked to step out. In paid advertising elsewhere in this edition, Cohen expresses his thanks to his co-workers in Paramount and, as a closing "beau

Nizer Book, First On Code, Out Soon

When "New Courts of Industry: Self-Regulation Under the Motion Picture Code" appears on or about Feb. 15 bearing the imprint of the Longacre Press, Louis Nizer, its author, will have the distinction of having written what is said to be "the first scientific review of the actual workings of a code under the NRA." The book is based on the film attorney's wide experience with code cases.

The book will offer a summary of the principles involved in every code dispute, with generous reference to Code Authority decisions, each of which will be analyzed. Clearance and zoning and overbuying and other complaints will be discussed.

Code activities of the year will also be reviewed in the book, which will contain an appendix consisting of the text of the code and an analysis of the document explaining each clause in layman's terms. In addition there will be a detailed index to the text and a separate index to the code analysis and code provisions.

"New Courts of Industry" has been written with layman as well as lawyer in mind and is intended as a "guiding reference to exhibitors, producers and distributors who desire to know their rights under the code," according to the publishers.

Austin C. Keough, general counsel and vice-president of Paramount Publix and chairman of the legal committee of Code Authority, has written an introduction.

Houston Clearance Appealed by Horwitz

Will Horwitz, operating the Ritz, Houston, Tex., and Interstate Circuit of Texas yesterday appealed a decision of the Dallas clearance and zoning board which cut the clearance of the Delman, Houston, from 210 days to 75. L. M. Rice, attorney for I. B. Adelman, operator of the Delman, stated that the two theatres are not in competitive zones and that, when Horwitz bought protection, the latter provided for four theatres he planned to build. Rice also stated that the Delman charges 25 cents and has to follow theatres in the same zone charging 15 cents. John R. Maroney of Dallas represented Horwitz and Interstate.

The committee hearing the appeal consisted of Charles Casey of Casey & Wheeler circuit and William Sussman of Fox. Louis Geller appeared when the Rex appealed from a decision of the New York grievance board which found him guilty of violating the reduced admission clause in the code. Geller has the 68th St. theatre.

Although there were no appearances, the committee discussed the Dickinson, Iola, Kan., against E. Van Hyning, Uptown, same city, issue on reduced admissions.

Dubinsky Clearance For St. Joseph Cut

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—Reducing Dubinsky's first run protection over complaining subsequents in St. Joseph, Mo., the local zoning board has decided as follows:

Pictures not dated into the Crystal, Dubinsky 15-cent second run, within 30 days after close of first run engagements shall become available to subsequents not earlier than 118 days after first run. This moves the subsequents up to the Crystal's present spot.

Pictures dated into the Crystal within 30 days from first run shall become available to subsequents not sooner than 135 days.

The board did not disturb Dubinsky's Orpheum clearance of 74 days over subsequents.

On the complaint of H. F. Strowig, Abilene, Kan., against Fox Midwest theatres in Salina, Kan., the board decided that the Watson, "A" house in Salina, should continue to receive seven days' clearance over Abilene, provided pictures are played in Salina within 42 days following completion of first run in Kansas City, Mo. If the Watson fails to play within that time, then clearance over Abilene is waived.

It was further determined that the Strand, Fox "B" house in Salina, shall get no clearance over Abilene when it reduces its admission under the tariffs in the latter town. This will permit the Lyric in Abilene, at 30 cents, to play ahead of the Strand, Salina, which charges 25 cents.

The brief which was signed by a committee composed of Ralph Block, John Emerson, James Gleason, Dudley Nichols and Waldemar Young, all of them members of the writer-members of the five-five committee, stated the writing profession here has been negotiating with producers on several distinct occasions from Aug. 6, 1934, to Jan. 4 of this year, when producers declared they would not vote orally but submit a written report similar to the writers' own proposals.

The brief will be forwarded automatically to Washington by Donovan in accordance with the method adopted for the recent actors' findings.

The producers' answer to the writers' five-five brief is now in process of printing and will be forwarded to Washington shortly.

New Haven Revives Clearance Protests

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 4.—As a result of the failure of Campi to act on three clearance and zoning schedules set up by the New Haven board, several individual protests which were calculated to have been settled under the schedules have been revived for hearing by the board.

Mike Cascioli of the Park held that the 30 days' clearance taken by the Rivoli and Cameo were unjust and unprecedented, and received a unanimous determination that the Rivoli, Cameo and Park may purchase a maximum clearance of 14 days over each other.

The Rivoli, Hartford, asked for a continuance of its case against Warners' Colonial and Lyric Theatres until Feb. 12, when Joseph Shulman and Maurice Shulman will maintain that the Warner protection is unjust in view of the distances involved.

Philadelphia Vote Upon Premiums Out

Campi has unanimously voted down the premium ban in Philadelphia on the ground that it was confined to one section instead of applying to the whole territory.

Last summer a vote on premiums was taken, but was confined to southern New Jersey theatres. After the vote had been completed, it was found that one theatre was closed and another had burned to the ground. Some exhibitors and premium sponsors claimed that the 75.7 vote should be reduced to 72.5 because both houses were closed and were not qualified to vote.

Campi in throwing out the ban voted in favor of the 72.5 decision and further held that the vote, when it was taken, should not have been confined to one area, but must include the entire territory.

Six Miles Distant; Fights Bank Nights

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—Though the towns are six and a half miles apart, Walter Hohlfield, Elite, Greenleaf, Kan., has lodged a bank night complaint against Charles Swiercinsky, Majestic, Washington, Kan. The complainant asserts the theatres are in direct competition.

Frank H. Cassil is appealing the local board's determination in a bank night case that his Rialto is in direct competition with the Olive in St. Joseph, Mo. The desist order against A. B. McNabb, Gem, Neodesha, Kan., following a bank night complaint, is also appealed.

Coast Code Plea Up In Court Wednesday

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—Petition for an injunction against distributors to prevent them from shutting off film supply at the Oxnard, Oxnard, which refused to comply with a Campi order to stop giveaways is slated to be heard in the U. S. District Court on Wednesday. The Mission here complained of the practice, the complaint was upheld by the local board and Code Authority.

The U. S. district attorney here has been ordered by Washington to represent the local code board in the action.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 4.—The theory was advanced today that the fire which damaged the Carrollton on Saturday originated in the ventilating system and from there was carried to all parts of the house.

NRA Men Cited in Seattle Labor Case

SEATTLE, Feb. 4.—Three Seattle officials of the NRA have been cited to appear in Federal court here to answer a complaint filed by 20 projectionists of the John Danz Sterling circuit charging attempts to interfere with satisfactory scales of wages and working hours. An injunction is sought.

The operators charge that the NRA arranged for wage increases at a hearing here which neither employes nor employers attended and which would force the closing of seven Sterling houses, that it attempted to create labor disputes where none existed, and that it tried to induce employes to demand higher pay or strike, which they refused to do. It is also charged the NRA officials attempted to give the public a false impression that the circuit was chiseling.

The houses involved are the Roosevelt, Winter Garden, Capitol, Colonial, State, Florence and Star. The NRA states these houses are operating below the wage scale set by the code and must give up their blue eagles even though wages and hours were agreed upon through collective bargaining between Danz and the employes.

The defendants are James Bradford, State NRA compliance director; R. D. Horning, State labor compliance officer, and Charles Dennis, U.S. attorney.

The production committee yesterday decided to shift the selection of personnel on the committee to hear the C. C. Burr complaint against Larry Darmour in connection with Ben Maynard's contract to the coast office.

Grainger Returning To Launch "U" Drive

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—With Universal's release schedule definitely set up to June and everything at the studio working smoothly, James R. Grainger, general sales manager, left for New York last night to launch a selling drive. He will return here in April for conferences on new season product.

geste," thanks exhibitors for "their renewed conndence in Paramount pictures."

The development came swiftly on the heels of the exclusive Hollywood dispatch in this publication yesterday morning pointing out that the deposed executive had been summoned hurriedly and unexpectedly to New York by the new board of directors where word awaited him that his place was to be filled.

In only one slight detail was that report erroneous. It was not the board that Cohen faced, as reported, but Zukor to whom had been given the job of informing Cohen that he was finished.

Reticent on Future Plans

Of his plans, Cohen was reticent last night. He created the impression he had an idea of what he proposed doing. Beyond stating he would remain in New York for four or five more days and then return to Hollywood, he was silent.

In the meantime, the cleavage is sharp and complete. When Cohen again reaches the coast, he will return to the studio, not to break anyone in or to confer on pictures, current or in work, but to pack his personal belongings and arrange for a hat rack elsewhere.

The development which came to a climax yesterday and last night has been brewing for six or more months. Reports have been shuttling back and forth between New York and Hollywood that Cohen who, at one time, had been valiantly supported by Adolph Zukor and George J. Schaefer no longer had their approbation entered on his side of the ledger. It has been common rumor, gaining constantly in volume and strength in the last few weeks, that the die had been cast against him.

Last night in the quiet of his apartment, Cohen created the impression, not that he was happy about the split, but somewhat glad that what he either sensed or knew had been impending, had finally broken in the open.

Sees No Apologies Due

It is known that he regards his record with the company as standing on its own and that no apologies are due in any quarter for his production accomplishments since he was given complete charge of the studio in the summer of 1932. His friends vouchsafe for him that Paramount's output in the last season, in particular, is better than it has been for some time. They add in the same breath that Cohen's management has been responsible. They point out further that he occupied the driver's seat in Hollywood throughout the company's bankruptcy and under circumstances of themselves not easy to combat.

Cohen, who in addition to being vice-president in charge of production, was also a director of the corporation until December, came to Paramount as editor of the company's newsreel and in charge of its short subject production, in 1927. Prior to that he had been associated with Pathe News since 1914, serving as associate editor of the newsreel, and from 1915 to 1926 as editor of both the reel and of Pathe Review, and director of short subject production.

His entry into the company was coincident with the organization of the company's newsreel. As a condition of his transfer he insisted upon having his own building and laboratory and complete freedom in following his own ideas in developing the reel. When Jesse L. Lasky was asked to take a three months' leave of absence as production head of Paramount on April 26, 1932, Cohen was sent to the coast to assume Lasky's duties. On June 16, 1932, he was formally given the title of vice-president in charge of production. The following day B. P. Schulberg resigned as executive producer giving Cohen full sway over the studio.

A counter authority threatened for a time in the appearance at the studio of Sam Katz on June 1, and was not removed until Oct. 28, when Katz resigned as vice-president of Paramount in charge of theatre operation. Katz had been giving increasing attention to production during the interim and appeared inclined to spend the greater part of his time at the studios. In the days of declining business following 1929, however, Cohen, more and more, was turned to for advice by Zukor, who continually gave his support to Cohen in crucial times during the early days of the company's bankruptcy.

Skourasiana

Morris Kutinsky tells one on George Skouras:

Last week he was called into Skouras' office for a reduction of rent on a number of houses Kutinsky owns and the latter operates under a Fox Met deal. Said Kutinsky: "The first year you asked and got a rent reduction. The second year you complained of losing money again and I gave you another slice. The third year you bitterly complained of heavy losses and you got another cut.

"If you're losing so much money, why don't you drop the houses and I'll take them back?"

Skouras retorted: "Well, if I do that how am I going to make a living?"

Marines for Opening

Headed by Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., commandant at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, a contingent of Marines will be present at the opening of "Devil Dogs of the Air," at the Strand tomorrow night.

Commander B. Ware, aide-de-camp; Captain Collins, Col. G. M. Kincade of the Marine Corps, Capt. L. W. Hesselman and Lieutenant-Commander L. J. Wiltse are also expected.

A color guard will be stationed in front of the house all evening and the Naval Militia Band will play.

Lombard Opposite Crosby

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Carole Lombard has drawn the top spot with Bing Crosby in Paramount's "Sailor Beware."

Wolfson Would Keep Freedom of Appeal

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 4.—The right of appeal from decisions of local boards should remain unrestricted, declared Fred J. Wolfson, attorney and impartial member of the Kansas City grievance board, when replying to the Campi questionnaire on code boards' activity and procedure which was sent to all Government representatives.

Answering the question, "How can appeals to Code Authority be reduced in number without unfairness to any complainant or respondent?" Wolfson wrote:

"In my opinion, appeals might be reduced if the local board would sit more often as an Industrial Adjustment Agency and thus serve in only an advisory capacity. This, I believe, would probably enable the interested parties to arrive at a satisfactory adjustment of their own differences, at least in many instances. On the other hand, I am not at all certain that any other method should be employed to reduce the appeals, as I feel that the power of appeal should be granted in every instance where it is desired, as the parties are thereby made to feel that the decision is not tempered by any local conditions."

Replying to another query, Wolfson said: "In my opinion, the members of our local board are exceedingly sincere in their determinations, and it is my impression that each individual member of our board never allows himself to be swayed by the group he represents."

Cleveland Clearance Up to the Exchanges

CLEVELAND, Feb. 4.—The protection agreement which expired Dec. 31 was an exhibitor document. It was drafted by exhibitors, signed by exhibitors and policed by exhibitors. Violations are reported to the exchanges by exhibitors, each protecting his own theatre, and it was generally understood that it was not the duty of the exchanges to see that the provisions of the agreement were carried out.

Now that is all changed. With the expiration of the agreement, the exhibitors no longer watch each other for violations and it has devolved upon the exchanges, in order to protect their first run accounts, to see that pictures are booked according to the availability dates to each theatre in accordance with the classifications as set up in the agreement.

First run accounts were sold with protection in accordance with the Cleveland agreement and now the local distributors are protecting those accounts by maintaining the terms of the agreement subsequent to its expiration and by taking over from the exhibitors the job of checking the subsequent run availability dates.

M-G-M Testing Use Of a New Developer

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—A new devoloping process, designed to eliminate "chemical flicker" from talking pictures has just been perfected by M-G-M engineers, according to the studio. Process consists of bombarding the film with minute particles of chemicals as it goes through the laboratory. Increased brilliance, lessening eye strain, and improved quality of sound, particularly music, are claimed.

become a reality, but is merely under consideration, the idea being to retaliate for discriminations against American products by countries which do not enter into trade agreements with this nation. This would be done by confining to treaty countries the concessions which are granted under the agreements.

It would be possible, thus, to penalize France for restrictions on American films by providing that she shall not benefit by import concessions made to other European countries. Such action, however, might be made dependent upon France's action with respect to entering into a trade agreement.

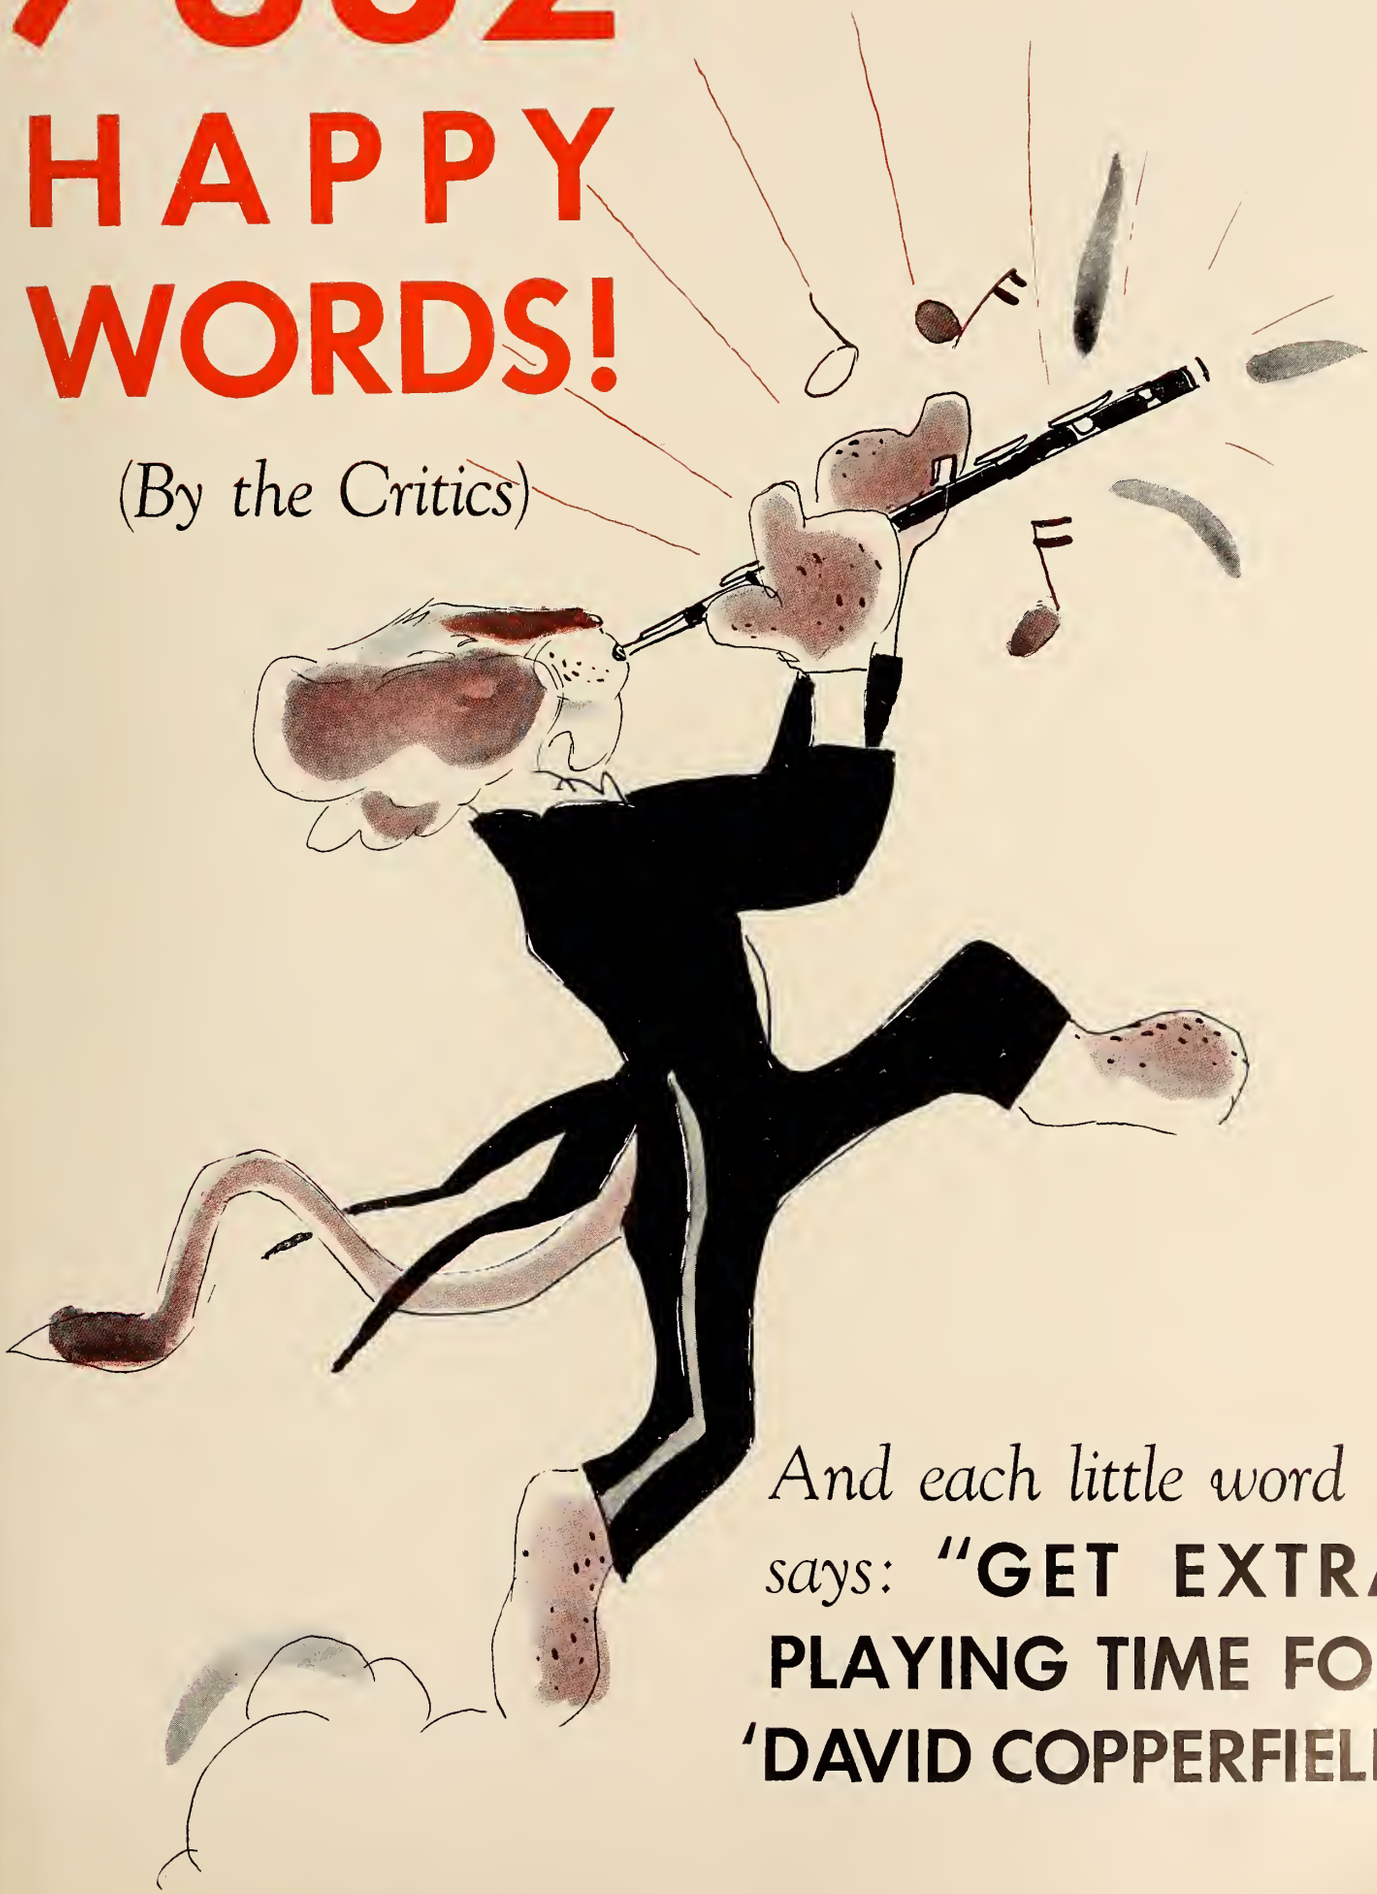
Two Sabbath Bills Up in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Feb. 4.—Two new Sunday opening bills have just made their appearance in the Pennsylvania Legislature. Each proposes a compulsary referendum at the next general election.

A measure introduced by Senator Max Aron of Philadelphia proposes that each municipality vote on whether to permit movies after 2 P.M. on Sundays, such action to be binding upon the authorities. The bill provides that after 1935 the will of the electors may be ascertained again by referendum when at least five per cent. of the voters in the party winning the previous election shall petition for it. No such referendum may be held more than once in three years. The bill was referred to the Committee on Law and Order.

A similar measure was introduced in the House by Assemblyman Louis Schwartz of Philadelphia. The Schwartz measure, however, would allow a second referendum to be taken in a municipality not oftener than once in 10 years. It was referred to the Committee on Elections.

Missouri Bill Aims To Stop Giveaways



JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 4.—Giveaways are hit in a bill just presented to the Legislature by Representative Frank F. Catron of Lexington, Mo. Prizes involving the possession of a certain ticket would be punishable by fines of from $100 to $1,000.

There are now pending before the General Assembly a three per cent, two per cent and one per cent sales tax bills and also the Lindhorst bill to impose a 10 per cent tax on film shows, other amusements and a few other selected industries to provide funds for an old-age pension plan.

A special hearing has been held to give opponents of the sales tax measures an opportunity to be heard. Business men from all parts of the state were on hand to express their disapproval of any increase. The legislators were told that if the present one-half of one per cent tax bill is rigidly enforced in all parts of the state there would be no necessity for seeking additional taxes.

By ANDRE SENNWALD.

"I have in my heart of hearts," said Dickens, "a favorite child and his name is David Copperfield." The classic story of David's triumphs and sorrows, and of the amazing people who were his friends and enemies, has been made into a gorgeous photoplay which encompasses the rich and kindly humanity of the original so brilliantly that it becomes a screen masterpiece in its own right. The immortal people of "David Copperfield," of whom G. K. Chesterton has said they are more actual than the man who made them, troop across the Capitol's screen like animated duplicates of the famous Phiz drawings, an irresistible and enormously heartwarming procession. It is my belief that this cinema edition of "David Copperfield" is the most profoundly satisfying screen manipulation of a great novel that the camera has ever given us.

Therein you will discover all the superb caricatures of blessed memory, led by a manly and heartbreaking David who is drawn to the life in the person of Master Freddie Bartholomew. Here are all the old scenes of David's adventures, Blunderstone and Yarmouth, Dover and Canterbury and London. Here are Peggotty, with no shape at all, and Aunt Betsey Trotwood, who expressed both her hatreds and her affections in the furioso manner, and poor Mr. Dick, who couldn't keep King Charles's head out of his writings, and bluff Dan Peggotty, who owned the heart of a child, and Barkis, who was willin', and Uriah Heep, who was 'umble, and dear Little Em'ly, and the terrible Mr. Murdstone, and all the rest.

Lord bless us, and Micawber, the inconquerable Micawber, who inhabited a world of creditors and squashy souls, but sent his spirit soaring among the stars. Being himself pretty generally a spiritual descendant of Mr. Micawber, W. C. Fields manages with the greatest of ease to become one with his illustrious predecessor according to the directions laid down in the text of Dickens and the drawing of Phiz. The Fields Micawber is, as it ought to be, the one performance that is able to remain predominant among such splendors of character acting as Lennox Pawle's Mr. Dick, Edna May Oliver's Aunt Betsey, Roland Young's Uriah Heep, Lionel Barrymore's Dan Peggotty and both Master Bartholomew as David the boy and Frank Lawton as David the man. Being himself touched by madness and genius, Mr. Fields is similarly the only player in a notable cast who has the audacity to contribute anything of himself to these incredibly real people of Dickens. But when you have heard him in his lofty rhetorical flights, heard him in the speech that begins: "You perceive before you the shattered fragments of a temple that was once called man"; heard him say: "With renewed courage I again throw down the gauntlet to society," you will perhaps understand that Mr. Fields can do no wrong.

Naturally, it is the magnificent Micawber, the indigent aristocrat, the tool of circumstance, who dominates that most splendid scene in which the sniveling Uriah is brought to account for his treacherous conduct toward Mr. Wickfield. Striking his regal pose, with the verminous Uriah quaking before him, and the victims of Uriah's cupidity at his back, he declaims that memorable declaration of independence which begins: "In denouncing the most consummate villain that has ever existed, I ask no consideration for myself. I have been myself enmeshed in this villain's machinations. * * * I declare that Heep, and Heep only, of the firm of Wickfield & Heep, is the forger and the cheat!" Only a little below it in heroic stature place that other scene of liberation in which Aunt Betsey Trotwood tells the evil Murdstones exactly what she thinks of the way they behaved toward poor David.

Although it is a film of enormous length, according to screen standards—two hours and ten minutes—Hugh Walpole's screen play has been arranged with such uncanny correctness, and each of the myriad episodes which go into the making of the varied canvas has been performed so perfectly, that the photoplay slips by in an unwearying cavalcade. It is astonishing to discover how very much of the novel has found its way to the screen. Some of it has been telescoped for brevity, some of it has been omitted out of sheer painful necessity, but the total impression is one of amazing completeness and accuracy. Pausing only once or twice for the briefest of subtitles, the work flows on its invincibly entertaining way from beginning to end.

Like Dickens himself, it is able to invest each character in this complex story with such a completeness of personality that none is too minor to take his place in the unforgettable gallery. Certainly it is in the great narrative tradition of the cinema. A new year which has already been enriched by several distinguished photoplays now adds a genuine masterpiece to its record with "David Copperfield."

The screen adaptation of "David Copperfield" is that miracle of motion pictures; a drama that should satisfy the most literal-minded of the Dickens fans, the advocates of first-rate photoplays and the devotees of cinema wholesomeness at the same time. A film that runs for more than two hours without causing you to squirm in your seat unhappily, it seems so right in its atmosphere, characterization and story-treatment and so intelligent in its dramatization that it becomes a warm and comforting delight. Of course, it does a bit of plot telescoping here and there, and occasionally omits a fairly minor character, but on the whole it is not only so faithful but so intelligent in its fidelity that it can be recommended with heartiness, admiration and loud cheering. If you are a Dickens enthusiast, you should be a set-up for the new film at the Capitol, and it is my guess that you will enjoy it almost equally even if you are not one of the addicts.

It would be pretty much a waste of your time and mine to attempt to remind you of the plot of "David Copperfield." It should be enough to say that it begins with the arrival of the eccentric Aunt Betsey at the Copperfield home upon the eve of David's birth and ends when the grown David finally gets around to marrying the faithful and slightly dull Agnes. At this point, I might just as well confess that I am an ardent partisan of Dora, the sweet little half-wit who was David's child wife, and add that I have never quite forgiven him for marrying again after her death. Anyway, there is neither reason nor room here for doing anything in the way of criticism of novel or picture, when all of the space should be devoted to hymns of enthusiasm for the casting and the playing of all the rich, famous and slightly caricatured roles of a really immortal work.

The fear sometimes strikes me that in my old age I am beginning to weaken in my feud with child actors. Certainly Freddy Bartholomew, a handsome and sensitive-looking English boy, is beautifully moving as David in his younger days, playing the part in a manner approaching perfection. Then, too, as a surprising feat of casting, he is succeeded by a man who looks as if he might be a grown-up edition of him when Frank Lawton follows in the part of the man-sized David. It should not be necessary to add that W. C. Fields is a superb Micawber, reminding us again that he is not only the funniest of living men but a thoroughly fine actor as well. Roland Young smirks and cringes in properly sinister fashion as the evil hypocrite, Uriah Heep, while Lionel Barrymore as the loyal old sailor, Dan Peggotty; Edna May Oliver, as the eccentric Aunt, and Jessie Ralph as the faithful nurse are just as Dickens must have meant. Maureen O'Sullivan is lovely and moving as the prettily helpless Dora, leaving her rival, Agnes, as much in the background as Dickens unintentionally left her. Madge Evans is a realistic Agnes.

The lesser roles are equally successful in their handling. I would recommend particulary Lennox Pawle as the amiable madman, Mr. Dick, although Elizabeth Allan, a gentle and touching Mrs. Copperfield, and Hugh Williams, a dashing and faithless Steerforth, are especially good. Basil Rathbone and Violet Kemble-Cooper are the evil Murdstones to the life, while the pretty Florine McKinney, as the unfortunate Emily; Lewis Stone, as the alcoholic Mr. Wickfield, and John Buckler, as the valiant Ham Peggoty, are excellent. So, for that matter, is Hugh Walpole, who plays the vicar, in addition to writing the adaptation in such brilliant fashion as to make the new film a thoroughgoing treat.

OBVIOUSLY, it was a formidable task to make a satisfying film version of a book so well-known and universally dear as "David Copperfield." Metro has done it. From its tender and beautiful adaptation by Hugh Walpole, to the most inconsequential detail, "David Copperfield" is a fine, important. beautiful production.

Actors were drafted from every film company to play the familiar roles. The large cast is truly all-star. The boy, Freddie Bartholomew, who plays Davey as a child, and Frank Lawton, who plays the David grown, give flawless performances.

THEIR SUPPORT includes such stars as W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Roland Young. Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton) plays Clickett. With Elizabeth Allan as Mrs. Copperfield, Maureen O'Sullivan as Dora, Madge Evans as Agnes, the charming feminine roles are in competent and graceful hands.

STUNNING SETTINGS vividly recreate the familiar old English scenes. A delightful musical score by Herbert Stothart interprets the moods of the situations.

There is vast pathos in the play, tender romance, and great humor. Mr. Cukor, who directted "Little Women,," gave "David Copperfield" the same sensitive and reverent treatment.

THE STORY OF DAVID, best known and best beloved of the Dickensian characters, needs no repetition. All who love it may fearlessly approach the movie, for it does no violence to the immortal book.

It is a wholly fine, beautiful, touching and impressive picture. Don't miss it.

Charles Dickens may or may not be destined for literary immortality, but thanks to all those who have at hand in bringing "David Copperfield" to the screen of the Capitol Theatre, the Briton who peopled his books with so many quaint characters will at least survive a century. For in "David Copperfield", a new generation will meet the folk who delighted their fathers and their grandfathers as Mr. Micawber, Nurse Peggotty, Mrs. Gummidge, Uriah Heep, Betsey Trotwood, Steerforth, Barkis and the rest leap to life from the yellowed pages of the author's heavy tome as warm and human and vivid as they were in 1850.

Considering the involved character of the autobiographical novel, its multiplicity of interwoven incident, and the numbers of important, strongly limned individuals that populated its paragraphs, a stupendous task faced both adaptors and director. What to include? What eliminate? Could Barkis be disposed of? Or Little Em'ly? Or even Mr. Dick? A thousand voices would shout sacrilege in the name of Dickens! So they're all there, the old familiar faces, and if more briefly than originally conceived, at least effectively. Indeed, it might be wished that Director Cukor had been a bit less faithful, a little ruthless in slashing here and there, for the film's one fault is its monstrous length.

In any event, Mr. Micawber waits hours for something to turn up. Unless cuts are made, we fear the introduction of the movie masses to the classics will prove tedious. Yet, not a scene from the first half of the film may be ommitted, for here true, full flavor predominates. Later, however, and against formula, perhaps, there is room for the blue-pencil in the love story of David and the futile Dora. And in other spots precious moments may be saved. It is presumptuous to delineate the plot of "David Copperfield," but be it known that it follows the career of that Dickens favorite from prenatality to marriage, indeed second marriage, which in itself is something, inasmuch as life in the movies seems to end at the altar, or en route to the aisle down which no bachelor returns. The early struggles of the little orphan against the brutalities of a flinty stepfather, his ultimate exile to London, his flight to Aunt Betsey at Dover are gloriously portrayed. And when we leave the David of Freddie Bartholomew to greet the maturer youth in Frank Lawton, the romances of Dora and Agnes, the tragedy of Steerforth, the villainy of Heep, are all encountered.

Truly, each characterization is a cameo. The simile may be trite, but this time it has the virtue of being true. To list the laurels would be to mention each of the thirty troupers, so we'll compromise by naming small Freddie Bartholomew as the bright, particular star of the piece and letting the chips of approbation fall where they may.

George Cukor's direction is inspired with the ability to perpetuate the Dickens tradition. He captures the letter and the spirit of the time and the characters and the indefinable atmosphere without which the fable must have languished. A bow, as well, in the direction of Howard Estabrook in recognition of the genius evidenced in the screen play. We wish "David Copperfield" all the popular approval it so richly merits as a courageous effort and a noble accomplishment.

'DAVID COPPERFIELD'

Dickens Novel Pictured Faithfully by Galaxy Of Screen Stars

N.Y. EVE. JOURNAL

By ROSE PELSWICK.

M-G-M has made a beautiful picture of "David Copperfield." In bringing the Dickens novel to the screen, Director George Cukor and writers Hugh Walpole and Howard Estabrook have handled their assignments with skill and charm and reverence.

ROSE PELSWICK.

The entire production breathes of a meticulous attention to detail, from the exquisite sets that reproduce scenes made famous by the book, to the large and able group of players who, in several instances, look as though they might have stepped out of a Cruickshank illustration.

Most of us read Dickens when we were young and formed lasting mental images of the characters that peopled his pages. So, in commenting on the film, there is no saying that this or that portrait is perfect. After all, each person who comes to the Capitol Theatre this week comes there with preconceived ideas.

This column, for instance, couldn't quite see Roland Young, despite his excellent performance, as Uriah Heep; two equally enthusiastic and reminiscent spectators, however, insisted that Mr. Young was just as they had always imagined Uriah Heep to be. Each member of the audience is bound to judge the screen characterizations by his or her own personal and indelible impressions.

Chosen with Care

The cast that M-G-M assembled was chosen with great care and understanding. In the role of David as a child is Freddie Bartholomew, an engaging English youngster who brings both intelligence and feeling to an exacting part. The sensitive David grown up is marvelously well played by Frank Lawton.

W. C. Fields, with the Fields' hat slipping trick, is the hopeful Micawber. Basil Rathbone is the villainous Mr. Murdstone of shuddery memory. Elizabeth Allen, utterly enchanting in the costumes of the period, is David's lovely and helpless mother. And there are Edna May Oliver as the tyrannical Aunt Betsy Trotwood; Lionel Barrymore as the hearty Dan Peggotty; Maureen O'Sullivan as David's child wife; Madge Evans as the faithful Agnes And Violet Kemble-Cooper, who couldn't be improved upon as Mr. Murdstone's harsh sister; Jessie Ralph, heart-warming as David's devoted nurse; Jean Cadell as the long-suffering Mrs. Micawber; Una O'Connor as the wailing and lone Mrs. Gummidge; Lennox Pawle, a magnificent caricature of the gently mad Mr. Dick, and Lewis Stone as the kindly Mr. Wickfield who is robbed by Roland Young's Uriah Heep.

Faithful to Novel

It's a sincere and affecting picture, and if it runs a bit too long—something over two hours—it's because the director and scenarists tried to incorporate as many of the incidents in the book as possible. It follows the novel faithfully and frequently in episodic manner, depicts young David's happiness with his mother; the heartbreak and misery caused by his cruel stepfather; the boy's apprenticeship in the London bottling works and his friendship with the Micawbers; his flight to Dover where aunt Betsy lived and Mr. Dick flew his kite; his school days in Canterbury; his entry into London to become a writer and his hero-worship for the dashing Steerforth who was later to become responsible for Little Emily's suicide; his marriage to the extravagant and impractical Dora, and finally his return to Agnes.

Mr. Cukor tells his story with the same sympathy and appreciative sentiment that distinguished his direction of "Little Women." The backgrounds, costumes and photography are superb, and much credit goes to those who undertook the difficult task of translating Dickens, whose genius was words, into an entirely alien medium. You'll find the cinematic "David Copperfield" an important and outstanding production.

All the important characters in Charles Dickens' immortal "David Copperfield" are now living on the Capitol screen, where the highlights of the widely read novel are to be seen in a tender, amusing and oft heart-rending screen version.

In order to get in enough material on the many masterfully-drawn characters of the book to make each one of them recognizable and as much a part of the warp and woof of the pictures as they were of Dickens' book, the adaptor, Hugh Walpole, the scenarist, Howard Estabrook and the director, George Cukor, had to make this an unusually long film. It runs, as it stands now, two hours and ten minutes.

That is much too long for an ordinary picture, but in the case of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "David Copperfield" that length is justified by the results. There are several scenes that might have been shortened without injuring the story, but on the whole, the tale of David's joys and tribulations is absorbing enough to keep one intent on the film throughout.

One has to see the picture to appreciate the great and loving care that went into the production. The players selected for the various characters, with the possible exception of Roland Young as Uriah Heep, are as nearly perfect as a Dickens' fan could wish.

Little Freddie Bartholomew, who plays the child David, is an ideal selection and a real film find. He is destined for fame and may now be classed with the other important child players of the screen. He enters into the character of the young David so thoroughly that he makes the audience laugh with him at his joy in his mother's gay spirits and his interest in his beloved nurse's affair of the heart with the terse but friendly Barkis, and weep with him at his mother's untimely death and shudder at the cruel treatment he receives from his stern step-father, and delight in his friendship for the dignified Micawber and cheer when his eccentric aunt, Betsy Trotwood, takes him in to live with her and the smiling and simple Mr. Dick.

Frank Lawton, as the older David, gives a truly fine performance, as we see him meeting the flighty Dora for the first time and taking his friend Steerforth to visit the Peggottys. His friendship for Agnes and Mr. Wickfield is touched upon and his uncovering of the deceitful Heep's crooked work is one of the most exciting scenes in the picture. We are given a glimpse of the topsy-turvy household which Dora keeps for him after his marriage and the film ends on his reunion with Agnes after Dora's death.

Jessie Ralph is tender and loving as Peggotty. W. C. Fields' selection as Micawber was an inspiration on the part of the producers. Edna Mae Oliver's Aunt Betsy is one of the outstanding characterizations of the film, and Maureen O'Sullivan, as Dora, Madge Evans as Agnes and Elizabeth Allan as David's mother give satisfaction in their various roles. Basil Rathbone is excellent as the hard-hearted Murdstone and Violet Kemble-Cooper, thoroughly disguised in a black wig and heavy dark brows, makes an impression with her stiff-backed Jane Murdstone.

Lionel Barrymore's Dan'l is well done and Jean Cadell as Mrs. Micawber, Hugh Williams as the treacherous Steerforth, Lewis Stone as Wickfield, Una O'Connor as Mrs. Gummidge and Lennox Pawle in the role of Mr. Dick help to make the picture a memorable screen event. Roland Young reads his part competently, but he fails to suggest the evil, leering Uriah that lived in the pages of the book.

The photography is of a high order and the entire production has been carefully mounted and given the proper Dickensian atmosphere.

PARDON THE INTERRUPTION
please!

—we've got to halt the flow of critical adjectives for a moment to tell you that "David Copperfield" is just the start of M-G-M's 1935 parade of hits. For instance:

"SEQUOIA," pronounced See-quo-yah, and already pronounced the unique exploitation success of the year. Held over second week, Seattle! Going strong everywhere.

WALLACE BEERY'S happiest rough-and-ready role in "West Point of the Air" positively another "Hell Divers" at the box-office!

HELEN HAYES and ROBERT MONTGOMERY thrillingly romantic in "Vanessa: Her Love Story."

JEAN HARLOW, WILLIAM POWELL top the all-star musical melodrama, "Reckless." Advance tip-off from the Coast predicts one of the year's BIGGEST!

CLARK GABLE, your top male audience draw, is a charming woman-tamer, co-starring with CONSTANCE BENNETT in "After Office Hours." Made for the millions!

JEANETTE MacDONALD and operatic favorite NELSON EDDY in Victor Herbert's glorious musical hit, "Naughty Marietta"—but nice!

—and, of course, "FORSAKING ALL OTHERS" is still in the headlines with Crawford, Gable, Montgomery getting the huzzahs! And watch for "THE WINNING TICKET," the howling sweepstakes comedy, and "SOCIETY DOCTOR," successor to "Men in White," and more Roars from Leo to come!

and so we go merrily on...

The New Talkies

'David Copperfield,' a Rich and Delightful Picture—

By EILEEN CREELMAN.

The movies have again achieved the impossible. It must have seemed impossible at first to compress into the neat reels of talkie entertainment the verbose descriptions, meandering plots and colorful characters of a Dickens masterpiece. With courage and determination Hollywood tackled first the most beloved and perhaps greatest of them all, "David Cooperfield." Through one of southern California's minor miracles this arrived yesterday at the Capitol Theater with none of the full, rich Dickens flavor lost in the filming.

"David Copperfield," for an ordinary picture, is unusually long, running well over two hours, and a crowded, fragrant two hours they are. For a Dickens novel, this is incredibly short. There was so much to tell, so many familiar people to present. A smooth and workmanlike script, by Hugh Walpole and Howard Estabrook, who deserve a prize or two for their job, has gotten in everything.

Perhaps it isn't everything. David's school days had to be omitted and some of the thousand other details. But the important things are here, the personality of Dickens himself as well as that of his David, Aunt Betsy Trotwood, Peggotty, Dora, Agnes and the rest of them. The charm is here, the vitality and the sense of living. This is a fine picture.

It was months in the making, with Director Cukor scanning England as well as America for the perfect cast. He seems to have gotten it, with ten-year-old Freddie Bartholomew of England carrying off top honors as the frightened, earnest, good little David. A handsome curly-headed boy, he has the quaint appearance and sensitive face of a Dickens child. His performance is a real delight.

The cast is studded with electric light names, each popping up here or there for a brief vivid moment. There are the three young women, Elizabeth Allan as the gentle Mrs. Copperfield, Maureen O'Sullivan as David's gay, silly child-wife, Madge Evans as the tender, understanding Agnes. They wear their picturesque gowns deliciously and enter gracefully into the spirit of a Dickens background.

Edna May Oliver, at her best and the picture's best, too, is Aunt Betsey, a lovable hurricane of a woman. Frank Lawton, quiet and serious, is likable as the grown-up David. Roland Young tries a serious character role, the slimy Uriah Heep, and makes himself properly sinister and detestable. W. C. Fields's Mr. Micawber is amusing, if perhaps a little less flamboyant than the Dickens character, a little more Fields and less Micawber. Lionel Barrymore's Dan Peggotty is also very much of a Barrymore performance, and one occupying more space than it warranted.

Even the lesser characters have been assigned to such capable persons as Elsa Lanchester (Mrs. Charles Laughton), who plays Clickett, the Micawber slavey; Lennox Pawle as the affably lunatic Mr. Dick, Basil Rathbone, suave and dangerous as Mr. Murdstone; Violet Kemble-Cooper as his sister, Jessie Ralph as Peggotty, Herbert Mundin as Barkis, Hugh Williams as Steerforth, Una O'Connor as Mrs. Gummidge and Mr. Walpole himself as the vicar. They have all, under Mr. Cukor's sympathetic direction, refrained from any hint of caricature.

This "David Copperfield" is a rich treat, even to lovers of Dickens. It is one of the season's true delights.

A stage presentation featuring Radaelli, Patricia Bowman, Doris Daniels, the Capitol Singing Ensemble and the ballet corps supplements the picture.

Drive-In Theatre's Sound Stirs Protest

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—An ordinance regulating the sound emanating from drive-in theatres is now before the City Council for adoption.

The ordinance was presented after many complaints had been filed from neighbors in the vicinity of the Los Angeles Drive-in Theatre, who claimed that the sound extended as far as a mile from the screen. The new bill would confine the sound to 50 feet from the reproduction point.

Preacher Made Censor

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Out of the blue has come the appointment of a veteran preacher, Rev. Dr. Robert Milliken, as film censor for the Province of Saskatchewan. Dr. Milliken, minister of St. James' United Church, Ottawa, will be the sole arbiter for that province and will make his headquarters in Winnipeg where he will sit in with the Manitoba censors.

This cooperative arrangement between the provinces makes it unnecessary for distributors to operate extra branch offices in Regina.

union steward, on the outer drive at 23rd St. Quinn was injured slightly.

It was the vivid climax of a career surrounded by killings.

Since he organized the union in 1917 he had been in many legal skirmishes, but had always managed to evade conviction. He had been arrested three times for questioning in connection with slayings, had been held under suspicion of beatings, sluggings; his union associates have often been charged with extortion, bombing and threats. At one time he seemed on the verge of closing all of Chicago's theatres.

Recently the Federal government began to make life uncomfortable for him by securing an indictment on a charge of failing to pay $61,000 on an alleged income of $350,000. He was out on bail today when an automobile load of gunmen pulled alongside his car and began spattering bullets in his direction. They escaped.

N. S. S. Hits on New Trailer Arrangement

National Screen Service is turning to production talent for a new type of special trailer on M-G-M and Warner releases made necessary by decision of those two majors to make and sell their own service. They're good.

Five of the new brand were shown yesterday noon, subjects being "Black Fury" and "Devil Dogs of the Air" on the Warner list and "The Night Is Young," "Sequoia" and "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" on the Metro list.

Since actual production clips are not available in these two cases, N. S. S. is building action stuff around the distributor's releases. Fred Kohler occupies feature spot in the trailer on "Black Fury." The slight story thread has him addressing the tycoons of a fictitious mine and urging them to learn conditions for themselves as portrayed by Paul Muni in "Black Fury." The spiel permits Kohler to get in the usual plug for the attraction. Featured in the "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" trailer is Thelma Todd; Herman Bing and Charles Judels in the subject matter on "The Night Is Young"; Pat Flaherty and Warren Hymer on "Devil Dogs," and Charles B. Murphy, the animal trainer, on "Sequoia."

The idea is novel, the treatment fresh and the conclusion easily apparent that the scheme runs far ahead of the usual trailer idea, including the average affair turned out by N. S. S. K.

Interstate Planning Four New Theatres

Interstate Circuit of Texas plans four new theatres in Houston, John B. Maroney, attorney, stated yesterday. One will be a downtown second run while the other three will be second run neighborhood units. The circuit now has three first runs in the downtown area and Horwitz-Texas Theatre Co., of which Interstate owns a 50 per cent interest, operates a trio of second runs in the same town, he said.

Within the next three months, Interstate expects to complete a 1,200-seat Hyland Park Spanish Village theatre in Dallas. This will make eight for the company in that city.

The Chief at Albuquerque, a 1,000-seat house, completed some time ago, makes four for the circuit in that city. A new 1,000-seat structure is planned for Denton, Tex. Blue prints are being drawn.

Under recent reorganization plans Texas Consolidated, which took over the Dent-Paschall theatres, continues to operate the smaller houses, while Interstate, which acquired units of the former Southern Enterprises and Hoblitzelle-Richards, will confine its operations to the larger houses.

will leave Wednesday. Frank L. Newman, head of Evergreen States, former F. W. C. division in the northwest, and his partner, Al. Finkelstein, are expected here shortly to make the trip east for conferences on details.

Under the formal court approval put into effect by Referee S. W. McNabb, National Theatres Corp. will take over Wesco Corp., holding company for Fox West Coast Theatres, and Fox Fest Theatres will become Fox West Coast Theatres Corp. Wesco was never in bankruptcy, but was reorganized by Fox Film and Chase National Bank to get a fresh start under a new name and to take over the F. W. C. assets. F. W. C. creditors get 100 cents on the dollar. Some lawyers here say this is the largest bankrupt estate ever to be reorganized on the basis of full payment.

Complete records of all the transactions of the bankrupt estate must be assembled into a bound volume as one of the final phases of the transfer. This is expected to take three months.

New Complications Arise

Some weeks ago the bankruptcy discharge was delayed by anti-trust suits filed by the Marshall Square Theatres Corp. of San Francisco and Harry L. Hartman of the Orpheum, San Diego. These cases were settled out of court, but new complications developed when Jules Goldstone, attorney in the two cases just settled, filed new anti-trust actions last Saturday in behalf of H. L. Gumbiner. The sale was approved before the papers could be served. A clause in the sale provides that the new company shall take over the obligations of the old. This will apply in case Gumbiner wins a verdict against the old company.

Attorneys for National Theatres say the suits cannot interfere with the sale, as they have 20 days in which to reply.

The bankruptcy now terminated began with a receivership on Feb. 27, 1933, before Judge James in U. S. District Court. Charles Skouras and John Treanor were named co-receivers.

The company listed liabilities of $13,000,000, with $2,000,000 owed to Fox Film Corp. The co-receivers were said at the time to have represented 75 per cent of the creditors, including Wesco Corp. They operated the houses until April 4, 1933, when Charles Skouras, W. H. Moore, Jr., and Charles C. Irwin, western agent for S. W. Straus & Co. were elected trustees in bankruptcy at a creditors' meeting. A $50,000 bond was posted by each.

At the time of filing the petition, Charles Skouras said that the bankruptcy action was due to three things —high rentals, existence of large purchase contracts and cuts in admission prices. He also pointed out other factors, over which, he said, the circuit had no control.

F. W. C. was operating about 270 houses up and down the coast at that time. No statement has been made as to how many of these are left.

Schedules of assets and liabilities filed on March 21, 1933, listed Fox Film, Chase National Bank and Wesco Corp. as major creditors. Wesco headed the list with a claim of $11,094,774; Fox had a claim of $2,456,195, and bondholders' claims were listed at $2,000,000. Adolph Ramish, Inc. had a claim of $608,750.

Among distributors' rental claims were the following: Paramount, $118,000; Warners, $24,500; M-G-M, $16,000; RKO, $11,554; Universal, $5,550; United Artists, $2,700.

Assets at that time were given as $6,790,978, but, according to the schedule, these did not include property and certain theatre holdings, the value of which had not been determined at the time of the filing.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Mutiny Ahead"

(Majestic)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—A yarn of regeneration moving to the tune of deep-sea adventure and melodrama. Played to capitalize on action and excitement, the picture takes wide liberties with the standardized formula. The resulting amusement, however, makes up for the license taken and emerges as acceptable fare for secondary houses.

Neil Hamilton's successful stealing of Maidel Turner's pearls results in unexpected developments. He is robbed of the pearls, but falls in love with the victim's niece (Kathleen Burke).

The locale shifts to a treasure-hunting yacht. Against a background of a jealous-woman menace, man-to-man conflict, efforts to steal a discovered treasure, mutiny, attempts to burn the ship, comedy, the finding of the stolen pearls and a thrilling underwater octopus fight and rescue, Hamilton works out his regeneration. He aids the loyal members of the crew in squelching the mutineers and saving the treasure for the Misses Burke and Turner. Then it is revealed that the gems were phonies planted by Miss Burke to enable Hamilton to prove whether he was a real man or not. Hamilton, of course, wins her heart.

Hamilton is convincing in his role, with Leon Ames, Reginald Barlow and the Misses Burke and Turner adequate in support. Stuart Anthony's original screen play, directed by Tommy Atkins, aims to satisfy action and thrill fans.

ITPA of Wisconsin Will Open Offices

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 4.—The Independent Theatres' Protective Ass'n. of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan has arranged for permanent quarters in the Marquette Bldg., which it expects to have ready for the next directors' meeting Feb. 22.

This plan is designed to serve as a check upon the exchanges.

within the next few days, according to reports.

Tony Sudekum, operator of Crescent, which, in addition to the Nashville houses, has approximately 30 other theatres in Tennessee and Alabama, has been here several days for conferences in connection with the Warner options, it is reported. Neither Sudekum nor Joseph W. Bernhard, Warner theatre head, who was in Philadelphia yesterday, could be reached for comment. The option is said to have expired Feb. 1 without a decision having been reached by Warners.

Technicians Picking Best

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Now that nominations for Academy awards are closed, the technicians' branch of the Academy is busy trying to pick from among the many prospects the three films which will be placed on the final ballot for vote of the general Academy membership. Thirty-two productions are candidates for the art direction award, 59 for the cinematography award, and 47 for the editing award.

Credits for Technicians

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 4.—Plans are being worked out by the technicians' branch of the Academy to give recognition to the work of technical men by publishing credits for all art directors, cinematographers, film editors and sound men regardless of whether their names appear on the screen.

Plan Air Spectacle

LONDON, Jan. 24.—A "History of Flight" is planned by London Films. It will show man's efforts to conquer the air, as first related in classic myth until the achievements of the present day, and will reproduce historic stages of invention and cover in detail the use of flying craft in war and peace.

Supreme Court Hears Appeal On Tri-Ergon

patents on which Tri-Ergon bases its charges of infringement in a number of suits brought against members of the industry.

Counsel for Tri-Ergon developed their argument on the contention that the Circuit Court of Appeals had properly decided the issue when it upheld the validity of the patents which, it was contended, were basic developmeints which made possible the talking picture.

Attorneys for Paramount, attacking the court's decision, asserted that the inventions involved were not properly patentable, charging that the double printing, on which suits were brought against producers, was a method which could easily be accomplished in other ways, while the patentability of the flywheel, involved in the suits against exhibitors, was declared to have been settled when Thomas A. Edison was refused protection on it in connection with his development of the phonograph.

Newsreels Ordered Out of Flemington

defiance of his orders while the Hauptmann trial was in progress.

Universal and Hearst Metrotone News were the only companies whose cameras and crews were present today and they packed their equipment and were ushered out by a deputy sheriff.

Justice Trenchard remained in his chambers until the cameras had been removed and said he "very much regretted" that newsreels had been made in defiance of orders of the court. "It was done," he said, "secretly and by methods that are not commonly understood." The judge added that the matter will be investigated.

In the meantime, Paramount ordered its reel withdrawn from theatres throughout the country over the week-end and A. J. Richards, head of the reel, wired Attorney General Wilentz of this action. Loew theatre executives also ordered the Hearst Metrotone News reel discontinued.

These actions left only Pathe and Universal News playing the disputed scenes, for Fox Movietone withdrew its clip last week when the Jersey court first complained.

When questioned yesterday as to Pathe's plans, an executive of the company replied: "We are leaving the reel in the theatres, which is exactly where it belongs."

A spokesman for Universal voiced the same sentiments and added that the reel had been booked into newsreel theatres here for the next three weeks.

MONOGRAM'S 'THE NUT FARM' FAST AND HIGH-CLASS COMEDY

Direction, Writing And Cast Top-notch

"THE NUT FARM"
(Monogram)

Direction ..... Mel Brown
Story ..... John C. Brownell
Screen Play ..... George Waggner
Photography ..... Harry Neumann
Producer ..... Trem Carr
Cast: Wallace Ford, Betty Alden, Florence Roberts, Spencer Charters, Oscar Apfel, Bradley Page, Lorin Baker, Arnold Gray, Joan Gale.

After the long, tedious interval between "Merton of the Movies" and "Once in a Lifetime," here comes something that really captures the nonsense afloat in Hollywood.

Nobody before ever thought to cast an analytical eye on one phase of Hollywood that is really fastest, funniest and loudest, namely, the gravy-train racket, which has its victims the drawing-room tourists who back pictures that never get on any screen outside of a laboratory.

The big asset of this opus is that it is just as funny to those who know nothing about the inside of independent picture promotion, and the preview audience rolled in the aisles.

Oscar Apfel and Betty Alden are the Newark couple who come to Hollywood with their retirement savings of 40 grand and fall into the clutches of a "talent prospector," Bradley Page.

He takes their dough and the coin of the landlord, Spencer Charters, to make a turkey, which is turned into box-office by skilful cutting on the part of the director, Wallace Ford, the wife's brother, who is teamed for romance with the landlord's daughter, Joan Gale.

Neck and neck for top honors in delivering the laughs, which come one after another, are Charters,, Page and Florence Roberts, as "Ma." As the heavy, Page is particularly outstanding, never muffing a bet and so convincing it is hard to believe he is not a Hollywood Wallingford in the flesh.

Mel Brown's direction is superb. His timing in the comedy catches every break on the nose. Betty Alden, as the wife, turns in fine work and, although Joan Gale registers more personality than words she is a very vital element in the success.

Spencer Charters as the half-deaf landlord, who starts as a skeptic and winds up investing in the picture deal himself, is great. Oscar Apfel, as the husband who wanted to buy a California nut farm and wound up as a picture producer, shows a versatility that, in Hollywood, was probably heretofore unsuspected.

This picture is definitely big time and will stand by itself in any class house. Production and photography are A-1.

NRA Regarded As Poised for Crucial Tests

Unity Slips as Congress Takes Up Extension

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—General disintegration of the unity which for two years has marked the operation of NIRA is revealed by discussions now taking place as to the form in which the act shall be continued and may result in the disapproval of plans of NRA officials to have the proposed new legislation extend without change the present law.

Appearing before the House Appropriations Committee during consideration of the money bill for his department, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper disclosed plans for taking over some of the work now being done by the Recovery Administration. Yesterday a flat denial that

No More Hollywood For Cohan, He Says

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 5.—Filling a three-day engagement in "Ah, Wilderness" at the Shubert here, George M. Cohan told reporters that "never again" would he go to Hollywood.

"I may be in a picture to be made early next summer," he said, "but it will be produced in the east, not Hollywood. I have nothing against the place or the people out there; I just don't like it. They don't like me any better, so we are all square."

Music Hall After Zanuck's Output; May Annex Rivoli

The Music Hall is angling for Darryl Zanuck's 20th Century output.

United Artists is willing, but there is the matter of its 100 per cent-owned Rivoli to consider. There would be considerable prestige—and rental—in any blanket deal whereby 20th Century would be housed in the Rockefeller-financed house. Also would there result a product shortage for the Rivoli, now U. A.'s Broadway first run.

The situation is reliably understood to have led to the poising of a deal whereby the Rockefellers might acquire the Rivoli at a price reported placed by U. A. at $1,000,000; a pooling arrangement involving the Music Hall and the Rivoli with the "A" product naturally playing the big 6th

Trenchard Refuses To Modify Film Ban

FLEMINGTON, Feb. 5.—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. The Justice adhered to the same form of reply that he sent out yesterday. It reads as follows:

Campi Surplus Features NRA Cost Hearing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Return to contributors of a surplus of more than $30,000 now in possession of Campi was the major subject of discussion at the hearing today on budgets for 1934-35 before Deputy Administrator William P. Farnsworth.

The only witness to testify, John C. Flinn, executive secretary of Campi, submitted a balance sheet showing that up to Dec. 31, last, receipts from producers and distributors totaled $125,620 and those from exhibitors $114,560, whereas disbursements had been but $204,166 for the year, leaving a cash balance of $29,003, since increased by receipts during January.

It was explained by Flinn that ex-

Just when it appeared the new board had assumed body and some soul, the entire question of agreement on personnel faces reopening by creditor factions. There you have one new and potentially startling development. The second is a formal notification from Frank C. Walker that he will not accept the creditors' invitation to serve. His withdrawal leaves the nominees at sixteen while creditor factions are seeking a complete roster of either fifteen or eighteen in order to provide a total divisible by three and thus facilitate annual elections after the proposed initial three-year term. Factor three has to do with rumblings of opposition which are reported bestirring themselves over retention of John D. Hertz and Charles E. Richardson. . . .

In addition, he will be known as general manager of the studio.

Confirming reports which appeared in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday, Ernst Lubitsch will actually handle the task of turning out Paramount pictures, although the official statement issued over Zukor's signature in New York made no mention of this, pending decision as to exactly what title will be conferred upon the noted German director. Insiders' Outlook tor groups outside of the established committees. The opposing groups are said to view with some apprehension possible friction between banking groups and between Hertz and Adolph Zukor, should the former remain on the board. The opposition to Hertz has increased in direct proportion to the increase of support for Zukor as president of the new company. Hertz's creditor alliances have objected to the job going to Zukor. . . .

Similarly, Zukor's support for the presidency has been strengthened by the factions now reported gaining stature in opposition to Richardson. He had been regarded as a candidate for the presidency, either at the outset or to succeed Zukor after a period of grooming. Now, however, the objection to Richardson as a board member is seen swinging to the support of those who have been advocating the retention of Zukor as company head. The tide presumably rising against Richardson appears to spring from apprehension over a possible Erpi-A. T. & T. link with Paramount in the face of the impending Congressional investigation of the public utility-electric organizations. . . .

Richardso n has not formally accepted the invitation to serve on the board. If he declines, the merchandise creditors' committee, which he represents, would probably insist on another nominee, leaving the board at 16 with one finally to be eliminated or two more to be chosen. If the opposition to Hertz succeeds the Lehman Bros.-Lazard Freres combination would probably insist upon naming an alternate. Frank B. Altschul of Lazard, who is reported to have deferred to Hertz for a place on the board, is regarded as the likely substitute. . . .

Considerable haggling among the creditors' groups and possible delay in the reorganization is almost certain to result if it becomes necessary to name alternate nominees or to agree on a board of either 15 or 18. Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, it must be remembered, has reserved the right to veto any member of the initial board and may exercise this right on February 14, at which time opposition to Hertz and Richardson is expected to break into the open, unless the storm clouds dissipate themselves. . . .

In the meantime, the constantly shifting picture persists in linking up the name of Eugene Leake, one of the three trustees in bankruptcy, with the vice-presidency in charge of finance but not necessarily with a place on the directorate. In and out of the board setup in the last few weeks, Austin C. Keough, secretary of the corporation, is bulletined again for a place on the much wrangled over board. . . .

About Manny Cohen. That his latter day demands for a place on the directorate hastened his exit is widely credited by insiders who say they know and who, by their segments in the tangle, should. Cohen, anxious for a showdown which would settle his future status in Paramount, is said to have pressed his demands at the very time his support was weakest among the powers-to-be in the reorganized company. . . .

Once supported to the hilt by Adolph Zukor and George J. Schaefer, what brought about a change of heart and front where he was concerned? The rumors are many, as are the reports. His last visit east and reputed talks with financial people downtown, tied in with prior discussions about this and that prior to his departure from Hollywood, are whispered in connection with that which took place in such decisive manner in Zukor's office Monday. . . .

Cohen's dismissal from his high post at Paramount came to him as no surprise. If he did not know directly what some of the higher uppers in his former company were thinking about and mulling over, he could have found out from diligent trade paper reading. This is ventured as the explanation for uncomfirmed reports that Cohen, as a consequence, was ploughing his fields with a new crop to blossom eventually on other Hollywood lots. A high berth at Radio is among the reports to be heard if you are inclined to listen. . . .

Speculative as well is whether or not the appointment—official now—of Henry Herzbrun as general manager of production with Ernst Lubitsch as supervisor of actual picture-making is in the nature of a temporary arrangement, the permanent selection to be left to the new directorate when the company actually emerges from its Federal court regime. . . .

This is how and what the Paramount picture looked like yesterday. The yarn has additional chapters which cannot be told for a simple and very good reason: they have yet to be written. . . .

Delay Is Expected In St. Louis Case

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 5.—The elevation of U. S. District Judge C. B. Faris to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals probably will result in a delay in the trial of Harry M. Warner, Gradwell Sears, Herman Starr, Abel Cary Thomas, Ned E. Depinet and George Schaefer on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Likewise, there may be a postponement of the hearings on the same charges against Warners, Paramount and RKO, named defendants in the same indictment.

As is customary, all bonds in the case are made returnable in the U. S. District Court on the opening day of the next term, which happens to be March 16, but that does not mean that the cases will be called on that date.

Scheduled to move to the higher court, Judge Faris undoubtedly will not desire to be tied up with a long and complicated legal battle. Until he leaves the district court he is expected to confine himself to the trial of cases of defendants who are now in jail—having been unable to make the required bonds.

The defendants in the film case have posted their bonds of $2,500 each in New York and have waived the proceedings necessary for their removal to St. Louis.

Loew Again Witness In M. & S.-RKO Case

David Loew spent another day testifying yesterday in the resumed arbitration hearings on breach of lease charges brought against RKO by Meyer & Schneider, lessors of the Apollo and Hollywood.

Max D. Steuer, counsel for M. & S., completed his examination of Loew yesterday and cross examination was begun by Bruce Bromley, counsel for RKO. Bromley will continue questioning of Loew when the hearing resumes today. The testimony concerned phases of the product agreement of last September by which Loew's relinquished Fox, Columbia and Universal pictures to RKO when the latter faced a product shortage.

W. B. Defers Tenn. Action

Action by Warners on an option to take over from Crescent Amusements, Inc., nine of the latter's Nashville, Tenn., houses has been deferred for two weeks, it was learned yesterday. Tony Sudekum, operator of the Crescent, returned to Nashville yesterday.

That "the play's the thing" has never in my opinion been more forcibly proven than in THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING. It's a grand story by two grand story tellers: Bob Riskin and Jo Swerling, based on a tale by W. R. Burnett.

For all of the elements that have contributed to what I think is a truly great picture, I am deeply grateful:

To COLUMBIA, for its splendid cooperation;

To JOHN FORD, for his magnificent direction; and,

To the other players for their enthusiasm, their inspired performances and their whole-hearted support. They have all been a part of the making of a grand, exciting picture.

Campi Surplus Features NRA Cost Hearing

penses last year, because of the fact that Campi machinery got under way gradually, were lower than they would have been had it operated through 1934 at the December rate of about $25,000 a month. While December operations indicated a $300,000 annual expenditure, the budget for this year contemplates $360,000, $41,000 of which will be required for the administration of vaudeville actor amendments to the code now pending before NRA.

Recital of the economics effected in setting up and maintaining Code Authority disclosed that Flinn has set up the machinery with an eye to the possibility that the organization may be merely temporary and the hearing was marked by an absence of criticism or questions to the necessity for any expenditures.

May Not Reach Total Planned

While Campi has a surplus, it was indicated that it is possible the total receipts from assessments may not reach the $360,000 planned for, nor does it appear to be likely that Campi will have a surplus in future periods. It was stressed by Flinn that support of the authority has been placed on a voluntary basis and that it "has no machinery to enforce payment" as have some of the other code authorities.

As soon as pending amendments to the code are approved, it is the plan of the authority immediately to set up four regional boards in New York, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco, respectively, to enforce the new provisions. This cannot be done by the existing regional boards, it was explained, because of their many other duties.

Discussion of the assessment schedules revealed that the eight affiliated companies which are taxed both on the production-distribution and exhibition schedules last year contributed 90 per cent of the producer-distributor total and about 30 per cent of the exhibitor collections, and are expected to furnish approximately $200,000 of the $360,000 total assessment.

Producer Statements Delayed

It was explained by Flinn that the statements for the distributors have not been sent out, pending approval by the administration for an order permitting them to charge against their producers the latter's share of assessments.

Questioned by members of the administration as to why the 1934 assessments could not be amended to take care of the surplus, he pointed out that to do so would cause untold confusion and that it would be better to take care of the matter in the first 1935 statements.

As a result of the discussion, it was agreed that in view of the uncertainty as to the status of Code Authority after June 16, next, when the present recovery law expires, the assessments for the year should be split into two parts and bills sent out only for the period up to June 16.

On those bills, credit is to be made for each individual's share of the surplus. The surplus is not to be returned pro rata to the entire industry but to the members of each of the two groups in proportion to the excess which their group contributed, it being developed that this would prevent the members of one group from benefiting by the larger excess of contributions which the other might have furnished.

The only opposition to the schedules was offered in a letter from Independent Exhibitors of New England, Inc., complaining that small theatres were more heavily taxed in proportion than the large houses and suggesting a formula involving capacity, admission price and number of shows. It was declared by Flinn that this was impracticable because of frequent changes of policy by individual houses which would render their month to month rating unstable.

Momand Issues a Printed Attack on Hays and Code

Violent attacks on the industry code and the Hays organization have been formulated by A. B. Momand, Oklahoma exhibitor, in a booklet entitled "The Hays Office and the NRA." The booklet, 32 pages in length, has been mailed to all members of the Senate and House, governors of the 48 states, the heads of all state universities and leading newspapers.

In a foreword Momand says he has printed the book and distributed it at his own expense.

The first half is devoted to a history of the Hays organization, boards of arbitration and Film Boards of Trade, and to Judge Thatcher's decree in 1929 which ended the arbitration boards.

In the closing paragraph of this section of the pamphlet Momand says there is talk of naming Postmaster General James A. Farley as Will H. Hays' successor. He calls this a "challenge to the Congress of the United States."

In the section devoted to the NRA he charges that the code was dictated by major producers, that it is a new attempt to nullify the anti-trust laws, and that it has been beneficial only to the "trustified element."

"America has progressed as far as she can upon the false premise that the nation exists for the benefit of the predatory class," he writes.

He appeals to Congress to "assert the sovereignty of the United States" and at the end of the booklet has perforated sheets in blank addressed to Senators and Congressmen to "use their influence to prevail upon the Attorney General to have him immediately begin prosecution of the film and theatre trust."

Film Stoppage Cases Up on Coast Today

Los Angeles, Feb. 5.—The stage is all set for tomorrow's hearing in the U. S. District Court before Judge Harry Holzen on two petitions by independent exhibitors for injunctions to prevent distributors from shutting off film supply at the Oxnard, Oxnard, and the Mission, San Gabriel.

Pierson M. Hall, local assistant district attorney, has been assigned by Washington to defend the grievance board and Campi, which have ruled against the Oxnard and Mission on bank nights. In the first instance the Mission, Ventura, complained against the Oxnard. G. A. Ferry of the Granada, Alhambra, filed the protest against the San Gabriel Mission.

Bank night appeals continue to occupy the spotlight at Campi committee hearings. At a session yesterday nine were on the calendar, seven of the complaints having been filed by Warners in Milwaukee and appealed by respondents. The committee consisted of E. T. Gomersall, Dan Michalove and Thomas Murray.

While the practice seems to be a moot subject, conferences are being held in New York which are expected to be followed by a suit challenging the bank night section of the code. Nothing is expected on the contemplated action for a few weeks.

Appeals heard yesterday were; Interstate's Hollywood, Worth Majestic and Palace, Dallas, against Queen Amusement Co., New Liberty, Fort Worth; Capitol, West Allis, Wis., against Allis, same city; Appleton, Appleton, Wis., against the Brin, Menasha, Wis.; Bay, Green Bay, Wis., against Orpheum, same city; Appleton, Appleton, against Embassy, Neenah, Wis.; Juneau and Granada, Milwaukee, against the Riviera, same city; Bay, Green Bay, against the Strand, same city; Strand, Oshkosh, against the Rex, same city; Tacoma, Indianapolis, against the Roxy, same city.

and said they could imagine no reason for anyone wanting to kill Maloy. O'Hara was detained by the State's Attorney for further questioning.

Newspapers this morning carried the theory that Maloy was killed by the remnant of the Capone gang when he refused to continue to divide up his "miscellaneous revenues."

The Herald-Examiner printed a story that the Government investigation into Maloy's income tax payments had brought out that Maloy had recently agreed to withdraw 100 extra operators from theatre booths which he had forced them into, and that for this service he had been paid $100 per head, a total of $10,000.

His widow, Effie Maloy, also testified at the hearing.

Big Thaw Hits Nebraska

Omaha, Feb. 5.—Film salesmen say the big thaw in the past two weeks has made country roads almost impassable and has crippled small town picture business. One farmer had been marooned so long out in the muddy sticks he rolled up his overalls and plodded to town barefooted in order to see a show! Several country folks have tossed saddles (rarely used) on horses in order to get to town.

NRA Regarded As Poised for Crucial Tests

any splitup of the Administration's functions was planned was issued by Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the National Emergency Council.

While members of the NRA Board favor continuance of the act unchanged, others in the Government would have it modified to eliminate much of the allegedly unworkable fair practice program, and still others would have the law demonstrate its usefulness by permitting industries to indicate whether they desired to continue under codes, holding that the resultant expression of opinion would show whether the act is considered of value.

When the new legislation reaches the Capitol it will come under fire in both houses. Senators Nye, Borah and others are storing up ammunition for an attack upon the measure in the Senate, while in the House, Congressman Connery of Massachusetts, chairman of the Labor Committee, is preparing to open hearings next Monday on labor representation on code authorities.

Meanwhile, labor generally is highly dissatisfied with recent activities of the Administration and is preparing to attack the codes. It is generally accepted that the NRA is about to experience the bitterest test of its career.

Cocalis Ill, But Wins Code Decision

Sam Cocalis of the Springer & Cocalis circuit yesterday violated doctors' orders and braved the snow flurries to attend a grievance hearing before the New York board, where he was the main witness in an overbuying complaint. Cocalis has been at home the last two days because of a bad case of the grip and has been told by his physician to remain in bed for a few days.

When Melvin Albert, representing the Regent, Brooklyn, refused to grant a postponement until Feb. 26 on request of Cocalis' attorney, the respondent was called at his home in Elizabeth and then decided to come before the board and defend himself. Cocalis has the Apollo, and it was charged that this house had overbought. The defendant, however, proved that he had bought 319 pictures and his requirements call for 275. Allowing for concellations and "cushion," the board dismissed the complaint.

Cocalis plans to leave for Miami tomorrow.

Kutinsky Delay Denied

Request by Louis Nizer, attorney for Morris Kutinsky, for a rehearing of the overbuying complaint filed by the Community, Queens Village, against Century's Queen, same town, has been denied by Campi with the recommendation that if Kutinsky has another case he should file his complaint with the New York grievance board. This was the case in which selective contracts was a controversial issue.

Fox Midwest Plans To Share Profits

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 5.—A profit participation plan for Fox Midwest employes has been launched. As worked out by E. C. Rhoden, division manager, a percentage of the profits over the preceding year will be paid out every 13 weeks in cash bonuses, ranging from five to seven and one-half and 10 per cent, depending on the class of operation.

Similar to a plan put into effect by Fox West Coast, the benefits take in all employes from district managers and managers to cleaners. Special prizes will be set aside for cashiers, doormen and ushers, earned for excellence in appearance, personality and acts of courtesy. Operators will be given prizes for efficient and economical projection, and janitors for efficiency in keeping the theatre spic-and-span.

The sharing plan was explained to managers at district meetings held in Kansas City, Topeka, Wichita and St. Louis. Rhoden is working on other plans for the benefit of employes, including a benefit and retirement fund, which will be formally organized when the division is taken out of bankruptcy. Revenue from a pass tax and commissions on candy sales in the lobby is deposited in the fund.

Toronto Ruling on Premiums Protested

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—They still want to give away crockery, silverware and other merchandise. Although police commissioners ruled that giving of premiums by theatres is illegal, a number of independents have protested the decision. On the other hand, retail merchants selling the same or similar crockery, etc., that is distributed by the theatres, have urged the police to enforce the law.

The police have practically passed the buck, so far, with the intimation that they have not yet received any specific complaints of illegal premiums and are waiting for the word.

Ohio Censors Want To See "Time" Reel

CLEVELAND, Feb. 5.—Dr. B. O. Skinner, head of the Ohio censor board, has raised the censorship issue on the March of Time reel. He contends it is subject to the board's supervision. The local First Division exchange insists that it is exempt as a newsreel.

Plan Film for Laughton

LONDON, Feb. 5.—London Films plan to star Charles Laughton in a film based on "I, Claudius" and "Claudius, the God," Robert Graves volumes, rights to which have been acquired by Alexander Korda, production executive of the company. Production will get under way upon the actor's return here from Hollywood.

Industry's Leaders Turn Out for First M. P. Forum

By J. M. JERAULD

Industry leaders turned out in force yesterday to get the M. P. Club Forum off to a belated mid-winter start, aided by Judge James A. Wallace of the Court of General Sessions, and abetted by Nathan Burkan, Amos Pinchot, Louis Nizer, et al—meaning other legal talent.

Judge Wallace turned out to be a showman who knows the show business. He modestly admitted that he was the assistant district attorney who helped induce Mae West to spend a 10-day vacation on Welfare Island. Most of the diners leaned forward.

Burkan had just finished introducing the jurist as a "delightful companion, a good friend, and a generally wholesome fellow." He had also related how he had represented Miss West in a well-known case after one of her shows had been raided. Judge Wallace was prosecutor in that case, too, but it resulted in a "tie," Burkan said.

"I always thought that case was a Paramount publicity stunt," Burkan said, "but I wasn't in on it. Mae West paid me."

Burkan Is Persistent

Will H. Hays, seated on Nizer's left, removed his glasses and looked incredulous. George Schaefer gazed at the ceiling. "Anyway," Burkan persisted, "Paramount signed her up immediately afterwards."

"Yes, it was a tie," Judge Wallace admitted, after acknowledging the "fulsome" introduction. "Both cases helped make her famous."

Then he directed his remarks to Hays: "I hope, General," he said, "that you won't do anything to restrict her art. I think she is a fine actress, and should be given every opportunity to display her—her, er, very ample talents."

Everybody joined in the laugh. The 1935 forum was under way.

"Speaking seriously," the judge went on; "I've always been interested in pictures. Years ago I used to watch J. Stuart Blackton make pictures in Brooklyn. I had an ambition to become an actor myself. I think films have advanced both intellectually and as entertainment. They give more for the money—I have a little Scotch in me—than any other form of amusement."

Referring to his recent appointment as judge, he said his admiration for Governor Lehman had been "increased," and that he hoped now to be able to lay aside his role of prosecutor for that of mediator.

Nizer introduced Pinchot as brother of the famous Gifford and father of Rosamond "as well as a famous international lawyer," although he confessed he didn't know what international law really was.

Pinchot said he wanted to talk on the New Deal, and he did. He called it a "repetition of history." Emergency measures were needed, he said, during the bank holiday and afterwards, but he pointed out the impossibility of "regimenting" business and controlling prices, and declared it was based on the theory that a small group of men could be gathered together who would know enough about all phases of economic life to regulate American business.

"It can't be done," he declared; "the government has never been able to regulate the comparatively simple structures of the railroads and pipe lines."

He hoped, he said, that regulation would not be extended to the film business, and that these "serious-minded men with a sense of humor" before him would give the problem "deep thought."

Hamilton H. Collins, Los Angeles business man, banker and Democratic leader, was introduced.

Collins turned away from the microphones and looked at Hays. "Maybe it's just as well if the radio can't hear me," he said.

Got Sinclair Scare

"Speaking of regimentation," he went on. "We barely escaped it in California. A lot of us were genuinely scared when Upton Sinclair sold his theories to the people of California. I wanted help from the picture business, but didn't know how to start. It had so many Republicans."

He waved his hand toward Hays. "Then there was Louis B. Mayer and others. Anyway, I appealed to Hays, and he sent this fat boy (pointing toward Charles C. Pettijohn) out to us, and what he did proved there was at least one good Democrat in the film ranks."

By this time a few more laughs had been added to the annual launching of the forum. It was sliding down the ways in great style.

Nizer then explained that Ferdinand Pecora, another new judge, couldn't attend.

"I hope he don't show up next week when all the bankers are here." Pecora investigated the bankers in a big way during the recent Senate probe.

Next week's speakers will include Joseph P. Kennedy, SEC chairman; Clarence Dillon of Dillon, Read & Co., and Richard Whitney, president of the Stock Exchange.

There was a big crowd. At the head table were Phil Reisman, Austin Keough, Jules E. Brulatour, Jack Cohn, Burkan, Felix Feist, Hays, Schaefer, H. M. Warner and others.

"Mitzvah" on Broadway

"Bar Mitzvah," Sov-Am Film Corp.'s Yiddish talking version of Boros Thomashefsky's stage play of the same name, will be released on Broadway about Feb. 20. This will be the first all Yiddish picture to be shown on Broadway.

Comic Strip for Shirley

"Little Annie Rooney," comic strip syndicated by King Features, has been purchased by Fox which expects to draw a Shirley Temple vehicle from the character.

The William Morris Agency cleared the sale.

Horror Photos Irk Chicago Exhibitors

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Exhibitors here are waxing indignant over the unpremeditated policy of the Sunday Herald & Examiner in printing a truck of crime slaying scenes in the same form that contains the amusement section and theatre advertising.

Like the recent Hearst war horror series, the crime photos show victims of one way rides and machine gun bullets in equally gruesome vividness.

Exhibitors contend that such horror pictures are bad for theatre patronage. They want them shifted away from the amusement section.

Murphy to Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 5.—With the resumption of stage shows at the Penn and a subsequent increase in activity, Loew's has sent Gene Murphy here from New York to relieve Mike Cullen, house manager, of the theatre's publicity duties. The Penn hasn't had a press-agent in several years, with Cullen doubling in brass.

Murphy reported in Pittsburgh this week and immediately took over his new duties.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 5.—Three big pictures reached the Twin Cities simultaneously. They were "David Copperfield," "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "The County Chairman."

Of the three, "Copperfield" made the best comparative showing, going over par by $1,500 for a gross of $5,500 at the Century here. "The County Chairman" was $700 up on a take of $6,200 at the St. Paul Paramount, and "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" reached $6,000 in its second week at the State here.

"Lancer," $8,800, Hit in Providence

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 5.—High gross, which resulted in a holdover for the picture, was scored by "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," despite a week that started off poorly, due to the storm. The take was $8,800, which is better than $2,000 over par.

Fay's and the RKO Albee, both spotting films and vaude, caught an average $7,000, but Loew's, with the splendid "David Copperfield," curiously enough, drew but $8,000.

Total first run business was $38,400. Average is $40,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 31:

"Copperfield" Hits $23,000, Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—After this city dug itself out of the snow film takes received a good boost. Top figure went to "David Copperfield" at the Boyd. The take was $23,000 and the picture may be held another two weeks.

The Earle's low price policy brought good response with a gross that hit $17,000 with "I've Been Around" as the feature. Stanley-Warner hopes the same wrinkle will work at the Mastbaum, which has dropped the ante. For the last three days of its engagement, "Gilded Lily" snared $13,000, "Clive of India" got off to a good start at the Aldine with $9,300 on the first week and "Bengal Lancer" held up to a good $13,000 for its second week. When Actors Meet

Hollywood, Feb. 5.—Overheard on the Boulevard when two actors met. The one with the blue eyes and red necktie said to the one with the red nose and hangover eyes:

"And what are you doing these days?"

The answer was: "Oh, I am just one of those Larry Darmour hams."

Said the one with the red necktie:

"Gee, that's a Swift one."

Pittsburgh's Top, $20,000, "Copperfield"

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 5.—The Penn was the only house in town last week with anything to cheer about. "David Copperfield" was the reason. It built day by day and wound up with a sensational $20,000, the best straight picture takings this theatre has had in years. It finished to capacity and could have held for a second week had not a change of policy, including a reduction in scale, been announced.

Elsewhere, however, there was nothing but the blues. The Stanley, with "Limehouse Blues" and Polly Moran on the stage, took it on the chin at $11,000, while the Alvin also slipped badly, getting only $7,000 with "Lottery Lover" and a presentation headed by Mitzi Green. Not since before Christmas has the Fulton had a $3,300 week, which was all that "The Band Plays On" attracted, and a double feature, including "Romance in Manhattan" and "I'm a Thief," couldn't better $4,000 at the Warner.

Total first run grosses were $45,350. Average is $50,500.

Estimated takings for the week ending Jan. 31:

"LOTTERY LOVER" (Fox)

Withdraw "Lancer" For "Copperfield"

OMAHA, Feb. 5.—This town had a plethora of big pictures. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" was pulled after grossing $3,500 at the World in four days to make room for "David Copperfield."

In spite of bad weather conditions "The Gilded Lady" and "Gambling" at the Orpheum took a strong $8,800 and "West of the Pecos" and "Grand HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.—"The Black Room Mystery," an original by Arthur Strawn, has been selected as the first picture for Boris Karloff at Columbia. Strawn, who is also working on the screen adaptation, has just been signed to a long term contract by the studio.

Good Time Was Had

Ross Ice Shelf, Bay of Whales, Feb. 5.—It's all over. The Penguin, which started out as a first run on Feb. 5, 1934, and then became a second run, a third run and a fourth run without a single argument over clearance, is washed up.

Admiral Byrd's boys can repeat most of the dialogue of 93 features supplied by M-G-M, Warners, U. A., Paramount, Fox, Universal, Radio and Columbia, but it was all in fun. There was nothing else to do during a six-month wintry night.

Now the boys are pushing the projection machines across the ice to the Bear of Oakland.

Extend 'Lancer' Bookings

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—Because of the immediate success of "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" at its first Canadian showing at the Uptown here, Famous Players Canadian Corp. has sent out instructions to managers to double the booking time for this picture. The film established new house records during its first week at the Uptown, and the engagement will be continued indefinitely if business holds.

"Charlie Chan in Paris" was up by $400 on a take of $2,400 at the Capitol. "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," a hit practically all over the country, failed to make much of an impression at the Warner, the $5,000 gross being just average for that house. "The Band Plays On," with a stage show at the Liberty for four days, reached $1,500, and "Maybe It's Love," for the other three days, grabbed $1,050.

London Films Sets Deal for Use of Studio

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 26—Pending completion of its own plant at Elstree, London Film has signed a lease with E. R. Gourdeau for use of the Interworld studios at Worton Hall, Isleworth. The contract may run for 12 months, as the opening of the London plant, originally expected in April, is not now expected until a much-later date.

Worton Hall, one of the earliest British studios, has recently been modernized and greatly extended. It is the only British studio with Western Electric equipment, barring British and Dominions at Boreham Wood.

Leslie Banks, who scored a hit in "The Man Who Knew Too Much," has been signed on a new type of exclusive contract by Alexander Korda, for whom he will appear in the stage plays of L. F. Stage Prod. as well as in London films.

A total of 117 features were finally banned from exhibition in the Irish Free State during 1934, it is revealed in the annual report of James Montgomery, Government censor. Original rejections were 164, but appeals succeeded in certain cases and in others cuts were accepted.

During the year, dramatic films submitted numbered 1,504, of a total footage of 4,711,958. British films were 138. The all-in total was 2,275 films of all length with a footage of 6,984,092.

"Pictorial publicity," chiefly posters, was rejected in 799 instances.

An official inquiry has been asked into the workings of censorship by the trade-controlled British Board of Film Censors.

Introduced by the Archbishop of Canterbury, a deputation which saw Prime Minister MacDonald included representatives of 12 national organizations, among them the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the National Union of Teachers, the Free Church Council, the Salvation Army and the Jewish Community.

Sir Charles Grant-Robertson made the assertion that at least 25 per cent of films that had passed the censor were "unsatisfactory and in many cases really demoralizing."

Joe Rock, who is producer in England for Leslie Fuller Prod., is in a hospital as a result of his car skidding and hitting another close to the Elstree studio. Severe shock is diagnosed, in addition to other injuries.

Important extensions of the use of the film for educational purposes may result from a recent conference at the Ministry of Education.

Practical methods for the inexpensive installation of projectors in state-owned schools were discussed, and the standardization of sub-standard apparatus and films also came under review.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Straight from the Heart"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.—While Scott Beal's direction and B. F. Zeidman's production are good, story and characterizations tend to hinder audience appreciation.

Trying to make Roger Pryor, a crooked, double-crossing politician, sympathetic and giving Mary Astor a sugar coating by having her care for orphans seemed insufficient to a preview audience to whitewash the characters, even though the trouping of both is okay.

While the author tried to spread sweetness and light around moral motives, the yarn is smug and hackneyed, with likable actors doing unlikable things.

Jane Quigley being cute is the entertainment high spot, with the audience about evenly divided regarding her cuteness. Henry Armetta, Andy Devine, Robert McWade and Doris Lloyd round out the cast.

to Harry C. Arthur of Fanchon & Marco.

Snyder and Harry Koplar refuse to comment on the reports. Arthur was here last week to attend a board of directors' meeting at which time, it is said, the matter was discussed.

Harry C. Arthur could not be reached at his Bronxville home last night. He was attending a meeting in Peekskill, where he could not be reached by telephone. Earlier in the day Arthur told MOTION PICTURE DAILY there had been no change in the St. Louis situation since his visit there last week. He said he planned to return to St. Louis in 10 days.

Jack Partington, when reached last night, said he knew nothing about the reported sale of Allen Snyder's interest in the St. Louis houses, referring all queries to Arthur.

and instrumentalities in the nature thereof out of the court room."

In a telegram to Attorney General Wilentz of New Jersey R. H. Cochrane denies that the Hauptmann newsreel pictures were "taken by trickery," as Wilentz charged late last week.

Explaining that his reply has been delayed by his illness, Cochrane says that he takes full responsibility for ordering the pictures used and also says that he has not recalled them.

Cochrane charges that the trial has been ballyhooed, that well known writers have editorialized on it, have "convicted Hauptmann" and that subpoenas have been used to get Park avenue debutantes into the courtroom. Newsreels, he insists, have treated the trial in a dignified manner and with respect for the court.

Herzbrun and Lubitsch Set In Cohen Job

"supervisor" was not deemed appropriate.

In Hollywood, however, Herzbrun, in a statement, was not squeamish as to designation when he stated:

"I have asked Ernst Lubitsch to devote himself to supervision of all productions and am happy to announce his acceptance."

Glad for "Opportunity"

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 5.—Informed via long-distance telephone sometime after midnight this morning by Adolph Zukor that he had been appointed vice-president in charge of production as well as general manager of the Paramount studio, Henry Herzbrun today issued a statement in which he expressed his appreciation for "the opportunity to serve in that capacity."

He said, in part:

"I have asked Ernst Lubitsch to devote himself to supervision of all productions and am happy to announce his acceptance. Before taking over his new duties exclusively, Lubitsch will produce and direct the next Dietrich picture. At his own request, Albert A. Kaufman has been relieved from his duties as assistant to Emanuel Cohen and will hereafter become an associate producer.

"There will be no other changes in studio personnel."

Concluding his statement, Herzbrun stated:

"With continued, harmonious cooperation of its splendid personnel, Paramount, I am sure, under the inspiring leadership of Adolph Zukor will continue its rise to greater heights."

Confidence in the new executive setup was voiced at a noonday meeting of Paramount officials and studio workers, called, Herzbrun told the assemblage, to assure them their jobs were safe.

However, Hollywood reverberated with reports today that Cohen's dismissal already has left its mark on studio personnel. One of the rumors purported to ascribe allegiance of several important players to Cohen. Heard was comment these unnamed individuals proposed giving Cohen preference in whatever his future affiliation may be, once their contracts with Paramount had expired.

Fox War Film Beats Canada's to Screens

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—The Fox release, "The First World War," has scooped the Canadian Government. For the last three months, the Federal authorities have been busy with the preparation of "Lest We Forget," an historical feature consisting of clips from the official war films, with sound added, taken from the Government archives.

The picture has not yet been released and "The First World War," of similar type, is already getting first runs at Canadian theatres.

New Capital Building Will House Films

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Films and sound recordings will be stored in the new National Archives Building to preserve for posterity the true facts of the history and government of the present day, it was learned today.

The collection of films was specifically provided for in the act creating the national archives, and eight special fireproof vaults have been constructed in the building, now nearing completion. Selection and preservation of the films will be under the direction of the chief of the division of motion pictures and sound recordings, and the building will contain a model projection room for the showing of historical films for public officials and students of history and government.

The chief of this division will be Capt. John G. Bradley, long associated with the film and theatrical industry as producer, writer and critic.

Offer of copies of a number of important films of historic interest has been made by the M. P. P. D. A., and it is planned also to include pictures taken by the Byrd polar expedition.

Truckers' Problems Set for New Orleans

Problems dealing with legislation affecting the trucking industry, particularly film deliveries, will be discussed by the National Film Carriers, Inc., in New Orleans on Feb. 25-29. The meeting is being held in conjunction with the annual M.P.T.O.A. convention and will be attended by all members of the association.

Clint Weyer, secretary of the film carriers group, stated yesterday that there are now pending in 44 states a total of 850 bills which, if passed, would work hardships on film trucking concerns. James P. Clarke, president, will be in Washington today to attend a meeting of the American Trucking Assn. policy committee, which will review the pending bills. Clarke is representing the film carriers.

In Missouri, Weyer said, there is a bill pending which would limit tank capacity on trucks to 30 gallons. In Massachusetts another bill to be voted on deals with a limitation of 1,000 pounds for trailers. In Illinois there is a compulsory insurance bill.

Germans' 10-Month Takes $12,500,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—During the first 10 months of 1934, more than 40,000,000 people attended theatres in Berlin, according to a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce from Trade Commissioner George R. Canty in Berlin. Nearly $12,500,000 was grossed by the theatres, of which $965,974 was collected as tax.

An average of 385 theatres operated during each month (including the theatres running daily as well as those on less frequent schedule) with a high of 391 in October, 1934, and a low of 375 during July.

The number of theatres operating daily in Berlin during October, 1934, totalled 387, with a seating capacity of 194,476. They grossed $1,634,202.40.

October grosses, the highest of the 10-month period, exceeded those for the corresponding month of 1933 by more than $120,000, as well as the January figures, usually the best of the year.

During the first five months of the 1934-35 season, a total of 82 features was approved by the censor. Of these, 57 were German, 10 American, four Czechoslovakian, three each Austrian and French, two British, and one each Swiss, Hungarian and Polish.

These figures show an increase in the German production, a heavy decline in the American share, and an increase in exports from other European countries.

Loew Finishes His Booking Testimony

Cross examination of David Loew was completed yesterday by Bruce Bromley, counsel for RKO, in the arbitration hearings of breach of lease charges brought by Meyer & Schneider. Loew has been on the stand for the last three hearing days.

Meyer & Schneider allege that RKO violated provisions of the leases under which the latter operates the Hollywood and Apollo and seeks to compel RKO to play the same product in the houses that is played in other RKO spots. Involved in the hearings is a product agreement of last September under which Loew's made available its Fox, Columbia and Universal product to RKO metropolitan houses. Yesterday's testimony was largely technical, and concerned production, distribution and exhibition trade practices. The hearing was adjourned to Saturday due to the inability of the arbitration board to convene today or tomorrow.

Censure "Hei Tiki" Ads

Complaints against the theatre front advertising being employed by the Globe on "Hei Tiki," describing it as "suggestive" and "indecent," have been received by the Advertising Advisory Council of the M.P.P.D.A. The complaints may be turned over to License Commissioner Paul S. Moss, as the council is without jurisdiction over the distributor of the picture, First Division, and the theatre operator, Harry Brandt.

Two Operator Cost Plans Up For Argument

ule "C," is based on a point system with classification of runs a primary factor in determining booth costs. The Local 306 plan, under the heading Schedule "B," is also based on a point system, but eliminates runs as a determining factor. This schedule lists seating capacity and admissions only.

Although the O'Reilly plan was submitted in toto in Washington as late as Friday, a vote of the fact-finding committee immediately favored it by five to one. The incomplete proposal of Local 306, submitted by C. S. Thide, representing the I. A. T. S. E., was voted down by five to one. A compromise is expected between O'Reilly interests and I. A. T. S. E. leaders before another meeting is called by Compliance Director Sol A. Rosenblatt, who will finally approve a booth plan for this area.

Negotiations are under way to merge the working card men of Empire State and Allied Operators' unions with Local 306. Under the proposal, an arbitration committee is to be named to meet every two years after the date of acceptance of an agreed-upon plan for revision of the scale if it is warranted. The agreement is to be for 10 years.

Break for Exhibitor

In both plans, the costs are based on highest admissions five week nights. This is considered a break for exhibitors, as practically all but a few houses boost prices on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, which are not taken into consideration. In both instances, it is said, there are considerable savings. However, the Local 306 proposal calls for considerable increases in theatres with smaller seating capacities. The minimum cost for a booth in a 600-seat house under the plan is $81. There are numerous exhibitors who are paying only from $35 to $45 a week at present. Under the O'Reilly schedule, a theatre seating 600 or less must pay a minimum of $60.

According to the Local 306 recommendation, theatres under 600 seats are calculated on a 70-hour week basis, and for houses over 600, the plan is calculated on an 80-hour week. For theatres with stage shows, an increase of $63 is sought. Overtime is to be paid at the rate of time and a half.

Under the O'Reilly schedule, a flat 70-hour week is called for with overtime to be based on a pro-rata basis. Both plans have point systems, the union recommendation figured at $9 a point, while the exhibitor proposal calls for $12 a point.

The O'Reilly scale provides for a minimum of $60 and a maximum of $420 a booth, while the Local 306 plan calls for a minimum of $81 and a maximum of $531. The two plans differ in minimum and maximum admissions, the former calling for a low of 25 cents and a high of 75 cents or more, while the latter provides for a 15-cent low and a 50-cent top.

Under the union recommendation a theatre under 600 seats with 15-cent admission would pay $81 a week. If the admission is 20 cents, the scale jumps to $99; if 25 cents, $117. For 30-cent admissions the booth cost would be $135. For houses seating from 600 to 800, the minimum booth charges for a 15-cent theatre would be $117. If the theatre charges 20 cents, the scale would be $135; if 25 cents, $153; if 30 cents $171. Theatres seating from 3,801 to 4,000, under a 15 cent week-day top would pay $405. If the admission is 20 cents, $423; if 25 cents, $441; if 30 cents, $459.

According to the O'Reilly plan, theatres are divided into seven classifications: de luxe, borough, second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth. The de luxe type house is a theatre which plays pictures on Broadway the first in the territory. The borough house is that which plays first run in neighborhoods, such as the Paradise, Valencia, Albee and Metropolitan. The second type classification are theatres of Loew's and RKO playing product of their parent company exclusively with exceptional outside films. The third type is the "B" class house of major circuits.

Other Classifications

The fourth type includes Skouras, Randforce, Consolidated, Springer & Cocalis and a number of other circuits which play after major theatres. The same circuits are grouped in the fifth classification, but are said to be houses of the same circuits following runs of theatres identified with the circuit. The sixth unit incorporates houses playing last runs in the particular neighborhood. These theatres usually play product from eight weeks to three months after release.

A theatre with 1,800 seats, charging 35 cents and classified under group four would pay $180 a week for the booth. If this theatre under the same classification charged 30 cents, the booth payroll would be reduced to $168. If the admission were 25 cents, projection maintenance cost would be $156. Overtime on a pro-rata basis of a 70-hour week would bring the per-hour scale for the 35-cent house to $2.57 an hour; the 30-cent house to $2.40 an hour and the 25-cent theatre to $2.20 every 60 minutes.

With all factors the same, theatres not playing vaudeville, the 35 cent house under the union plan would pay $279 a week, a difference of $99 from the O'Reilly schedule, and $5.24 an hour for overtime; for 30-cent houses, $261, or $93 more than the exhibitor proposal, and $4.89 an hour for extra work; for 25-cent theatres, $243, or $87 above the independent schedule, and $4.50 for overtime.

LINCOLN, Feb. 6.—With the close of bill introduction in the Nebraska legislature, the amusement group was a consistent target. Three bills are up which will work hardship on picture men if passed. It has been reported that Universal is planning to remake "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," but it was revealed here today that Carl Laemmle intends to sound out exhibitors to get their reaction to this plan before going ahead with the production, which will cost $600,000 or more.

The company's national sales convention will be held in New York late in May, Grainger continued. He also revealed that Universal's releases are up to schedule.

'Devil Dogs' Opening Brings Out Marines

The marines landed yesterday—at the Strand—and captured Broadway's attention. The occasion was the opening of "Devil Dogs of the Air," Warners' initial Cosmopolitan release, and the marines, brought in motor lorries from the Brooklyn Navy Yard, were there to provide the proper atmosphere for the premiere, which drew all three of the Warner brothers—Harry M., Albert and Jack L.—to the theatre.

More of the proper atmosphere was supplied by the presence in the audience of those famous aviators, Roscoe Turner and Eddie Rickenbacker, and the following marine and naval officers: Rear-Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., commandant at the Brooklyn Navy Yard; Commander B. Ware, his aide-de-camp, Capt. Collins, Col. G. M. Kincade of the Marine Corps, Capt. L. W. Hesselman, Lieut.-Commander L. J. Witse, Rear-Admiral Reginald Belknap, Commander G. E. Rosendahl, Lieut.-Commander Reichelderfer, Lieut.-Commander Fischer, Col. William A. Taylor, Col. Grimlay, Major Gardner.

The naval militia band played for the folks out front—of the theatre.

There were four shows, each playing to a packed house.

Seek Formula For Producer Code Payment

matter at length with John C. Flinn, executive secretary of Campi.

Heretofore, while the distributors were supposed to pass along a part of the assessment to their producers, there have been no regulations on the matter. While this was probably no subject of controversy with the major distributors and producers, it was indicated that some of the independent distributors had encountered difficulty in their attempts to saddle some of the expense upon independent producers.

The Administration has before it the proposal of Campi, and will attempt to so phrase it as to meet all legal and other contingencies which may arise, and will provide for a uniform distribution of the cost between distributors and producers.

It is anticipated this will be achieved by providing that the producer's assessment shall be a proportionate part of the amount allocated to the distributors for collection and payment and that the proportion which the producer shall pay shall be in the ratio which his share of his pictures' gross bears to the gross of the distributor.

Under this plan, it was explained, if a distributor represented but one producer who received 70 per cent the producer would pay 70 per cent of the assessment. If a distributor represented two companies, one of which received 70 per cent and the other 60 per cent, the first would pay 35 per cent and the second 30 per cent, and the distributor would pay the remaining 35 per cent.

No attempt is to be made to set up a fixed percentage to be charged back to the producer, this being considered impracticable in view of the varying nature of the contracts between producers and distributors, but the formula proposed would allocate to each individual his proper share of the assessment. Campi will, as heretofore, bill only the distributors, who will make the allocation to his producers in accordance with the contracts with them.

Salt Lake Ruling Changed by Campi

Modifying a decision of the Salt Lake grievance board, Campi has ruled that the year's clearance extended to the Gem, Magna, Utah, over the Pleasant Green Ward of the L. D. S. Church, in the same city, was unreasonable and reduced the length of time to exactly six months. In the case of the Rialto, Salt Lake, case against the Belvedere Ward of the L. D. S. Church and 21 other wards, the local board held that the churches cannot play pictures until 90 days after the last run. This decision was modified to provide a six months' clearance after first run in the territory.

After the Pittsburgh grievance board had unanimously decided against the Granada, Pittsburgh, and five exchanges, on complaint of E. J. Golden of the Golden, same city, for reducing admissions, Campi reversed the local board. It was found that the distributors and exhibitor had agreed to reduce the admission scale at the Granada and had so provided in contracts. This agreement was made before a complaint was filed. It was held not in violation of the code.

Dismissal by the New York grievance board of a complaint by David Kahn of the Llewellyn, West Orange, N. J., against Moe Rosenberg of the West End, and David Weinstock of the Rialto, Newark, on interference with a lease was upheld by Campi. The Code Authority also affirmed the Cleveland clearance and zoning board's decision allowing Warners' first runs in Wheeling, W. Va., 14 days protection over the Fenray, Martins Ferry, O. The overbuying complaint against Springer & Cocalis filed by the Roosevelt, Beacon, was thrown out by Campi, following dismissal by the lower board.

Century Clearance Case Set for Today

Century's clearance complaint against RKO Park and Columbia theatres in Far Rockaway and the Alden, Jamaica, L. I., for elimination of a seven-day protection these houses have over the Fantasy, Rockville Center, is slated for hearing today by the main New York clearance and zoning board.

On three different occasions, postponements have been granted, twice on request by the respondent and once by Century. Century is ready to go on with the case today and will oppose any move by RKO for any further delay.

The case is of wide local interest in that a decision by the local board may subsequently affect all Long Island theatres.

N. H. Clearance to Be Discussed Today

New Haven's clearance and zoning schedule is slated for discussion and possible adoption today by Campi, following disposition of four individual zoning appeals by theatres in overlapping territories in the Los Angeles area. Code Authority last Thursday accepted the coast plan, but withheld final approval until the four cases were decided.

Kansas City and Milwaukee schedules are next in line after New Haven and it is possible that these plans may also be discussed today with approval to be left for the following session. A number of other appeals heard by committees during the last week are on the calendar for disposition.

Nominations are expected to be received this morning from J. O. Donovan, in charge of the coast Campi office, on a committee to hear the contract complaint between C. C. Burr and Larry Darmour in connection with the services of Ken Maynard. If, and when, the recommendations arrive, Campi will appoint the group to hear the case in Hollywood.

will be drafted for submission, it was learned yesterday. The new Federal NRA legislation may be made public late next week in Washington and will be available for discussion when the M.P.T.O.A. convention sessions open.

Among the major revisions in the code which the national exhibitor organization is on record as favoring are an increase in cancellations; restrictions on double featuring and code elimination of score charges.

Keough Given New Executive Jobs at Para.

Paramount Publix, having the support of important creditor groups. His chances for this post were further brightened yesterday with the passing of a resolution by the principal reorganization factors which states that the board shall consist of "not more than 18" members, and naming the 16 already agreed upon.

If the board is not confined to the 16 named, Keough, it is believed, stands an excellent chance of filling one of the two remaining vacancies. The Munger debenture group is also in the running again and, according to reports, is advancing the name of R. C. Cramer, executive of the Corticelli Silk Co. and the Hahn chain stores, as its nominee for one of the two vacancies. The possibility remains, however, that the board will be maintained, at least until after its formal approval by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe, at the present 16. Judge Coxe has reserved the right to veto any member proposed.

Meanwhile, Paramount personnel both in New York and Hollywood, regard the new Paramount production setup headed by Henry Herzbrun and Ernst Lubitsch with obvious satisfaction. Zukor and George J. Schaefer leave for Hollywood tomorrow to confer with Herzbrun and Lubitsch on their new posts and on production plans for the coming season.

details of the new legislation have been discussed.

Presentation of the legislation at the Capitol is expected to unleash several attacks on the NRA and the codes which have been held in abeyance so far this session in the House of Representatives. Congressman Connery of Massachusetts will attack the present setup with a demand that labor be given equal representation with employers on all code bodies.

In the Senate, Senators Borah of Idaho and Nye of North Dakota will attack the whole organization.

Charnow Case Delayed

Because of the absence yesterday of two principals interested in settling the clearance dispute filed by Julius Charnow of the Leonia, Leonia, N. J., against Skouras and Loew's, the matter is being held in abeyance until another session is set. Illness prevented Edward Golden from attending a scheduled meeting at the Astor and David Loew was downtown testifying before an arbitration committee hearing a contract dispute between M. & S. and RKO.

Celler Avers Booking Bill WasRequested

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Representative Emanuel Celler today addressed members of the M.P.T.O. of the District of Columbia and explained the aim of his anti-block booking bill now before a House committee, declaring it was introduced virtually at the request of his constituency.

Celler further said he held no brief for any branch of trade and was willing to listen to arguments advocating continuance of the practice.

Free and open competition for all exhibitors and relief for independents from any present restraining practices are the aims of the bill, the Representative explained, and he further declared he would withdraw the measure as willingly as he had introduced it if it be proven there was no need for it.

Following Celler's discussion, President A. Julian Brylawski threw the meeting open for general discussion and the consensus of exhibitors, affiliated and independent, was that block booking was no burden, but that restrictions on cancellations should be removed.

Sidney B. Lust, Louis Bernheimer, J. W. Cleveland and W. E. S. Wilcox were named as a committee to call on Celler and discuss recommendations for changes, members were urged by the president to oppose Celler's bill and similar legislation proposed by Representative Francis D. Culkin, Democrat, New York, who would establish Federal censorship, abolish block booking and classify the industry as a public utility.

Opposition was noted to the music tax, score charges, W. E. charges, preferred playing time, insufficient prints in exchanges and producer-owned theatres.

Hospital, following an operation for removal of his tonsils. The funeral will be held late this week at his home, 9057-50 4th Ave., Elmhurst, L. I.

Dermody's headquarters since joining Universal in 1933 have been in Boston.

He entered the business with Fox in 1921 as a stenographer in the contract department during a sales drive conducted by R. A. White, at that time sales manager. His progress was rapid. The following year he was sent to Washington as assistant manager. In 1924 he became a salesman and later that year he was made acting manager at New Orleans. This was followed by his transfer to New Haven as manager in 1925. He was transferred again that year to Albany as manager and stayed there until 1929, when he was again sent to Washington as manager. In 1931 he became Boston manager for Fox.

He joined Universal shortly after James R. Grainger became sales manager.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Little Colonel"

(Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 6.—Shirley Temple, sensational baby star, endears herself again in a vehicle especially tailored to her extraordinary talents.

After Evelyn Venable, a southern belle, marries John Lodge, a Yankee, and is turned out by her father, a Confederate colonel (Lionel Barrymore), the couple goes west seeking fortune. Shirley is born. When she is four she is made a colonel of a regiment at a military outpost. Evelyn returns to her ancestral home, while Lodge stays west. Colonel Shirley ingratiates herself with Colonel Barrymore and, after a series of delightful conflicts, effects a reconciliation.

Charming, lovable, without the slightest trace of precociousness, Shirley will capture audiences' affections with her amazing versatility, being equally at home in comedy, drama, pathos or charm.

With Bill Robinson she tap-danced to the salvos of a preview audience. She sings and weeps and is adorable in hoop skirts and poke bonnet. In Technicolor her personality radiates as one in a million.

Barrymore presents another portrait that is noteworthy. Robinson, ebony aristocrat who elevated tap dancing to an art, is a sensation in his first flicker and should be in demand, with his personality, comedy and dancing definite screen assets.

The cast also includes Sidney Blackmer, who plays the heavy; Hattie McDaniel, Shirley's colored mammy, pickaninnies and colored choristers.

David Butler directed with distinction from William Counselman's screen play, adapted from Annie Fellows Johnston's story. Arthur Miller's photography is good.

Shirley's drawing power, plus Barrymore, plus Robinson, should gratify box-offices as much or more than previous Temple films.

Delay on Clearance Asked by K. C. ITO

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 6.—The I.T.O. has asked Campi to defer consideration of the Kansas City clearance schedule, reported due tomorrow, pending possible agreement between independents and Fox Midwest on the plan proposed by the exhibitor group.

Campi was informed that imposition of the schedule proposed some time ago by the local board would precipitate legal action. The reference was to the I.T.O.'s threat to file a Federal injunction suit or take the matter to the Department of Justice.

The I.T.O. demands Campi keep its hands off until the group has had an opportunity to work the problem out locally with Elmer C. Rhoden of Midwest, who wired from Los Angeles he was willing to get together with the I.T.O. on his return late this week.

negotiations have been under way in my capacity of president of United Artists and the deal, if closed, will include the Goldwyn productions, those made by Reliance, 20th Century, London Films and other producers in our setup."

Progress looking to a momentary decision advanced in double time yesterday, it was learned elsewhere. Percentage terms covering the attractions involved were reported to have been agreed upon, or virtually so. The Goldwyn output plays a particularly vital part in the barter with the Music Hall, reputedly eager to make certain that any deal embraces this producer's releases.

The hurdle yet to be jumped concerns the Rivoli, on which United Artists holds a long-term lease and about which some action has to be taken. Originally held at $1,000,000, by substantial report at least, U. A. has been insistent that there will be no deal unless the Rockefeller interests agree to take over the theatre. The understanding late yesterday was that the Music Hall is not averse to assuming operation on a basis which would cut U. A. into operating profits, but also into operating losses, if and when.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

ADD to the thousands of words written to date on the Paramount situation, these: Despite vigorous efforts by Adolph Zukor to obtain contracts for Henry Herzbrun and Ernst Lubitsch which would give the comfort signatures on the dotted line imparts, representatives of Paramount's ruling creditor and reorganization groups have refused. Zukor, who leaves for Hollywood today with George Schaefer, is reported to have persisted in his fight to obtain the contracts up to late last night, without avail. . . .

His feeling, it is said, was dictated by his firm belief in the need for investing the entire studio organization with a sense of security which only written contracts for the two new appointees could effect. Also said to have been a consideration was his desire that the studio regime remain undisturbed even after Paramount emerges from bankruptcy, possibly by April 1. The disastrous consequences of a change coming at this time, close to the company's annual spring sales meeting and the start of the new selling season—or even the possibility of change—was in Zukor's mind when he asked for the contracts, according to those close to the center of action. . . .

The reorganization dictators, having their say, explain their refusal with the declaration that they do not feel they have the right to bind the company to important contracts on the eve of reorganization—contracts which might not meet with the approval of the new board of directors when it comes into being and power within the next two months. Moreover, they add, the top studio positions may be made permanent by the performances delivered between now and reorganization, at which time contracts may be forthcoming. Zukor, however, who wanted those contracts now, leaves for the coast without them. . . .

Charles E. Richardson, the only nominee for the Paramount board of the 16 agreed upon by creditors' committees who has not signified his willingness to serve, will probably give notice of his acceptance soon. However, he may remain on the board only until the new company is launched and stabilized, resigning or refusing reelection thereafter. It appears fairly certain that the slate of 16 will remain as the list which will be submitted for Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe's approval on Feb. 14, despite sentiment in reorganization circles which favors a board of either 15 or not more than 18. That there will be sharpshooting at some of the proposed members when the list goes into court is certain. . . .

Some of this may come from important creditor sources. Some of it is almost certain to be aimed at John D. Hertz, Richardson and one or two others. Whether it will have any effect in influencing Judge Coxe to exercise the right he reserved to veto any member of the initial board remains to be seen. Discussion is now veering to the selection of a chairman with one school of creditors proposing Frank A. Vanderlip and another still urging that Zukor be made chairman and Schaefer, president. The agreement on Zukor as president, however, appears to be sufficient at this time to make it a fact. Other quarters are still to be heard from. Undoubtedly, they will be. . . .

Space cramped the idea the other day when the news was spot, but not so this morning. Aside from that, what Bob Cochrane told Attorney General of New Jersey Wilentz about the newsreel situation at Flemington is much too good not to be used. In the Cochranian style, which is a very good and a very compelling one, the Universal vice-president said plenty. Here it is:

"Illness has prevented an earlier answer to your telegram in which you registered a protest against the use of scenes from the Hauptmann trial in our newsreel. The Universal Company has violated no agreement with the court in using trial scenes in our newsreel. The truth of the matter is that the whole trial has been ballyhooed in some of the newspapers and over some of the radio stations day after day while the newsreels have been so decent and dignified that they have defaulted in their duty to the theatres they serve.

"Some of the newspapers have spread the trial over innumerable pages. They have not stopped with handling the news. They have editorialized in articles by special writers and in cartoons. They have found Hauptmann guilty, so have millions of readers who have been soaking up the verbatim report of the trial with all of the questions and answers. On the radio the trial has been handled directly from Flemington at fifteen minute periods.

"On some of the stations, actors and actresses have been used to impersonate Hauptmann, his wife and you, yourself. I do not know whether this has been done with

Air Film Broadcast Proves Successful

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 7.—The first combination broadcast from and showing of a picture in a plane was completed with the arrival here tonight of a Central airliner from Washington. During the flight "Devil Dogs of the Air," the first Cosmopolitan picture to be released through Warners, was shown with some of the film dialogue and comments of the audience being broadcast over stations WCAE and WRC of the NBC network. The flight was arranged as an exploitation stunt for the openings here and in Washington.

With a passenger list including General Douglas C. McDougal, assistant commandant of the Marine Corps; Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania; Gene Vidal, director of air commerce; Stephen Cisler, superintendent of mails, and newspapermen, the ship, which had been christened "The Flying Theatre" before the takeoff, left Washington at 5:35 o'clock. Helen Richey, only licensed woman transport and airmail pilot, was at the controls.

At 5,000 feet the picture was flashed on the screen. Half an hour after the takeoff, Allen Trench, NBC announcer, commenced the broadcast. The ship landed here at 7:15.

The stunt was conceived and executed by Joseph Feldman, Warner advertising director in the Pittsburgh zone under Harry Kalmine. Frank LaFalce, of the Warner Washington office, handled things from that end. Mort Blumenstock, director of advertising for Warners' theatres, supervised it.

New System Adopted In Rating Pictures

A new system of classifying pictures as published by the Catholic News for the New York Archdiocese has been adopted, according to Rev. Edward Roberts Moore, secretary of the Legion of Decency for the archdiocese.

Under this new system there are in effect four classifications. This is brought about by the division of Class A so that some of the films in this division get approval for both adult and juvenile audiences and others are approved for adults only. The classification, out for the first time this week, reads: "Class A—Section 1—General Approval" and "Class A—Section 2—Approved for Adult Audiences." Class B continues to include films neither recommended nor condemned and Class C is for condemned films.

In describing the second section of Class A, Father Moore says: "These pictures may readily provide thoroughly acceptable and wholesome entertainment for the adult, yet might raise in the child's mind questions preferably deferred to a more mature age."

Norwegian Film Opening

"En Stille Flirt" ("A Little Flirt"), Norwegian musical film starring Tutta Berntzen, will be given its American premiere by Scandinavian Talking Pictures at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Saturday.

Zukor, Schaefer West

Adolph Zukor, George J. Schaefer and Russell Holman leave for the Paramount studios today.

Daily Variety: "Combination of Harold Bell Wright's name on one of his best known stories, plus an interesting and fast-tempoed production, makes this one top-notch entertainment. All of the punch of the author's story has been transferred to the screen."

Motion Picture Daily: "This speedy, human, high-class western gives George O'Brien the best role of his career and presents top-notch entertainment to all houses demanding this type of show. Should clean up, as star, story and amusement values tab it for higher brackets."

Short Subjects

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas"
(Universal)

Starting in Turkey, Lowell Thomas journeys on to Mount Hood in America and then to Bermuda. His remarks are by far the most interesting part of this short which includes ground already covered by many a travelogue. It should please audiences, however. Production Code Seal, No. 0259. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Going Places with Lowell Thomas"
(Universal)

In an interesting and entertaining manner, Lowell Thomas takes the audience through a Mexican fishing ceremony, the manufacturer of billiard balls, the mountains of the west and festive Japan in this reel. To be recommended. Production Code Seal No. 0260. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction"
(Universal)

This, the seventh of the series, is equally as interesting and as entertaining as any before it. It contains scenes of a girl bathing a lion cub, the world's smallest mail train run by batteries, fishing for pearls, an artist who draws with a typewriter, a one man town, a blind violin maker and a pet cemetery. James Wallington, of the radio, does the off-screen commentating. Production Code Seal No. 0299. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Hill Billys"
(Universal)

This Oswald cartoon has all the characters of the series as hill billys, and their songs and antics should prove entertaining. Oswald is in love, but the object of his affections is a member of the family with whom he is feuding. To the accompaniment of mountain music the lovers manage to get married and stop the feud, but only momentarily. This one is slightly above the average set by preceding members of the series. Production Code Seal No. 549. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Parrottville Old Folks"
(Van Beuren-Radio)

Here is a cartoon done in color that should have particular appeal to children. The characters are all parrots and their antics are amusing. An old parrot sea captain and his mate go over to the old folks' home to entertain the inmates, with the result that several songs and a dance are presented. No code seal. Running time, 7 minutes. "G."

"Stranger Than Fiction"
(Universal)

Tricks with liquid air, a girl with a weird variety of pets, screen-writer John McDermott's odd house in Hollywood, the world's tallest newsreel cameraman, a rooster with a 13-foot tail, a windmill boat, a man who makes his living tasting soap and the mining of quicksilver are all shown in this, the sixth of the series, and combine to make an interesting short. James Wallington, radio announcer, is the commentator. Reviewed without production code seal. Running time, 9 minutes "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Captain Hurricane"
(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—A slow moving story produced without much imagination tells of a retired Cape Cod sea captain and his romance of 15 years which has never culminated in marriage because of his temper. There is a minor plot involving an adopted daughter and a visiting youth who comes to the Cape to work on an invention.

In trying to weave these elements into an entertaining story, the picture gets tangled and seldom becomes convincing. New England characters reflect penury with hearts of gold while the atmosphere is mostly drab.

James Barton, who makes his feature debut, is handicapped by material, although on several occasions he overcomes these obstacles, turning in superbly finished scenes. With a better vehicle Barton should be a good bet. Helen Westley, playing opposite, suffers from the same trouble, never being able to rise above the situations and lines. Douglas Walton and Helen Mack are cast as the young lovers and struggle valiantly to make their characters seem natural. Gene Lockhart and Henry Travers have occasional moments as comedy relief. John Robertson directed from heavy-handed material. Frank O'Heron produced.

No production code seal. Running time, 76 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Northern Frontier"
(Ambassador)

Here is red-blooded entertainment for young audiences. The film should satisfy to a "t" the most ardent of action fans. Its story, while by no means original, is told in fast tempo with considerable suspense against a north country background that offers an opportunity for some fine outdoor shots captured by Edgar Lyons' camera. Hard riding, gun play, fisticuffs, these are to be found in generous proportions.

Kermit Maynard has the role of a Mountie in this film, based on James Oliver Curwood's "Four Minutes Late." Set to work on a counterfeiting case, he finds himself on several occasions a hair's space from death. To get the goods on the counterfeiting gang, he passes himself off as Russell Hopton, a fugitive from the States on his way to join the outfit when he is captured by the Mounties.

The suspense is supplied by Maynard's efforts to keep the gang from suspecting the truth. When his identity is finally revealed, Maynard finds himself in a pretty spot, but help comes in the nick of time and the fadeout has the hero and the girl friend (Eleanor Hunt) being married.

Other players include J. Farrell MacDonald, Roy Mason, Ben Hendricks, Jr., Gertrude Astor and Lloyd Ingraham. Sam Newfield directed.

No code seal. Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

Just a Publicity Yarn

Fox publicity department sends this one out sans blushes:

"Fox Producer B. G. DeSylva has cabled the final shooting script of 'Under the Pampas Moon' to Bert Glennon, chief of a camera crew making atmosphere shots for the picture in Buenos Aires. The cable amounted to 45,236 words.

"Glennon has been in the Argentine for several weeks getting background sequences."

Not from the Fox publicity department:

The cost of this message by night letter rates would be $6,333.04 at 14 cents per word. By airplane in a pigskin portfolio carried by a special messenger it would have taken eight days and cost $1,267.20 for the round trip. By air mail it would have taken eight days and cost $99 for a five pound manuscript at 55 cents per half ounce.

Short Subjects

"The Simp-Phoney Concert"
(Radio)

The old vaudeville star, Eddie Conrad, is featured in this short that appears to be ideally suited for his talents. Audiences should get many a laugh out of this.

Conrad, an impresario, arranges a concert at a barn theatre and presents a comedy quartet and a duet along with himself at the piano. Things go along swell until a duck spoils things for the four singers and a leaking pipe ruins the act of the duet. Conrad winds things up with himself at the piano. Production Code Seal, No. 453. Running time, 21 minutes. "G."

"Doin' the Town"
(Mentone-Universal)

Billy Taylor in this escorts Gracie Worth through the night club belt in search of entertainment. With this as a story thread there are introduced turns including Rachel Carley, the Holman Sisters who do tricks at the piano, the hot Rhythm Racketeers and Kuznetzoff, Russian basso with a gorgeous voice. This miniature vaudeville show pleases and emerges as satisfactory entertainment. Milton Schwarzwald directed and Josef Gershenson handled the orchestra well. Production Code Seal 0301. Running time 20 mins. "G."

Objections of Lawyers Slow L. I. Hearing

14 in the afternoon, most of which were sustained. Klupt had 11 in the morning and six in the afternoon.

Twice during the hearing Leo Abrams, chairman of the main clearance and zoning board, had to call executive sessions for decisions on objections by Nizer. In both instances Nizer was sustained. When it became apparent about 5 o'clock that the hearing would drag a long time, the board went into executive session and agreed to adjourn until next Wednesday afternoon. Although the board usually adjourns until the next day, this procedure had to be discarded. Harry Shiffman, a member, leaves for Bermuda today on a postponed honeymoon and will return next week in time for the resumed hearing.

Many RKO Men on Hand

RKO representatives who attended the hearing included Major I. E. Lambert, of the legal department; John O'Connor, head booker and buyer for RKO Film Booking Corp.; Charles B. McDonald, division manager for Manhattan, Bronx, Queens and Brooklyn; Walter Gutteridge, manager of the Strand and Columbia, Far Rockaway; Fred Meyers, Lou Goldlberg, Max Fellerman, Al Judkowitz and John Heinz, manager of the Alden, Jamaica. Thomas Murray and Fred Schwartz were principal witnesses for Century. Sitting on the board in addition to Abrams and Shiffman were ex-judge Alfred E. Steers, Eugene Picker of Loew's, Edward Rugoff of Rugoff & Becker circuit, Robert Wolff, manager of the RKO Radio exchange, and Laurence Bolognino, president of Trio-Consolidated.

O'Connor was grilled by Klupt for the major part of the morning concerning his relationship with RKO and the booking pool between the circuit and Century. McDonald was quizzed for about an hour on the mailing list of the Alden, roads and distances between Rockville Center and Jamaica and advertising by the RKO house. Gutteridge was next on the stand and testified mostly to ways and means of traveling to Far Rockaway from adjacent towns. Murray was next and followed by Schwartz, who testified about clearance of the Fantasy from 1931. Nizer raised strenuous objections to testimony by Murray and Schwartz when contracts substantiating their statements could not be introduced. He was sustained.

Basis of Century Complaint

Century's complaint is that during the five years since the Fantasy has operated, RKO houses in Far Rockaway have not had protection, running day-and-date. For three years there was an operating pool between the litigants. Last year Skouras' Lynbrook house had seven days' protection on the Fantasy, which was waived this season when a booking arrangement was set between Skouras and Century.

With the lifting of the Lynbrook clearance, RKO is now buying a week's protection over the Fantasy for the Far Rockaway Strand and Columbia and Jamaica Alden.

RKO's contention is that it held the key to the Rockville Center situation all along because it gave up two weeks' protection for three years as a result of the Schwartz pool. RKO had 14 days' clearance on all Kings, Queens and Nassau county theatres and for a consideration by A. H. Schwartz waived its protection rights.

On certain distribution contracts made last year, Schwartz testified that the only theatre getting protection on the Fantasy was Skouras' Lynbrook, but these pictures did not involve the RKO split.

New Three-Dimension Test Stirring Coast's Interest

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 7.—Gregg Toland, head cameraman for Samuel Goldwyn Prod., is enthusiastic over a new development in three dimensional photography devised by William Adler of Pasadena. Alder was camera man until three years ago. He is now an associate in the California Institute of Technology, the institution of which Dr. Robert Millikan, Nobel prize winner, is head.

The Alder process is claimed to be different from any other three-dimensional process, in that it uses only one image on the film, whereas the others used two, in the manner of old stereopticon machines. Like other experimenters, Alder started from this angle, he says, but found that by the use of two pictures, one gets an illusion of greater depth in the third dimension than actually exists. A further disadvantage was that pictures taken this way could not be seen clearly from all parts of a theatre. Alder, therefore, discarded all attempts to solve the problem by using dual images, and adopted instead, a three mirror attachment which fits over the lens of the camera. The mirrors twirl with the turning of the camera, and each figure photographed is recorded on the same strip of film from three different angles.

Tested by Goldwyn

Samuel Goldwyn has put the process to various tests, and one reel of film which was tried out at Grauman's Chinese, proved satisfactory in every way, it is claimed. The three dimensional illusion was plain from every seat, and the general effect was that of looking at a scene as if there were no screen. The depth shown was claimed to be the same as would be visible to a normal eye viewing the scene as it was photographed.

With the Alder process, no additional equipment is needed in theatres, according to the inventor. The film is projected exactly as it is now. From the producers' standpoint, additional cost will be entailed for lighting. It will also mean that more location trips will be needed, as the sets now used would not stand up under the new camera. The cost of the mirror attachment for the camera lens is nominal, it is said. From the actors' standpoint, it will mean that all of their features will be caught, and it will be impossible to bolster up their weaknesses by catching them from their best angles as is done now.

Laemmle Better

Hollywood, Feb. 7.—Carl Laemmle's eye condition has improved to a point where he may return to active duty at Universal by the end of the week.

Seattle Labor Row Starts Court Test

the heels of the Sterling suit, which is now awaiting a Superior Court decision here.

Sam Sax's Mayfair, formerly the Rex, has entered charges that R. D. Horning, state NRA compliance officer, is prejudiced in favor of organized labor. The theatre refused to appear before an NRA arbitration meeting. Its attorneys made a brief appearance to state they would challenge the constitutionality of the recovery act as applied to this case.

The action followed a walkout of 10 union musicians, and also stagehands and operators at a late evening show. Fifteen members of a negro song and dance troupe, appearing in addition to a dual-feature second-run film program, also walked out. During the confusion, it is reported, musical instruments were damaged, a stench bomb was thrown, and the projection equipment was damaged.

The dispute originated over wages paid to union employes. The theatre has been paying $1 an hour, it is claimed, but the union and NRA officers believe the scale should be $1.60 for a house seating 1,800 persons.

Ban Neb. Bank Nights

OMAHA, Feb. 7.—Osland & LaHue, State, Central City, Neb., have been ordered to stop bank nights. C. J. Riggs, manager of the Sun, was the complainant.

Riggs was represented at the hearing by his wife, he being taken to a local hospital for a serious operation the day before the hearing.

Order Iowa Film Stopped

DES MOINES, Feb. 7.—Discontinuance of film service to the Strand and Casino at Marshalltown, Ia., managed by Don Thornburg, has been ordered by the grievance board effective Jan. 24 for refusal to comply with an order to discontinue bank nights. Thornburg's appeal to Campi was denied.

Charge NIRA Violation

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7.—Violation of the NIRA provision prohibiting requirement of union affiliation as a condition of employment is alleged in a complaint lodged with the regional labor board here against E. S. Young, Central Theatre, Kansas City, by the Independent M. P. Operators' Union.

Breach of contract and discrimination is alleged. Young's contract with the group was to expire next May, but he disdharged their man last Sept. 1 and hired an operator from Local 170, I. A. T. S. E. The former operator also demands a sum equivalent to his pay from the time of his discharge.

amount of business on hand. With prices as the basic factor in the coast setup, and a provision protecting distributors from possible print shortages where theatres with similar admissions get like availabilities, the New Haven and other schedules will be adopted in quick order.

Five Kansas City independent exhibitors have asked Code Authority not to vote on that schedule in the hope that an amicable arrangement will be worked out with Elmer C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest. However, Campi did not reach the Kansas City plan, but when it comes up on the calendar, it is understood that Code Authority will discuss its various angles and hold in abeyance its adoption until the Fox Midwest matter is disposed of. Milwaukee and Detroit schedules will be discussed following the K. C. plan.

Leonia Case Again Delayed

Action on the Leonia, Leonia, N. J., clearance complaint against Loew's and Skouras was again delayed for another week. A meeting of Edward Golden and Skouras and Loew officials was to have taken place Wednesday in an effort to settle the controversy, but Golden was ill and David Loew spent the entire day before an arbitration committee hearing a complaint by M. & S. against RKO. Loew has been on the stand for three days. A meeting of the committee is expected to take place within the next few days.

John C. Flinn reported on the Washington public hearing on the financial budget of $360,000 for 1935. He also advised the members that the two Los Angeles suits, brought by the Oxnard, Oxnard, and Mission, San Gabriel, to restrain the grievance board and distributors from shutting off film service for refusal to abide by decisions on bank nights, were dismissed.

Vaudeville amendments to the code were approved by Campi and Washington is now drawing an order for the changes. This will come through in about a week.

Questionnaires sent by Flinn to impartial members have not been returned 100 per cent and no report on the matter was made.

Kansas City Again Stops Bank Nights

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7. — Bank nights and similar devices continue to fall under the ban of the local grievance board, which has ruled against offenders in new cases.

Finding competition exists between the theatres despite a distance separating them of more than three and one-half miles, the board has reaffirmed its original judgment that Frank H. Cassil, Rialto, St. Joseph, Mo., discontinue the nights because of unfairness to the Olive, operated by W. A. Leucht, same town. Campi receptly upheld the board's decision against Cassil, but the latter requested a rehearing on the element of actual competition. This case is now closed as far as the local board is concerned.

Cassil's cash night complaint against Leucht's Valley, St. Joseph, resulted in a desist order against the respondent. The complaint was dismissed as against Barney Dubinsky, named as the alleged owner of the Valley, because evidence failed to substantiate the claim.

A desist order was entered against A. B. McNabb, Gem, Neodesha, Kan., on complaints charging bank night and merchants' free shows filed by Glen Klock, same town. Taking an Oklahoma case as a precedent, the board also ordered Klock to file a certificate of compliance on evidence of reduced admissions.

Tom Steele, Fox Midwest manager at Pittsburg, Kan., has complied with an order to drop bank night and discontinue reduced admissions. J. A. Lenski, Cozy, same town, has agreed not to resume cash nights or similar stunts.

Pouzner Wins Clearance

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Morris Pouzner, protesting in behalf of Reading Theatre Corp., has been sustained by the clearance and zoning board in his appeal for action against George Ramsdell and William McLaughlin. The decision states "that Malden shall be the key city to determine clearance over the theatre of the complainant in Reading and the theatre of the respondent in Wakefield and the theatre in Stoneham, which is an interested party to the petition; and that Malden shall have 14 days' clearance over theatres in Reading, Wakefield and Stoneham charging admission price of not less than 35 cents or 21 days' clearance over theatres charging less than 35 cents but not less than 25 cents.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7.—The Greater Kansas City Council of Code Authorities is preparing a "big stick" for code violators in the form of a bill making violations punishable by state as well as Federal law.

Arthur wrote back:

"I saw the story in MOTION PICTURE DAILY. It would be cheaper to buy the Music Hall."

Shea Is Ordered to Release 25 in Ohio

CINCINNATI, Feb. 7.—The local grievance board has ruled that M. A. Shea, Zanesville, overbought for the Weller, and has ordered him to release 24 features of the 1934-35 product to Zanesville Theatres Co., Inc., operating the Grand, Liberty and Imperial, same city. It is understood that an appeal would be made to Campi.

Sam E. Lind, executive head of the complainant organization, is said to have taken the matter up with the Department of Justice, at Washington, prior to the local hearing.

Prof. E. V. Hollis, of the Morehead, Ky., State Teachers' College, has appealed to Campi on the board's recent ruling, ordering distributors to discontinue serving him on the ground that he represented a non-theatrical account. Complainant was Paul M. Hooven, Trimble, Mt. Sterling, Ky., who claimed that Hollis was in competition since he ran half-page display ads in the Mt. Sterling papers stating that certain pictures would not be shown in complainant's town this season. It was brought out that Hollis incurred no expense of operation, except the film rental, as the college is a tax-supported enterprise, towards the maintenance of which Hooven contributed as a tax payer. Space in the Mt. Sterling papers was donated, the evidence showed.

Glen Klock Files Appeal

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7.—Balking at confining his operations to six features weekly, which was the determination of the local grievance board, Glen Klock, Neodesha, Kan., has appealed to Campi the decision that he release surplus product to A. B. McNabb, his competitor.

PETE WOOD, actively identified with Tent No. 2, circulated around local quarters recently.

Columbus

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—Leo Haenlein, chairman of the Variety Club sideshow committee, has secured Cash Miller and several of Ripley's leading "Believe It or Not" oddities for the sideshow which is to precede the club's annual banquet at the Deshler Wallick Sunday night.

BEN POLLOCK and his band, many vaudeville headliners and others will comprise the "main show."

Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 7.—Barker HARRY TAYLOR, Columbia branch manager, is a Kentucky cunnel, sho nuff.

Probably prophetic or perhaps with something of a premonition, the Kaycee Variety Club Chatter has been referring to Brother TAYLOR as "Colonel" for some time.

When asked for a speech at the last club meeting, Colonel TAYLOR arose and begun: "You will haf to podden my sudden oxcent, mine frands. . . ."

TOM COLLINS, not the drink but Sunday editor of the Journal-Post, played his second return engagement, giving another of his humorous talks for which he has become justly noted. ARTHUR COLE was chairman.

STAN HUBBARD and JOE FRIEDMAN were kings for the day.

The club bulletin this week has the following: "If you fellows don't patronize the 'stag nites' more often than you have been doing in the past, the club will institute 'bank nights' and give away a slot machine and all its contents to anyone who pulls lemons. This is just a supposition, not opposition."

Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—Tent No. 13 gets into full swing this month with a series of events planned.

Tomorrow a smoker is planned in the new home. At this time, members will be able to inspect the improvements and redecorations. Appropriate ceremonies are being arranged.

On Feb. 18, at the Penn A. C., a gala entertainment has been scheduled.

A premiere of a picture, all the acts playing in town as well as screen stars and other features from other cities are listed. With the proceeds, the club plans to get a treasury balance. LEONARD SCHLESINGER is active in this work, with the assistance of a committee.

Tent No. 13 mourned the death of H. BART MCHUGH, veteran theatrical man. His funeral was attended by a large delegation of members.

Chief Barker EARLE SWEIGERT is in command of the work of the various committees and is priming the unit for the spring season.

Washington

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Lambasting effigies of the five local dramatic editors with sundry solid missiles was one of the major diversions offered the barkers of Tent No. 11, when EDWARD DES. MELCHER, dramatic editor of the Evening Star, and WILLIAM C. EWING, Warner publicist, as kings for a day, spread their royal smoker and repast recently.

The Varieteers were no respecters of persons, for their deadly aim was leveled at MABELLE JENNINGS, of the Herald, the only dramatic editrix in town, with no less frequency than at her four confreres.

The principal guest of honor was (DAVID) RUBINOFF — without his violin!

Since about the first of the year the weekly Monday luncheons have been replaced by weekly Friday night smokers, but this rule was pushed aside when PETE MACIAS, proprietor of the Heigh-Ho Club, and OSGOOD ROBERTS, publicist for the Mayflower Hotel, tossed a luncheon at the club.

In a dance contest—yes, this was a Ladies' Luncheon—the senior award went to A. JULIAN BRYLAWSKY, whose partners were his mother and his wife. EDWARD DES. MELCHER took the junior title, with MRS. CHICK (CARTER T.) BARRON, wife of Loew's division manager, as his partner.

Last Friday, the first, HARRY C. BUTCHER, CBS announcer, and ANDREW R. KELLY, dramatic editor of the Times, resumed the night smokers.

Kings for a day for the next few weeks are as follows:

Feb. 8—LOUIS BERNHEIMER and BEN LUST.

Feb. 15—JOHN CHEVALIER and DON CRAIG.

March 1—EDWARD HALEY and MORRIS SIMON.

March 8—ROBERT M. GRACE and SAM M. FLAX.

Academy Approves Contract Revision

consented to a revision which includes terms more favorable to actors than those contained in the present contracts.

When the companies sign the agreement it cannot be amended before March 1, 1937, and then only with the consent of a majority of the signatories then active and also the consent of Academy executives and players.

The signatories are RKO, Warners, M-G-M, Paramount, Universal, Fox, Educational, Columbia, Century, Roach, First National and Harold Lloyd. The agreement will be presented for signing by all other companies which may wish to do so.

The new deal requires a continuous call bureau with the record open to any one who desires to use it. It also outlaws the one-picture deal.

Approval of the new contract by the Academy and producers will not affect the stand of the Actors' Screen Guild. It will continue its fight for code recognition, it was stated today, and will insist upon what it calls a more equitable method of arbitrating disputes.

Under the terms of the new contract the Academy acts as arbitrator if the actor wants it. If he objects, there is no other form of arbitration provided.

Those from the home office who will make the trip include James A. Clark, advertising sales manager; C. E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity; E. C. Grainger, eastern division manager; W. C. Kupper, western division manager and William Sussman, assistant to John D. Clark. Joe Lee, sales manager of the local exchange, will also attend the session.

Usher Union Moves Disturb St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 7.—It is reported here that a meeting of all theatre heads was held here recently to discuss the rumored formation of an ushers' union in this city.

Managers and theatre operators have been disturbed for some time over the report that ushers were organizing, and it is said that John Nick, head of the stagehands' union here and an important factor in the national organization, is supporting the ushers.

It is expected that an announcement from the usher leaders will be forthcoming some time next week.

"Meanwhile, the newsreels have continued during the course of the trial to handle the whole thing with repression. I therefore, take the full responsibility for instructing our newsreel editor to cover the trial in scene and sound on the day when Hauptmann took the stand. I told him to act as a reporter not as an editor, and he carried out my instructions to the letter. He handled the whole matter with impartiality and dignity and with all due respect to the court.

"Meanwhile we have been pilloried in some of the newspapers and to a certain extent in your telegram for doing something dishonorable. You and I are both well aware of the fact that the motion pictures of the trial were not made by trickery or concealment. We know very well that no apparatus has been concealed in the court room. Not only because it is too cumbersome to conceal, but because no newsreel representative has done anything on the sly. All talk of photography by trickery is nonsense. In view of the above and because I believe your request is inconsistent, I have not recalled our picture from circulation. . . ."

"It's a continuous first run." So said Paramount when "Bengal Lancers" closed at the Paramount last Thursday to open at the Rialto the following morning. "It's a second run and that sets our houses back," retorted the Loew circuit.

Better judgment prevailed ultimately and all is now serene. More or less. . . .

Treble Damages on Bankrupt Attacked

but that if actual damages can be proved the claimants are entitled to a claim for the amount provable. The remedy for treble damages is a common law action, not an action in bankruptcy, Joyce held. The opinion was written in answer to a motion by the Paramount trustees to expunge the claims of A. B. Momand of Oklahoma and E. M. Loew of Boston, which are based on alleged anti-trust law violations and sought treble damages aggregating $10,000,000. If the damages are provable at all, under Joyce's ruling they may not be trebled. The opinion is subject to review by the Federal district court.

Joyce also approved a proposal by the Paramount trustees for expediting the reorganization of Olympia Theatres, New England subsidiary, under which Paramount is authorized to purchase for $50,000 outstanding Olympia stock and allow a claim for breach of agreement filed against Paramount by the Olympia stockholders' committee.

Studios Are Again Upset by Magazines

Summary action may be taken against several "fan" magazines within the next month if objectionable material published counter to an understanding arrived at some time ago with the Advertising Advisory Council is not discontinued, it was learned yesterday.

The objectionable material has been evidenced in only "two or three" publications, it was said, and consists for the most part of stills of undraped night club entertainers presented in such a manner that they appear to be screen personalities. Continued use of the material in its present form may result in the shutting off of all editorial and pictorial service to the publications by film companies and barring of the magazines' representatives from studios.

TIME reader commuting from Mamaroneck to his work in lower Manhattan Friday, decided to see the first issue of THE MARCH OF TIME on the screen. Finishing work early, he journeyed by tube to Jersey City, where THE MARCH OF TIME's advertisement listed Loew's theatre as the nearest one showing the new picture. (Unfortunately a mistake. Not until Feb. 8th can it be seen in Jersey City.) So back to Manhattan and up Broadway on a street car he went until the sign on the marquee of the Capitol (plus advice of another TIME fan on the car) led him to the box office of that theatre.

AMAZING

THIS is a true story. It happened Friday afternoon on a Broadway surface car. Overhearing a passenger questioning the conductor about the Capitol Theatre and noticing a copy of TIME under his arm, our informant* asked if he was looking for THE MARCH OF TIME. This story was the answer, an amusing tale of the efforts of one TIME reader who made up his mind to see THE MARCH OF TIME, even though misdirected all the way to Jersey City (for which THE MARCH OF TIME offers full apology).

Unusual, of course—but the determined action of this one TIME reader is typical of the public interest that has marked the start of this monthly series. That's why managers everywhere report constant phone calls asking "What time will it go on?" It's why audiences in theatre after theatre are applauding every performance. It's the reason why THE MARCH OF TIME on the screen of your theatre means a new kind of audience that will come back month after month. Talk to your nearest First Division exchange at once.

Australians' Quota Plans Irk British

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Jan. 28.—A memorandum addressed to the Government of New South Wales by the Film Producers' Group of the Federation of British Industries has been published here. It is a strongly worded protest against the proposed legislation in Australia whereby British films will be put upon the same footing as imports of other nationalities.

The memorandum stresses the fact that films made in Australia rank as British for quota purposes in England and says:

"It is scarcely credible that films made in Australia for Australian quota purposes will continue to be permitted to serve as British quota in Great Britain if British films are not only excluded from serving as quota in Australia but are actually treated on all fours with foreign films.

"The British film industry would be forced, however reluctantly, to press His Majesty's Government to debar Australian films from serving as British quota . . . if the N. S. W. bill in its present form were to become law."

The memorandum sees as illusory provisions in the bill limiting the right of cancellation of British films, declaring that American importers would book their programs with a compulsory proportion of Australian made subjects, leaving no room for British films. The obligation to distribute Australian films would also rest on British firms and severely handicap them, it is urged.

Film interests confidently expect that they will have a new champion in the House of Commons after the next general election, in view of the adoption as Conservative candidate for Wood Green, London, of A. Beverly Baxter, director of public relations for Gaumont British and previously managing editor of the Daily Express.

The Wood Green seat is regarded as a "safe" one for the Conservatives, the retiring member having returned large majorities since 1918.

Radio's "Gay Divorcee," at the end of its first two weeks at Paramount's Carlton in Haymarket, London, had beaten all attendance records for a corresponding period in 1934, when "I'm No Angel," "Cleopatra" and "One Night of Love" were among the films shown.

"Gay Divorcee" drew in the fortnight just over 50,000 patrons out of physically possible 58,000.

The Home Office is to be asked, at the instance of the Entertainment Committee of the London County Council, to make it obligatory to carry all inflammable film intended for educational or other non-commercial use in red containers. The request is a sequel to a recent fire at a school display using inflammable films.

Wants New Zealand Pictures Selected

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Greater discrimination on the part of American producers in the number and type of pictures sent to New Zealand would improve the position of U. S. distributors, according to Vice-Consul W. W. Orebaugh, at Wellington, in a report to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

It is the belief of a large section of the New Zealand trade, the report states, that too many American pictures are being shown in that country. Several American companies now make selections of pictures to be marketed in New Zealand. One large company, it is stated, sent only 26 last season, all of which were of high entertainment value, whereas other American companies sent as many as 75 or more, a proportion of which were not rated highly in New Zealand.

If each renter, the vice-consul states, would offer only about 30 films in a season, American pictures would gain a higher reputation for quality, which would in turn be reflected in increased box-office receipts.

That the dominion is overbuilt is indicated in the report. It is stated that a dozen new theatres will be erected in the near future by a large circuit. This, it is pointed out, must sooner or later force out the less strong units.

Swedish Receipts Gain

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The purchasing power of the Swedish population has risen with improved economic conditions, according to acting American Commercial Attache Osborn S. Watson, of Stockholm, and theatre receipts for 1934 showed a gain of approximately $125,000 over 1933. The amusement tax collected by the government, a greater part of which came from theatre revenues, amounted to approximately $100,000.

Danzig Films 30% U. S.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The origin of films exhibited in the Free City of Danzig is German, 65 per cent; American, 30 per cent; miscellaneous, five per cent, according to a report from American Consul John H. Bruins to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

The report states that there are 22 theatres in the city of which all but one are equipped for sound, with a 20 per cent amusement tax.

First Latvian Film Out

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—"Tataus Dels" (The Son of the People), the first dramatic sound film played by a Latvian cast in the Latvian language, is being shown in several Latvian theatres, according to a report from American Vice-Consul Leslie Gordon Mayer, in Riga, to the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Transfer Nebraska Spots

OMAHA, Feb. 7.—Several changes in Nebraska ownership have just taken place. M. Biemond has taken over the Liberty at Loup City from A. H. Sorensen; L. F. Tiede has acquired the Moon at Otoe from J. O. Miller; Rev. Bede Cernik has taken over Catholic Hall at Prague from Rev. A. Biskup, and W. H. Brune has taken the Brunada at Winside formerly held by J. Jorgensen.

Colombia to Acquire Portable Projectors

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Government of Colombia is interested in educational films, according to a statement issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce, based on a report received from its Bogota office. The Colombian government will purchase during the current year portable sound equipment to be used in small towns and villages. The Ministry of Education is now making a study of the needs.

Although handicapped by taxes, the industry had better business in 1934 than for several years previous. Box-office receipts for the year amounted approximately to $1,080,000, compared with $1,320,000 in 1933.

Sound Dominates in Netherland's Indies

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Sound films have finally ousted silent films from the Netherland India market, according to a report made to the U. S. Department of Commerce by Trade Commissioner C. E. Brookhart in Batavia.

Until this year, Brookhart states, silent pictures, including those from China, had retained a position of their own in this area.

American films on a basis of footage accounted for 57 per cent of the film imports of Netherland India in the first nine months of 1934, with German pictures accounting for 20 per cent; Dutch, 11; French, seven; and British, two.

The United States, Germany and the Netherlands improved their respective positions, the report stated, in the market during the nine months' period. French pictures maintained their former position, while British pictures lost ground.

N.S.W. Bars "Stingaree"

SYDNEY, Feb. 7.—Because it has a bush-ranger theme, Radio's "Stingaree" has been banned in N.S.W. despite the fact that its exhibition in other States is permitted. The ban means that RKO will lose about 25 per cent of "Stingaree's" earning possibilities in the Commonwealth.

McClelland Back on Job

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Another veteran has returned to his post. Ronald McClelland is back as manager of the Capitol. He built the theatre 15 years ago. Eventually its operation was taken over by Famous Players. He retired last summer to look after other interests, but the patrons are greeting him once more in the foyer. The Capitol has had two managers during the past six months.

Again Milwaukee Shows

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 7.—Shows are slated for a comeback at several of the downtown Fox houses with the "Barn Dance" booked for one week the middle of the month at the circuit's Alhambra. The future policy for this house, which has been playing dual flickers for the past several months, is still vague. Reports have it that the circuit will also put stage shows into its ace house, the Wisconsin, before long. E. J. Weisfeldt's Riverside is the only house on the avenue now playing vaudeville.

Northwest Is Cold to Film Rating Moves

SEATTLE, Feb. 7.—There is no movement on foot in the Pacific northwest to mark pictures according to audience appeal and opposition is being expressed.

The plan instituted by Warners in Philadelphia was declared to be entirely unnecessary by Frank L. Newman, general manager of the Evergreen Circuit which operates houses in Seattle, Portland, Tacoma and several other spots.

"With the clean-up campaign now in effect, segregation of films as to adult or family appeal seems to me to be entirely uncalled for," Newman said. "I have seen scores of pictures during recent weeks and there hasn't been a film previewed that I wouldn't call fully fit for family trade, as well as adult consumption. In fact, there is a great field for argument as to what type of film might be suitable for adult appeal, and what type for family trade, assuming that the 'moral' appeal was entirely proper in both cases, as is the case with all pictures now."

A similar viewpoint was expressed by Hal Daigler, general manager of John Hamrick's circuit in Seattle, Tacoma and Portland, where Warner product is featured. According to Daigler, also, there is no need to try to limit attendance in theatres by designating who should and who shouldn't attend certain pictures, when all pictures are morally fit for everyone to see, and generally have some appeal to all classes.

Blank Men Against Ratings for Films

OMAHA, Feb. 7.—The Warner Philadelphia plan of designating pictures as suitable either for adults or for families is regarded by A. H. Blank circuit executives as "dangerous practice and it certainly will not be tried here."

Evert R. Cummings, district manager of the Blank theatres in Omaha and Nebraska, and a number of his house managers said it would be poor policy, especially in this region where the Legion of Decency is still active.

"It appears to us," Cummings said, "that it would be too great an admission on the part of the showman that something might be wrong with a picture to offer it as 'adult entertainment.'"

Jack Reel, a former showman of many years standing and now picture reviewer for the Hearst Bee-News, declared he heartily favored the segregation idea.

Lieberman Houses Close

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—The circuit headed by Frederick E. Lieberman, which has grown rapidly in the last few months, is undergoing a temporary shrinkage. The Victory and Capitol in Lowell, operated in conjunction with Norman Glassman, have closed because of removal of sound equipment. The Rialto is now the only one of the circuit's former trio now running in Lowell.

Missouri Bill Seen as Boon To Code Board

Bank Night Ban Would Cut Work by 90%

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 8.—Should the bill introduced in the Missouri legislature at Jefferson City go through to outlaw bank nights, cash nights and all other forms of gift enterprises at theatres, it would reduce by 90 per cent the number of complaints filed with the Kansas City grievance board.

At whose instigation Representaive Frank F. Catron of Lexington, Mo., presented the bill is a deep mystery here and something premium interests are trying to run down. The measure is drastic and sweeping in scope, and specifically aims at the various price-reduction devices dealt with in the code. It would ban prizes even though the only consideration is attendance and would declare violation a misdemeanor punishable by a heavy fine.

Mexican Legitimate Shows Get Tax Cuts

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 8.—More official aid to keep the moribund Mexican theatre alive, in the face of heavy competition from films, has been granted by the government, which has exempted from special tax payments all houses that present exclusively dramas, comedies, revues, musical comedies, operas, concerts, ballets and the like. This exemption does not apply to film spots nor to stage houses that present pictures as a part of their regular programs.

Theatres that receive this exemtion must guarantee that their shows are always clean and essentially artistic.

Cooper Denies Any Protest Intention

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Gary Cooper during a train stop here today denied Hollywood reports that he was on his way east to protest on behalf of Paramount stars against the removal of Emanuel Cohen as production head of the company.

"I am not interested in studio politics or who the producer is," said the actor. He added that his trip was purely a vacation and that he and his wife, Sandra Shaw, who is with him, would spend a month in New York.

Brown Moves To Overhaul Chicago Union

Understood Opposed to Maloy's Policies

Groundwork for the reorganization of Chicago's operators' union along conservative lines is understood to have been laid by George Brown, I.A.T.S.E. president, who returns to New York today after attending the funeral of Tom Maloy, slain "czar" of the Chicago local.

Brown personally directed the reorganization of Local 306, here, following the deposition and sentencing of Sam Kaplan, and continues to direct the local himself.

Chicago exhibitors and a large representation of union members there are reported anxious to effect a complete overhauling of the union's affairs and officialdom to guard against a continuation of Maloy's policies and a succession by any of his recognized cohorts.

Warners Win Coast Fight On Clearance

Campi Rules Forum and Uptown Non-Competing

After three hearings on the Warner-Fox West Coast clearance dispute involving the Forum and the Uptown in Los Angeles, Campi has decided by a vote of six to one that the houses are non-competitive and in different zones. Code Authority's ruling sustains the local clearance and zoning boards, but reverses a decision by an appeal committee which upset the opinion of the coast body.

The complaint originated about last fall when Warners started to buy protection over the F.W.C. Uptown, Charles Skouras objecting on the ground that the Forum was in competition and had been for many years. In addition, F.W.C. had been buying protection that way. The Forum has 1,856 seats, while the Uptown has 2,100, both charge 35 cents and are on an equal footing in other respects.

When the case was called last Thursday, I. Levinson of Warners and William T. Powers of F.W.C.

Quigley to Publish Richardson's Book

The Quigley Publishing Co. has acquired publishing rights to F. H. Richardson's widely-known "Handbook of Projection" and is now preparing a new edition to be ready for distribution in March.

The coming edition is a totally new work in every detail. With the collaboration of Aaron Nadell, sound engineer, who prepared the section on sound reproduction, Richardson has brought his work up to date, including in it a full exposition of the latest types of projection and sound equipment and accessories as well as the theories, practices and methods now current. The book will contain more than 150 illustrations among which are wiring diagrams and schematics never before privileged for publication.

Richardson is an international authority on projection and a regular contributor to Motion Picture Herald and Better Theatres.

Managers and projectionists rate his "Handbook" as a standard piece of equipment for every theatre.

"What has Weissmuller got that I haven't?"

"Lupe," was the squelcher.

Ohio Pastors Seek Block Booking End

COLUMBUS, Feb. 8.—A resolution was adopted by the convention of Ohio pastors here to ask both state and national legislation against block booking and blind selling. Suggestions of the motion picture committee, adopted by the convention, included an appeal to Governor Martin L. Davey and Dr. Beverly O. Skinner, censor head, for more rigid censorship.

Dr. Fred Eastman, professor of religious literature and drama of the Chicago Theological Seminary, talked on the origin and application of block booking, and described the recent cleanup campaign.

"More people will see Mae West's next release than have seen 'Hamlet' in the 300 years of its existence," he declared.

asked to probe the company, the annual meeting being adjourned.

In the interval there have been strong rumors that an offer for the whole of the outstanding preference shares had been made by John Maxwell of Associated British Picture Corp., but it is unlikely that a definite statement will be made until the adjourned general meeting and special meeting to approve the reconstruction are held.

The issued capital of G. T. C. is £650,000 in £1 ordinary shares, held by G. B., and 1,250,000 7½ per cent cumulative preference shares of £1. There is outstanding £2,014,563 of 6½ per cent first mortgage debenture stock.

Mark Ostrer is Chairman and C. M. Woolf deputy chairman of G. T. C., of which they are joint managing directors.

Renewed efforts to obtain the cooperation of distributors in an attempt to control new theatre construction have been made by the General Council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. At its last meeting it passed a resolution calling for immediate steps to set up a conference with the Kinematograph Renters' Society on this question.

Exhibitors want a permanent committee, on which distributors will be represented, to deal with overbuilding problems. Under the leadership of John Maxwell, the K.R.S. has declined to associate itself with the policy of controlling building by trade action, implying the possible withdrawal of film supplies, but this does not necessarily mean that it will not discuss the general question.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Car 99"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—This is gripping and at times thrilling entertainment. It gives accurate backstage information about the radio police and the high-powered gangsters whom they battle.

The crooks, led by Sir Guy Standing, impersonating a professor, first learn the working of the state police radio system and then plan a bank robbery, with the method of beating radio pursuit cleverly figured out. In the early scenes they make State Trooper Fred MacMurray look foolish. MacMurray is fired, but later, when the gang is escaping after the robbery, he joins the pursuit, is instrumental in their capture and is restored to the force.

Despite the simplicity of the story and the weak love motive between MacMurray and Ann Sheridan, the picture holds the interest throughout because of the fine shadings introduced by director Charles Barton.

Though the cast lacks box-office names, the picture will stand up because of action and unusualness of theme. All players carry their roles well, excellent comedy scenes being turned in by Frank Craven and William Frawley, who play a sheriff and a police sergeant, respectively. Standing, though not thoroughly at home in a crook role, carries the part smoothly. Production by Bayard Veiller is workmanlike and the photography excellent. Good melodramatic entertainment.

Production Code Seal No. 583. Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

"The Right to Live"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—A drama of love and sacrifice which shines in all departments, this film is designed for the sophisticated trade and metropolitan cities. The story features the ideal wedlock of Josephine Hutchinson and Colin Clive, tragically marred by an injury to the latter in an air crash. Miss Hutchinson sacrifices all youthful pleasures for her husband until his brother, George Brent, arrives on the scene.

At Clive's insistence Brent is placed in charge of escorting Miss Hutchinson to social functions, with an ensuing romantic triangle. As Brent and Miss Hutchinson decide to sacrifice their love for the sake of the cripple, Clive learns he is beyond recovery and subsequently commits suicide. Special Nurse Peggy Wood, who has fallen in love with Clive, believes his death to be a murder frameup until Henrietta Crosman, the man's mother, divulges his secret death-bed confession. Miss Hutchinson and Brent start anew as Clive would have wished it.

William Keighley's direction and all performances are of the highest calibre. Ralph Block penned an intelligent screen play from Somerset Maugham's story. There is high-class photography by Sid Hickox.

The appeal is limited to audiences of above-average intelligence.

Code Seal No. 443. Running time, 68 minutes. "A."

Looking 'Em Over

"Jack Ahoy"

(Gaumont British)

"Hilarious comedy hit with Jack Hulbert" is the way the ads describe it. This may be quite true from Southampton to the Shetland Islands, or is it the Orkneys? Hulbert, no doubt, has a following from the banks of the Thames to Clydeside. He may even have a following some place between South Ferry and Yonkers, but the rain kept most of it out of the Roxy at the first showing.

The music is catchy, the story moves along rapidly from the time the navy gets under way in England until it reaches China and complications develop through the efforts of Jack to get back a submarine stolen by Chinese pirates and to win the admiral's daughter, Mary O'Neil. There's plenty of atmospheric naval stuff. Money has been spent freely on the production angles.

Hulbert's burlesque characterization, his smirking and exaggerated gestures probably would be fine for a short sketch, but an hour or more of it with no change of pace, no softening of mood even in the romantic moments, little timing of gags is likely to prove a handicap in those sections of this country where Hulbert's name is just a name.

Production Code Seal No. 0141. Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Warners Win Coast Fight On Clearance

appeared before Campi and gave summations. Levinson stated that the Uptown has a drawing population of 14,000, while the Forum could draw from 11,000 in its particular area. The houses are one mile apart. The Warner attorney added that the two theatres had enough people to draw from without hurting each other and hence were not competitive. However, Powers held that the houses were competitive and that the Uptown had to draw not only from the 14,000 in its area, but also from the 11,000 people designated in the Forum zone.

One Declines to Vote

Because Felix A. Jenkins of Fox and Harold S. Bareford of Warners represented companies involved, they could not vote. One member of the Code Authority elected not to cast a ballot. In the final tally one vote was chalked up in favor of Fox West Coast, but the other six voters held in favor of Warners.

Considerable importance is given the Campi ruling, which, it is held, will precipitate a plethora of complaints along the same lines. When Campi establishes a precedent by declaring non-competitive two theatres one mile apart with a drawing population of 25,000, and operation features of both theatres practically the same, it is opening the door for hundreds of complainants with similar situations, it is stated.

Code Authority, in handing down the decision, added that if the new setup doesn't work out, F.W.C. can bring a complaint before the local board. If such a complaint is brought and an unfavorable verdict is handed down for F.W.C., the circuit can appeal to Campi.

Postpone Boston Cases

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Again the grievance board case of Oze Tessier against E. M. Loew, circuit owner, regarding giveaways in the New Bedford area has been postponed, this time to Feb. 11. The case of the Brockton Amusement Co. operating the Brockton and Strand in Brockton, against Interstate Theatres, operating the Plymouth and Old Colony in Plymouth, has been postponed for the time being. No date has been set. The former protests against Plymouth being served regardless of Boston precedent.

Woman Who Failed To Get Prize Sues

TAMPA, Feb. 8.—A suit for $700 has been filed here against the Tampa Theatre by Mrs. Hazel Greene Felix. Of this $650 was for the bank night prize and the other $50 was for damages in refusing her the prize money.

Mrs. Felix claimed that she was outside the theatre in an overflow crowd when a name was drawn for the $650 prize. A little later she heard that it was her name which had been drawn, so she applied to the manager for the money. The management, she claims, refused to give her the money because she had not purchased an admission ticket.

About two weeks ago Attorney General Landis issued an opinion that bank night did not conflict with the lottery laws of the state, provided the winner was not required to purchase an admission ticket or token.

The committee will not conflict with the code grievance board's work. According to Schoenfeld, the plan has been approved in a letter received from Will Hays, who states he will inaugurate the program in other cities if the Seattle venture is successful.

Paramount today. Letters and telephone calls have been pouring in from Legion of Decency members.

Protests were inspired by the Catholic weekly, The True Voice, which urges a boycott despite the fact that the picture is "The Secret Bride," which has received an approved rating by the Legion of Decency.

E. R. Cummings, district manager for Blank, said he would keep silent and let the show go on.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.—Ernst Lubitsch, new supervisor of production for Paramount, today held individual meetings with all of the company's writers and directors in a move to establish good-will and understanding as to the future operating policy. Missouri Bill Seen as Boon To Code Board

Bureau, which has been campaigning against bank nights, is of the opinion the bill is unnecessary because the attorney general of Missouri has ruled bank nights and similar drawings a lottery.

Meantime, the local grievance board continues to swat offenders. Competition was found to exist between the Majestic, Washington, Kan., and the Elite, Greenleaf, Kan., though separated by more than nine miles of highway, and a desist order was issued against the Washington house, which operated bank nights. Despite the distance between the towns, it was admitted they draw trade from each other.

J. Erwin Dodson testified one reason his Casino, Excelsior Springs, Mo., darkened shortly after reopening was bank night competition from the Fox Beyer, same town, and the board ordered it stopped. Both cases are to be appealed.

That Fox Midwest has no definite policy on the "nights" and is both for and against the practice, depending on local situations, is indicated in the filing of a complaint by Ray McLain, manager of the Fox Granada, Emporia, Kan., against E. O. Briles, Lyric, same city. In two or three other spots the circuit has been using the stunt.

tended 15 consecutive showings of a serial.

Children attending the showings each week of a serial were given cards which were punched in the order of attendance. Juveniles holding cards with 15 consecutive punches were permitted into the theatre after the chapter play completed its run. Warners objected on the ground that the theatre was actually giving 16 admissions for the price of 15. The committee upheld the circuit.

Although the State, New Haven, won its reduced admission complaint against the Lawrence, same city, for permitting five-cent admissions, the plaintiff appealed because the local grievance board did not hand down a cease and desist order. The respondent, at the New Haven hearing, promised he would discontinue the practice, and the board let it go at that.

The Campi appeal committee rendered a stop decision and in addition advised the local board the next time a complaint of this nature comes up to do likewise.

Suggestions of Impartial Men Before Campi

Changes in the makeup of local clearance and zoning boards are in the offing, following receipt of a number of recommendations from impartial men answering questionnaires sent out by John C. Flinn. Some of the letters were discussed at the last Campi session. While nothing was definitely decided, the matter will be brought up again when the 64 government representatives are checked in.

Opposition is chiefly directed to members sitting when cases involving affiliated companies are discussed and voted. Impartial men hold that after the open hearings are over and testimony and evidence completed by both parties, it is not unusual for one of "Copperfield" at $160,120 for Run

Chalking up a gross of $50,370 for the third week, "David Copperfield" continues to keep the Capitol and Loew executives in a holdover frame of mind. For the first week the take was $55,750 and for the second, $54,000, or a total of $160,120 for the three-week period. The picture holds for a fourth stanza. Indications are that it may go a fifth. Radio May Produce "Company" Films; No Producer Credits

Hollywood, Feb. 10.—Radio may try out a new idea in production during the coming year by turning out some pictures as "company" pictures with no special credits to producers. The idea is to make them the product of the combined studio talent.

The plan is only a possibility thus far, and just how many of this type of picture there will be is uncertain, it is understood.

First reports had it that the company intended to do a complete about-face on production and make all pictures this way, but this was emphatically denied at the studio. It was pointed out in refutation that Merian C. Cooper had just been re-signed as a producer and that Clifford Reid had just been given a producer's contract.

California's Film Measure Barrage Heavy

San Francisco, Feb. 10.—When the California legislature resumes its deliberations March 4 among the 3,448 bills introduced in both the Assembly and the Senate during the recent first month's session, there will be at least 177 proposed measures more or less affecting the films.
